Speaking to council were Band Manager Harry Moorman, band member Reginald Hinchey and Morley Duff, member of the band committee. All three noted the present financial position of the band and pointed out the need for additional funds.

Mr. Duff stressed the importance of a band in the community and noted that in maintaining a band the city was doing a good service for the community. The Belleville Band was one of the finest organizations of its kind in the province but money was needed for the purchase of new uniforms.

Existed For 71 Years

The speaker noted that the local band had been in existence for 71 years, but that the allocation from the city of $1,200 annually was totally inadequate. This was wiped out by the bandmaster's salary, while expenses last year amounted to over $2,000.

"Our first primary objective is to supply new uniforms for the members," he said. "On many occasions the band has been forced to turn down parades because of the lack of uniforms. Also band competitions call for band members to be completely uniformed."

Mr. Duff spoke of the splendid work done by some of the older members of the band, including Reg Hinchey, Harry Moorman, Garn Dobbs and Walter Aselstine and others, stating if it were not for the interest of these men the band would undoubtedly cease to exist.

Can Train Juniors

Mr. Hinchey, who last year was made president of the Bandmasters' Association of Canada, referred to the senior band organizations as a suitable outlet for the many juniors who were being trained in the schools. "The ultimate aim of these juniors was to play for the municipal band," he said.

"Belleville has one of the three finest bands in the province, but, ironically, it has received but little support," stated Mr. Hinchey. "We have now 51 members and have a 75 per cent attendance at practices each week. These boys buy their own instruments, give their time and get nothing."

"Because of the lack of uniforms the Belleville Band were refused competition at the Canadian National Exhibition this year," he said.

Mr. Hinchey compared the amount allocated by the city to the local band each year with that of many much smaller centres in Western Ontario noting that the amount made available in Belleville was far less than in these centres.

Takes All Available

Belleville was fortunate in securing the services of Laidlaw Addison as bandmaster, but unfortunately the bandmaster's salary took practically all the money made available by the city. During the war the local band raised a total of $10,000 for charitable purposes, Mr. Hinchey said.

Alderman Lloyd as member of the band committee noted that council should be prepared to make a substantial grant to the band next year and suggested $3,000 might be the correct figure. Later Alderman Duffy brought in a motion recommending to the 1949 council that $3,000 be provided in the estimates for the Belleville Municipal Band.

Utility Motions Will be Heard In Supreme Court

Motions by the local public utilities commission to quash two bylaws of the Belleville city council, one with respect to increasing membership of the commission from three to five members, and the other directing that the cost of utility expansion be paid out of profits, will be before the courts on Monday, November 22nd.

At yesterday's meeting of the Public Utilities Commission it was made known that the two motions had been filed with the local Registrar and that the cases would be heard at the Supreme Court sitting at the court house before Mr. Justice Wells. The Commission has retained Wilfred Judson of the law firm of Long and Daly, Toronto, while R. A. Pringle, city solicitor, will act for the city.

On the motion to quash the bylaw which would raise the membership of the commission from three to five members, the Commission contention is that council has no legal right to increase the membership without putting the matter before the people.

Claim Council Cannot Direct

In the second action the Commission is objecting to the council by-law which directs that the cost of laying new watermains to serve the Parkwood Heights area be paid by the Commission out of water profits. The Commission claims that council cannot direct how the money is to be raised.

The Commission has agreed to proceed with the work of laying the mains pending decision on the matter in the court.

Power saving came up for discussion with Utilities Manager O. H. Scott stressing that conservative use of heavy duty electric ranges would do much to reduce the consumption of electricity. Running of water taps unnecessarwaster as it took considerable power to pump the water.

Commissioner Wotten urged a campaign to induce users to put in light bulbs of lower wattage, stating that this would mean a considerable saving in power.

Industrialists were stated to be working on a scheme which if put into effect would stagger the working hours of local industries throughout the entire week, thus reducing the peak power load.

Shops Supplied For Catering To Youngsters

Though Christmas is some six weeks in the future as yet, the shops of Belleville are standing by and well supplied to cater to the desires of the youngsters of the city when the old gent with the red suit and white whiskers makes his annual trip down from the North Pole and slides down the chimneys.

Accentuation is being placed on modernization of toys and games, though this year it would seem that toy guns and other implements of mock warfare are being repplaced by more peaceful substitutes. Electric and wind-up trains, the joy of every boy, and one might add, his father, are again becoming reasonably plentiful at moderate price ranges. A train with its equipment and tracks provides entertainment for many a long winter evening or rainy 'after-four.'

The little misses have not been overlooked by Santa's workers, and once again the toys are given the 'new look.' For the future housekeeper there are sewing machines that sew, stoves that cook, washers that wash, irons that iron and so on down the line. Dolly is given the latest in buttons and bows, and there is the sweetest little buggy to take the favorite doll for a stroll when playing 'house.'

For the more boisterous, cars, trucks, bicycles, tricycles, pedal cars, and wagons will head the long list addressed to Santa Claus. The winter sports favorites will find skiis, skates and sleighs under the heavily-laden Christmas tree.

Mom and Pop, as well as big brother and sister, of course haven't been forgotten, but Christmas in most families is set aside as the childrens' day and emphasis is placed on the importance of beaming faces and 'oohs and aahs' of youthful surprise and merriment on the happy day.

After all, wasn't it a child that was responsible for the first Christmas?

Dr. C. Nicholson Will Preach At Anniversary

When the Rev. Dr. C. M. Nicholson comes to Belleville for the anniversary services at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday he will be completing an extensive mission of Protestant witness in which he has given stirring leadership throughout Eastern Ontario during the month of November.

He is speaking at Brockville this evening, while regional meetings are being held in Peterborough, Lindsay and Oshawa during the week. Ottawa and Arnprior were included in the Mission. With the background of experience in the pastorate, with a keen and incisive mind and his academic career that has brought him to be principal of Pine Hill Divinity Hall, Halifax, N.S., Dr. Nicholson has outstanding speaking ability.

As one of the five official delegates of the United Church of Canada to the inaugural meeting of the World Council of Churches in September, 1948, this young Christian leader had first hand opportunity to study the strength and weakening of the Church. His report on the historic World Council at Amsterdam will be given at the evening services next Sunday in Bridge Street United Church. It is expected that interested people from a wide area will be attending.

Recent Rainfall And Mild Weather Help Farmers

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)— Rainfall in the last week or so has helped Ontario farmers but in some sections more is needed.

The weekly report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture said today that in Peterborough County fall wheat grew considerably in the last two weeks and most of it will go into the winter in good condition.

Mild weather helped Dundas County farmers clean up field work. But more rain is needed to improve the water supply. Some farmers are drawing water. Rains helped fill low wells in Glengarry. Unless more rain comes, Prescott and Russell face one of the worst winter situations in years. Rain was general in Algoma and the land is soft and wet.

The report, made up of extracts from reports of district agricultural representatives, says there is a demand for dairy cattle in many sections. In Hastings dairy cattle prices are $15 to $25 higher. In Frontenac there is a keen demand for milch cows. There is also brisk demand in other eastern counties and in Northern Ontario districts.

Corn picking and husking has been delayed in Lambton county by wet weather but the sugar beet harvest is about completed.

Fall plowing is about finished in most sections.

Merchants Endorse Recommendation C. of C. Sponsor Broadcast Series To Post Public on Current Events

Members of the Retail Merchants' Division of the Chamber of Commerce at a regular meeting last night endorsed a recommendation that the Chamber of Commerce sponsor a series of broadcasts to inform and keep the public posted on national affairs and current events.

Harold C. Seldon, president of the Chamber spoke of the growing threat of communism and stated several groups within the chamber felt that the seriousness of the subject is being overlooked by not taking definite action to combat this threat to free enterprise and Democracy.

The proposed broadcasts will be of a weekly nature and extend over a period of years. Each week a different subject on the threat of Communism will be aired through the efforts and financial support of the Chamber.

Must Take Stand

It was pointed out to the meeting that there was a reason why we today have to be interested in international affairs. Before 1939 international news did not even make headlines in Canadian papers, but now after World War II, we have to take a stand in international politics. We hold an enviable world position and are open to attack, and we must take a firm stand for if there is another World war, it will likely be fought in or over Canada. We have to now think in terms of the "Whole World" and not in terms of Canada or Belleville. World War III is inevitable unless we make ourselves stronger than our opponents. In the past we overlooked Hitler's policy which is stated definitely in "Mein Kampf". He foretold his objectives and how he would reach them, but few paid any attention."

The communist doctrines believe that the history of the world is a struggle between classes, the capitalists and totalitarians. This continuous struggle will not cease until only one class survives. The communist does not believe in life after death, so he is out to have his innings on earth. A showdown must come, as the communists make no bones about it, they do not intend to live side by side with the capitalists.

Cannot Live in Same World

The time has not come yet, but it will as soon as Russia feels that she has sufficient strength to secure a victory. Vishinsky, in a recent address said, "Russia and U.S.A. cannot live in the same world." Stalin said, "Under no circumstances must world revolution be attempted until the end is a certain victory for them."

Opposition may be weakened by causing contradictions and misunderstandings between allies, and by causing internal strife in Canada.

"We must build up our fighting strength and our moral strength. A democratic system must get behind the Government. There is too much apathy and lack of good citizenship in Canada. We can see the results of this in China. Today China is in her death throes. The Communists are just about ready to take over. Lack of interest and good citizenship is largely responsible. The result is the feeding grounds for communists with their wild promises. The uninformed worker is on whichever side promises him better living.

"In Canada we have the same signs of apathy. Lack of feeling for fellow-citizens, profiteering on the misfortunes of others, lack of patriotism, putting our own interests before that of our country. In West Hastings in the last election, only 28 per cent voted. If a communist member had been running his supporters would all have voted and he might have been elected."

BODIES OF TWO MEN RECOVERED FROM LAKE

North Bay, Nov. 16 — (CP) — The bodies of Leslie Brooks, 24, of Port Loring, and Owen Van Every, 35, of Powassan, were recovered Monday night from the waters of Memesagamesing Lake, about 40 miles southwest of North Bay. Both men were drowned Sunday night when their light outboardmotorboat capsized.

Four other passengers in the boat escaped. The men were starting out on a hunting trip when the drowning mishap occurred.

Van Every is survived by his widow and five small children.

Methods Used To Improve Cattle Herds Described

Dr. H. Keith Mitchell, of the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association, was guest speaker at the Optimist Club meeting on Monday evening.

He spoke of the work of his organization, comparing their methods favorably with those in use in the United States and Denmark. He told how they operate to improve the breed of Canadian cattle, with greater efficiency and less expense to the farmers.

Dr. Mitchell was introduced to the club by Lloyd VanDusen, and thanked on their behalf by Roy Robinson. In the absence of President Don Boyce, vice-president Howard Kokesh presided at the meeting. Stew McDougall was appointed sergeant-at-arms, and H. Bankier acted as "critic."

Three-Months Term Given Mrs. Osman For Wounding

Paris, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP)— Mrs. Ethel Osman of Paris, was sentenced to three months in the county jail on a wounding charge, resulting from a family quarrel in which Mrs. Osman stabbed her husband, James Osman, with a bread knife at their home at wartime housing the early morning of Oct. 31.

Magistrate R. J. Gillen presided in court in Paris and in summing up the case told Mrs. Osman that "you are fortunate that you are not here on a charge of murder." Two members of the Paris police and Dr. E. B. Patterson gave it as their opinion that both parties concerned were under the influence of alcohol at the time.

British Constable Wins Out in Tilt With Arrogant Mayor of Hove

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Because British public opinion can still make itself felt, Philip Watson, young Brighton policeman, is back pounding the beat.

Watson, a probationer of Scottish origin who took his job seriously, was dismissed at the request of F. G. Didden, Mayor of the adjacent town of Hove, who didn't like the way the young constable stopped him while he was driving to the Brighton races last August.

Watson's story was simple. Didden was travelling in the wrong direction on a one-way street. It was no use for him to say he was the Mayor of Hove. Watson knew his regulations. He insisted that Didden go with him to the police station.

Didden complained to the Chief Constable of Brighton, who promptly dismissed the constable. It didn't matter that Watson had a fine record as a regular army with the force and there was no appeal.

Policeman's Lot

The Watsons hadn't counted on public opinion or on Constable Ted Higham, Secretary of the Brighton branch of the Police Federation. Encouraged by the widespread sympathy for Watson, Higham waded into the fray with letters of protest to the proper authorities.

In council meetings and other gatherings the case was thrashed out a score of times, until at last it landed on the doorstep of the Home Office, which controls the country's police forces.

Happy Ending

By this time everyone in the United Kingdom knew about the case of the dismissed constable and there was no question where public sympathy lay. A cheer went up when the Home Office ordered Watson reinstated.

"People say I'm dour," said Watson. "I can't help it. It's just the way I'm made.

Sees 'Little Danger Of Shooting War In Near Future'

Chatham, Nov. 16 (CP) — The Communists have lost their chance in France and a policy of patient firmness will clear the Berlin tinder-box according to Camille Chautemps, four-time Premier of France, said in an interview here Monday night. He said "There is little danger of shooting war in the near future."

The Russians said Monsieur Chautemps, are losing ground in the cold war. "Berlin is by far the most dangerous spot, but it is my opinion that if we are calm, patient and firm, we can win there. I am hopeful the weight of world opinion will force the Reds to accept the U.N. compromise."

POWER MANAGER

"Our industry in Toronto feeds a number of other industries throughout the country" he said.

"I could mention our hospitals which serve those from all over the province, the provincial government buildings located here, and companies such as bread concerns in Toronto which serve many other municipalities and which should be taken into consideration in allotting power to this city."

In a message to the Niagara Falls city council, Ontario Premier T. L. Kennedy said the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission is doing everything it can to provide more power.

He added:

"The situation simply boils down to two things. We have demands for more power from the municipalities than we ever had before. Each year there is an astonishing increase over the year before. Secondly, water levels have gone down and some plants are generating only 27 per cent of their capacity, due to lack of water."

the heads of all missions in Nanking to discuss measures for the safety of diplomatic personnel and the possibility of China's moving its capital.

Rival claims beclouded what was happening at Suchow, guardian base 200 miles north of Nanking.

Claim Suchow Isolated

The Communist radio asserted Red troops had "completely isolated" Suchow and that they had taken Suhsien, 50 miles south. The government's version was that it still held Suhsien and, in fact, the Comunists were withdrawing from the northern Suchow front.

Pro-government sources were silent on the outcome of fighting on the east, west and south side of the battle.

Shanghai dispatches reported continued efforts by Gen. Huang Po-Tao's mechanized army to break through Red lines to the isolated Seventh Army Corps at Nienchuang, 35 miles east of Suchow. Shanghai newspapers Monday reported Huang had turned the Red tide, but today they referred to his "counter-attacks."

The Communist campaigns in the Nehol and Hopeh provinces gave evidence of a co-ordinated driev to seize the remaining government-held areas of North China, including the prize cities of Peiping and Tientsin.

Three United States Navy landing ships arrived at Tientsin, 85 miles southeast of Peiping, to carry evacuees to Tsingtao, United States naval base, for homeward passage from there and from Shanghai.

Bonny Prince is Born

The people of Britain have in these latter days forgot-n much of world of turmoil and opposition and verbal ashing of nations while waiting to celebrate an event hich means everything in the life of the home and the orld. In this case it was the birth of a boy who by his arentage is in direct line of succession to the British hrone. For days the vigil was maintained about Buckgham Palace by crowds with their patient English way waiting to hear the news that a Prince or Princess was orn to the Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

A very happy people these who celebrate the great acts in life and the birth of a child, who in the natural ourse of events will likely some day direct the destinies of he great freedom-loving British peoples! A birth in any amily is an event of the greatest importance and so in the ritish Royal Family for what the future holds for this aby Prince the event was also of supreme importance. It s a happy thing that a people who have been world leadrs in freedom and commerce, should also be the just rdinary and intensely human folk who place the home nd the cradle on a basis which cannot be shaken. Britain s sound.

For the Royal Family from the Queen Mother, to the King and Queen, the parents and Princess Margaret, no vent could bring greater happiness. The new Prince xtends the royal line another generation forward into the uture. The Royal Family has always exalted the life of he family, the late King George Fifth and the present Queen Mother Mary and the present Monarch and Queen have all of ties which bind them to the home. This very have had ties which bind them to the home.

Here was an event and a celebration so different from o much of the run of the news of the world, in which there re discords which have kept the nations busily engaged in he discussion of disconcerting topics. Here was an event which gave the people of Britain the opportunity to celebrate the great truth of life and at the same time to rejoice with the family which has been destined to guide the destinies of the Throne. There is something infinitely beautiful in the manner in which the people can grasp this fact and the symbolism of the Royal Family, so very human a family that everyone in the British Isles and in the Commonwealth and far beyond admires and desires to exalt them. The Royal Family and the families of the nations share the joy of the coming of a bonny young Prince.

In both the King's family and in the families in the historic Isles as in the nations of the Commonwealth and in other lands such as the United States this event is observed in the happiest mood. The families of Britain look down the coming years and can see as in a vision this young Prince born on Sunday growing up to play his part nobly and in the course of time and destiny arriving at the Throne. For the Throne lends a unity to the ages, generation after generation and people mark the times by the reigns of their beloved sovereigns.

On this young Prince and his mother and father, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, his grandparents the King and Queen who have so nobly played their royal part in British life and on his great grandmother the Queen Mother, countless millions of wellwishers in the Commonwealth and far abroad throughout the world pray heaven's richest benediction to fall.

Prime Minister King Retires

An era in Canadian public life has closed with the retirement from the Premiership of the Right Honorable W. L. Mackenzie King, who had been in charge of the Government of Canada for twenty-one years, a longer period than any other Commonwealth leader has been privileged to serve. In a double aspect Mr. King has helped to make Dominion and Commonwealth history.

So long a time of service in the highest post in any land is very rare. He was destined to be leading the Government in the trying days of the Second World War which called for the highest qualifications of leadership and service from all.

Canadians will wish the retired leader long years of health, happiness and ability to share in the life of the Dominion he has served so long.

BALLADE OF LIFE

Some sing the lyrics of despair,
Recall the loss; forget the gain;
Bewail the griefs that all must bear,
Find less of comfort here than pain
And less of sunshine than of rain
From birth until life's course is run.
But, often as we all complain,
Most of us have a lot of fun.

The pessimistic few declare
That every hope for good is vain,
That surely when the skies are fair
The clouds will soon return again;
That happy hours can't long train,

Most of us have a lot of fun.

"No good food on the bill-of-fair!
No dish or glass without a stain!
Anguish and misery everywhere,
The tares much thicker than the grain!
Always the moon must rise to wane."
'Tis thus the tales of woe are spun.
But, notwithstanding stress and strain,
Most of us have a lot of fun.

Son, of the gloomy crowd beware
And all their dismal preachment shun.

STRENGTH for The Day

Dr. Earl L. Douglass

THE GREAT ILLUSION

Desire plays very strange tricks upon us. The things we are quite sure we want more than anything else in the world very often turn out to be things which, when we get them, give us no satisfaction at all.

It is amazing how we can look back upon past experiences and blow them up to such immense proportions of satisfaction that they seem positively heavenly in their capacity to give satisfaction We look to the future and imagine how happy we would be if this or that should happen to us. The prosiac old present generally gets a lick and a promise from most of us. It is lacking in glamour and bristling with all sorts of unpleasant responsibilities; but even in that situation which we call the present, we so often imagine that we would be happy if we stood in somebody else's shoes, or had somebody else's material advantages or occupied somebody else's enviable position.

All this is illusion. Jesus urged men to be humble not only because the spirit of humility is morally sound but also because humble people live in the present and get their joy out of things as they are. The truly happy are the people who have learned to appreciate what they have, be that much or little. Happiness is to be found right in our own hearts. It comes as the result of taking life the way we find it and making the best out of it every day.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

TREES

For hours, during this Autumn day, I have sat in my library and looked out upon the falling golden leaves, as they have given up their Summer nest in the branches and tumbled noiselessly to the earth. Some of the branches are now nearly bare — but others, the maples and the oaks, are still in all their matchless glow of colorful beauty, entire areas resembling flamme-like tapestries on exhibition.

Once I walked out underneath these towering trees, and looked year they have grown taller — ever reaching for the maximum of sunlight. There are some maples that I set out years ago, when they were hardly taller than I am, but which today tower to thirty feet or more and which have returned their initial investment times over — and they will be blessing others long after these eyes have ceased to see.

Of all the creations in nature, to me, trees seem the most human. They almost talk to one, no matter where they are contacted. Stevenson said that "trees are the most civil society." I think so, too.

great sequoias in California. There are those there which stood in their youth when Christ was born.

Craftsmen have fashioned various kinds of wood that are works of art, indescribably beautiful, but trees in their natural state in the forest I like best to see, for there they seem like friends. There they furnish shade and protection to man, beast and bird, and give forth color and perfume that no artisan could fashion or create.

These trees take their punishment as wards of Nature, singing in the wind and rain, and celebrating the seasons in their turn, self-renewing their beauty each year, unmindful of time, their great roots tightening their grasp

Mackenzie's Column:

No Need to Worry That Humaneness Is Dead

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The way this worried, grumpy old world of ours has been thrilling and chuckling over the birth of Princess Elizabeth's baby, I guess we don't need to worry about humaneness being dead.

News bulletins literally circled the globe to record the event.

Britain herself is in a state of delirious joy. Monday the bells of ancient St. Paul's Cathedral and Westminster Abbey pealed out their rejoicing, and the bells of other churches throughout the land joined.

And what is the significance of all this? Well, several points strike me as worth comment. First off, although the Communist upheaval has seen the disappearance of several more monarchies, we find British royalty apparently at the peak of popularity.

People Want It

The Royal Family is in Buckingham Palace because the people want it there. In short, Britain likes the traditions and pomp and splendor which go with kingship and there is no sign that she contemplates making any change.

However, Britain is changing and one suspects that it will be a different country over which the new Prince will rule if he comes to the throne many years hence. Trying to look ahead I should say that he may well preside over a middle-of-the-road democracy in which the class inequalities have been eliminated. The economy will be ironed out so that everybody will get a fair break. That's the direction in which the course seems to be travelling now.

The nobility will be streamlined. Long before then the House of Lords will have been reformed, and likely will be composed of elected representatives instead of hereditary Lords as at present.

Kingship Symbolic

As for the kingship, that already is symbolic. Of course the King has much influence by virtue of his position and wide knowledge of the Commonwealth, but he is subject to the will of his people. We had plenty of evidence of that in Edward VIII's abdication.

And finally, if and when the new Prince is called to the throne he probably will be symbolic head of a different British Commonwealth of Nations. The Commonwealth thus far has been basically Anglo-Saxon but already is being modified to include other races which now make up the various parts of the Commonwealth.

Poet Laureate Pays Tribute To New-Born Prince

London, Nov. 16 (AP)— Britain's Poet Laureate, John Masefield, today paid tribute to Princess Elizabeth's son with a simple quatrain.

Titled "A Hope for the Newly-born" it reads:

"May destiny, allotting what befalls,
"Grant to the newly-born this saving grace,
"A guard more sure than ships and fortress-walls,
"The loyal love and service of a race."

It was published in The Times.

St. Laurent Claims Money Not Holding Back Building

Ottawa, Nov. 16 (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said Monday the point had not yet come in housing construction where government subsidies were needed to sustain it.

So far, he told a press conference, lack of money was not holding back building. All possible manpower and material was going into it. In fact, the Defence Department had not been able to spend all the money allotted to it for married quarters.

Mr. St. Laurent was first asked what his views were on subsidized low-rental housing. He said it depended on what the term meant. If it came to the point where lack of money was an impediment to construction, he would be prepared to consider the question.

Some people thought if the government would pay a share of building costs, more homes would be built. He didn't agree.

There might come a time when government funds would be the answer, but that time had not yet come. The high costs so far were not retarding construction.

All government housing was being co-ordinated, including defence building, and this agency would determine where and how its construction should go forward in fairness to all. It might be that controls could dictate the building of two $6,500 homes instead of one $13,000 home but there had been no decision that any controls of that kind were planned.

There might be something to be said for preventing the well-to-do from getting new houses but the situation now was that all possible construction was going forward. Every home was being filled and each one meant one less family looking for a home.

Man Finds Wife, Two Baby Sons Shot to Death

Wilson, N.Y., Nov. 16. (AP) —Farmer Herman F. Ganshaw crawled through a window of his locked and dark home Monday night and found his wife and two baby sons shot to death.

The bodies of Mrs. Mary Ganshaw, 23, and the boys, Peter, 1, and Richard, 2, were on the living-room floor. Nearby lay a shot gun and a long note that state police said indicated the mother had been depressed.

Coroner Mabel Carmer withheld death certificates pending investigation.

State police said the shooting apparently took place late in the afternoon, while Ganshaw was milking at the nearby home of his parents. The Ganshaw farm is five miles south of this Niagara County community.

According to the troopers, Ganshaw said he came home to find the door barred and all the windows but one locked.

Contents of the note were not disclosed. The coroner would not say early today to whom it was addressed.

SETTLE DOWN IN ONE ROOM

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 16 — (AP) — Raymond Goff, 16, and his 14-year-old bride, Norma, have settled down to married life in one room here. They were married here Saturday after having quit the eighth grade at high school two weeks ago.

The Packsack of Gregory Clark

Whatever may be wrong with November, it initiates for millions of us in downtown city apartments and in Hudson's Bay posts the real season of symphony and classical music. Only a very few years ago the numbers of us who were aware of the peace of mind and soul communicated by such music could be counted in a few thousand even in large cities. A couple of thousand is all you could crowd into a concert hall to hear the great orchestras and concert musicians.

Today, apart from the scheduled live radio concerts by the great orchestras of the continent, the seeker can find dozens of hours each week on the radio devoted to reproduction of classical music. No field of human awareness, not even popular education, can possibly compare its expansion to that of classical music in the past brief twenty years.

The pity of it is, however, that the radio listener who has never witnessed a symphony orchestra in action is liable to accept that divine flood of sound as something ordained like the wind or the stars. He doesn't know that little men of incomparable talent and skill are striving superbly together to create that glory.

Mendelssohn's violin concerto, for example, takes several minutes over the half hour to perform. Out in front of the massed orchestra, the violin virtuoso stands forth alone. Hardly for an instant, from beginning to end of that rushing, sublime concerto, that that violinist a breathing spell.

Apart altogether from the genius of that lone man in having memorized the mighty work, every note, every expression of it, apart entirely from the technical perfection of his trained hands, those flying fingers on the fiddle, or the other hand wielding the bow with power, with truth, with the delicacy of flowers, apart from all that is in his head and his hands, is the sheer athletic force of his performance. For thirty-three minutes, taut, sensitive, alive, he walks an intellectual tight rope. But no prize fighter, no hockey

FUNGUS INFECTIONS OF THE SKIN

Foot itch, athlete's foot, ringworm, dermatophytosis, trichophytosis, barber's itch, Dhoble itch—these are only the more familiar names applied to one or another skin trouble of fungus origin.

The fungi are a group of plants, including mushrooms, toadstools, puffballs, molds, mildews, and a dozen or more species of microscopic size which cause these various types of skin trouble.

The chief characteristic of skin troubles of fungus origin is (a) the communicability of the disease and (b) the persistence with which it recurs after it has apparently cured.

Foot itch of fungus origin is probably the most familiar, because it is so easily acquired by walking barefoot on any surface recently trod by a barefoot person who has foot itch — hotel room, about swimming pool or gymnasium, and the like.

Once you get the foot itch, no matter how thoroughly you treat or disinfect the affected skin, it is short of adequate treatment unless at the same time you disinfect all footwear, including socks or stockings, shoes, slippers. Otherwise the fungus will grow in such footwear and reinfection is almost inevitable if you wear it again without disinfecting it.

For this purpose formaldehyde solution is effective and does not injure fabric or leather. The standard Solution of Formaldehyde (Liquor Formaldehyde, U E.P.) is about 37 per cent strength. Use a tablespoonful of it diluted with six tablespoonfuls of water. Pour a tablespoonful of this diluted solution in the shoe and swish it around so that the entire insole and particularly the lining of toe of shoe is wet. Drain out the excess into the next shoe, and so on till you have treated every shoe or slipper in the same way.

Then let the shoes or slippers stand in the sun or at least in the open air to dry thoroughly for at least 24 hours. Then they may be worn again.

This same treatment of footwear is helpful for preventing excessive sfeating of the feet.

Keep the formaldehyde solution off the fingers or the skin. It is highly irritating to the skin.

Whitefield's ointment is the most satisfactory remedy I know for the relief and cure of foot itch. This consists of fifteen grains (15 grains) of salicylic acid, twenty-five grains (25 grains) of benzoic acid in two drams of soft petroleum and enough cocoanut oil to make one ounce of ointment. Apply each night to affected patches of skin for a week. Then rest for a week. Then another week, if necessary.

This and other remedies are described in the pamphlet on foot itch, available on written request if you inclose stamped self addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Local Doctor

A local doctor says I have a small cyst on the ovary. He advised that I do nothing until it gets larger and begins to bother me, then have it removed. Is it wise to wait? (Mrs. B. W.)

Answer—Thousands of women, unmarried or married and with or without children, have ovarian cysts and never any serious trouble from them.

Post Card or Postal Card

Some time ago I wrote for a pamphlet. I am still waiting for it. (W. M. M.)

Answer—Don't wait any longer. Ask for a pamphlet you want, in writing, and inclose a stamped self addressed envelope.

Dope

Would like to ask why, whenever I take —— or —— (nostrums) to regulate my bowels it makes me sick to my stomach. Have you a pamphlet? (A. L.)

Answer — Send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope for booklet The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene. The first thing to get out of your so-called head is the notion that some kind of dope is required to "regulate" any function.

Physical Education

(Please tell me what you suggest for poor posture. Is a bed board a help? I'd like to correct it before it is too set. H. M.)

Answer—Take daily gymnasium exercises under the personal supervision of the physical education instructor at school or at the Y.

History Falls In Three Fairly Equal Periods

Ottawa, Nov. 16 (CP)—The years 1919 to 1948 will be known to future historians of Canada as "the Mackenzie King era", Prime Minister St. Laurent predicted Monday.

A reporter asked Mr. St. Laurent at a press conference after he was sworn in as Prime Minister if he had anything to say about the leader he had succeeded.

"I haven't prepared anything and I don't want to be controversial," the new Prime Minister replied. "To us Liberals it appears that Canadian history since Confederation falls into three fairly equal periods."

The first period ran from 1867 to 1891 and was dominated by the country's first Prime Minister, Sir John A. Macdonald, a Conservative. The second was the period from then until 1919 and, although he was not in office during the full period, was dominated by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. St. Laurent said.

"To us Liberals it seems that the period from 1919 to the present time will be looked on by historians of the future as the Mackenzie King era. It is remarkable not only because of its length, but because of the achievements."

He enumerated the achievements of the "Mackenzie King era" as the developments in commonwealth relations which took place in the 1920s, the country's emergence from the depression, the war policies and post-war developments.

"None of us feel we have any reason to blush for the war job that was done under Mr. King," he said. "Early in the war they used to say he was peacetime Prime Minister, but wasn't a war leader. Later in the war, he didn't hear that so much...."

Reception Held For Newlyweds

On Friday evening, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Morgan, West Huntingdon, was the scene of a very pleasant event. A reception was held in honor of their son Harry and his bride, (nee Lois Coulter), who were married recently.

The dining room was prettily decorated with pink and white streamers caught together with white satin ribbon, which fell in long folds. Two silver bells hung from the ribbon, coming just above the blue bird of happiness which was the top decoration of the beautifully decorated groom's cake. The lovely wedding cake also added to the attraction.

About forty guests sat down to a real tasty meal. The table with its pure white linen cloth, vases of pink roses and feather ferns, looked very pretty. Silver and pink candle holders with long white candles and raw fruit served in sherbert glasses, being part of the trim.

A toast to the bride and groom was given by Mrs. John Townsend to which they replied, thanking all for the beautiful gifts and inviting the guests to visit them in their home. Speeches by Mrs. Beazer and the groom's father, followed.

Later, on behalf of all present, a word of congratulation to Mr. and Mrs. Murray Morgan, was extended by Mrs. Beazer on the occasion of their 24th wedding anniversary. All sang "For They are Jolly Good Fellows".

The waiters were Mrs. Jack Hendricks, Miss Aileen Morgan and Joyce Townsend.

The rest of the evening was spent in visiting and cards.

A charivari gang made a noisy announcement of their arrival.

Shower is Held For Bride-Elect

A very lovely shower was held recently by Miss Betty Mastin, in honor of Miss Patricia Mowers, bride-elect of this month, at which sixteen friends assembled.

The theme of the evening was effectively carried out by the fire-place which was decorated with ferns, representing a miniature garden, over which was suspended a sprinkling can, in pink and blue.

The tea table was very charming centred by a large mirror, upon which floated cream puff swans, made double by their reflections.

Those who served the dainty refreshments were Miss Beth Wilbur and Mrs. T. Mowers.

Miss Jean Irwin was the fortunate winner of the clothes-pin-bottle contest.

Many lovely and useful gifts were received for which Patricia graciously thanked the givers.

The very pleasant evening came to a close by all singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow".

Brighteners

Sarasota, Fla., (AP)— Nobody knows where the little monkey now named Zuka, came from or where she found the two kittens she is mothering.

The first time Zuka was seen she was hanging by her tail from a high limb in a pine tree, clutching the yowling young cats to her skinny breast.

Vaughn Weible lured her down with a banana. He coaxed her into a cage and put the kittens in with her.

Now they are one happy family.

Baltimore (AP) — Safe burglars went to work with an acetylene torch in the office of a Baltimore theatre.

The torch blazed and blazed but the safe would come open. They gave up in disgust and left their equipment behind, police reported.

Instead of a cutting torch they had used a welding torch.

They left the safe door closed tighter than they had found it.

Peterborough — (CP) — A group of seven hunters, returned from a week in the woods north of here, have brought back the story of the season. All are willing to swear to the truth of it.

One member of the party, Constable Dennis Traynor of Peterborough, demonstrated the fleetness of the city's police when he outran and caught a rabbit. The bunny had been chased by two dogs with the party, but the constable got impatient at their efforts and started to pick 'em up and lay 'em down himself. The rabbit was caught by hand. That's their story, anyway.

USE "WONDER DRUG" IN ROYAL PRINCE'S BIRTH

A new English "wonder drug" figured in the birth of the baby Prince of Edinburgh over the weekend. Known as "Trilene," the drug is an inhalant to ease mothers in childbirth. At left, Miss Jean Hobson, of London, demonstrates how simple it works. The drug is contained in a glass phial within a metal tube. A spring releases the anodyne, which is soaked up in cotton. Princess Margaret, shown in one of her latest pictures, becomes third in succession to the throne, being placed in that order by birth of a son to Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.—Central Press Canadian.

Early Signs of Christmas Season Seen as Preparations Get Under Way

The nearness of Christmas becomes more evident daily, what with only 33 shopping days left in which the harassed householders can scurry around shops seeking the appropriate gift for a friend or relative. Store windows are beginning to take on a festive appearance as seasonal colors and designs form backgrounds for articles displayed as possible gift suggestions.

The weather cannot be held as an indication of the proximity of the 25th of December, as the promised—or threatened—snow consistently fails to make its debut. Steadily falling thermometers remind us of the lateness of the season, while reports of unusual horticultural accomplishments by nature are given daily in the press.

One department which will be snowed under soon with Christmas season difficulties is postal employees. Queues are starting to form daily in front of the wickets. They are parcel-laden citizens with an eye to the warning against delaying the mailing of that Christmas parcel to friends or relatives across the seas in the more unfortunate countries.

Of course, Christmas or even Christmas planning would not be complete without thoughts of the jovial little man in the red suit, flowing white beard and the cheerful chuckle—Santa Claus. A parade is being readied, for public presentation, children gather daily around their radios to hear his program, and everything is getting underway for his annual visit the world over.

It has often been said, by those who have felt the pinch of the high costs of Christmas, that the event has become highly commercialized. That is, in many cases, true, and when making up the Christmas list this year, in view of the even higher costs, it would not be amiss for Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public to take a hitch in their resolve and remember that as it once used to be said, "It's not the gift that counts but the spirit in which it is given."

Canadian Education Week

School Develops Complete Individual

Our youth must go, at the end of their school-days, into a world that will be far more complex than it was in our grandparents' times, or even nowadays.

The school must, therefore, teach much more than just the fundamental skills like reading, writing and arithmetic. These three are necessary, but alone they are not sufficient. The school prepares youth in every possible way for a full and satisfying life. The school develops:

- a sense of values
- a spirit of team-play
- acceptable personal habits
- adequate general knowledge
- intelligent choice of occupation
- ability to do useful and satisfying work
- intelligent use of leisure time
- above all, the ability to think clearly; to express oneself clearly; to make one's own decisions.

Shannonville

W.A. of United Church Holds Bazaar and Tea

Shannonville— A very successful bazaar, sale of home cooking candy and afternoon tea, was held Thursday in the Orange Hall, under the auspices of the Woman's Association of the Shannonville United Church. This is an annual event and by all reports there was a larger crowd in attendance than that of last year. Members of the congregation of the neighbor church, Holy Trinity were in attendance and also out-of-town guests noted in the gathering were Major Kenneth Graham, his wife and two sons of the Salvation Army, Belleville.

In charge of a marvelous display of Aprons were Mrs. Orville Straton ,Mrs. Walter Morden and Mrs. Everett Stratton. Considering the work and material, the aprons were very moderate in price.

Home Cooking Sale

Mrs. Frank Doxtator, Mrs. Arthur Houston and Mrs. Alex Goodfellow were in charge of the home cooking sales. Judging from the array on this table the local ladies must be exceptional cooks and the rate the cooking disappeared proved this observation. The ladies in charge remarked that they could have sold far more than they had for sale.

The home made candy also disappeared rapidly. There were all varieties a person could desire.

The fish pond was well patronized as usual and a steady lineup of fishermen waited their turn at "the hook and line." Mrs. Ross Shetler was again in charge and was most capable in this capacity. She was assisted by Misses Marina and Beverly Mastin.

The fancy work table was also well patronized with its varied display of sewing and work of art. Here could be purchased anything from dainty knitted baby jackets to crochet ear-rings and brooches. This was an ideal spot for the selection of Christmas gifts. The display was a credit to the efforts of the ladies and all realized the work they had done in preparing for this particular display during the past year. The ladies in charge of this table were Miss Winnifred Eckhart, Mrs. Clarence Mastin and Mrs. Saul McFarlane.

Splendid Array

A fine array of vegetables was noted on that sales table. Judging from the variety and numbers Shannonville Community must have had very bountiful crops of vegetables. Mrs. Damon Hinchey Mrs. Hudson Cooke. and Mrs. Percy Moore very capably looked after the sales.

An innovation this year was a table under the auspices of the Sunshine Girls Group of the Sunday School. This array consisted of fancy work, knitted articles, home-baking and candy. All work being done by the girls themselves and the display was definitely a credit to those teenage girls. Miss Myrtle and Leona Uens were in charge of this table.

One of the interesting features of this annual bazaar is the "Touch and Take" table, and this was in operation as usual. Mrs. S. S. Elliott and Mrs. A. Greatrix were incharge of this feature attraction. It did not take these two ladies long to dispose of their wares as the majority of folk love the aspect of mystery, not knowing just what their prize package may contain.

Tea Served

Tea was served from 4 to 6 p.m. and a large number partook of the delicious and appetizing food In charge of the small tea tables were Mrs. Raymond Clarke, Mrs. Charles Wood, Mrs. Lorne Uens, Mrs. Malcolm Little, Mrs. B. Houston, Mrs. Kenneth Juby, Mrs. T. Breadman and Miss Betty Mastin.

The long tea table with the lace cloth tall candles and a centrepiece of white 'mums was presided over by Mrs. W. D. Robertson, Mrs. J. F. MacFarlane, Mrs. C. Boulestridge, Mrs. Currie English, Mrs. Morden and Mrs. A.W. Lougheed. These ladies poured tea during the hours of 4 to 6.

Receipts Satisfactory

The ladies assisting in the kitchen did a remarkably fine job in preparing the plates for the ladies who were serving the tea tables, although the tables were rarely vacant during the tea hour. There was wonderfully fast service due to these afore-mentioned ladies. Assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. Kenneth Vivian, Mrs. Elmer Vivian, Mrs. Harry Murphy, Mrs. Robert Little and Mrs. Ross Shetler. Mrs. Claude Clarke was in charge of the tea making.

The ladies in charge report very gratifying returns as their receipts for the day were in the neighborhood of $200.

V.O.N. NEWS

Taxpayer: "I see by the papers, Dr. Paul Martin, Minister of Health, points out that Federal Government, through health grants, for the next five years to the province, hopes to raise the health standards of the country. Will that do away with your nursing service?"

V.O.N.: "I doubt very much that voluntary bed-side nursing, for which we stand, will ever be dispensed with, for as long as there is illness, it will be needed. But there's the possibility that it might not need our service in experimental fields we have in the past undertaken."

Taxpayer: "Do you mean the V.O.N. carries on experimental work?

V.O.N.: "Assuredly. Though nursing care is our primary concern, it is also a part of our duty to interpret health needs in the community."

Taxpayer: "I don't think I understand."

V.O.N.: "The V.O.N. will step into the fields of experimental health work which official health organizations hesitate to sound out with the people's money, until they are certain it is the people's wish and need."

Taxpayer: "What are some of the so-called 'fields'?"

V.O.N.: "For instance, in Belleville, the toxoid clinic, the baby conference, and the Separate Public School work as is done at St. Michael's, were once fields of experimental stages."

Taxpayer: "What are 'official organizations' you referred to?"

V.O.N.: "Oh, such as the Board of Health or health unit agencies."

Taxpayer: "Do you give up such work entirely, after it is proven needed and established?"

V.O.N.: "Sometimes. It depends. Some official agencies prefer to join and work with us. Others find it best to take over and work separately. Situations vary."

Taxpayer: "Yours is truly an amazing health organization. Do other countries have the advantages of such services as you give?"

V.O.N.: "There are many small, separate nursing services, but our V.O.N. is the only nationally organized nursing service on this continent."

This service, the best in the world, is at your door. Call 1125.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Engraved Engagement-Announcements Are Not Correct

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter has just become engaged, and she tells me that she intends to send out engraved announcements of her engagement. I had always considered this bad taste. Is it now considered correct, as she insists it is?

Mother

No. It is not considered correct to send out engraved (or printed) announcements of an engagement. Your daughter should write notes to relatives and intimate friends telling them the news of her engagement. Her fiance writes the news to his relatives and intimate friends. And you and your husband may if you wish, formally announce the engagement in the newspapers.

Tell Him You've Seen the Movie

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If your escort suggests going to a movie which you have seen, should you tell him that you have seen it or say nothing about it and go (even if you didn't particularly enjoy it when you did see it?)

Alicia S.

Don't hesitate to say you have seen the movie. This is the only sensible thing to do, since the man is trying to give you a pleasant evening, and certainly doesn't want to spend money to have you bored.

Men Invited to Engagement Parties

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to invite men to an engagement party, or should only girls be asked?

N. L.

It is proper to invite men to an engagement party . . . either the party to announce the engagement or party to celebrate engagement. (The engagement-announcement party is given by the girl's parents; a party to celebrate the engagement is given by a relative or friend of either the fiancee or the fiance.)

When Ushers Give Present to Groom at Bachelor Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it considered better form for the ushers to give the groom individual presents at the bachelor dinner, or a joint present?

Bill

If this kind of present is to be given to the groom, the ushers (sometimes with the best man) usually contribute to a joint present. The most usual one is a silver cigarette box, engraved with the facsimiles of all their signatures. Or sometimes a silver tray is engraved in this way.

"How do you do" is Correct Introduction Formula

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is there a definite rule about what to say when one acknowledges an introduction?

Frances H.

Yes. Say "How do you do". . . and you will always be right! And "How do you do" is the correct thing to be said by both persons of the introduction.

Addressing Social Envelopes When Man and Wife are Both Doctors

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband's doctor is the husband of my doctor. When we send them a Christmas card, how should the envelope be addressed? (My doctor uses her maiden name professionally, Dr. Mary Smith, but not socially.)

Helen S.

Address the Christmas card to Dr. and Mrs. John Bryant. This is the correct form for addressing social correspondence to them jointly . . . such as Christmas cards, wedding invitations and all other social invitations, marriage announcements and so forth.

Bride to Wear Hat at Her Informal House Wedding?

Dear Beeckman:

I am to be married in my own house, and am planning to wear a street-length dress. Should I wear a hat?

Bride-to-be

Just as you wish. Personally, I think that a bride at an informal house wedding does look better-dressed when she wears a hat. a small, smart hat in harmony with her costume.

Eggs Cheapest Quality Food

Any housewife looking for the cheapest high quality main course dish should keep a good supply of eggs on hand these days. This is the opinion of C. F. Luckham, secretary of the Poultry Industry Committee of Ontario.. To suppoht his contention, he points out that retail prices for Grade A eggs in Toronto and Montreal have run at or below 50 cents a pound in recent weeks.

The trouble is, he thinks, people forget a dozen A-large eggs weigh 24 ounces or more, a dozen mediums weigh more than 22 ounces and a dozen pullets weigh between 18 and 22 ounces per dozen and average about 20 ounces. Now A-grade eggs are all the same quality. The difference in price is simply because of size . . . and right here Mr. Luckham has another tip for the buyer of eggs. At this season of the year pullet eggs are usually a particularly good buy. With the young birds just starting to lay, supplies of pullet eggs are heavy and the prices for them get lower than the difference in quantity of egg really warrants.

For example, on September 21st, A-large were retailing at around 75 cents a dozen in Toronto while A-Pullets were selling to consumers at around 55 cents. This meant you got more egg for your money by buying A-Pullets. It also meant they were a good buy, for if compared with other products it means a cost of 44 cents a pound for eggs. That's not cheap, but there are few high-grade protein foods which sell that low these days. What's more, any poultryman will tell you the finest eggs of all are the pullets eggs so help yourself to health and keep the budget balanced with eggs as a main dish used frequently, advises Mr. Luckham.

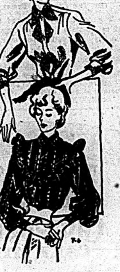
Beautiful Blouses



Your Choice of Crepe or Cotton

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

BLOUSES were never nicer, nor were they ever available in such rich variety no matter the price bracket. The first of this winsome blouse twosome is a white crepe blouse with white lace collar and insets down the front and at the sleeves. It is a blouse that is just right for a dressy daytime occasion. Ideal for the college girl is this example of the new winter cotton blouses. Printed calico in tones of brown, red and yellow make it just bright enough. The demure little collar tops a ruffled yoke and the full sleeves have tight wrists.

Meat Loaves Tasty, Thrifty

Meat loaves are general favorites in most families. They are the answer to the dilemma of many a homemaker who wants to continue serving the type of meals to which she has accustomed her family.

The rich brown flavor of a meat loaf is much the same as an expensive roast and the meat is tender and juicy. Besides being made from less expensive cuts, a comparatively small amount of meat is extended by the addition of cereals so that it fits into the economy budget and gives a bonus for thrift.

Beef loaf is the common type but veal, fresh and cured pork, liver, kidney and even lamb may be made into delicious loaves.

Canned pressed meat loaves may be used cold, just as they come from the can or reheated and served in various ways. One interesting suggestion is to cover the loaf with a thick "icing" of fluffy mashed potatoes then bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, until the potatoes are browned and the meat heated through. When sliced this has a party air with the pink slice of meat surrounded by white potatoes with a brown crust. This may be done with home-made loaves also.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, are particularly fond of meat loaves. Here are several of their favorites. One of them is a "meat" loaf without meat.

Vegetarian Meat Loaf

1 cup cooked beans
1-4 cup peanut butter
4 teaspoons chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
Few grain pepper
3-4 cup soft bread crumbs
1-2 cup grated mild cheese
1 cup strained, canned tomatoes
1-4 cup milk
1 egg, beaten

Grind the beans, mix with peanut butter. Add remaining ingredients.

Pack into a buttered loaf pan and bake in moderate over 350 degrees Fahrenheit, for 30 minutes. Yield: six servings.

Golden Meat Loaf

1 1-2 lbs. ground beef
1 cup rolled oats (quick or regular)
1 cup grated raw carrots
1-4 cup chopped onion
1 egg, beaten
1 cup milk
2 teaspoons salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon spicy meat sauce

Combine all ingredients thoroughly. Pack into a greased loaf pan, (4 1-2" x 8 1-2"). Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees Fahrenheit, one hour. Yield: eight servings.

Kidney and Beef Loaf

1-2 lb. beef kidney
1 lb. beef, chuck or round
1 medium onion
1 cup dry bread crumbs
1-4 cup chopped celery
1 1-2 teaspoons salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
1-2 teaspoon chopped parsley (optional)
1 egg, slightly beaten

Put kidney, beef and onion through the meat grinder. Add bread crumbs, celery, salt, pepper, parsley and slightly beaten egg and mix well together. Shape into a loaf and place in a greased pan. Bake in a moderate over 350 degree Fahrenheit, for 1 1-2 hours. Serve hot or cold. Yield: six to eight servings.

Woollen Exhibits Show Old And New Knitting Styles

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — A Tudor knitted wool cap 300 years old on display here is proof that fashions are going backwards.

Dug up from excavations in Finsbury, London, the cap is strikingly similar in design to the "mop" cap of the latest new look Paris models.

The cap is one of several centuries-old woollen articles — stocking glove mittens, helmet cap and ear flaps — found in various parts of London and loaned for exhibition here at the knitting wool show given by the Wool Secretariat. The Secretariat displays them as proof of the durability of pure wool.

The historic woollen articles had been knitted on much finer needles than are commonly used today and are close to the weave achieved by factory knitting machines. The London Museum said the fact they had been buried in moist clay soils was the reason for their well preserved state.

Examples of Continental, Scottish and Foreign patterns and designs hundreds of years old are exhibited along with samples of the latest modern designs.

Ancient Art

Knitting is an ancient art but its actual origin is not known.

Arabic knitting goes as far back as 700-900 A.D. and it is known that they taught it to the Spaniards.

The year 1386 was the date of the first known knitted articles in Britain — a pair of silk gloves owned by the Bishop of Winchester. The first English king to own knitted things was Edward IV. Henry VIII and Queen Elizabeth wore knitted silk stockings and Charles I went to the scaffold in a knitted vest.

Each old pattern and design holds its own story — such as that of the Aran sweaters, pride of local craftsmen.

This is a traditional mixture of cables and heavy knots knitted into the fabric to form geometric designs, a style found only in the Aran Islands. Each family has its own group of patterns which, by common consent, constitutes a sort of trademark and are not used by other families.

If an Aran sweater is shown to an islander he can tell at once which family has knitted it.

Rare Species Wild Duck Shot at Galt

Brantford, Nov. 16 (CP)— If Lloyd Walker has what he thinks he has, its one of the biggest wild life stories which had broken in some years.

While out duck shooting during the weekend Mr. Walker shot down two ducks, all white except a black ring around the neck.

He has an ide: that they may be Labrador ducks which have been reported extinct for many years.

A check with the Webster international dictionary revealed that the Labrador species was black and white in color and that it was at one time common on the New England coast. However the dictionary pointed out, no specimens have been reported since 1878.

The Walker birds were bagged on a pond located half way between Paris and Galt.

Mr. Walker said at noon today a search would be made of an illustrated duck folder this afternoon to see if the Labrador species is listed. If it isn't he will consult officials of the Brant Museum.

Peterborough C.I. Juniors Defeat Belleville 18-1

Peterborough — Peterborough CVI junior football team defeated Belleville CI juniors 18-1 at Trinity College School field Port Hope on Saturday to win the C. O. S. S. A. junior semi - final. The winners play Port Colborne here Saturday for the title.

Victory Saturday came in the final quarter for PCVS after 46 minutes of gruelling play on soft ground as a strong wind swept across the field caused passes and kicks to play knavish tricks. Dowcett kicked a single for Belleville from the PCVS 10 yard line at the five minute mark when Red Townsend's boys moved into scoring position following a series of hard line plunges as the teams warmed up. In a fine display of defensive football both teams held even against the best their rivals could offer until half time. PCVS line, led by Garth Jopling, Hubert Knox, Jim Grant, Paul Frise, Grant Burns, Buster Jensen and Al McIlraith, shone as the Quinte squad passed hard in vain to add to their margin.

Evened It Up

Don Griffin evened the score early in the third as a blocked kick gave PCVS possession on their rivals' 35 and when a pass and plunge failed, Griffin booted to Ewald for a single. Superior condition perhaps began to tell as the hot pace continued both ways till finally, the great plunging of Rarrel Ackford, Warren Brown, Roy Armstrong and Griffin behind skilful blocking began to show its effect. At the 12-minute mark, Armstrong plunged nine from his rivals 47 and Brown crashed through for yards. Griffin then took the ball from Armstrong and reserved his field, on a neat cutback to run around right end to Belleville's eight and set the stage for a major score —just at quarter's end. This play was the turning point and as the teams changed ends, successive plunges by Armstrong and Brown bore fruit as the latter plunged over at the one minute mark. A pass to convert failed.

PCVS scored again five minutes later as Belleville lost on downs on their own 35 and, led by Young, Armstrong, Ackford and Brown, they advanced to Belleville's 10 and the latter two plunged with Ackford scoring, to make it 11-1. Brian Young, who played a fine game, converted from placement. Belleville, strictly on the defensive, held fairly well for seven minutes but tired noticeably and gave ground late in the quarter. Peterborough gradually worked to their rival's 12 and as a pass failed, Warren Brown again came through with one of his fine plunges to score standing up. Young again converted from placement with but seconds to go to end the scoring.

For Belleville, Dowsett, star kicking half, Taylor at middle and Faulkner at outside wing, were best in defeat.

Peterborough: Flying wing, Evans; halves, Brown, Ackford and Gandy; quarter, Young; snap, Frise; insides, Grant, McIlraith; middles, Jopling, Knox; outsides, Burns, Jensen; alternates, Griffin, Armstrong, Howe, Wood, Foster, Braund, Langborne, Bigford, White, Heard, Cruickshanks, Fowler, Facendi.

Toronto Marlies Defeat Indians And Leave Cellar

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Marlboros moved out of cellar-place in the Ontario Hockey Association senior race Monday night—for the first time this season.

Marlies picked up their fourth win last night when they downed Stratford Indians 5-3. The loss put Indians in cellar-spot.

"Scotty" Mair with two and Bill Johnson, Chuck Blair, and Johnny McCormick were Toronto's marksmen. Mickey Roth, Bill Walsh and Johnny Messmer counted for Stratford.

Toronto drove into a 1-0 lead late in the first period when he beat Bobby Bindernagel on a close in shot.

McCormick put Marlies up 2-0 early in the second frame on a pass from Timgren but seconds later Bill Walsh answered for Indians on a lone rush. Johnson put Toronto ahead, but Stratford fought back with two quick goals to tie up the game.

Goals by Mair and Blair in the third period clinched the game.

Only one game is scheduled in the O.H.A. tonight, St. Michael's College Majors clash with Galt Rockets in the junior circuit

For Most People
When Buying Hot Water

Even the most shrewd and careful shoppers are no exception when it comes to buying hot water .... actually more people get less value for their dollar when it comes to buying hot water than any other item that is continuously used in the home.

Hot Water for Free

There is no such thing! — Some folks think a hot water coil in the furnace is "hot water for free." That little hot water coil just eats up about 20% to 25% of your fuel — and at present day fuel prices — "not very free."

HYDRO CONDEMNS MAKESHIFT WATER HEATERS AS POWER WASTERS.

And it is for sure — if your heater is a power waster for the Hydro—it's a money waster for you... As a matter of fact, new Hydro regulations will not permit the installation of any water heating equipment not properly insulated and thermostatically controlled.

"But What Am I to Do?"

Reports one of our lady customers .... "My neighbor says it is absolutely ridiculous to spend any real money for hot water equipment — for no matter what kind of equipment you buy, you are simply getting a galvanized tank 'dolled up.' And even a child knows a galvanized tank at the very best is just a temporary proposition.

Isn't there some kind of water heating equipment that is permanent — something I can install today and forget about, for the rest of my natural life?"

WHAT DID HYDRO SAY
About Hot Water Heaters After Nov. 1st?

The correct Hydro-Electric Power Commission's official answer in plain English is this: It is unlawful to install and operate any water heater that is not properly insulated and thermostatically controlled after November 1st., 1948. In addition to this provincial wide regulation, you also have regulations made by your local Hydro office. Some local offices restrict the size of element which might be used. One local office that we know of has forbidden the installation of any type of water heater. And so it goes! Everybody is mixing together provincial and local regulations to the confusion of all.

You can have Automatic Hot Water in your home regardless of what you have heard to the contrary. This is our promise. This is our guaranteed. We carry a complete line of Inglis Glasteel Water Heaters. Inglis Water Heaters more than meet the requirements of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Inglis Water Heaters have a wide assortment of element sizes that will meet the requirement of each local Hydro municipality. The John Lewis Company know the Hot Water Business. Minister Dies In Doctors' Consulting Room

Powassan, Nov. 16 (CP) — Shortly after he had walked through the consulting door of a Powassan doctor, complaining of heart trouble, Rev. Ervine Armstrong of Arnstein collapsed and died.

The sudden death of the 41-year old minister occurred Monday morning in the consulting room of Drs. R. H. and J. K. Dillane of Powassan. The minister died before the doctor could begin his examination.

A native of Ireland, where, it is understood his parents are still living, Rev Armstrong had for the past three years been minister at the Church of the Evangelistic United Brethren in Arnstein.

Famous Treaties Placed on Display

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 16 (CP)— Four faded pink ribbons fastened with red seals bind to the Commonwealth the wide acres of Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and the Hudson Bay regions.

They are examined daily by a procession of visitors in the records office in London where famous treaties have been placed on display.

Under the Treaty of Utrecht, 1713, representatives of Britain and France accepted arrangements of vital concern to Canada. France acknowledged the Protestant succession to the British throne, Britain recognized Philip of Anjou as King of Spain, and Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and the territory around Hudson Bay was ceded to Britain forever.

The spidery writing in Latin spreads over 124 pages in the Treaty of Utrecht. The aged document recalls French raids on the British fur trade outposts on Hudson Bay, skirmishes along the Atlantic coast, Indian wars, ambushes and forays.

The negotiators who pressed their seals on to the treaty document ribbons were John, Bishop of Bristol, Keeper of the Privy Seal, and the Earl of Stafford for Britain, and the Marquis D'Huxelles and Sieur De Mesnager for France.

Also on display, in an adjoining room, is a more recent document of Canadian interest — a book containing the names of 250,000 Ontario school children who signed a message to King George V when he recovered from illness in 1930.

And nearby are copies of the tragic documents of "Guy" Fawkes, who attempted to blow up the Houses of Parliament in 1605.

SAYS DOG ACQUIRED BAD HABITS

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)— Michael of Moydron, a $1,500 prize-winning Pointer, acquired bad habits after he disappeared last April, his owner complained today.

Fred Thompson testified that the Pointer had started to chase birds instead of holding his point.

Roy Simpson, who claimed the dog followed him home, was sentenced to 30 days in jail or a fine of $50 for keeping the dog.

Royal Commission On Hydro Asked By Norman Hipel

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)— Norman O. Hipel, President of the Ontario Liberal Association, demanded in an address Monday night that a Royal Commission on Hydro be set up immediately.

In a speech at 10.30 p.m. EST over a CBC Ontario network, the former Ontario cabinet minister said the Commission should be given full authority to hold public hearings, "to disclose all facts and within a stated time, bring in a full report, with recommendations for the future."

Mr. Hipel served as Minister of Labor, Lands and Forests Minister and Provincial Secretary in the Liberal government between 1934 and 1943.

He charged the current hydro-electric power shortage "is not due solely to low water levels." The Progressive Conservative government of George Drew had failed to implement arrangements made between the previous Liberal administration and the Province of Quebec for the development of hydro power on the upper St. Lawrence River, he said.

Mr. Hipel suggested the Royal Commission be composed of "representatives of all classes of our citizens, such as labor, industry, farmers and domestic consumers." It would be empowered to summons any witness who could give evidence, expert or otherwise.

Hunter Falls Dead In Bush at Loring

Loring, Nov. 16 (CP)—A 64 year-old hunter dropped dead in the bush near Loring Monday afternoon.

He was W. E. Burke, of Preston, one of a party of seven hunters who were staying at Archie Rogerson's summer camp near Loring. The party had gathered together in the bush after completing their first run of the day and were considering whether to make another run, when Burke slumped to the ground without a word. His companions discovered that he had died immediately.

Wounded Bear Charges Hunters

London, Ont., Nov. 16 —(CP)— Two district hunters narrowly escaped with their lives from a wounded black bear in a swamp near Mattawa last Friday. The two were Howard Walker of London, and his brother, Carl of Windsor.

The story of their escape was revealed when the hunting party returned home Saturday night.

The mother bear, hit 11 times by the guns of the brothers, finally dropped dead a scant 10 feet from where Howard Walker crouched behind a tree with an empty rifle.

Carl Walker spotted the mother bear and its cub soon after he entered the fringe of the swamp. He opened fire with a 12-gauge shotgun, using lead slugs and dropped the cub as the bears attempted to escape.

Hunter Retreats

The mother returned to the side of its cub and when Carl Walker, who was alone at the time, attempted to move closer for a shot at the bruin, it charged the hunter. Walker retreated to the shelter of some bushes and the mother bear returned to the side of its dead cub. The hunter and the bear repeated this manoeuvre several times, Walker meanwhile calling for his companions who had entered the swamp in different directions.

The first to reach the scene was Howard Walker, who came crashing through the bushes to his brother's aid, spotted the wounded bear and opened fire with an 8-millimetre German Mauser.

Although riddled with bullet wounds the bruin charged straight at Howard Walker. The last shot in Walker's gun felled the bear at a distance of 10 feet.

It required 11 shots in all, five from Carl Walker's shotgun and six from Howard's rifle to kill the animal.

'NEW SELF-CONFIDENCE' IN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Hugh Davidson, minister of Knox Church, Oshawa, a former R. C. A. McLaughlin Hall At Queen's U. Opened by Donor

Kingston, Nov. 16. (CP)—Canadians have the right "to think, to do, and to progress—every man to the limit of his desire and ambition," Col. R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, said here Monday as he officially opened the new McLaughlin Mechanical Engineering Building here.

J. M. Macdonnell, chairman of Queen's University board of trustees, said "highest praise and gratitude is deserved by such a magnificent donor." The building would be dedicated "to the glory of God and the advancement of true education."

Dr. R. C. Wallace, principal and vice chancellor of the university, read a congratulatory telegram from Lieutenant-Governor Ray Lawson of Ontario.

The four-storey limestone building, donated to the university by Col. McLaughlin, chairman of General Motors of Canada, provides elbow room for the university's science students who for years have used a small, gray frame building housing the machine shops. Equipment valued at $150,000 makes McLaughlin Hall one of the best-equipped mechanical engineering buildings in any Canadian university.

Made Honorary Member

Principal R. C. Wallace looked on as Col. McLaughlin was made an honorary member of the student body—the Alma Mater Society—by the society's president Eric Jorgensen, of Toronto.

Also present were C. A. Dunning of Montreal, chancellor of the university; L. W. Brockington of Ottawa; Queen's rector, and J. M. Macdonnell, chairman of the board of trustees.

Laboratories, research workshops, machine shops, forge and welding shops take up more than half of the building's 28,000 feet of floor space.

A two-storey wing, jutting from the rear of the main building, houses an air compression laboratory, refrigeration and steam equipment, a heat transfer laboratory and internal combustion engine laboratory.

CALVERT 1622 Famous Families MORRIS 1801

In 1801 the Morris family came to Canada from Scotland, William the eldest son, was appointed Receiver-General in 1844 and two years later President of the Executive Council. His brother James also became Receiver-General and was afterwards appointed Postmaster General. William's son Alexander, brilliant lawyer, writer and speaker, became famous in his own right by his appointment as Chief Justice and later Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba and the North-West Territories. Certainly a remarkable family record of distinguished Canadian statesmen

Great Families Create Great Nations

EARLY in the 17th Century, Calvert, head of the famous Calvert family, distinguished English statesman and Secretary of State to King James I, founded pioneer New World colonies in Newfoundland and Maryland.

Calvert's descendants introduced a form of government which prescribed that the laws should be established and administered by the settlers themselves and that there should be no aristocracy. Thus the Calvert family sowed the fertile seed of democracy in the New World.

The family is the corner-stone upon which great nations are built. Let each of us strive to promote within the great Canadian family the same concepts of freedom and tolerance pioneered by the Calvert family, over three hundred years ago.

The Calvert family inaugurate the first system of democratic government in the New World.

Hamilton Tigers Win Eight Out of 12 Places on Mythical All-Star Team of O.R.F.U.

By WILFRED GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)—Hamilton Tigers today wrote another proud page in their long and brilliant football history by sweeping eight of the 12 places on the Ontario Rugby Football Union's all-star team.

Seldom before has the mythical squad, selected for the Canadian Press by football writers and coaches in the four union cities, been dominated to such a degree by the Tigers, under playing-coach Frank Filchock, in winning the league title with an undefeated streak of 11 games.

The four other places on the dream team went to players of Toronto Beaches Indians whom the Tigers whipped, in two straight games in a best-of-three title playoff series. Neither Sarnia Imperials nor Windsor Rockets, the other two clubs, won a spot on the team.

The All-Star Team

The vote was weighed to give equal balloting strength to each union city.

Flying Wing — Gerry Walsh, Hamilton.
Half — Jack Harper, Hamilton.
Half — Jack Stewart, Hamilton.
Half (Secondary Defence) — Doug Pyzer, Toronto.
Quarter—Frank Filchock, Hamilton.
Snap — Jake Gaudaur, Hamilton.
Inside — Don McKenize, Toronto.
Inside—Eddie Remigis, Hamilton.
Middle—Pat Santucci, Hamilton.
Middle—Lorne Parkin, Toronto
Outside—Verne Picard, Toronto.
Outside — Danny Difrancisco, Hamilton.

An Unanimous Choice

The brilliant playing of Filchock, former professional star with Washington Redskins and New York Giants whose passing and coaching has been the sensation of the O.R.F.U., was recognized by the selectors, who made him the only unanimous choice.

The weakness of the backfield is the absence of a top-notch kicker but in every other department it excels.

In front of the power-laden backfield is a hard-charging, heavy wingline that has Eddie Remigis of the Tigers and Don (Shanty) McKenzie of the Beaches as its bulwark from their inside positions.

The snapback spot was won by big Jake Gaudaur, former Toronto Argonaut and Montreal Alouette star. Lorne Parkin, Beaches 213-pound football-playing policeman and 205-pound Pat Santucci, a placement-kicking expert with the Tigers, were chosen for the middle wing positions.

To flank these two at the outside spots the experts chose hard-tackling Verne Picard of the Beaches and Danny Difrancisco, of the Tigers, another bone-crushing tackler and deadly pass receiver.

Rolfe Says Tigers Will be Hustling Baseball Club

Detroit, Nov. 16 — (AP)—Red Rolfe whipped into his new job of manager of Detroit Tigers today as eagerly as if he was going after a hot one at third.

The former New York Yankees third-base star, more recently head of the Tiger farm system, quickly set up a policy.

"We're going to have a hustling ball club or know the reason why," he said.

Rolfe, who has never managed a pro ball team, was the surprise choice of the Tiger front office as successor to the dismissed Steve O'Neill.

Owner Walter O. Briggs, Sr., together with son Walter O. Jr., and general manager Bill Evans, named Rolfe Monday as the "unanimous choice."

Rolfe said he was going to "put the accent on youth." The Tigers had "started to run down."

"But it's not a bad ball club," the ex-Yankee said. "If we can strengthen two or three spots, we will be up there in the pennant fight."

Rolfe himself said the Detroit pitching strength has been "grossly exaggerated."

He said, however, that he would build his mound staff around Hal Newhouser, Virgil Trucks, Ted Gray, Art Houtteman, and Freddie Hutchinson.

As to club "hustle," it wasn't surprising to hear Rolfe mention it.

For some time a chief criticism of the Tigers, fifth - place finishers last season, has been a lack of zip.

The experts and second-guessers were down on sociable Steve O'Neill last season on that point though conceding he wasn't all to blame. Steve hadn't been able to get the playing talent he wanted for one reason or another.

Rolfe said he was out after "two or three young men with a lot of fire." "More than anything else," he said, the Tigers need "new fight and drive."

Rolfe, who is 40, played nine years for the Yankees, appearing in six World series. In 1946 - 47 he switched to basketball for a time, handling Toronto Huskies in their lone season in the Basketball Association of America.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There'll be a flare of trumpets and brass at Memorial Arena tonight when the Belleville Rockets juniors and Cobourg's Orphans officially usher in the 1948-49 season of the Belleville District Hockey League. The Belleville Municipal Band will be in attendance, there will be opening ceremonies and other frills and it is expected that a large crowd will see what the puck-boys have got to offer in the curtain raiser. The first game gets under way at 8 o'clock due to the power-cuts—and the second will follow immediately the piccolos toot the cease-fire in the first game…

There's a lot of interest in the opening frays as Rockets are reported to have a powerful young squad with Cobourg depending mostly on last year's veterans sprinkled with some new faces. The Trenton Hockey Club-RCAF Flyers clash in the second game has also created a lot of interest as both are reported to have strong aggregations. On Thursday the newly-formed Canadian National Railway "Diesels" get their baptism of fire when they parade against the Napanee Legion. Cobourg comes right back to the hockey wars in the second game against the Northern Electric squad.

Secretary Jack Devine of the Central Ontario Baseball League informs us that the award of the "most valuable player trophy" in his loop has been held up due to tardiness on the part of some of the boys to send in their votes. It seems that the Kingston scribe, Ed Murphy, Peterborough, the Oshawa radio sports announcer and one or two more have neglected this duty. It also appears that the race is a close one, and the votes are absolutely necessary before a final decision can be arrived at. How about it, gentlemen?

The master-minds and a lot of the playing brethren of the Belleville Baseball League conclaved over plates of luscious chicken and the trimmings served by mine host Bert High at the St. James Hotel, Trenton, last night. Picton was not present and the Kiwanis juniors were represented by Bill Leickyer who explained to the assemblage that due to some misunderstanding the players of the team had not been invited, etc.

However it was a good get-together with some suggestions for improvements of baseball in general in Belleville and some sharp criticisms of the loop last year. Prexy Mike Kelly did a good job as usual in the chair—and delivered himself of a ten-minute dissertation on the good works of an overall Belleville Athletic Association in between soft-voiced solos rendered by the Napanee Sinatra, Joe Jocko.

The prexy in a pre-presentation eulogy of the Army and Navy Air Force Veterans Trophy, emblematic of the league championship, won by Napanee told the loop that the silverware was fully deserved by Joe Killeran's squad. "They are worthy champions as exemplified in their march to the league title and also their performance in reaching the Ontario fin-team," quoth he.

Art Duncan, public relations official of the Bata Shoe Company made presentation to Joe Killoran with a neat bit of "speechifying." The Bob Greer Memorial Trophy awarded to the player hitting the most home runs during the season went to Bernie Dunning, star first sacker of the RCAF Flyers, who also won the CJBQ Trophy for being the most valuable player to his team during the season.

"Red" Townsend" demon statistician of the league promulgated the batting averages of the players who went to the plate 25 times or better and who piled up a batting average exceeding .300. Keith MacDonald, Picton, won the league trophy as the leading batter with an average of .423. Followed in order Scarlett, 389; Fitzpatrick, 385; Peter Jones, 378; Walt Gerow, 357; Joe Jocko, 356; Herbie Hayes, 340; Mouse Bush, 335; Vern Goyer, 326; Lee Goyer, 323; Bernie Dunning, 319; Red Carson and Lefty Whitman, 300.

While Prexy Kelly's address urged in the main a parent body for sport in Belleville, the keynote of other addresses, was the promotion of minor sports. Kelly urged that next year steps be taken to contact the Belleville City Council, and prominent sports-minded business men of the city with a view to starting a "Belleville Baseball Association" in the city which would take care of everything from the big boys of the senior rating to the pee-wees in diapers. It would need the co-operation of all including players in the various leagues, he pointed out. He suggested a membership drive at $1.00 per card and was certain, he said, that at least 2,000 of the city population of 22,000 would join.

Kelly was positive, he went on, that parents of younger players of the city and district, when they saw the interest taken in their baseball-playing offspring by the big brothers would get solidly behind the association idea. If the suggestion was acted on and materialized, he felt that Belleville would be one of the most powerful baseball cities in Ontario.

He paid tribute to the radio, the press, his executive, the City Parks Board, team managers, coaches and players for their efforts in making the league a success. "We had our difficulties and differences," he said, "but they are now water executive, will be bigger and better than ever."

Vic Burtt, Napanee and Dick Bridgeman, Trenton urged the promotion and encouragement of minor baseball citing instances in their respective towns which had been very successful. Minor teams are now in operation there and will provide feedboxes for the intermediate and senior teams of the future. "Red" Townsend deplored the fact that there was a decided lack of sportsmanship among players in the city. "The kids nowadays are being taught how to win games, not how to lose them," he said. He blamed this in part on the lack of organized athletics in the public schools.

It was a good get-together and the first opportunity the players had of fraternizing other than after a baseball game. The dinner was excellent, the host one of the best, the players hungry, and the orators in their best Dewey mood. Tribute was paid near the conclusion of the conclave to loop secretary Earl Stewart, Batawa, for the fine job he had done during and after the season, by Prexy Kelly. Kelly also received some eugolistic tributes, and unless he pulls a "Truman" next Spring seems slated for a second term.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By GORD PEPPER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Halifax, Nov. 16 (CP)— Sport scribes on the west coast, long an English rugby stronghold, reported that football—Canadian style—is a dead duck in their region and is being replaced by the free-wheeling American brand. And there is piling evidence here that the trend in the Maritimes is toward the same goal—the changing of Canadian football to introduce American rules.

The sad case of Canadian football here has much the same background as in the west. Both coastal sections are somewhat segregated from the Canadian football stronghold that stretches from Montreal to Calgary — the regular haunts for clubs longing for a crack at the Grey Cup. Both the east and west, as a result, look with more favor to American gridirons, colleges and universities.

Alex (Halifax Herald) Nickerson writes that Maritime sport editors can frequently miss football scores from upper Canada. "But," says Alex, "let him forget the result of games played by Army, Navy, Notre Dame, Michigan, Harvard et al, and his ears will burn for the rest of the day."

Newsreel pictures, rarely showing scenes of a Canadian game, are a part of a Maritime movie goers' price of admission. It often happens, says Nick, that fans who turn out to one of the games in the local league, and have never seen either the Canadian or the American brand of football, are bitterly disappointed.

It is the interference permitted in downfield running in the American game that seems to make the difference, writes Nick. "They expect to see a man sprint down the field behind some brilliant interference by teammates and instead, they see a halfback trying to drive through the opposing line without the aid of his mates much the same way a three-quarter back in English rugby does."

Les Costello Being Sent Down To Pittsburgh

(By The Canadian Press)

President Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs Monday night recalled right - winger Harry Taylor from Pittsburgh Hornets and sent Les Costello down to Pittsburgh.

Smythe said at Toronto Costello was being sent down for more experience because "too many of our regulars are playing below expectations to allow us to carry two inexperienced players at the same time."

The team already is carrying Fleming Mackell, a recent graduate of junior ranks.

Taylor turned professional in 1947 after starring with Winnipeg Monarchs in 1946 when they won the Memorial Cup.

Murdo McKay of the lagging Buffalo Bisons this week took over top honors in American Hockey League scoring race with 32 points, it was announced at New York. He has 12 goals and 20 assists. The Fort William, Ont., centre ousted Carl Liscombe of Providence Reds, a familiar figure at the top for many years. Liscombe is in second place with 26 points and Sid Smith of Pittsburgh Hornets in third place with 25. Veteran Pete Leswick of Cleveland Barons and Paul Gladu of the pace-setting St. Louis Flyers each had 13 goals to lead in that department. McKay's 20 assists led in play-making.

TURNING THE PAGES OF "Canada Unlimited"

In 1617, Canada's first farmer, Louis Hebert, used a scythe to reap his harvest. Working by hand, he could barely provide enough grain to supply his own family.

The pioneer farmer and his sons, with their one horse, worked long and hard to grow enough food for their own use.

In 1852, farmer Daniel Massey made the first mower in Canada. Later Alanson Harris designed the reaper. Their combined efforts in 1891 helped develop the wheatland of the West.

The introduction, in 1910, of the combine, made it possible to reap and thresh 25 acres a day. Now, one man with modern equipment can cut and thresh 50 acres a day.

It is Canadian people and Canadian machines that prove . . . there's room to grow in Canada Unlimited.

Grant Warwick Leading Scorer In N.H.L. Race

Montreal, Nov. 16 (CP) —Joe Carveth, a veteran winger who failed to hit his best stride last season after being traded to Montreal by Boston, found the range last week to pick up four goals and an assist in three games and move into a third-place tie in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Official statistics released today show Grant Warwick, Boston Bruins' mighty mite, still leading the pack with 14 points, two more than linemate Eddie Sandford. Deadlocked with Carveth with 11 points are Chicago's Doug Bentley and Billy Reay of Montreal.

Carveth has been an important factor in Canadiens' climb to second place in the loop standing. Playing right wing on a line with Norm Dussault and Reay, the former Detroit and Boston winger has helped the unit become the Habitants' most potent attacking trio.

Five players are tied for goal getting honors. Warwick, Sandford, Carveth, Harry Watson of Toronto and Detroit's Ted Lindsay each have sniped six counters.

Reay has taken over leadership of the assists column with nine, while Warwick is next best with eight.

Elmer Lach of Canadiens, last year's scoring champion, hasn't been hitting the target too often so far this campaign but he does lead in one department —penalties—with 30 minutes.

Harry Lumley retained top spot among the netminders with a goals-against average of 1.54 treal is next with a 1.64 percent-treal is next with a 1.64 precentage and also leads in shutouts with three.

N.H.L. Highlights

Winning two games each during the week, Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens gained ground on the pace-setting Detroit Red Wings in the N.H.L. championship race. The Red Wings are in top spot with 15 points, two more than Canadiens and Bruins. Boston, however, has played two games less than either Montreal or Detroit.

Toronto Maple Leafs have eight points and are followed by New York Rangers with seven and Chicago Black Hawks with six. New York had one win and a tie during the week while Chicago was only able to eke out one win in four starts.

Picking up two assists during the week, Grant "Nobby" Warwick of Boston, maintained his lead in the individual scoring race. Warwick has six goals and eight assists, two more than his linemate Ed Sandford who has six goals and six assists. Joe Carveth of Canadiens, Doug Bentley Chicago and Billy Reay, Canadiens hold down the third position with 11 points apiece.

Four players Warwick, Sandford, Carveth and Lindsay of Detroit, share goal-getting honors with six each. Billy Reay is leader in number of assists with nine.

Detroit's Harry Lumley is still the best netminder in the League with a goals-against average of 1.54 for 11 games. Bill Durnan of Canadiens is next with 18 goals against in 11 games for an average of 1.64. Durnan has most number of shutouts with three.

Elmer Lach of Canadiens is the new penalty leader with a total of 30 minutes spent in the penalty box. Chicago are the most penalized team with 161 minutes.

Both Wagering, Attendance Dipped From Last Year

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—The 4,514,277 race-goers who bet $333,028,308 at New York's tracks this year had to pay $52,338,505.90 for that privilege. The latter figure is the 15 per cent "take" plus breakage.

The 196-day season, longest in New York's turf history, ended Monday at Jamaica, and in keeping with the general trend around the country both wagering and attendance dipped from last year.

The 37-day Empire at Jamaica meeting closed out the long 1948 session Monday when 29,756 fans saw Sidney S. Schupper's filly Miss Disco, score a photo triumph over Buzfuz and First Flight in the New Rochelle handicap — good for a $15.60 payoff.

Ted Atkinson, formerly of Toronto, again was the star of the jockey ranks here. He rode his 257th winner of the year and the 1,900th of his career Monday when Sorisky captured the third dash. Hedley Woodhouse, by scoring a double, tied Ted at 36 winners each for the Empire meeting.

However, Atkinson, who now plans to rest until Florida's Hialeah meeting was undisputed leader at the Belmont Fall, Jamaica, Aqueduct Spring and Fall Saratoga-at-Jamaica and Saratoga-at-Home meetings. Eddie Arcaro was top man at Belmont's spring session.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—The appointment Red Rolfe as Detroit Tigers' manager probably will mean a heck of a lot to the rookies on a ball club which will have to put a lot faith in its rookies... Red, probably the only guy who ever graduated from college coaching to a big-league managership is a real teacher of baseball...Joe ouis plans to open a school in Chicago next month to teach kids to become automobile mechanics. Joe won't do the teaching himself, although he knows what it's like to do heavy lifting around an auto factory.

Not Too Subtle

Last word on football's unlimited substitution rule comes from Norfolk, Neb., Junior College, according to broadcaster Don Reed... Norfolk was winning a game from Nebraska Central easily and coach Leonard Campbell was substituting liberally... halfback Tom Costello jogged off the field after being relieved and remarked :"Say coach, did you know you had in that backfield three halfbacks and a third-baseman?"

A Kick Out of It

It says here that Harrell (Rip) Collins, Louisiana State's fine punter, was taking some kicking practice the other day when a team manager informed him he had just become the father of a 7 1-2 pound son ... Collins had the ball in his hand and to blow off steam, he rammed his toe into the pigskin ... it travelled 87 yards and went out of bounds on the three yard line ... it also says here that coach Caynell Tinsley would like to have Collins receive a similar message every Saturday —preferably on the last down.

Two Won't Be In Lineup When Riders Meet Tigers

Ottawa, Nov. 16 (CP)— Two Ottawa Rough Riders players won't be in the lineup when the Big Four champions meet Hamilton Tigers Saturday.

Coach Wally Masters said Lally LaLonde and Pete Findlay, both outside wingers, were hurt badly enough in the smashing battle against Montreal Alouettes last Saturday to be kept out of the Eastern Canada final.

LaLonde has a knee injury and a possible shoulder separation. Findlay suffered a broken left hand in last Saturday's match.

For the other players, Masters is planning to ease up training.

"This team has come through a hard rough schedule in the last two weeks and they're going to get as much rest as possible," he said Monday night.

The Riders gathered at Lansdowne Park for a round table discussion of plays they're working out against playing coach Frank Filchock's Tigers.

The training will end Friday evening with a chalk talk and a light run to top off preparations against the Hamilton team.

Filchock will bring the Tigers into Ottawa Friday afternoon. About 1,500 Tigers' fans are expected for the Saturday sudden-death skirmish for the right to meet Calgary Stampeders in the Grey Cup classic.

Hurst's Manager Chases Towel Into the Ring

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)—Montreal's Harry Hurst, giving away 15 1-2 pounds to Pete Zaduck of Guelph, was automatically disqualified Monday night in the third round of their 10-round main bout when his manager chased the towel into the ring.

Hurst had just been knocked down for the second time in the round when his manager, Maurice Foreman, threw in the towel at 2.55 and climbed into the ring after it.

A meagre Maple Leaf Gardens crowd howled its disapproval as referee Bobby Lawrence disqualified Hurst.

Secretary Fred Steel of the Ontario Athletic Commission said Hurst's share of the purse would automatically be beld up pending an investigation.

Hurst weighed in at 138 1-2, Zaduck at 154.

Hurst did not appear to be in trouble when Foreman threw in the towel. But the manager claimed his fighter was both hurt and in difficulty.

The Montrealer had been jarred in the second round by a hard right that sent him down for an eight count and was helped to his corner at the end of the round. He went down twice in the third and had just come up the second time when Foreman pitched in the towel.

MORLAND SCORES FIVE

North Bay, Nov. 16 (CP)—Led by Davey Morland with five goals Pete Palangio's North Bay Black Hawks scored an 11-2 win over New Liskeard Flyers in an exhibition game here Monday night. Dwyer and Meloche each counted twice for Blackhawks while Ryan and Kelly each scored one. Walton counted both New Liskeard goals.

BOY TRIPLETS BORN

Cleveland, Nov. 15 — (AP) — Boy triplets were born Sunday night to Mrs. John Stakes, 29, a native of New Zealand. They were her first children. All four were in good condition.

Ray Robinson Did Not Win As Fans Liked

Philadelphia, Nov. 16 (AP)—Ray (Sugar) Robinson didn't look Monday night like the man Joe Louis recently called "pound for pound the greatest fighting machine in the ring today."

The Harlem dandy won a unanimous 10 round non-title decision over undersized Bobby Lee of Baltimore but many in the crowd of 4,792 cried "draw" at the fight's end.

The welterweight champion, weighing in at 154, obviously was far from the devastating fighting man who won the title two years ago from Tommy Bell.

The squat 148-pound Baltimore fighter battered the champion about the body with sharp rights and lefts.

Robinson began to find the tiring Lee with vicious body punches in the fifth and finally in the ninth round floored his stubborn opponent with a bolo punch for a count of nine. Lee kept his distance in round 10.

"I tried for a knockout," said Sugar Ray after the fight, "but I was afraid to hit high for fear of breaking my hands on his head. He bore in low and I had to use bolo punches.

"Anyway, it's having your hand raised at the end that counts."

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

Conn N. Drumm uses a jump no-trump response that is not forcing to game. This is contrary to the principle of a jump signal. If so, why does he apply it? To front for a bid about which he lies.

Suppose you open the bidding with one in a suit. What will his hand contain if he responds at once with one no-trump? Maybe only a couple of queens, or a few jacks, or even less.

A no-trump response with less than three high cards is not true. Such a hand should pass. That is, according to rule it should pass. According to mathematical needs it should pass.

If his one no-trump may show a hand that should pass, how can he show a hand that should not? As, for instance, a couple of aces and a king? He must stick in a jump of two no-trump.

His two aces and a king are not enough help to promise a game with what an opener shows. So, he jumps to show more.

This lie to belie a lie prevents his use of the jump no-trump as a game-forcing signal. It is like his other tactics that start with a wrong premise. He must do other wrongs to cover up.

Pass a hand that lacks enough for a true response. Then a jump no-trump can function as intended. It will guarantee enough help for a game in no-trump. It commands partner not to stop short of game.

South opened with a bid of one heart when north held the hand you see here:

♠A 8 3
♥8 6 4
♣Q 6 4 2

North has no biddable suit for a takeout. Nor has he adequate heart support for an assist. Having enough help for a no-trump game, a jump to two no-trump says so. With a responder you can believe, it feels good to hear such a signal.

Accuracy and simplicity. These should a bridge player stress. There lies his road to felicity. Thence comes his greatest success.

Tariff Board Appointments To be Made Soon

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)— H. C. Mackendrick, secretary of the Canadian Importers and Traders Association Inc., announced today that Finance Minister Abbott has assured the association that the appointment of members of the unfilled positions on the Canadian Tariff Board is under "active consideration." Appointments would be made at an "early date."

Mr. Mackendrick said that the Finance Minister's assurance was in response to representations made by the Canadian Importers Association in which it was requested that the appointments be made immediately so that the Tariff Board could function actively.

At present the Board lacks sufficient members to achieve a quorum for a meeting, Mr. Mackendrick said. The Board's purpose is to receive appeals from importers regarding tariff rulings.

CUT FOR PAIN

In Java it is believed that if a husband will slit the wife's robe with a sharp knife from throat to hem without touching her, she will be free of the pains of childbirth.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 16 — (AP) — None other than Ethel Barrymore speaks out against those who claim the movie business is not in good shape.

"The picture industry is as good as ever," she says, pooh - poohing the pessimists. "They are always mumbling about something."

Interviewing a Barrymore is a hazardous chore at best, but I gave it a whirl and tossed some questions at her on the "Great Sinner" set.

What about the theatre?

"The theatre is not dead. They have been saying it was dead for four of five thousand years. It's just propaganda."

Is money for plays harder to get?

"Let's say money is harder to get for anything. I hear they've even had trouble getting it for pictures."

What has happened to the great personalities of the theatre?

"They're still there. Always have been. There are just as many exxciting personalities in the theatre as ever."

What about television?

"Millions of dollars say it will be great. I don't like it now, except for the games. When I can't get out to the football games, I like to catch them on my set."

How long has she been in the theatre?

She swung around to her make-up table. "That's all in the Encyclopedia Britannica; read it yourself," she suggested.

Capsule Review

"Joan of Arc" (R. K. O.) is a beautiful and touching film treatment of France's savior. All the color and pageantry is there, plus much action and drama. The film sometimes leans to talkativeness, but this is offset by an inspired job by Ingrid Bergman, a joy to watch. The big supporting cast is fine, especially Joe Ferrer.

Kennedy Promises Complete Revision Of Tax System

St. Thomas, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP) —Premier Thomas L. Kennedy Monday night promised Ontario taxpayers complete revision of the provincial tax system and assured Canadians that his government will seek to weld wealthy Ontario into a uniting link joining eastern and western Canada.

He urged hearers at the Kiwanis Club Farmers' Night to take an active interest in other parts of Canada, and be prepared to help the relatively weaker Maritime provinces and the west.

He looked forward to increasing strength and prosperity in the Dominion, and suggested that her new northern mines might spark industry here "just as the Minnesota coal mines were the basis of United States industry.

The speech, made before some 350 Elgin County farmers and 100 St. Thomas Kiwanians, was his first statement of policy since he assumed the premiership.

Premier Kennedy also strongly advocated completion of the Trans-Canada Highway.

Mr. Kennedy said the tax structure had built up gradually and not always in the best way. Revision was long over-due.

The government has formed a committee to find a better system of taxation. The committee, with representation from municipalities, rural areas and the provincial government, would formulate a better system of taxation in which the people will have a fair share of the dollar, which would then come to the right place, said Premier Kennedy.

As an instance, he said, succession duties claimed by both the province and federal government, were unsatisfactory.

"The tax question has gone all out of proportion to what was intended," said the Premier. "We hope to get it back through the work of our committee."

Councillor Wages One-Man Fight Against Vice

Johannesburg, Nov. 16. (CP)— A Johannesburg City Councillor is waging a one-man fight against a group of prominent business men he alleges is responsible for widespread vice and gambling in downtown apartments.

City Councillor J. J. O'Connor said he will expose the men at the end of November unless they get out of the flats he said they rent for immoral purposes.

"I have been horrified by the result of my investigation into this matter and I intend to clear the city of this evil," he said.

"Cases have been brought to my notice of girls who are easy prey for these wealthy men and who are taken to these flats and drugged. The lessees of flats used for immoral and gambling purposes are often men who have luxurious homes in the suburbs."

It was well-known during the war that some tenants let out their flats for floating faro and poker games and one Johannesburg Sports Writer claimed he made nearly £25,000 ($100,000) in five years by renting his flat to a gambling syndicate for a percentage of the "take".

Mr. O'Connor says there now is more vice in Johannesburg than in comparable cities elsewhere in the world.

He said that since he began his campaign a few weeks ago he has been deluged with telephone calls and visits that have confirmed his opinion.

The campaign began when Mr. O'Connor tried to find out how many flats could be made available for homeless people: He found many apartments were not being used as residences.

He said if his threats of exposure have no effect he will apply to the Supreme Court to have the men evicted from their flats. The names will be made public on the subpoenas.

Hunted in Park, Fined $580

Pembroke, Nov. 16. (CP)— Fines totalling $580 were imposed today on Ernest Kruschenski of Pembroke, when he pleaded guilty to five game law violations in nearby Algonquin Park.

Kruschenski was charged with obstructing park rangers, killing mink inside the park, carrying a rifle in the protected area, taking partridge in the park and hunting beaver in a closed season. All the offences occurred Nov. twelfth.

George Pierson of Whitney, also was fined $50 for carrying a gun in the park.

Brighteners

Clearwater, Fla., (AP)— A 3 a.m. report of a prowler sent police Sgt. Ernest Thomas hurrying to a down-town feed store, with him were a detective and seven patrolmen, all well armed.

Arriving in haste, they heard a bumpity-bumpity bump inside the store.

Soon, reinforcements came up —a highway patrolman, a constable and a special city officer.

Then they entered—cautiously. Somebody switched on a light.

There on the floor was a playful little rabbit — still bumpity-bumping away.

It had escaped from a cage where it and others were kept for sale.

Jersey City, N.J. (AP)— The Erie railroad's crack train No. 56 which usually takes Ridgewood commuters to Jersey City in 27 minutes, left them sitting in nearby Secaucus Monday while the locomotive sped on alone.

As the train began to slow down just east of Rutherford, passengers in the first car noticed the engine was no longer with them.

The rest of the passengers, most of them unaware of the locomotive's abrupt departure from the rest of train, sat quietly until it came back and hooked on again.

Railroad officials said the train stopped automatically when the engine became uncoupled. The engine went a little distance and returned.

Pop was looking at the headlines on his way to the sporting page, and ma said, What does the stock market say about General Ginger Corporation, William?

Why Generel Ginger, especially? pop said, and ma said, Never mind, I'm just curious. Look it up, she said.

I know without looking, the whole market is down today, pop said, and ma said, Well look it up anyway.

Which pop did, saying, For Peet sake, everything elts is down, but Generel Ginger is up 3 points.

Oh how wonderfill, I'm rich, ma said. I'm going to be extravaand you cant take it with you, she said, and pop said, What goes on here? Since when have you been holding shares in General Ginger or anything elts? he said.

Since this afternoon, theoretically, ma said. We had a talk after the bridge game, and we decided men really dont know any more than women about the stock market, in spite of their wise talk and sollem faces. So we got the financial page and shut our eyes and stuck pins in the list of stocks to see what we would each by a hundred shares of if we were really speculating, and my pin went smack through General Ginger Corporation and now low and behold it's up 3 points. Can you blame me for wanting to celebrate? Wouldn't you celebrate if you had bawt 100 shares that went up 3 points the same day? she said, and pop said, I'd hardly pop said. Yee gods, it's a womans

LOUIS ST. LAURENT

portfolio vacant since Rt. Hon. J. L. Ilsley resigned as justice minister in July.

A good-sized shuffle — almost tantamount to the creation of a new portfolio — was involved in Winters' entry. He took the name of the reconstruction portfolio and some of its function from Trade Minister Howe, but he also was given the Dominion Government Travel Bureau from the Trade Department itself, and the National Film Board from the Revenue Department.

In addition, he was placed over the government's "rainy day" program of public works.

But despite the new lineup of the cabinet and even the accession of the new leader, the real drama of the day, unspectacular as it was, revolved around the plump little man who was bowing off the centre of the stage.

A lonely man to the finish, his only companions were his private secretary and his cherished Irish terrier, Pat III, as he drove to Government House in a wet snowfall to offer his formal resignation to the Governor-General after 21 years, five months and five days of office.

Will Not Hold Portfolio

Mr. St. Laurent was sworn in at 3.55 p.m. EST.

Mr. King stayed prime minister until that moment, almost exactly five hours after he first had left home with his resignation.

Mr. King told newspapermmen he was "very happy" about leaving office and would not hold a portfolio in Mr. St. Laurent's cabinet.

He said he plans to "stay at home for a while and see my friends" and will sit in the commons at the next session of parliament. He is member for Glengarry.

At the press conference following the shuffle of power, Mr. St. Laurent was flanked by his two new ministers, but he did all the talking.

For Mr. Garson, it was his introduction to federal politics. A veteran of the provincial field, he has never sat in the commons. He will seek a seat in a by-election Dec. 20 for Marquette (Man.), recently vacated by Hon. J. A. Glen, former resources minister.

Mr. St. Laurent devoted his time largely to explaining the proportions of Mr. Winters' job.

In Charge of Housing

Mr. Winters would have charge, not only of civilian home-building, but of the armed services' $20,000,000 housing program.

Mr. St. Laurent was questioned as to the possibility of federal housing subsidies — sought by the Canadian Federation of Mayors — but he said he did not think the point had come where government subsidies were needed.

Another task of Mr. Winters, he said, would be to stimulate the tourist industry through use of the Travel Bureau and Film Board.

In administering the Film Board, Mr. Winters will become its chairman, succeeding Revenue Minister McCann. Mr. McCann will become vice-chairman in succession to Defence Minister Claxton.

The Prime Minister said the name of Mr. Winters' department might be changed later. Also, it would be stripped of agencies whose functions were coming to an end.

No Session Before January

These would include Canadian Arsenals and Polymer Corporation, which produces synthetic rubber. The two agencies likely will be placed under the control of the Trade Deppartment.

Other announcements of the new Prime Minister:

The new session of parliament is not likely to be called before January.

A by-election probably will be held before then to fill the vacant seat of Nicolet-Yamaska (Que.)

Wilfred Harris, parliamentary assistant for external affairs, has been named parliamentary assistant to the Prime Minister

George McIlraith, parliamentary assistant for trade and reconstruction, now becomes parliamentary assistant for trade alone.

CEMENT SHORTAGE

Edmonton — (CP) — Unable to complete a $750,000 city paving program for 1948 due to a cement shortage, city officials are faced with the possibility that cement may be in even shorter supply in 1949. Officials are investigating the possibility of importing British or United States cement.

Winners of the door prizes were then drawn, bringing to a close a very pleasing evening's entertainment.

Car Completely Wrecked

A serious car accident occurred one day recently on the Moira road east of the village, off Highway No. 37, near the homes of Mr. William Way and Mr. Earl Jones, when a new car owned by Raphael Courneyea and driven by his sixteen-year-old brother, Lawrence Courneyea, was completely wrecked, when it left the road, going out of control, travelling for a distance along the ditch and coming to a stop when it broke off a hydro pole.

There were six occupants in the car, all high school students of Tweed High School who were all shaken up; Clair Rashotte suffering two broken ribs, knee, ankle and chest injuries. The other passengers were Kenneth Jones, Arnold Comrie, Ross Kelly and Ray Cassidy.

Queen Mary Calls

At the other extreme was 81-year-old Queen Mother Mary, who spent two hours at the palace. A great-grandmother for the first time, she was the first visitor after Sunday night's momentous announcement.

Princess Margaret, on an official mission in Sheffield, was reported eager to get back to see her nephew and personally congratulate her sister and brother-in-law, Philip.

Appearing on the stage at Sheffield's Pageant of Production Monday night, Margaret said: — "I shall never forget the good news of my sister's baby. I shall never forget the way you have shared my happiness today."

In London merry - makers capered well into the cold, rainy night. Crowds pressed 10 - deep against the huge railings of the palace yelling "We want Philip." When Philip did not appear, they contented themselves with chanting lullabies.

In Oxford, police and university authorities joined to restrain a raucous student celebration. After street skirmishes in which at least one policeman was clouted over the head with a bottle, undergraduates linked arms and marched singing through the town.

King Scholarship For Master of Arts In External Affairs

Toronto, Nov. 15 (CP)—Ontario friends of Canada's retiring Prime Minister have endowed the W. L. Mackenzie King Scholarship for Master of Arts in External Affairs in his honor at the University of Toronto, where Mr. King won an Edward Blake Scholarship in Arts and Law in 1893.

Frank N. Walker, member of the scholarship committee of which External Affairs Minister Pearson is Honorary Chairman, said today the scholarship would be worth $1,000 annually.

The scholarship is designed to encourage research in Canadian External Relations and to obtain through extended investigation, an understanding of the questions arising from the Dominion's growing participation in this field.

"The first duty which Mr. King performed in External and Home Relations began over 50 years ago," said Mr. Walker, "when in 1898 he received a government commission to enquire into methods of carrying out government contracts in Canada and Europe.

"From that time forward an interest in that field grew each year and when he became Prime Minister in 1921, he also became Minister of External Affairs. This post he held until two years ago and his activities in that regard are a matter of history, especially those associated with the late Franklin D. Roosevlt."

The scholarship will be open to students who are Canadians by birth and who hold a Bachelor of Arts degree from any Canadian university. Students must have included in undergraduate studies at least two of geography, political science, economics and history, over a period of at least two years. The award will be made by the Inter-Departmental Committee on International Relations.

Queens of British, American Fleets Are Dockbound

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—The queens of the British and American passenger fleets were dockbound today as a wage strike blockade of east-coast shipping grew tighter.

The United States lines S. S. America, pride of the United States merchane marine, was held in port here instead of sailing today for Europe. Hundreds of prospective passengers were stranded in hotels.

Tomorrow's scheduled sailing of the Cunard White Star liner Queen Elizabeth from Southampton was cancelled. The world's biggest passenger ship, booked with 2,000 persons bound for New York, was to have docked at Halifax.

Postponement of the Queen Elizabeth's sailing was announced Monday night, shortly after longshoremen in Halifax decided not to handle any more ships diverted to their port because of the longshoremen's strike along the United States seaboard between Portland, Me., and Hampton Roads, Va.

Canadian affiliates of the striking International Longshoremen's Association (A.F.L.) said the same decision would affect the ports of Montreal and Saint John, N.B.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the union, said here that workers in south Atlantic and gulf ports would take similar action if shipowners sought to east the full impact of the walkout by rerouting passenger or cargo ships in that direction.

There was no indication today of any break in the deadlock between the I.L.A. and the stevedore employers over wages. The union is demanding an increase of 50 cents an hour and welfare benefits. The employers have agreed to 10 and 15 cent rises, which would boost the day-shift straight-time pay from $1.75 to $1.85 an hour and the night and weekend overtime pay from $2.62 1-2 to $2.77 1-2 an hour.

Missing Fortress Located, None Of Crew Hurt

Manila, Nov. 16. (AP)— The United States Air Force announced today a Flying Fortress which had been missing on a flight from New Guinea to the Philippines had been located.

None of the 12 persons aboard was severely hurt, the Air Force said.

The B-17 was sighted first by a Philippine Airlines Commercial transport on the shore of Little Alibijaban Island, just off the east coast of Bondoc Peninsula in Southern Louzon and at the approximate location given by an S.S picked up earlier today.

The plane which sighted the survivors reported the Flying Fortress had been ditched in 10 feet of water just off the island.

The Air Force announced meanwhile in Tokyo that it had abandoned search for a B-29 Superfortress which has been missing since Nov. 6 with 12 men aboard.

One bit of upholstery and three life rafts were picked up at sea. The upholstery appeared to have been in an explosion—a possible clue to the fate of the plane.

THE VENABLES

BY KATHLEEN NORRIS

"And now and then a girl," she finished lightly as Flo still did not break silence; "now and then a girl comes along who is big. A glorious, generous, clever, careless girl who pays no attention to detail, and not much to accuracy, who doesn't care how she looks or how her manners affect strangers. But inside she has everything, heart, loyalty, brilliance — everything. And to her I want to say, "Polish the outside. For the sake of us who love you and believe you're going to do big things — don't forget the little ones!"

Flo's heart burned; her throat remained dry; she could not meet Lin's eyes. She wanted to die, but as she obviously could not die here and now, the only thing to do was to get through these last insufferable hours somehow and be at home, where nobody would know what she was suffering, how her life had shattered about her, where she could finally creep into the darkness and silence of her room and cry herself to sleep.

Underwear and baths and manners and the way she ate grapes! Lin had been seeing these things during all the wonderful hours when they had been laughing, when Flo had been at her silliest, her most joyous, her most irresistibly amusing! Lin had been thinking that she was not a lady.

Home was home. The atmosphere of the big square rooms, so angular and bare after the low shadows of the brown, pine-shaded cabin, was somehow comforting. Flo could do as she liked here; nobody knew under what a blighting shadow she was moving.

She had changed to a cotton house dress and comfortable shoes when an old smothered sound from the hall interrupted her thoughts, brought her terrified to the door. Someone crying? Someone crying!

She followed the direction of the sound quickly, opened the door of her mother's room, discerned in afternoon gloom that the bedcovers were tumbled and that her mother, fully dressed, was lying on the bed.

"Headache, Mama?"

"Ah, is that you, Flo?" Willie said feebly. "I thought it was the little girls. Come in, darling. Well, did you have a wonderful time?"

Flo evaded the question. "Your head aches!" she repeated.

"No, dear, just a little. I was lying down, and then — then I got thinking of Papa," Willie faltered, "and I began to feel so blue! Sometimes I do miss Papa so!"

"Darling," Flo murmured. She knelt down, her face close to her mother's face, and because her own heart had been so recently rent and crushed she forgot the relationship of mother and daughter, and only knew that here was another woman who needed comforting.

"Mama, where's Lily? Did she write you?"

"Lily's home, darling. They got back from Tahoe last night and came to see me today. They didn't leave until three."

"Oh, and has she been having fun?"

"Great fun, dear. Lily's very happy. She's —" Willie's throat closed. She got up trembling in the gloom and began to straighten her dress and hair. She spoke thickly but cheerfully. "Lily's engaged to be married, Flo," she said. "Arnold Belcher."

"Mama, Lily couldn't be engaged to him! She's only a little girl!"

"Lily's past 18, darling." Willie was trying to talk lightly and naturally. She opened a bureau drawer, groped in it.

Flo sat stricken, silent. Her widened eyes stared at her mother. Her lips were slightly parted.

"But, Mama, Lily's only a little girl. She wouldn't let Weeny have her doll, and she put away lots of things out of the dolls' house when she went away. She —she'd feel awfully funny married to Mr. Belcher, honest, she would!"

If tearful and troubling emotions had been engrossing Willie, they were partly dissipated at least by her amazed disapproval of Flo's tone.

"I don't think that's a very nice way to talk, Flo," she said, in a steadier voice than she had used before. "I don't like to think that you're jealous of Lily."

"Jealous!" Flo echoed, honestly bewildered. "Why should I be jealous? Mama, he's terribly old. He's 38 or 40 or something. Why does he want to marry Lily? Why does she want to marry him? What does she call him? Will she live at his house? Did he kiss her?"

"I think you're talking rather foolishly, Flo." Willie said coldly. She went out into the hall, and Flo in a daze followed her.

The affair with Lin was completely forgotten now; her world was shaken about her. Lily was going to be married.

The problem presented by Lily's trousseau appeared at first to be a serious one. In making so brilliant a match she needed a great many garments, and in the beginning Aunt Lizzie was strangely uncommunicative on the subject.

Willie talked timidly of getting Miss Potts in to make Lily's underthings; she could also make house dresses and a good warm coat for Lily. But she was not so successful with dresses. Then there must be cloaks trimmed with fur, a beaded cape for evening wear, a raincoat and rubbers and an umbrella — in fact, Lily must have an equipment calculated to last for two entire years, Winter and Summer.

However, warned far in advance for the wedding was not to be until after Lily's nineteenth birthday, Willie went to work with a will. Miss Potts took up her permanent abode in one of the back rooms, arriving at half-past seven in the morning and sometimes staying to finish up a bit of troublesome work after dinner.

Also Miss Potts had a niece far cleverer at her craft than she, a certain Miss Lila Loftus, who had dressmaking parlors in Valencia Street.

She did not go out to sew, but she would inspect any dress her Aunt Clara started for the fashionable Belcher-Venables wedding, and fit it or alter it or otherwise lend it tone.

With this arrangement Willie, Ida, Daisy, Harriet and the girls plunged into the matter, and in no time at all Aunt Lizzie's interest was excited and she was sending home from O'Connor - Moffatt's and the City of Paris materials that made the women shriek with delight.

Lily was sweeter and gentler than ever, but in that very sweetness and gentleness there was something that estranged and chilled Flo. It was as if Lily were years older than she, years wiser, able to look down and advise and even pity her younger sister who could not share her new great experience and dignity and pride.

Gifts, letters, congratulations poured in upon Lily; rich and beautiful ladies who had forgotten her existence for twenty years called in their carriages upon Mama; and there was always the puzzling and foreign presence of Arnold in Flo's thoughts.

Flo had not finished her schooling, but the Girls' High School was some distance away, and her mother did not want her to return to it until after the wedding. There was always the chance that Aunt Lizzie might then decide to put Flo into Lily's place and give the second daughter of the house a chance at a finer school and eventually a European trip and a coming-out dance.

Meanwhile Flo worked hard at home — cooking, managing the younger children, entering into the grown-ups' councils and enormously enjoying the Venables' emergence from obscurity and poverty to bask in Lily's good fortune.

Old Major Burns more than once came out to see them and the redecorated house, and if Aunt Lizzie was somewhat slow in responding to Flo's attractions, the old soldier was not.

He joked with Flo, and she cooked him a special rice pudding and soft ginger cookies and flirted with him and became his great favorite. And still there was no talk of rent!

"It won't cost her anything when the old man dies!" he said on his second visit when Flo had entertained him with her usual sparkling nonsense. "She ain't as pretty as the other one, but there is a lot of life in her!"

"Oh, Flo, do you suppose he might leave us the house?" Willie exclaimed when he was gone. Flo widened surprised eyes at her mother.

"Is that what he meant, do you think?"

"Well, I don't know what else. He hasn't any folks."

And after that they all treated Flo with a trifle more respect.

"You're the only person Arnold is jealous of," Lily said one day.

"But why of me?" Flo did not know whether to be pleased or hurt.

"I don't know. But anyway he says he is."

"I should think he'd be jealous of Mama."

"No; he likes Mama." Lily was making buttonholes in a nightgown. Her grandmother, who made exquisite buttonholes, had taught her the art. Now she bit a thread and looked at a finished piece of work critically.

"And he doesn't like me?" Flo thought it. She did not say it. Just of late for the first time in her life she had been keeping certain thoughts and feelings to herself. It was a strange unnatural thing to do, but some instinct told her that for a while at least she must surrender Lily to Arnold and marriage and the new life, and if that were so, the less she distressed Lily on the subject the better.

But she was chilled in spirit nonetheless. All this was very different from what she had always dreamed Lily's wedding would be. One night when they had gone to bed she tried to sound Lily tactfully, to discover if her sister shared any of her faint, vague misgivings on the subject.

"Lily, are you happy, being engaged?"

"I don't think — I don't think you're exactly happy about it, Flo," Lily explained after a moment's hesitation. "Not happy. But you feel — well, that that's the way it's going to be. All the other things about it," Lily went on painstakingly, "are lovely. I mean presents and that man drawing my picture from my photograph to go in the paper and all that. But just the — the man side," she went on, "Arnold being so — so anxious to get married, and saying that I'll belong all to him and all that sort of thing sort of scares me! I liked it best when it was just beginning, down at Del Monte, and he came down and used to ride his horse up to the porch when Aunt Lizzie and I'd be sitting there sewing in the mornings with the other ladies, and talk to me, but then — then one night —"

Lily had never been so confidential, so much at ease with Flo on this subject before. Flo leaned forward to listen, breathless.

"One night when they were dancing and I was looking at a book of photographs while Aunt Lizzie played euchre," Lily pursued, "he came and asked her if I could dance. So we danced, and then he asked me to go out on the porch for a minute, and I said no, I didn't think Mama or Aunt Lizzie would like it. But he sort of laughed and said that Aunt Lizzie knew all about what he was going to say, and he had asked her permission. And then he kissed my hand and said, 'I want to hold this dear little hand in mine forever. May I, Lily?' "

"Like Laurie and Amy"! Flo said, deeply impressed.

"Only they were at Valrosa, weren't they?"

"I don't know. They were on a lake, anyway. What'd you say, Lil?"

"I said that I didn't know and that I couldn't say anything without talking to Aunt Lizzie, and then I went in, and she was just finishing playing euchre, and she sort of looked sideways at me and laughed and said, 'Something scare you?' and then we went upstairs. And up there she kissed me and said, 'Is this Mrs. Arnold Belcher?' and I began to cry.

90,000 Casualties As Reds Routed East of Suchow

Gateway to Nanking Closed To Communists Say Reports

Nanking, Nov. 17 — (AP)—The government asserted today 90,000 casualties were inflicted on reds routed east of Suchow, gateway to Nanking.

The official and pro-government reports buoyed the capital. But skeptics, mindful of other government claims at Tsinan, Chinhsien and Mukden just before they fell to the reds, waited for more information.

These points, however, appeared true on the basis of information here:

1. The Chinese air force blunted red attacks across the open country east of Suchow, 200 miles northwest of the capital.

2. Gen. Huang Po-Tao's army group, which was isolated east of Suchow, lost more than half of its full strength of four armies. It survived repeated attacks and still is in the field. Its ability to take and give punishment heartened other government units.

3. The executive Yuan ordered martial law extended to Tsingtae, site of the United States naval base in the Western Pacific. The order goes now to President Chiang Kai-Shek for implementation. The action followed the application of martial law to Nanking, Shanghai and Suchow.

4. Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi's four national armies from Hankow approached the Pukow - Suchow railroad from the west after a forced march of 180 miles.

Suffer Disastrous Defeat

Worried Chinese were told by the Chinese Central News Agency that the Communists had suffered on the Suchow front less than 200 miles from their capital, "the most disastrous defeat ever received from the hands of Government troops."

The official agency reported wholesale surrenders of Red Army soldiers fleeing through a "wall of bullets and bombs."

The Communist radio gave a sharply different picture. It indicated Red troops were pushing east to clamp a pincers on Government forces. Suchow itself, under this version, no longer would have any serious tactical value in the battle effecting all Central China.

The broadcast claimed seizure of Suining, 48 miles southeast of Suchow. This would be less than 60 miles from joining the ends of an encirclement around Suchow, for the insurgents appear to have isolated Suhsien, 58 miles southwest of Suining.

Situation Improved

The North China commander, Gen. Futso-Yi, facing possible Communist attempts to seize Peiping and Tientsin, reported the situation around Kweisui, capital of Suiyan, as improved. He said there were no Reds within 26 miles southeast of the city. Suiyan province is northwest of Hopeh and adjoins Communist-held Jehol province to the east. Beyong Kehol is Manchuria, also under Communist control.

Longshoremen Prepared to Work On Diverted Ships

Halifax, Nov. 16 (CP) — The Port of Halifax had a figurative "open for business" banner across its entrance today and was preparing to handle ships diverted by the United States Ports strike.

Longshoremen turned out for work at full strength following their decision Tuesday night to end a two-day work slow-down in sympathy with American strikers.

The decision was announced by President J. J. Campbell of the Halifax Longshoremen's Association (A.F.L.), who said "we will live up to the full terms of our agreement with the shipping companies and with the laws of Canada."

The Union was subject to a Federal Labor Act which "prevents stoppages of work and strikes until proper conciliation proceedings have been gone through."

Mr. Campbell did not clearly outline Tuesday night just what ships would be worked but it was understood that all those would be handled that came here directly from their cargo-loading points.

"I am in no position to state the reaction in New York to this decision," he added. "However, I never knew of the I.L.A. (International Longshoremen's Association) to ask any of its locals to break either its agreement or the laws of its country."

The Mauretania sailed for Southampton on schedule just after midnight with 400 passengers and mail but no cargo. The Aquitania arrived several hours afterward with 1,800 passengers from Britain.

Mauretania had been handled in accordance with the Union's earlier policy, announced Monday, or refusing to "scab" American Labor by loading cargo or baggage.

It was understood, however, that three other liners diverted here—Britannic, Oregon and Veendam—now would be given any service they required.

Meanwhile, harbor officials were hoping that the Queens Elizabeth and Mary would come to Halifax.

Man Who Complained He Was Robbed, Faces Impersonation Charge

Toronto, Nov. 17 — (CP) — A man who told police he was beaten and robbed of $43 by a boy and a girl was under hospital arrest today on a charge of impersonating a police officer.

William Dougherty was arrested after a boy and girl — Douglas McTaggart and Joan Van Lane—told a different story about the incident. They said they were in a parked car when a man who said he was a police officer attempted to arrest them for trespassing.

McTaggart demanded authority for the arrest and the man pulled out a toy pistol. McTaggart struck him, took the pistol and gave it to police when he visited them after they had found Dougherty at a service station in need of medical attention.

Nine Injured as Car Plunges 30 Feet

Mattawa, Nov. 17 (CP) — Nine people were injured when the car in which the etnire party was travelling crashed off the highway in the centre of Mattawa this morning and plunged down a 30 foot slope to the railway tracks.

The extent of the injuries suffered by the nine people, all of whom are in hospital, had not been ascertained early this afternoon, but none of them were then on the danger list.

Canada Spending Over $2,000,000 Daily on Social Security Measures

Toronto, Nov. 17 — (CP) — Canada is spending more than $2,00,000 a day on all government social security measures, Health Minister Martin said today.

Of this amount, the federal government is paying 80 per cent, the minister told a meeting of the University of Toronto Liberal Association.

"This is an impressive total," he added in a speech prepared for delivery. The measures — "of which the great majority are Liberal in origin — have been brought in at such a measured pace that Canada's economy has been steadily strengthened."

But in contrast with the Liberals, Mr. Martin claimed, the Progressive-Conservatives seem to regard social security platform promises as necessary concessions to the pressure of public opinion.

And the socialists, for their part, "seem to regard the social security part as being more important than the whole pattern of our national economy."

"Their concern seems to be to stress they have made sure they can make it."

"Under Liberalism, we have come to the highest point of prosperity in our history," the minister told the Association. "This is the system under which this country has become the third trading nation of the world with a level of living hardly surpassed by any country." Liberalism, he added, was still on the march.

"The age of Mackenzie King has now come to a close. It was a time of great prosperity . . . a time in which solid foundations were laid for the future.

"In the Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King," said Mr. Martin, "we recognize a great Canadian, but in the transition of Liberal leadership from King to St. Laurent, there is no loss of momentum. There is no unsettling or Canadian programs or of Canada's progress."

MAY DIVERT WATER OF WELLAND SHIP CANAL FOR POWER

1,250,000 K. W. Could Be Made Available

Toronto, Nov. 17 — (CP) — Diversion of water from the Welland ship canal may be tried in an effort to ease Ontario's electric power woes.

Robert Saunders, Ontario Hydro chairman, is in Washington for talks with United States officials concerning the diversion proposal.

It is believed that diverting the canal water into the turbines of the Decew Falls power plant near St. Catharines would produce 1,250,000 kilowatt hours of additional power for Ontario.

Word of the diversion plan came on the heels of a Toronto city council proposal that a power controller be appointed by the federal government to reallocate to clamoring industrial areas the hydro supplies reduced by a dry summer and fall.

Civic officials and utilities heads in Hamilton and Kitchener Tuesday expressed opposition to the suggestion of appointing an Ontario power controller. Kitchener spokesmen took issue with a Toronto contention that the provincial capital, as a manufacturing centre and supply point for other parts of Ontario, deserved an extra-generous power allotment .

May Give Individual Quotas

With Toronto undergoing three daily power cuts, industrialists here discussed the possibility of giving each plant an individual weekly quota. Then, under an arrangement similar to one already in use in Kitchener, when the quota is met, the plant will close down for the rest of the week.

But the need still remained for additional power and the Welland diversion appeared the most practical means of developing the extra energy.

The water would be diverted only during the winter, when power is scarce and the Welland canal is not used for navigation. The flow would double production of the Decew Falls plant,

May Install Steam

Utilities officials in Toronto considered the possibility of installing steam generating equipment to supplement power supplies. It was estimated that such equipment would cost $15,000,000 and an alternative proposal put forward was that individual industries might install sufficient equipment to meet their own needs.

A meeting of the Toronto locals of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) discussed the power shortage as it affects labor. Paul Siren, U.A.W. international representative, said some employers had threatened to penalize workers who claimed they missed Sunday work to attend church services. The meeting countered with a threat to refuse to work weekends unless the alleged action by the employers ceased.

"The union will not bear the entire burden of the power emergency by working on weekends and then be subject to penalty by management by severing their rights as members of the community," Siren said.

Western Ontario Bears Brunt of Gale Which Reaches 80 Mi. an Hour

Toronto, Nov. 17 —(CP)— A gale which reached 80 miles an hour in gusts took a vicious slap at Ontario Tuesday night and early today.

Damage was heavy in some sections. At Bruce Mines, a copper mining town 42 miles from Sault Ste. Marie high winds drove a fire through the main business esction, causing damage estimated at $500,000.

Western Ontario bore the brunt of the storm. Telegraph communications were snarled and hydro poles were blown down near Chatham, Windsor and Stratford to make the power shortage just a little worse.

The storm hustled northeast and weather forecasters said winds would die down by tonight. The gale then would be centred over eastern Hudson Bay.

Storm warnings were hoisted along the Great Lakes Tuesday were being lowered again late today. At least 12 vessels were delayed along the Welland ship canal at Port Colborne.

At Sault Ste. Marie, the United States ship canal reported gusts up to 80 miles an hour. All shipping was teid up in St. Mary's River.

One vessel the Ralph H. Watson of the Pittsburgh Steamship Company of Cleveland, was in slight trouble for a time above the locks. It took two tugs to swing her stern around and get her tied up after she was struck by smashing waves.

At Chatham, city streets and county roads were littered with street limbs. Corn cribs were toppled in rural areas and part of a brick building in the city was blown down.

Line crews were out early in a dozen centres to repair levelled power lines and snapped-off poles.

On the Toronto lakefront, the ketch Spindrift suffered damage when battering waves struck her steel hull. Thirteen persons were injured in 22 traffic accidents in the capital and a few of these were attributed to the heavy rainstorm.

At Windsor, signs were torn from their moorings but no injuries were reported. The rear temporary wall of a new bank building collapsed.

A number of trees were blown down in Stratford. A false fire alarm was turned in when a falling tre cut a wire and caused a short circuit.

At Hamilton, two children were pinned in their bed by a fallen beam when the wind took the wind took off their house.

Fred Hand, the father, lifted the beam off the bed and his hands were cut. He, his wife and three children, were treated for minor injuries and shock.

Power was cut off in the Shelburne area when high tension wires and poles were chopped in two.

Seven Injured As Dynamite Blast Rocks Community

Portage Du Fort, Que., Nov. 17 — (CP) — Seven hydro construction workers today are in hospital, recovering from injuries suffered when a thundering dynamite explosion shook this quiet farming district 60 miles northwest of Ottawa.

The men, all of the Ottawa valley, were part of 18 injured when tons of rock showered nearby Limerick Island on the Ottawa River Tuesday. Forty other men on the mile-long island escaped injury.

In Renfrew hospital, 15 miles southwest of here, are: Dominick Lajinski, 19, Whitney; Peter Borputski, 30, Killaloe, and James Rockburn, 46, Ottawa. All are suffering from head injuries.

In Shawville, Que., hospital. 15 miles east of here, are: Kenneth McCagg, 42, Shawville, back injuries and facial lacerations; James Cuthbertson, 24, Shawville, facial and body lacerations; Gaston Blouin, 22, Quyon, Que., head injuries.

Thought Exploded

Workers, drilling into the rock, discovered two cases of dynamite — about 100 pounds — at one spot 24 inches below the surface of the rock. The dynamite had been placed there the previous day and had been thought exploded.

Early reports were that the drilling touched off the explosion but McCagg said:

"The powder gang put in a light charge of two sticks to enlarge the hole. We backed up a piece and then touched it off. That's all I know."

From other witnesses came reports that huge pieces of rock—some weighing 500 pounds—were hurled a distance of 600 yards by the explosion. The "deep rumbling roar" of the explosion was heard 30 miles away at Quyon, Que.

Among those who escaped injury as the rock shower began was the unidentified driver of a truck near the scene of the drilling. The truck was flattened. The operator of the drill was knocked unconscious.

Man Plunges to Death In St. Peter's

Vatican City, Nov. 17 (Reuters) —A man plunged to his death today from the balcony inside the great dome at St. Peter's, falling 150 —feet to the marble floor in full view of the congregation.

There were loud screams as the body fell near the confessional boxes. Pontifical police and special officials of St. Peter's immediately cleared the church.

The man was later identified as Pietro Puglieri, a 65year-old lawyer.

A reconsecration service was held this afternoon and St. Peter's was then reopened.

Failed to Have Dog Destroyed, Owner Fined $184

Samford, Suffolk, England, Nov. 17 — (CP) — Mrs. Eileen Chevalier yesterday was ordered to pay a fine of £46 ($184) for failing to carry out an order that her Alsatian dog Bruce be destroyed.

The order was handed down July 27 and 46 days have elapsed since the notice to carry out the order was served. The bench warned that the fine would continue to accumulate at the rate of one pound daily until carried out.

Mrs. Chevalier said "I cannot pay; I shall have to go to prison." She was given seven days to pay.

She pleaded the dog was needed as a guide-dog for her 75-year-old blind mother, wife of Rev. Henry Mayne-Young, 7 1year-old Vicar of nearby Freston.

The clerk of the court said no sworn evidence ever had been produced to prove that Bruce was qualified as a guide-dog.

Bruce was ordered destroyed after being accused of a chicken killing.

Roof Crashes Upon Part Where Owners Sleeping

Hamilton, Nov. 17 — (CP) — When high winds tore the roof from their partially finished home and crashed it down on the part of the building in which they were sleeping, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hand and two children, Tuesday night, had a remarkable escape from possible serious injury. While all suffered from shock, they were not otherwise injured.

G. R. Depew, chief of the Stoney Creek fire department, which responded to the emergency call, said, "it was just a miracle that they got out alive. I don't know how they did it." Mr. Depew said that the roof fell partly over a motor truck parked beside the building and he believed that this possibly prevented it from crushing the members of the family underneath.

KILLED BY TRAIN

Hamilton, Nov. 17 (CP)— A man was instantly killed about 12:30 Tuesday night when struck by a C.N.R. passenger train on the railway right-of-way just east of Oakville. The man, John Kahbeje, an Indian was walking along the tracks when the accident happened, the train, in charge of D. Reith, engineer, and D. H. Bokus, conductor, was west-bound for Hamilton from Toronto. Dr. W. N. Wilkinson, Oakville coroner, has not yet ordered an inquest.

NEW WORLD WHEAT KING CROWNED AT WINTER FAIR

S. J. Allsop, Alta., Wins Top Honors

Toronto, Nov. 17 (CP)—A new world wheat king, S. J. Allsop, of Red Deer, Alta., stepped into the limelight on the opening day of the Royal Winter Fair Tuesday to take top honors in a crowded program of judging.

A capacity evening crowd of 8,500 persons was filing out of the opening night of the horse show as the news was announced that Allsop's 18 pounds of Reward hard red spring wheat had been judged best in the international competition.

R. C. Chambers of Fenwick, won the reserve championship with his entry of Junior No. 6 type of winter white wheat.

The audience watched Canada's military jumping team lose to a smooth-riding Olympic champion pair of Mexican horsemen after a prolonged contest among French, Mexican and Canadian teams.

The contest was repeated three aimes, with the barriers raised after the first jump, before Col. Humberto Harlles and Capt. Raul Campero provided a near-faultless performance to edge out the Canadian duo of Squad. Ldr. Douglas Cleland and Lieut. W. R. Ballard.

Horse Awards

Other horses and their riders came in for awards in Tuesday night's show. Maj.-Gen. Churchill Mann rode his Paddy, from Stonedene Stables, Toronto, to victory in the $1,500 Perry Stakes. Four big clydesdales, owned by Zimmerman Bros. Ltd., of Tavistock, and driven by Ralph Otto, won the four-horse team contest. Sedbefield Star, a chestnut mare from Dufferin Stock Farms, Toronto, won the three-gaited saddle horse competition.

Highlight of the afternoon horse show was the winning of the James Widgery Memorial trophy by Limerick ,a seven-year-old gelding jumper owned by E. H. Cudney, of Winona.

A second king in the Royal's list of champions was named Tuesday. A 19-year-old Ontario farmer, Eric Gallaugher, who grows potatoes near the village of Everett, in Simcoe county, was crowned Ontario potato king when his prize-winning exhibit was chosen over those of 32 of Ontario's potato growers.

742 Bushels to Acre

Gallaugher's crop of 733 bushels to the acre was surpassed by the 742-bushel record of Gordon Bidwell, of North Simcoe, but Bidwell yielded first place on the strength of the cooking quality of Gallaugher's entry.

Harvester's Hope, owned by H. Ready of Desford, Ata., won honors as the best shorthorn in the show. Reserve champion steer was Teddy, owned by Sylvia Easton, of Gormley.

Another Alberta farmer, E. F. Noad of Olds, won the Hereford championship with MacLeod Prince, and F W. Reicheld, of Jarvis, won the reserve prize with Jarvis Type.

Howe Willing to Debate Hydro Issue With Drew in Commons

Washington, Nov. 17 — (CP) — Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Canadian trade minister, today offered to debate the Ontario hydro shortage with George Drew in the Canadian House of Commons.

Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, early this week challenged Howe to discuss the shortage on "the public platform."

Howe, here for talks with United States defence and munitions officials, said in an interview:

"As the challenged party, it is my privilege to name the time and the place of the debate.

"The place will be the floor of the House of Commons.

"The time will be any afternoon or evening that's suitable—providing the lights are on at the time."

Howe, busy in talks with officials here, was not available yesterday for comment.

His offer to debate the question in the Commons is dependent on Drew's success in contesting the by-election Dec. 20 at Carleton, Ont. — a Conservative seat since 1867.

The Carleton seat was vacated by Russell Boucher to give Drew a chance to enter the federal political arena.

Drew resigned from the premiership of Ontario after his selection in September as national leader of the Progressive Conservative party.

Six Places Burn, Estimated Damage Nearly $500,000

Electric Transformer Sparks Believed Cause of Blaze

Bruce Mines, Nov. 17. (CP)—An early morning fire today wiped out the main business section of this old copper mining town, 42 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie. Damage was estimated at upwards of $500,000.

The fire broke out at 6.05 a.m. and two hours later half a dozen business places—including two stone buildings—were destroyed. All that remained standing were brick chimneys.

Buildings across the street were damaged by the roaring flames.

Cause of the fire was not definitely determined but it was believed to have been started by sparks from an electric transformer.

A night operator at the telephone office reported the sparks during the night.

Row Wiped Out

The blaze wiped out a row of buildings which front on the main street—a section of the Sault-Sudury Highway—which skirts the shore of Lake Huron.

Destroyed were: a furniture store and undertaking establishment owned by W. L. Miller, former Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature; W. B. Keetch's drug store; the Telephone Exchange; Mrs. Miller's Dry Goods Store; Killins Barber Shop; E. White's hardware and general store.

The blaze caused heavy damage to a stationery store and weekly newspaper office of F. W. Rickaby who publishes weekly papers for several Algoma District communities. His store was damaged by fire just a few months ago. A general store owned by the Jackson estate, across the street from the main fire was damaged. The walls of the Royal Bank of Canada Branch were scorched and windows blown out.

Several Loud Explosions

Mrs. Keetch reported that there were several loud explosions during the blaze.

The fire, a severe blow to this community of some 700 persons in the centre of a rich farming district, literally burned itself out and was finally under control around 10 a.m.

A call was sent to the Sault for help but the fire department there decided against the 42-mile trip because of a high wind. With a velocity of 50 miles an hour, and sometimes sweeping up to an 80-mile pace in gusts, it helped to fan the flames.

Neighboring communities of Thessalon and Nesterville sent men to help. The McNamara Construction Company, which has a

ONLY SMALL HOLE BURNT IN VERANDAH

Sparks from a nearby chimney is believed to have been responsible for a small fire on the roof of a verandah at 18 Olive Street shortly after nine o'clock this morning. Firemen were called and quickly extinguished the blaze and reported the damage amounted only to a small hole burned in the verandah roof.

DISTEMPER PREVALENT AMONG CITY DOGS

Thought to be the result of the current damp weather, distemper is very prevalent among the canine population of the city, it was reported today by Thomas Thorne, local dog catcher. In the past several days Mr. Thorne has been called upon to destroy several dogs which were suffering from severe cases of distemper.

The officer reported that dogs are quite apt to develop a certain viciousness when suffering from acute cases of distemper and advised that all dogs suffering from the disease be tied up until completely recovered.

Dairy Cattle Prices Increase

Price of dairy cattle has risen from $15 to $25 over the previous average at recent farm sales in the district. This is according to the weekly crop report issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Also in many instances Western Ontario buyers are paying high prices for cattle in private deals with individual farmers.

The Department reports a big demand in the county for soil sample boxes, indicating that more farmers are becoming soil conscious. More interest is also indicated in proper drainage than in previous years, both by tile and by open ditches.

In Prince Edward County it is reported that egg receipts have been steady but prices dropped six cents during the past week. Rain had held up farmers with late plowing but the rain was expected to relieve the water shortage.

Quite a number of farm helpers are on the move, accepting seasonal jobs for the winter months until they are again needed on the farms next spring.

Radio Auction By Y's Men's Club Very Successful

"Very successful" was the way which members of the local Y's-Men's Club described last night's radio auction sponsored by the local service club and heard over station CJBQ from 7:45 until well past mid-night.

President of the club, Larry Buck today stated that every item listed for sale over the air had been sold with an estimated 75 per cent of the different items selling for their full retail value or over. One hundred and thirty six items were offered for sale, majority of which were donated for the auction.

A battery of ten telephones installed especially for the radio auction were literally swamped with calls throughout most of the evening from six o'clock on as district residents called in bids on various articles.

Organization of the radio auction was under project chairman Frank Nichol and his committee and the evening program went off without a hitch as four teams of auctioneers broadcast bids over the air. Bids on any article were accepted after six o'clock and these were put on the air as each article was put up for auction. In many instances last minute bidders were successful.

Master of ceremonies for the radio auction was club member Les Reid, while auctioneers included Jerry Hyde, Mac Dowsette, Bryson Leslie, Don Williams, Al Davis, Bud Trill, Austin Watkin and R. Clarke. It was the first time a radio auction had been attempted in the city.

Most valuable article offered for sale was the new Ford car which was sold to Clifford Ott of Waterton Lake National Park in Alberta. Mr. Herbert McCabe Chatham Street, placed the successfully bid for Mr. Ott. The car sold for well over the retail market value.

Civil Service Federation To Sponsor Broadcast

On November 9th, Civil Service Federation was granted an interview with Acting Prime Minister St. Laurent and members of his cabinet. The Federation presented a brief requesting a bonus to compensate for increased cost of living. The brief outlined the serious economic situation in which thousands of Civil Servants find themselves as a result of the very rapid increase in the cost of living.

The Acting Prime Minister admitted that salaries and wages of Civil Servants were lower than those being paid in other walks of life and the Government realized something would have to be done about it to bring the scale up to present standards as quickly as posible.

In order to acquaint the public with the situation as it is today the Civil Service Federation has made arrangements to broadcast the statistics and events leading up to the preparation of its brief to the Canadian Government.

On Friday evening Hamilton radio station CHML will broadcast the above information from 8.15 to 8.30 p.m.

20,000 Hastings County Booklets Will be Sent Out

The Publicity Committee of the County of Hastings, City of Belleville and Chamber of Commerce in connection with the Hastings county tourist booklet met in the city hall on Tuesday afternoon and after considerable discussion decided to increase the order for booklets by 5,000 making the distribution for next year 20,000 copies. It was pointed out there was not enough last year to supply all those seeking information.

Those in attendance were Warden George West, Councillors Harold Wells of Stirling, Vincent Lynch of Marmora, County Clerk Erle Denyes for the County, J. Yanover, H. J. Legate and Freeman Burrows of the Chamber of Commerce and Ald. Claude D. Tice for the City of Belleville. A. B. Calnan of Picton, publisher of the booklet for some years, told the committee that the booklet would be ready for distribution the first of March, which is much earlier than in former years.

The City of Belleville will be given more space in the booklet than previously and this matter is all prepared and was turned in to the publisher at the meeting. The committee decided that a booth would again be operated at the Sportsmen's Show to be held in Toronto from March 10th to 17th inclusive and that Freeman Burrows and Ald. Claude Tice would be in charge, each for three days. the county bearing the expenses of Mr. Burrows. Expenses of the booklet were split on a 50-50 basis and the cost will be approximately $1,000 to each participant, the city and the county. The members of the committee were pleased with the reception of the booklet in all parts of Canada and the United States and felt that it had helped to increase the tourist trade in this district by a considerable amount.

Members Enjoy Musical Program At Kiwanis Club

In the absence of a principal speaker at the weekly luncheon of Kiwanis Club held at the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday noon, the members enjoyed a musical and varied program given by members of the club. There was little business transacted.

The Centre has been rewired in order that hobbycraft classes can proceed despite the blackouts after the supper hour and the members of the committee are in need of more old batteries. Donations were sought and several members volunteered to produce the same. Ernie Finkle is in charge of the re-wiring. A call was made for volunteers to assist in collecting for the Sea Cadet Corps, who are running a campaign for funds. Taylor Franklin announced that members of the club were invited to attend church service on Sunday November 28th at the Salvation Army Citadel. The attendance prize of a bouquet of mums was won by Charles Cawker but the flowers were sent to his wife. Al Dustin was the donor.

Bill Navin gave a solo and a number of piano selections to the delight of the members while Len Fozard entertained with a number of sleight-of-hand tricks. The program was under the direction of Lorne McDougall, who was acting for Ralph Clapp, who is out in the woods trying for the elusive deer.

Heavy Limbs Brushing Wires Cause Short Blacking Out Entire East End of the City

Almost the entire east end of the city was under an unofficial blackout during the early hours this morning as result of the short circuiting of primary circuits leading to transformers in the East Hill district. Power was off from three o'clock until six it was stated.

Exact cause of the short circuit was not stated by Mr. O.H. Scott, public utilities manager, but it was thought heavy limbs brushing the wires as result of the high wind were responsible.

Most serious break was in the vicinity of Memorial Park at the corner of Cannifton Road and Reid Street were primary wires burned off with a blinding flash and dropped sizzling to the lawn beneath. This meant a break in feeder lines to the entire district east of Front Street and west of Bleecker Ave it was stated.

It was believed that limbs had been responsible for the short at this point, although emergency crew members who responded quickly to repair the damage stated no limb was found on the pavement at this break.

Several other minor breaks in other circuits were reported, these also presumably being the result of limbs. Utility officials stated there were no transformers burned out, the trouble being only in burned off circuit wires.

Production Halted

As result of the break, production was temporarily halted at the Mead Johnson plant where a night staff was working. Despite the three hour break in production workmen were kept on the job it was stated.

At the Ontario Intelligencer early morning copy over the teletype system failed to come through as the circuits were dead. Here the power went off at 2:55 and remained off until 7:38 in the morning.

Hunters Lost in Bush Forced To Carry Dog Who Got Tired

"Man's best friend, my eye," snorted Jack Moore of this city, one of a party of four hunters who recently returned from a deerless jaunt to a spot ten miles west of Eldorado.

Mr. Moore was referring to a pouch-jowled pooch which had a working agreement with the deer and apparently agreed to "lay off" unless the hunting fraternity came through with a raise of pay.

The four-legged scion of a strain of Rip Van Winkle dachshunds would wind his length around a tree, drop off to sleep and awaken with a terrified bark when he accidentally nipped the south side of his own lap.

In any event Mr. Moore and Mr. Bert Newman, who essayed the forest wilderness in that district with Desmond Fisher and T. Portt, started off on a sunny morning with the backwoods bloodhound stifling yawns, in tow. Mr. Moore carried in the hollow of his arm his trusty 47-70 rifle which can blow a cave in the side of a hill big enough to hold a service club convention, at one blast. In his pocket was plenty of ammunition.

Tramped for Miles

The safari started off full of hope, anticipation, good fellowship and beans and bacon. Ambling in front of them was "Rover" carrying a sleeping bag in cavernous jaws, and a bleary, weary look in his big brown eyes.

The duo tramped for miles. Overhead the birds twittered. Bluejays wise-cracked birdlike chirps of derision. The forest was still. An occasional chipmunk scurried across the trail in front of them. Not a deer was in sight. Not a doe flicked a white tail. Not a fawn frolicked within eye range.

Time went on. The shadows began to deepen. Rover suddenly slumped and curled up under a tree for the evening siesta. His abject attitude bespoke extreme weariness.

Dog Not Worried

Then the doughty hunters discovered they were lost. Alone in the forest primeval with a pathetic pooch that did not know north from south, a deer from a kangaroo, was desperately tired and cared only for his bed without bath.

To shorten this sad tale the intrepid group finally found its way back to camp. But not until Rover had given his last ounce of strength in the effort to lead them to safety, by the simple expedient of drowsing under a tree and conjuring canine dreams of heroic rescue of man by dog.

Rover finally gave his all. He was "out" to all intents and purposes and the first sight Messrs. Desmond and Portt who had remained in camp saw, was two bedraggled hunters with guns at the trail, staggering into camp. Over the shoulder of one was slung the sleeping but happy body of "Rover."

And by way of diversion and to try out his trusty weapon, not to mention giving vent to a feeling of disappointment, Mr. Moore fired several rounds of ammunition at a nearby innocent tree.

Asked his reaction to deer hunting, Mr. Moore answered tersely the famous statement of Poe's Raven, "Nevermore."

Disconsolate Hunters Return With Sad Tales of Elusive Bucks and Does

Groups of disconsolate hunters are roaming the north woods in more or less vain efforts to get themselves a juicy venison steak, roast, or even a sight of the elusive bucks and does, according to long-faced nimrods returning to the city from the deerless haunts.

The weather man has thrown the well-known monkey wrench into the deer-hunting machinery, 'tis reported, and Indian Summer in what should be snow-covered frosty forest glades is enjoying a prolonged lease of life.

Yep, the lads are coming home seeking their meat fare in butcher shops, and grocery stores, while proud bucks and does are frolicking in freedom in haunts far north of their usual late Autumn habitat.

True, the occasional young buck, more out of curiosity or a search for geographical knowledge, strays far enough south to give a hunter a thrill, but as far as hunting parties returning overloaded with the spoils of the chase that's just a pipe-dream, brother.

Snow is Scarce

It seems that the water shortage in the north country is commensurate with the power deficiencies in the southern "banana belt." Snow is scarcer than Truman supporters in the Kremlin, and only the boys blessed with the scent powers of a well-trained hound have had any luck. And these, mind you, have trekked many miles farther north than usual.

Mr. and Mrs. Buck spent a good summer this year, but their winter vacation calls for snowy glades, the crackle of frozen snow under sharp-pointed hoofs, and a winter environment in which to rear Junior and Jane. And these are not available in the usual spots this year, according to the Buck and Doe Chamber of Commerce.

So it would appear that the dyed-in-the-woods hunter if he wants his venison this year, must needs look up Eskimo relatives, or at least pals in James Bay.

FRANKLIN MYLES SEDORE

Franklin Myles Sedore, Point Anne, died in the Belleville General Hospital early Wednesday morning, after an illness of nine months' duration.

Born in Napanee the late Mr. Sedore was in his 41st year and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sedore. For some time he lived in Napanee and for the past sixteen years he resided at Point Anne where he was employed as a millwright with the Canada Cement Company.

In the Last Great War he responded to the call of his country and served well for about five and a half years. He enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in January 1940 and went overseas a few months later. In England he was transferred to the Signal Corps in November 1940 and he experienced long service at the front. He was discharged on Nov. 5th 1945.

In this city and district Franklin (Frank) Sedore was well known and respected by a host of friends and acquaintances to whom his death has brought much regret. He was greatly interested in sports, especially softball and successfully managed numerous teams. In the season just past he managed (although in ill health) the Point Anne team. He successfully managed a championship squad.

In religion he was a member of the United Church and fraternally he was a member of the Army and Navy and Air Force Veterans.

LATE MISS MARY ELIZABETH MUMBY

(Rawdon Township)

The funeral of Miss Mary Elizabeth Mumby was held on Tuesday afternoon from her late residence in the 12th concession of Rawdon township, to Trinity United Church, Madoc, where service was conducted by the minister, the Rev. A. Poulter.

Interment took place at Lakeview cemetery. The bearers were Naphan Bronson, Percy Bronson, Gilbert Roy, Walter Foley, John Lindale and Alfred Herrington.

Chamber Music Group Formed In Municipal Band

Of interest to music lovers of Belleville is the formation of a chamber music group in the ranks of the municipal band. This takes the form of a quintet and is made up of the following instruments, flute, oboe, clarinet, French horn and bassoon. This form of ensemble was first popularized some years ago by Georges Barrere famous first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and is now quite common in the U. S. but little heard of in Canada as the instruments used in the group are considered the most difficult to master of all the orchestral woodwinds and brass.

The group has been fortunate in acquiring the nucleus of a library through the generosity of one or two private citizens and to date about six rehearsals have been held.

FOUNDING OF INQUISITION

The. Spanish Inquisition, an ecclesiastical court of the Roman Catholic Church, was founded in 1233 by Pope Gregory IX. It was abolished by the Holy Office in 1834.

THE CHINA COAST

The China coast, partly alluvial and partly granitic in nature, includes some of the richest land and almost all of the most industrialized areas of the country.

road contract nearby, sent 20 men and trucks along with other equipment.

Some of the destroyed buildings date back to the early days of the community which was a prosperous copper mining centre a century ago. At one time it was the largest community in Northern Ontario. Its mine closed down more than 20 years ago.

In its hey-day it was a boom centre. English interests built a railway — known for years as the "nip and tuck" — north to other mining prospects. The noted boxing authority — the Marquess of Queensberry — had an interest in the early development and spent some time here in a rambling frame house which now is the town hotel.

Mrs. Mackinnon, Brahmin Princess In Own Right, Dies

Toronto, Nov. 17 (CP)—Born in one of the palaces of the Indian Kings of Oudh and a Brahmin princess in her own right, Mrs. Millicent MacKinnon died today. She frequently travelled across Canada to address women's organizations on problems of India.

Her mother was a Rajput princess and her father a Scottish gentleman. Her grandfather on her mother's side was a native Indian who commanded the King of Oudh's army during the mutiny of 1857 and later threw in his lot with the British.

Mrs. MacKinnon's husband died in England in 1909. Later she came to Toronto live with her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Collyer.

Support Given To Resolution

Windsor, Nov. 17 —(CP)—Support was given an Owen Sound resolution by city council Tuesday night urging the provincial government to call a special session of the legislature and make a full report to the people of the hydro power situation.

City council favored asking the government what steps are being taken to alleviate the present shortage; the policy to be followed to prevent similar situations occurring in the future and the basis of power allocation in regard to priorities.

Council also approved a resolution which asks the federal government to refer to the international joint commission, problems of air pollution caused by factories in one side of the international boundary affecting atmosphere on the other side. A similar resolution has been approved by Detroit and sent to the State Department at Washington.

75 Sticks Dynamite Stolen at Hamilton

Hamilton, Nov. 17 (CP)—Seventy-five sticks of dynamite were stolen Tuesday night from an explosives magazine on the mountain brow owned by the Robinson Contracting Company. Police suspect boys may have been responsible for the theft and a serious warning to parents in the strongman's drive area was issued today by Inspector Walter Hagen, assistant inspector of detectives.

The loss of the dangerous explosive was first reported to police by Manford Roberts, manager of the company. The magazine had been broken into, a box of dynamite forced open, and the 75 sticks of explosive taken out.

Howe Confers With Forrestal, Defence Secretary

Washington, Nov. 17. (CP)—Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe said today Canada is "interested" in obtaining United States orders for Canadian military equipment.

The Canadian Trade Minister, here for three days of conferences with United States defence and munitions officials, emphasized however that he is not "seeking" orders.

He will confer this afternoon with James Forrestal, United States defence secretary, and with high-ranking officers of the United States National Security Resources Board.

He told The Canadian Press in an interview today that the "increasing demands" are "accelerated a little" by present world conditions.

"Both countries are stepping up their armament moderately," he said. "There was the normal cutback in armament production after the end of the war and now things are being stepped up again."

Drive and Walk Safely

The number of accidents continues to cause concern hose who have the duty of trying to enforce safety and save human life from the toll which is exalted of men women, boys and girls on the roads and highways.

The horror of the situation of a fatal accident can be preciated only by those who have figured in one of these e events.

In the New York Times this week is an editorial deal- with this accident problem. The writer takes the state- nt of the New Jersey Department of Motor Vehicles ggesting that 'if motorists and pedestrians do not develop reater awareness of imminent possibility, of injury and dden death on the highways, the situation 'will undoubt- y provoke legislators to enact stringent measures in an empt to curb accidents'." The Times notes that the New sey Department admits that such laws might be so ere as to lower materially the flexibility of the motorcar e. But it is argued, says the Times that the price of toring convenience is already too high.

The Times says that "the public generally, it is found, ls to take into account the rapidity — the time element usually less than two seconds — with which accidents cur. Persons on the roads, it is admitted, cannot be ex- cted to develop a sixth sense of the imminence of dan- r. But the feeling of actual indifference so much appar- t today must be overcome. The New Jersey motor ve- cle officials say correctly that if more drastic enforcement traffic laws and stricter regulations are to be avoided, a luntary resolution' to drive and walk safely must be sumed by the public."

Avoid Common Cold

More and more attention now is being directed to an emy of mankind, the common cold, so lightly held in a nse by some and yet something that lays a very heavy nd upon the joys of living and the productivity of the rker in whatever class of occupation or profession he or e is engaged.

The National Health and Welfare Department has ued a bulletin which states that while a great deal has en discovered about the cold there is a great deal more at is unknown. It is accepted that this enemy of man is used by a living agent, a virus which is transmitted from e person to another in many ways. This virus is in the se and throat of the person ill with a cold and is partic- larly dangerous and threatening in the early stages of the ld.

The common cold has many means of propagating it- lf. Sneezing, talking, coughing, will send forth a flood of ese germs into the air and that spray of germs is inhaled others in the vicinity. In some respiratory infections e germs may fall to the ground and be inhaled with the ust on a windy day.

Droplets of saliva are projected in sneezing or coughing far as four feet from the mouth of the person with a old while in talking the germs did not spread more than a ot from the mouth. The inference is clear to try not to eeze or cough near others.

To help others and so indirectly help oneself it is ad- isable that the mouth should be covered when the person oughs or sneezes. This is an easy habit to form and to ractise when one has a cold. For no one knows the extent o which minute germs will extend, to be carried from one erson to another in a long series.

The use of disposable tissue handkerchiefs is advised s used handkerchiefs are a fertile means of spreading the contagion of cold. Paper bag containers should be handy o dispose of the used tissue.

It is said that avoidance of too heavy clothing is one of the best means of insurance against colds. Overheating and sudden exposure to a cool atmosphere is a frequent cause of colds.

As yet there is no specific cure for this malady. When one suffers a cold the best advice is to take to bed for a day or two, giving the human system the opportunity of destroying the infection and that rest which is so important when one has a cold.

Some day science may be able to conquer the cold and when it does it will have achieved one of the most important steps toward health. Colds cause immense losses to industry, destroy the ordinary peace of mind in time of such an infection and pile up altogether distress and economic loss.

To avoid the causes of cold is something that everyone should try to do.

STRENGTH for The Day

PREVENTION RATHER THAN CURE

In Williamsburg, Virginia, that centre of colonial tradition visited each year by millions of persons, one sees among other things a reclining chair with a fly-chaser suspended above it. We can picture the settler of 300 years ago reclining in this chair and with his foot working the device above his head which shooed the flies away.

But the idea never seemed to occur to anyone in those days to weave a screen to keep the flies out of the house. This reminds us of the poem wherein we are told of the community which was diligent to maintain an ambulance at the foot of a high cliff in order putting a fence around the top of the cliff, the proposal was met with derision and scorn. Their argument was:

Why should people of sense
Stop to put up a fence,
With an ambulance down in the valley?

Prudence beseeches us to avoid troublesome situations by giving them our attention before they become troublesome. The place to stop an evil is at its source. The time to handle it is right now, before it gets any worse. Screens on the windows are better than fly-chasers on chairs. The fence around the precipice makes more

Mackenzie's Column:

Attempt to End Dangerous Berlin Crisis Has Failed

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The attempt of top United Nations officials to bring the Big Four together to end the dangerous Berlin crisis in the interests of general peace has failed.

It was a gallant effort on the part of Secretary-General Trygve Lie and Assembly President H. V. Evatt, but the result was a foregone conclusion. Both sides stand pat—the Soviet Union on the one hand and the democracies on the other.

Russia still insists on taking up the problems of all Germany in connection with any negotiations about Berlin. The democracies refuse to negotiate unless the Russians blockade of western Berlin first is lifted.

And why doesn't either party give ground? The answer to that has been stated in this column time and again, but it's worth repeating in view of the development. Fundamentally it is this:

We are not dealing with a diplomatic situation. It is a state of war—a cold war, to be sure, but nevertheless a red war of aggression.

Both sides have adopted strategic positions which they consider vital in this cold war. To give ground would be to invite defeat.

Only Part

The argument about Germany is only part of the war of the isms, but it is a vital part of the conflict in the European theatre. Before the Second World War Germany was the economic and military keystone of continental Europe. Potentially it still is the keystone, despite the ravages of war.

Russia is playing for control of the entire Reich, which would give Moscow a mighty lever with which to pry loose western Europe for communism. That's why the Russians won't negotiate the Berlin crisis without including the whole country.

The democracies, on the other hand, know that if they make concessions while that murderous blockade is still in operation, they will awaken their position dangerously.

Just Intensification

You see, this cold war is merely an intensification of the cold war which Moscow declared against the world when the Bolshevist rebellion succeeded in 1917 and gave communism control of Russia.

Russia never will halt its drive until it controls the world or until communism encounters a force which it can't handle. That is why efforts to compromise with Russia can't succeed at this juncture. That is why anything which could be mistaken as appeasement of Moscow might be disastrous.

Romance Has Been Dealt Bitter Blow

(A Winnipeg Tribune Editorial)

Romance was dealt a bitter blow the other night.

A suitor, moved by the mellow glow of the harvest moon, sought out the home of his loved one. There beneath her window he uncased his guitar and began softly to sing songs of love. What cared he that the hour was late and all the staid burghers in peo. He simply had to pour out his passion in sweet serenade.

In due course his love's casement window opened and she appeared, radiant as an angel in the moonlight. In her hand she had a token. The singer's heart leaped. Was it a red, red rose — pledge of eternal affection? Was it a perfumed kerchief—symbol of love returned?

It was neither of these. It was a small ironing board, which the moonlit angel proceeded to throw at the singer with passionate, if not romantic, intent. The missile flew to its target straight and true. It struck the serenader and knocked him, his guitar and his song for a loop.

The young lady then telephoned the police and had the singer thrown in the pokey. In the morning the magistrate put the finishing touch to the romantic interlude by fining the fellow ten dollars and remarkng that "The young lady should have thrown a big ironing board."

Shades of Heloise and Abelard, Beatrice and Dante, Romeo and Juliet! Is romance dead? What has become of the fair tradition of the troubadour under his lady's window? Is the moonlight serenade to be buried under ironing boards and the fulminations of fusty magistrates?

The fact that these things happened in the U.S. is beside the point. It is idle to pretend they could not happen here.

What if Heloise had taken a pelting Abelard with household bric-a-brac? What would have happened to romance then? What if Juliet had taken to heaving ironing boards from her balcony down on Romeo?

We asked this question of one of our colleagues. His answer was simply, "Then Romeo and Juliet would have been a better play."

Romance is dead, all right.

London Letter:

St. Giles Church Stands as Monument To the Destruction of Total War

By MICHAEL O'MARA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 17 (CP)—"Kilroy was here"—and so were German bombers the night of Dec. 29, 1940, smashing the life out of historic St. Giles, Cripplegate.

The walls of the fine Norman church, built around 1090, A.D., where Oliver Cromwell was married and John Milton was buried, now stands as a monument to the destruction of total war; and its grey stones bear countless chalk-scribbled vulgarities of revellers who have since passed by.

Twenty of the City of London's 47 parish churches were "seriously damaged by enemy action" in the recent war. Of these St. Giles presents perhaps the greatest scene of desolation.

Near what once was the north wall of the ancient city are acres of underbuilt bomb sites. Rank weeds cover still-uncleared heaps of chipped rubble.

Amid this ugliness stands St Giles. Broken stones litter its tiny forecourt. Filthy garbage is scattered along a little alley behind its southwest wall. Broken glass saints peer sightlessly from its windows inwards into the gutted shell of the church and out into the gloom of a London November.

Many in Like Plight

Other city churches are in like plight. St. Mildred, Bread Street; St. Alban, Wood Street; Christ Church, Greyfriars; St. Stephen, Coleman Street are all deserted.

Some are fighting back. St.-Andrew-by-the-Wardrobe, for instance, although a Bishop of London's commission has recommended that its site be sold, is appealing for funds to rebuild and already is some way toward the £15,000 ($60,000) necessary.

Services still are carried on in unwrecked parts of St. Bride, Fleet Street; St. Dunstan-in-the-East; St. Lawrence Jewry and St. Michael Royal.

It is expected that at least 10 or 20 years will elapse before any of the badly-damaged churches are rebuilt; but meantime most of them have incorporated their parochial life with that of a neighboring church more fortunate in the bombing.

Today's Talk

YOUR HEALTH

The late Arthur Brisbane once told a friend of mine that the only things worth while in this life were "health and money." I would substitute love for money—health and love. It wouldn't be necessarw to worry about food and a place to sleep, for one in health, with love in his heart would never want for either.

In my youth I heard the lectures of Prof. John B. DeMotte many times. They were most inspiring and had a great effect upon my early thinking. I remember many things that he said in those lectures, many of which were illustrated with views thrown upon the screen. But here is a statement that I cannot forget, and which has come to me again and again. Said he: "Have an inward reverence for your body. Thoughts are deeds, and may become crimes."

We are influenced by our thoughts more than we ever dare to acknowledge. In fact they rule our lives from day to day. And our glands, and our glands are what have more to do with our health than anything else, unless I might add this remarkable network of nerves that spreads into every inch of the body, serving the mind as do the physical communication lines that give kinship to the peoples of this earth.

The greatest value that medicine has is the faith we have in it. If we had full faith in God and ourselves we would not want for medicine. And with that "inward reverence" we couldn't help but be healthy. It is our attitude of mind toward ourselves and toward life, and its many intricate problems, that really measures out our degree of happiness Your health, to a large degree, also is responsible for what success you have.

The human mind harbors many potential miracles. It is the healthy mind that gives them reality time and again. Many of them are revealed under religious fervor. If you have a healthy, happy mind, you have what many a millionaire would give all his SHOES FOR THE BABY?

Dear Doctor:

I was brought up according to Brady. I mean my mother was a follower of yours from 'way back when Tony (or was it Topsy?) was a pup. When I married I began indoctrinating my wife, but she didn't know you and I made slow progress, until I sent for your instructions for the constipation habit, and soon freed myself from the habit. Then my wife began to think you must know what you are talking about.

When we were expecting our first baby (born in April and as healthy as two ordinary infants) we sent for Preparing for Maternity and the Brady Baby Book. These proved of immense value to us. I notice now that my wife refers to the baby book whenever she is in doubt about anything pertaining to the baby, and she tells her friends who are expecting, they had better do as she did and they'll have no trouble at all.

Now the baby is nearly eight months old and has never worn either shoes or sox, but Ben Told, Mrs. Sumsey, Saireygamp and Aunt Polly are unanimous in declaring (a) that it is cruel not to keep the baby's feet and legs warm with sox or stockings and (b) she will get flat feet if we don't put shoes on her before she begins to walk. As she is trying to get up on her feet now we would like to have your assurance about this. (T. H. V.)

Tony was a pup—Tony was the Wirish Terror. His last tail wag still haunts my memory. His portrait over my desk reminds me of the many happy strolls we had together and the fights we picked with anything on four feet that crossed our path and the dreadful punishment we took if the other dog happened to be a German shepherd or an airedale.

It is plumb silly to put sox or stockings on a baby who is not yet creeping about the floor. Up to that time the baby clothes, if any, and bed covers at night are plenty of protection for the feet.

It is ridiculous to put baby shoes of any kind on the feet of a baby who is not yet walking.

After the baby learns to walk the less shoe the better. Footwear for a baby a year or two old should be soft, pliable, free from any stiffness in sole or upper. Such footwear gives the feet the best chance to become strong and graceful.

A baby in didies should go barefoot and barelegged most of the time. If you are in doubt whether your baby is comfortable and happy that way, feel the baby's feet. If they are warm the baby is comfortable, happy and safe. If they feel cold, put on stockings or extra bed covers or put a hot water bottle in the foot of the crib but not in contact with the feet.

Avoid rigidity in footwear for babies or older children. Do not be talked into applying braces or props or "needed support" of any kind to the child's feet—unless it is prescribed by and applied under the personal supervision of your physician.

When you do buy shoes for a young child, be sure the soles are wider than the footprints, especially across the balls of the feet.

The shoes must be at least a half inch longer than the footprints. Let the child walk on a paper with naked wet feet and mark the outline of the footprint with pencil. The shoes should conform to this pattern in size and shape.

Shoes should be roomy enough, particularly in winter, to permit flexion and extension of the toes. This freedom aids normal developmentment of the feet of the young child and prevents cold feet, chilblains and frostbite in extremely cold weather.

The less shoe the better for the young infant. The less upper the better for the older child.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Some Druggists Will, Some Won't

When I tried to get the 1/000th grain nitroglycerin tablets suggested for every sufferer from angina to carry in his pocket and take on the first hint of distress, the druggist would not give me any without a prescription.

(J. R. H.)

Answer—I'm sorry. Some druggists will, some will not sell them without prescription.

Witch's Broth

The suggestion that Abdullah's Arab fighters might fare better if they did not boil their coffee so long does not seem logical. Many evenings of my youth were spent at prayer meeting and choir practice at the parish house, and I'm sure the coffee, always kept boiling in a large granite pot for hours contributed materially to the vigor of the singing and the length of the prayers.

Answer—Like millions of other unfortunates you evidently never have learned the taste of real coffee. Boiling for even a minute turns it into witch's broth. It would take vigorous singing and long hard praying to counteract the effect of the horrible stuff drank on those evenings in the personage. Better—no, it may drive you melancholy now—but young folks who are still susceptible to teaching had better send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope for the red book, What to Eat and Why. It contains a chapter on how to make coffee and win friends.

Tuberculosis

Wuold it be harmful in any way for one who has tuberculosis to take iodine? (A. D. R.)

Answer—One with tuberculosis should take or do nothing without the direction and supervision of his or her physician.

Speaking of Titles

(Ottawa Journal)

Some of the newspapers have been wondering whether in his new post George Drew should be called "Honorable" or simply "Mr." The latter designation is correct.

All this sort of thing is laid down in official orders that are summarized in the Parliamentary Guide. Lieutenant Governors are entitled to the designation "Honorable' for life, and so are all privy councillors of Canada, which means all who are or have been members of the Federal cabinet.

Speakers of the Commons and Senate and judges of the Supreme Court of Canada and of provincial supreme and appeal courts are called "Honorable" while in office, with the provision in their cases that on retirement they can be "personally recommended by the Governor General of His Majesty's permission to retain the title of 'Honorable'".

That provision does not apply to senators, or to the speakers of the legislatures, or to provincial premiers and cabinet ministers, all of whom are called "Honorable" while in office but who do not carry the title with them into retirement. Thus George Drew is plain Mr. Drew since he resigned as premier of Ontario, and John Bracken is Mr. Bracken despite a score of years as premier of Manitoba and other years as leader of His Majesty's Opposition in Parliament. Opposition leaders as such have no mention in this table of titles.

But "Mr." in itself is an honorable title and Mr. Drew will be very content with it until events qualify him for something else.

WEDDINGS

BLAIR—HALE

Knox Presbyterian Church in Sudbury, was the scene of a pretty late Autumn wedding when Helen Isobel Hale, became the bride of Billy James Blair, of Toronto. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hale, of 288 Cedar Street, Trenton. The couple spoke their vows before Rev. James S. Roe.

A profusion of fern and 'mums in Autumn tones decorated the church. Mrs. A. V. Taylor played the organ. Mrs. A. W. H. Taber, of Fort William, was soloist. She sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Given in marriage by her uncle C. R. King, of Markdale, the bride was lovely in her gown of heavy white bengaline, styled with fitted bodice and molded basque sweeping into a bouffant skirt. The scalloped neckline and long sleeves tapering to a point over the wrist, made interesting features of the gown. She wore a fingertip veil of tulled illusion, caught to her head with a halo of orange blossoms. She carried a cascade of mauve orchids, pink roses and white baby 'mums tied with white satin streamers.

Mrs. A. Scott, North Bay, was matron-of-honor. Miss Violet Strain of Sudbury, was bridesmaid. Mrs. Scott was charming in a gown of brocaded satin in a daffodil yellow shade, styled on bouffant lines. Miss Strain chose brocaded satin in a mist-mauve shade, fashioned on similar lines to the bride's gown. Both attendants wore matching accessories, and carried bouquets of roses and 'mums.

George Elson and W. Dixon ushered the guests to the pews, marked off with tulle bows. W. H. Blair, a brother of the groom was best man. The bride's parents were unable to attend the ceremony owing to illness.

A reception was held in the church hall with Mrs. E. Prust, of Ferris, a close friend of the bride's family, receiving the guests together with the groom's mother, Mrs. W. J. Blair. Mrs. Prust chose a grey crepe ensemble, with matching hat trimmed with ostrich plumes. She wore a spray of roses. Mrs. Blair was smart in a two-piece blue crepe ensemble with black felt hat and plume. She wore a corsage of red roses. Mrs. D. Butchard poured tea. The bride's table was handsome with fine linens, silver and crystal. A three-tiered cake was based with a frothing of tulle.

Mrs. T. Dixon, Miss Shirley Alstrop, Miss Marie Kennedy, Miss Teresa Hickey, Miss Joyce Buchan, Mrs. Phil Pocock, Miss Marie Aubin, Miss W. Fowler served the guests. Mrs. G. Langlois was tearoom hostess.

Other assistants at the reception were Mrs. H. MacInnes, in charge of the guest book and Mrs. S. Humphrey and Miss Thelma Martin, who assisted in receiving.

The couple left by car for a motor trip through Southern Ontario. For travelling, Mrs. Blair chose a blue boucle suit, with pink topcoat and black velvet hat with pink ostrich plume. The couple will reside in Toronto.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Blair, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. C. Reid, of Campbellford; Miss Mary Carefoot, of Markdale; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Blair, of Toronto; C. R. King, of Markdale; Mr. and Mrs. H. Bird of Galt; Mrs. E. Prust, of Ferris; Mrs. A. W. H. Taber of Fort William; Mr. and Mrs. F. Hale, of Feversham; Ronald Elson of Dalhousie, N.B., and others.

Among the many friends entertaining for the bride prior to her marriage were Mrs. C. Langlois and Mrs. D. L. Brown, a tea and presentation of dinner service; Mrs. P. Pocock, Mrs. F. Lefebvre, a linen shower; Miss Thelma Martin and Mrs. L. Martin, a miscellaneous shower; Miss Shirley Alstrop and Miss Teresa Hickey, a kitchen shower; Miss V. Strain and Mrs. A. Scott, a reception and presentation of a pair of lamps.—Sudbury Star.

SHEPPHARD—LAZIER

Bridge Street United Church was the scene of a pretty but quiet wedding on Saturday, November 6, at 3 o'clock, when Erma Nora Lazier, Reg.N., Belleville, daughter of Mrs. A. L. Lazier and the late Mr. Lazier, was united in marriage to Stanley William Sheppbard, Montreal, Que., son of Mr. E. W. Sheppbard and the late Mrs. Sheppbard. Dr. B. Howard officiated.

The church was decorated with ferns and bronze and yellow 'mums, and made a lovely background for the ceremony.

Mr. Alec Gordon presided at the console of the organ, and during the signing of the register Miss Barbara Joan Houston rendered the solo "Bless This House."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. J. A. Lazier, wore a street length dress of turquoise blue, with black accessories and wore a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

Miss Gertrude Lazier, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, wearing a grey street length dress with grey accessories and wearing a corsage of white baby 'mums.

Mr. Edwin Sheppbard, Montreal, was groomsman and Mr. Allan Lazier, brother of the bride, was usher.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. The rooms were tastefully decorated with yellow and white 'mums. Mrs. Lazier, wearing a blue gown with wine accessories, and corsage of red roses, assisted by the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Roy Comrie, wearing a gown of printed silk with black accessories and corsage of Bettertime roses, received the guests.

The happy couple left for Toronto, the bride wearing grey with red accessories and corsage of red roses, and upon their return will reside at 4354 Wilson Ave., Montreal, Que.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Sheppbard, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Comrie, Montreal; and Mrs. Emma Tugnet, Toronto.

Delectable Home Cooking, Attractive Handicraft Feature C.W.L. Bazaar

Mild weather and sunshine made Tuesday afternoon ideal for the successful bazaar and tea, held under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League in the auditorium of St. Michael's Academy. The auditorium with its lofty vastness, softly-glowing, prismatic chandeliers, seven-branched candle holder with its ivory candles, and the fairy-like booths ranged round the one side and end, the long, tea room part on the other side, made one feel like Alice in Wonderland, so lovely it was.

Through the long, lower hall, up the stairs, through the short hall, and then to be greeted by the president, Miss M. McAvoy, and her assistant, Mrs. K. M. Doyle, who was also general convener of the entire bazaar, and next by the treasurer, Mrs. James N. Boyd. Here, too, was the long, white table, with its loops of delicate green, with bows of green at the corners, and on the top, practically every kind of cake human ingenuity could evolve; white cakes, dark, chocolate-coated, butter cakes; date squares, tiny oat-meal cookies that would melt in the mouth (and did); apple pies, cream pies, lemon pies with fluffy, cloud-like meringues, little fairy-like hermits, and nut drops. Over this delectable exhibit presided Mrs. P. Flynn, Mrs. A. W. Hunter and Mrs. J. J. Trudeau who were constantly busy wrapping and passing out the dainty edibles.

Across from the home cooking table was displayed a beautiful hand-made quilt in some design of grandmother's day, in yellow on a mauve background, with a double, two-inch border of yellow and green, and all finely quilted; a quilt anyone would be proud to own. It was to go to the holder of the 'draw' ticket and was in charge of Mrs. Anton.

Lovely Collection

Keeping to the left, next in order was the booth of handicraft and fancy work. This booth was decorated in pink and blue, and on the upper posts were rosettes of white pink with centres of black. White and blue crossed each other on the front in the form of a flag of unknown nationality. And here was a collection of the loveliest things imaginable; little doilies, little hot-dish holders crocheted to look like little daisies, with petals of white edged with blue; and there were some edged with red. (What bride wouldn't be delighted with these!) There were mitts of white, of red, of blue, of brown, and of green. Hand woven hoods of white, and pink, and blue; a woven scarf in autumn tints, and on the wall behind, a baby bib with pink satin ribbon around the edges, waiting to go under some little, adorable chin; a beautiful frilled, crocketed dolly, and another done in the pineapple pattern with ecru cotton, a fine piece of workmanship, indeed; oven mitts, toques in several shades; a pink crocheted teddy-bear sat upon his haunches watching with unblinking eyes the busy throng; then there were several pairs of diamond knit socks, knitting cases with transferred rose designs on the lids; wooden knife-holders in blue enamel; towels with inches deep of tatted borders; embroidered tea cloths, and a brown, china three-limbed tree-stump upon which a gaudy-colored flicker was pecking away, fruitlessly. Mrs. T. Fluery, Mrs. E. Lally, Mrs L. Shiels and Mrs. W. Allore were the conveners of this booth

Wealth of Jams, Sauces

In purple and gold the booth of jams, jellies, pickles, relishes catsup, canned peaches, and canned tomatoes shone forth, enticing eager buyers. Over this Mrs. C. Murphy, Mrs. V. Carrol and Mrs. A. Dustin kept vigil.

The handkerchief booth was convened by Mrs. A. Whalen, Mrs. D. Beaton and Mrs. F. Winns, and was "a thing of beauty and a joy forever", with its array of dainty handkerchiefs.

There were hankies of every size, shape and of several hues. Some with tatted borders; some with crocheted edges, some with hand-painted rose borders. White handkerchiefs, with drawn-work; white tailored initialled ones, and there was a box of opalescent handkerchiefs with tatted edges in delicate blue and palest yellow and thin as gossamer. Handkerchiefs ran up the posts of the booth and across the top; lacy ones, frilly ones and one with blue violets forming the edge, mingled with the bands of turquoise and white which wound round and round the posts and across the front.

The "Garden of Dreams" came nexxt. Beyond a white, picketed fence, through the open, double gates, was seen a lovely garden of three terraces, on which were growing, beyond the balsam trees, blue African violets, pink begonias, baby's tears and tiny rubber plants. Outside the gates on one side was a rock garden with its red-leafed foliages, Jerusalem cherry tree, begonias, and little snow-on-the-mountain.

Sylvan Scene

On the opposite side could be seen through the tiny, pine trees a pool, crystal clear, upon whose glassy surface floated a flock of yellow ducks. Mrs. F. Deacon, Mrs. B. Haines, and Mrs. E. G. Hopkins were the conveners of this, each willing to explain the kind of flora exhibited.

The apron booth was almost hidden behind its bowers of evergreens. Here were aprons cascading from the walls behind, aprons on lines, and aprons of every kind of material, some prints with roses sprinkled throughout, some plain white broadcloth, one especially attractive with its border of narrow stripes of green, black, brown, grey and rose, which formed the pocket, the bottom border, and the ends of the ties. A big, brown teddy bear stood guard, with his red nose, red ears and mouth. A new species of bear, no doubt, but still, a bear. Here and there a black rabbit with pink ears was standing up on his hind legs, looking eagerly over the aprons in search of Farmer Brown's cabbage patch. In charge of this delightful booth were Mrs. L. Callaghan, Mrs. V. McIntyre, Mrs. G. O'Brien and Mrs. Frawley.

Christmas Setting

The candy booth must have been done by Santa Claus himself, for there behind the booth was the red-brick chimney, and right in front, as plain as plain could be, were Santa's red boots with the white fur tops, and across the front of the booth he twined silver-tinsel ropes, and hung a valance with pictures of himself. There were little cups full of chocolate fudge and tempting maple creams, and mints of palest pink, green and yellow. Boxes of all sizes were also full, as were the boxes of all mixtures. Here and there delicious lumps of divinity fudge. Over this presided Mrs. C. Young, Mrs. T. Morrell, and Mrs. J. Vinkle.

Across the auditorium in lonely splendor upon a white covered table, stood the most beautiful Christmas cake, three tiered, each tier edged with tiny pink rose-buds, joined together by tiny white ropes, and surmounted with a miniature Christmas tree. This cake was to go the way of the lucky 'draw,' and was in charge of Mrs. J. Gallagher.

A tiny crocheted chesterfield suite donated by Mrs. O'Connor complete in every detail which would delight some little girl's heart in the not too distant future, was to go by way of the 'draw' method also. The life-size baby doll was winsome in her dress of snowy-white with bows of blue. Mrs. O'Connor, and Mrs. J. Wims were the conveners of these respectively.

Tea Room Attractive

The tea room, which comprised about one-fifth of the auditorium, was regal in its furnishings; the long table, with its red-bordered, Christmas cloth of miniature Santas, its silver basket of snow-white baby 'mums with blood-red carnations, flanked by three-branched candle holders with one green, and two red candles; the lovely tea services at either end made December the 25th seem just around the corner. Mrs. Williams and Miss Margaret Hayes poured tea from 2:30 to 3:30, while Mrs. P.J. Lynch and Mrs. M. Fitzpatrick poured from 3:30 to 5:00 p. m.

In charge of the tea room were, Mrs. F. Cushing, Mrs. M. Hudon, and Mrs. G. Donohue, who capably supplied the needs of the many visitors and patrons seated in the form of a large ellipse around the tea table. Mrs. B. J. Flagler, Mrs. F. R. Ross, Mrs. C. Murdoch and Mrs. Leo Quinn served during the afternoon and during the evening, Mrs. Wilkinson and Mrs. Kennedy. Those who were making tea and replenishing the plates with dainty cakes, and sandwiches were Mrs. M. C. McDougall and Mrs. R. Holland. The oft-emptied cups were refilled by Mrs. R. Mohen and Mrs. J. McHugh looked after charming tea, typifying what untiring patience and hopeful vision coupled with talent can accomplish.

Hospital Auxiliary Makes Plans For Christmas Dance

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary held their November meeting, Tuesday, at the nurse's residence. Mrs. Gilbert Scott, president, presided.

Mrs. R. Bird, convener for the Christmas dance, Dec. 27, at Albert College, said that an orchestra had been engaged, and that a decoration committee is making elaborate plans to make the affair a festive one. Ticket selling was stressed as expenses are heavier this year than last. The Junior Hospital Auxiliary is holding a tea and baking sale at the home of Mrs. T. Follwell next month and members are urged to attend along with their friends.

Mrs. W. C. Mikel and delegates, Miss Ivy Dickens and Mrs. Howard Graham gave reports of The Ontario Hospital Aids convention which was held at the Royal York Hotel, Nov. 1, 2 and 3. The meeting was then adjourned and tea served by Mrs. MacDonald.

For Least Waste Cook Bacon And Sausage Slowly

For the best flavor, the tenderest texture and the least waste, keep the heat slow and steady when cooking bacon and sausage. This advice comes from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which reports that these meats may be cooked in this way without drying hardening or scorching.

The department's home economists say that bacon may be pan-fried or broiled, as desired, but the heat always should be kept low. Link sausage and sausage patties may be pan-fried or oven-cooked. Take care not to prick the links when turning them with a fork because this lets out juice and flavor. To pan-fry links, place them in a frying pan with a few tablespoons of water, cover and steam for five minutes. Then remove the cover and cook over low heat, turning frequently until the sausage is brown and any water in the pan has cooked away.

To pan-fry patties, place in a cold frying pan and cook over low heat until done through and brown both sides.

Capes Stealing Fashion Spotlight At Winter Fair

Toronto, Nov. 17. (CP)—Capes are stealing the fashion spotlight at the International Wool Secretariat's Style Show at the Royal Winter Fair. And the fashion-wise say the cape may supply the third piece in the Spring suit ensemble.

Novel cape drapings on suits, coats and dresses are featured in the show, designed to show the versatility of wool. At the opening Tuesday a ballet skit introduced woollen costumes fashioned in weights appropriate to all seasons.

But the capes stole the show. Some were long, some short, others just supplying back interest. A moderated version showed a cape draped into a collar-effect.

A splash of colored lining was added to the detachable cape, but more often the lining matched the skirt with a double-breasted jacket and outside cape in another shade of the same color.

Most interesting of the cape designs was a grey worsted gabardine suit which gave the effect of a wing-cape slung over the shoulders. Closer examination showed it to be a one-piece jacket with tailored front and a broad half-circle of material falling from a yoked-back. The cape could either be buttoned at the wrist to form arms or let swing into a graceful fold over the shoulder.

About half the coats shown still had the flared back, but in the fitted ones the princess line particularly the mental health of the nation, are concerned.

Marilyn Ruth Take Captures Audience With Her Skating

New York, Nov. 17. (CP) — First-night audiences in New York City are traditionally "cold". But just such an audience did an about-face Tuesday night when they saw pretty Marilyn Ruth Take skate.

The 20-year-old charmer from Toronto made her first local professional figure-skating appearance and captivated a packed house at huge Madison Square Gardens. Her flashing smile and rhythmic ice ability were featured in a colorful production number of the Ice Follies show which opened Tuesday.

A former Canadian Senior champion in her chosen field and a member of Canada's Winter Olympics team last year, Miss Take joined the ice show late this Summer in California. Weeks of hard practice followed by try-out shows on the west coast and in Chicago were climaxed with her debut in "the big city".

Wearing an eye-catching gypsy costume, the brunette Canadian highlighted a full-cast production of a mardi gras celebration. The exacting patterns of a gypsy dance were woven into a breath-taking skating routine which brought rounds of applause from the audience.

But facing a critical audience was not as exacting as Olympic competition, Marilyn said afterward.

"Somehow I don't feel this is work," she confided. "Perhaps it's because I've worked hard for the last 11 years at constant practice, but the show is fun—not work."

GOOD MANNERS

Your Christmas Cards . . . What Form of Name on Them?

You are about to order your Christmas cards? You want to have your name imprinted on them? Are you positive you know what form of your name to order?

I can't emphasize too strongly that before you go to order your Christmas cards, you should know just what form of name you should order. Because, unfortunately, it's true that when you arrive at the store where you are going to order your cards, you won't be able to get any authoritative help or advice about the correct name-form you should order. You'll be shown various books of sample cards. . .expensive, inexpensive, elaborate and simple . . . but please don't think that because you see a certain form of name imprinted on the sample card you choose, that you must follow that particular form for your name. Unfortunately, you'll see hundreds of sample cards on which the names are not in correct form. As a matter of fact, the majority of them show, incorrectly, the formal name (Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, for example) imprinted after the message. The salesgirl will expect you to know what's what, will expect you to know what you want, and she'll be too busy to make up your mind for you.

Now, here's the easy-to-remember rule that you should know: If the name appears before the message, the formal name should be used (title before the name). But when (as is far more usual) the name is to be imprinted after the message, the informal name (first name, surname, no title) should be used.

Let's figure out the reason for this rule. If the message is formally worded (that is, in the third person, as it is used on a formal invitation or announcement) naturally the formal name should be used. Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. John Holiday wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

But the name at the end of a message, like the name at the end of a letter, is a signature. And, to be correct, a signature is the informal name, no title before the name. For example:

All good wishes for Christmas and the New Year
Mary and John Holiday

Now, think. . .if you order your formal name imprinted after the message (as alas, so many, many people do—thoughtlessly carelessly, incorrectly) you will, as you can see, be combining an informal message with your formal name. Also you will be sending "Mr. and Mrs." cards to friends who call you and your husband "Mary and John", or "Mrs." cards to friends who call you "Katherine", or "Miss" cards to friends who call you "Joan". This doesn't make sense, does it?

Certainly, the trend today is definitely away from sending formal Christmas greetings, and toward the warm, personal, informal greetings we like to have represent us. And if, as is probably true, you want your Christmas cards to achieve this friendly personality, choose cards with an informal message printed on them, and have your informal name imprinted underneath the message.

And when the informal names of a married couple are imprinted on Christmas cards, the wife's name comes first . . . Mary and John Holiday.

Instead of using the first names for a husband-and-wife card, you might like to choose the increasingly popular form for informal cards. . ."The Holidays". When children's greetings are included, this is a friendly form: "The Holidays. . . John, Mary, Tommy and Joan." (When children's names are included in the greetings, the father's name comes first.)

A basic dress, set off by pretty jewelry and a becoming hat, is always in good taste says Movie Star Martha Hyer

By HELEN FOLLETT

By now, you have selected your winter wardrobe. But, if you are like most of us, and still have a few more purchases to make, you may be about to fare forth, take a peek at new offerings, wondering just what's the best buy for you during this year when fashion offers many pitfalls.

You have to know what you can and what you cannot wear. You must check your figure type; there are more different kinds of feminine shapes than one can believe possible. That does not mean that only the slender figure of perfect measurements is attractive to the eye. There are bound to be faults. Most of them can be corrected by means of exercise. But exercise does not appeal to the majority, alas. Hence the need of finding clothes that soft pedal the poor points, play up the good ones.

Corsetieres say that a general division can be made; the short waisted and the long waisted. The long waisted girl can make her legs look longer by wearing straight, long skirts, having the belt slightly lifted. If one is short waisted, one must be careful not to have much fullness at the back of the bodice; a style that prevails at the present moment.

The short waisted, full busted type makes a grave mistake when she wears a dirndl, for instance, because it adds to the general appearance of bulk.

The well-dressed women isn't always the one who has wads of money to fling for expensive dry goods. Rather she is the smartie who, during all the years, has learned something about the art of dress, who has studied lines, knows precisely what is most becoming to the face as well as the figure.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Girl Who Hates Her Mother

"This will probably be the most shocking letter you have ever received or ever will receive in the future," begins a communication that has just reached my desk.

The letter was written by a girl who says she is "going on fifteen" and the reason she thinks her letter is so shocking is because she says flatly that she hates her mother.

"It all started about a year ago," she writes, "when I discovered my mother was lying to me. Now I find I can't believe anything she says because I found out that so many of the things she tells me are lies.

"Last Summer I thought that if I went away to camp, I would forget my hatred for my mother but she would not let me go away. She did let me go to visit a friend from my church over a weekend, and I though perhaps I would be so homesick that I'd love my mother when I got back but I was wrong. It was like heaven being away from her. When I got back, I hated her even more, because she showed no love toward me and while I was away, the lady I visited did show love to me.

"I have an older sister and a brother. My brother is my mother's pet, but he is in the Army so my older sister gets all the attention. She works, but still my mother buys her clothes but never buys me any. I always have to wear my sister's old clothes. My mother never gives me any money, so now I take it from her without her knowing.

"I'll do anything you say."

Sad as it is to have to say this, the first thing I must tell this pitiful child is that she might be surprised if she knew how many letters I get from girls of her age who also say they hate their mothers. Sometimes the trouble is with the girl herself, who is spoiled and selfish and develops a grudge toward her mother if she doesn't get everything she wants. Unfortunately, however, in many other cases I am afraid the situation is definitely the mother's fault, and very often because she favors one child more than another. As a result, the child who gets the least love feels rejected, and the only way she can fight back is to hate her mother.

That is, of course, what has happened with this girl who writes me. The mother favors the two older children and ignores this younger one. If her mother would, as the child puts it, "show love toward her", it would certainly be a beginning toward straightening things out. As it is, they seem to be going from bad to worse, with the child taking money from the mother's purse because she cannot get any in a legitimate way.

As for the "lies" of which the daughter accuses her mother, one would have to know a good deal more about this angle of the case before passing judgment. But the impression I get of the mother in the letter leads me to believe it quite possible that she is not a person who could always be trusted.

The solution of this problem would have to begin with the mother. But unless some one can get to her, and wake her up to a realization of the havoc she is creating in her child's life, it seems hopeless to look for improvement from that direction.

As for the child herself, about all she can do at this time is to try as hard as possible to do and say only the things she knows to be right, so that she will grow up to be a trustworthy person herself in spite of her present handicaps. She will not help herself a bit, but may only make things harder, by such actions as stealing money from her mother, a practice which I hope very much she will stop.

Perhaps there is some older person in whom she could confide—a teacher at school, some one in the church she mentions, or maybe the friend she spent the weekend with during the Summer. I hope that she will think over the possible people to whom she might go and discuss her problem, for there must be some one in her own community who could be of help to her. If she would care to write me again, giving me her name and an address to which I could send her a personal letter, I will try to aid her in finding that person, if she cannot think of anyone herself.

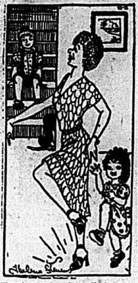
BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Slenderizing the Legs

Oh! for those wonderful, bydone days when it was considered terrible and immodest to display even an ankle! So thinks the woman who has taken on weight, whose shanks have expanded beyond decent proportions. When grandma was a girl, legs were no beauty problem. They were encased in black stockings, and the little feet were packed into high button shoes. Her dresses touched the ground. What would the demure young ladies of those days think if they could see our pretty girls in bathing suits? It is to shudder!

Miracles are performed in reducing salons in the way of figure remodeling. If the cash-customer has any bumps that she would have deleted, they are bumped off. And bump is the word for it. By means of heavy massage and various mechanical contrivances, adipose tissue is sent into a state of dissolution.



Hopping makes fat cells hopping mad!

But few women have the time or the money for these good-looks diversions. Fat cells cannot be annihilated in a few treatments. They have been a long time coming. They are pretty solid substance. They offer resistance.

If the victim of bulky legs will put her mind to it, be determined to get down to normal measurements, she can do it.

Before starting on this project, take measurements of the ankle, the calf and the thigh at the midsection—that is, between the knee and the hip. When you find even a quarter of an inch deleted, you will know that you are on your way.

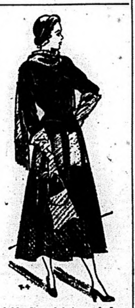
Do you remember when you were a little girl and played hop scotch? That's what you are going to do now. You don't have to make chalk marks on the sidewalk as you did in the carefree days of your childhood. Just hop on one foot when the fancy seizes you. Six hops on the right, six on the left and repeat.

Do you think that's easy? Try it. Maybe you'll do three hops without coming down on the other foot, but you won't be able to do six at first, not unless you are in your early twenties and have not much excess weight to lift.

The purpose is to so strengthen the leg muscles that fat cells will be weakened. Walking won't do it, unless you go at a brisk clip and cover miles. But hopping! That makes fat cells hopping mad!

Try running while standing still. Lift your legs high. Faster and faster! Stretch the backbone to the limit. Hands on the hips. Be quick and nimble. The heels should touch the buttocks. If you can keep on your tiptoes, that will be even better.

Massage will reduce calves and ankles if it is heavy enough. But the results are slow. Exercise is quicker.



A blending of Autumn shades

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

HERE IS A VERY unusual suit that is very much of the moment. It is done in three-tone tweed, starting off with dark brown for the jacket, with the skirt in terra cotta, tan and deeper brown. The jacket is very short and buttons snugly to hug the figure, and has two curved flap pockets. The skirt has unpressed box-pleats that flare gently from a wide waistband. Worn with the suit is a long fringed scarf in the terra cotta tone.

Fashion Flashes

NEW TWOSOME is that of a gray flannel with ermine. An expensive suit of gray flannel has a collar of the snowy fur, and matching bands on the sleeves. An expensive junior suit of gray flannel has a bunch of ermine tails at the Peter Pan collar.

A NICE VERSION of the fur trimmed suit uses fur for the lining as well. Gray wool covert is used for a suit that has a slim skirt to contrast with the below-the-waist jacket that is cut with dolman sleeves and a flaring, butterfly back. Lining is of American broadtail lamb which also describes a diminutive shawl collar.

POINT UP color with another strong color for drama. At a recent showing there was applause for a pretty, strapless evening frock of emerald green faille highlighted by a drawstring bag of red taffeta and matching bright red lace mitts.

SOMETHING NEW indeed for the bridal costume is provided by Molyneux. He makes a bridal gown of white silk faille and with it is a snug basque jacket edged with ermine. The fur is used for a cap headdress from which there descends a short veil. A spray of white orchids for the tiny ermine muff completes a novel wedding costume.

FIRST PRIZE for fur coat beauty might well go to an exquisite, full-length fitted coat of black Russian broadtail, that most supple and velvety of furs. It has a wide shawl collar and cuffs of mink, and there are inverted pleats in the full, flaring skirt.

STILL AROUND and doing very nicely is the faille suit. Black faille is used for a handsome, softly tailored afternoon suit. The jacket, which has a narrow, waistlength collar, slanted flaps for the pockets, and jeweled buttons, is lined in striped black and white satin.

Protection in force

Now in its 67th year, North American Life has more than half a billion dollars of life insurance and pension policies in force.

Each of the 170,000 policies which make up this large amount of protection represents an investment in future security by a family or an individual. Every policyowner may not fully comprehend the broad beneficial effect of $500,000,000 protection on the future welfare of our country. But each one knows that his own position is made more secure because he belongs to the large family of North American Life policyowners. Many thousands of families have already benefited from their North American Life policies which have become payable, for the Company has paid more than $150,000,000 in benefits since it was established in 1881.

North American Life is a Mutual Company, operated solely for the policyowners, and the large volume of protection in force is, we think an evidence of the good service and the competent advice given by the Company's sales representatives and employees. The Company welcomes the continued patronage of its policyowners and of prospective clients.

'Blondie' at Top in Cartoons

Blondie, a "first" in the Continuing Study of Newspaper Readership for seven years, has become an important lady since she married Dagwood Bumstead in 1933, says a writer in Editor and Publisher. She is now syndicated in more than 1,200 newspapers in 34 countries and speaks 19 languages.

She brought to her creator, Chic Young of King Features Syndicate the silver lady of the Banshees—comparable to the movie industry's Oscar—presented at a luncheon at New York's Waldorf-Astoria recently. Almost a thousand editors, writers and publishers attended.

In Atom Project

Her family was chosen by Maj.-Gen. Leslie R. Groves, commanding the Manhattan Project, to teach the theory of atomic energy to the public at the recent New York City Golden Jubilee exhibit.

During the war Blondie followed American troops into the territories of the defeated nations and is now one of Uncle Sam's ambassadors of good will. But, because she is such an exponent of the democratic way of life and illustrates a high standard of living, the Soviets won't let her go behind the "Iron Curtain."

Besides her duties as a chief comic-strip character, Blondie has become a big industry. Millions of Blondie comic books are sold annually. The Bumstead family is the subject of a fairly successful novel, of a radio program, and a series of B movies. More than 40 items of small merchandise are tagged with the Bumstead family names, including those of the dogs.

Day by Day

Blondie is the only one of the major strips operated without a continuity. The Blondie cartoons are strictly daily gags, but so clean and universal in appeal that she is read and enjoyed as much in other countries as in the U.S.

To maintain this universal appeal, Cartoonist Young abides by a strict code of taboos—no racial, religious, or class jokes. Bumsteads do not smoke, except for Dagwood's rare fumbling with a pipe. Politics, liquor, saloons or radios are taboo, and refrigerators must not look like either Kelvinators or old ice-boxes. Women are always pictured as serene and feminine; Blondie is never shrewish or frustrated.

She appreciates Dagwood as a husband, while realizing he is somewhat of a clown. Children are never referred to as "kids," and sex is not used as an advertisement.

Domestic Furniture

Young insists that his happily married couple sleep in a double bed, despite some readers' desire to see them go modern with twin beds.

The gags come straight out of Chic Young's own life. He is a more intelligent Dagwood than his strip character, but is as often found on the couch or making midnight sandwiches, or in the bathtub when the phone rings as Dagwood. Young was, himself, a mail carrier, hence his sympathetic feeling for the carrier in his strip.

Sad faced, balding, easy going, 48-year-old Young is shy, modest and very much a family man, but an extremely good business head, with an annual income well up in six figures. Unlike most syndicated artists, he owns the strip. K.F.S. periodically reigns the

St. Peter's Church Marks 95th Anniversary

Madoc — Large congregations marked the 95th anniversary of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, when the Rev. T. G. Marshall, of Westminster Church, Hamilton, a former minister of the congregation was the guest preacher. Trinity United Church joined in the evening service, their minister the Rev. A. Poulter assisting.

Special music under the direction of Stanley Hawthorne, A.T.C.M., organist and choir leader added to the services of the day. In the morning the choir sang "Savior, Pilot Me," by Siegel, and Mr. Gordon Strader guest soloist sang "Open the Gates of The Temple," while at the evening service Mr. Stanley Hawthorne sang "The Stranger of Galilee" with Mrs. Leslie Ashley organist of Trinity United Church accompanying him on the pipe organ. The anthem by the church choir was "Out of the Storm" by Benson.

Rev. T. G. Marshall spoke on "The Church and Worship," pointing out that the church was the oldest most widespread, and most beneficial organization in the world, giving ideals and inspiration to men for this life and in the end hope for life eternal.

The evening subject was "The Meaning of Cross-bearing." The preacher pointed out that "our crosses were not the misfortunes that come to us, but rather the sacrifices we make and the willing services we render in following Christ."

History of Congregation

The minister of St. Peter's the Rev. M. W. Heslip gave a brief account of the Presbyterian Church in the community. The first Communion Service was conducted by the Rev. William Gregg of Belleville, afterwards Prof. Gregg of Knox College, one hundred years ago, in September 1848. The minister was the Rev. J. W. Chestnut, who was ordained and inducted as minister March 10th., 1853. Wm. Allen Sr., Robert Cooper, and Wm. Campbell were ordained as the first elders at the same service. Four years later, Mr. David Wishart, graduate student, was ordained and inducted. For his entire ministry, almost forty years, he labored in St. Peter's. It was he who laid the foundation of the Presbyterian work in Centre and North Hastings. His Parish included St. Paul's; St. Columba and St. John's; Huntingdon.

The first church was built in 1854; this was burned in 1873. In 1881 the new stone church was opened for worship. It, too suffered from fire in 1895, but was restored as it now stands in the same year. In 1927 the lighted clock was placed in the tower as a memorial to Dr. and Mrs. Wishart and the pioneers. Chimes are being installed in the tower as a memorial to the soldiers of the two Great Wars.

One of the pleasing features of the day was the presence of many former members, and also the Rev. H. C. and Mrs. Graham of Belleville, minister from 1907 to 1914. The Rev. Mr. Graham closed the morning service with the benediction.

WATERY SOVEREIGNTY

Wellington, N. Z. — (CP) — Prime Minister Walter Nash claims that probably no sovereign power in the world has a greater length of sovereignty from north to south than New Zealand. Mr. Nash said that New Zealand extended from the Equator to the South Pole, "but," he added, "it is mostly water."

Beaver Colony Aids Engineers

Ottawa, Nov. 17—The beaver—not the dog—is man's best friend according to Army engineers stationed at Fort Churchill, Man.

And they should know. They arrived recently at Farnsworth Lake, a former seaplane base ten miles southeast of their winter testing station with orders to construct a dam and raise the water level in the lake so that it would be safe for seaplane landings.

But a beaver colony beat them to the punch. The soldiers arrived on the scene to find construction of the dam almost complete and the water level considerably higher than reported.

In return for services rendered, the soldiers plan to adopt the beaver colony and protect them from any itinerant trapper. All indications now point to a happy—and safe—life for the Army's latest in engineer 'detachments."

Rockets Defeat Cobourg 7-1 While Trenton Downs Flyers 6-3 In Hockey Inaugural

Rip-roaring rugged hockey, shorn of the polish of mid-season or playoff calibre featured the inaugural games of the Belleville District Hockey League in Memorial Arena last night. One thousand fans braved the blackout to see the newest edition of the Belleville Hockey Juniors take the measure of the Cobourg Pavilions by a 7-1 count while a hard-checking Trenton Hockey Club downed their traditional rivals the Trenton RCAF Flyers by a 6-3 score.

Referee-in Chief Speedy St. Louis and his assisting linesman Bill O'Malley, Trenton and Bill Holway, Belleville, clamped down on the boys from the opening whistle with the result that 3-1 penalties were handed out in the twin feature with seventeen going to the first-game teams and the Trenton squads getting the remaining fourteen.

The oustanding performer of the night's play from a goal-getting point of View was Mac Watson, starry Trenton winger who scored eight hat tricks for his team last season. Watson fired home four of his team's six goals besides playing an outstanding game going both ways.

Rockets 7, Cobourg 1.

Bill Cook sent one of the biggest, heaviest hairiest junior "B" teams to come out of the city for some time against the gaily-caparisoned Cobourg Pavilions. Both teams in the first period played loose hockey with Cobourg drawing the first blood at the 7.20 mark to open the scoring. Play developed into a hard-checking fixture with both squads laying on the body and caring little how it was done. Joe Nolan got the gate early in the period and Bulger, Cobourg forward got the first goal of the season from Ashby's pass, when Wright fanned on a drifter along the ice. Juniors surged back to the attack but went off for roughing. Both teams missed from close in and finally Don Seamark broke away to beat Jones cleanly to tie the score.

Rockets rammed home three counters in second period from the sticks of Don Semark, Trussel and Bone. Juniors sinner thrice in this session with Hay, Brown and Schrieder getting the gate to one penalty to Cobourg.

Best in Third

The teams played the best hockey of the night in the third period, although Cobourg appeared to tire from the effort. Juniors hit the twine three times on goals from Hogan, Creeggan and Green. This period developed feeling between the squads and nine players, four Rockets and five Pavilions did sitting duty in the sin-bin.

Don Semark with two goals, Johnny Green, Nolan, and Hogan stood out for the Rockets although Jud Semark, and Creeggan with Bone turned in good efforts. Schrieder and Hay went well on the defence. Rockets used Art Wright in the nets for the first period and half the second with McKay scoring a shutout in his half of the chore. He was not however, bothered with too many hard shots.

Bulger, and the Cane brothers went well for Cobourg with Jones in goal standing out although seven goals were scored against him.

The teams: —

Belleville Rockets: Goal, Wright; defence, Schrieder, Nolan; centre, Trussel; wings, Don Semark, Green; subs, Hogan, Bone, Jud Semark, Hay, Barrett, Germaine, Creeggan, McKay.

Cobourg: Goal, Jones; defence, B. Cane, Forbes; centre, Bulger; wings, Haynes, Baker; subs, Hesson, Smith, Ashby, H. Cane, Stinson, Fisher, Kelly, Medhurst, Francis.

1. Cobourg—Bulger
(Ashby) 7.20
2. Rockets—D. Semark 13.06
Penalties: Nolan, Hay, Smith, Haynes.

2nd Period—

Officials: Referee, Speedy St. Louis; linesman, Bill O'Malley, Trenton.

Trenton Hockey Club 6 Trenton Flyers 3.

The clash between the old time hockey feudists saw the same type of rugged hockey with plenty of penalties handed out by officials St. Louis and Holway.

Paced by the potent stick of Mac Watson, the town club roared through to a 6-3 victory after Flyers had narrowed a two-goal first period lead to one at the end of the second heat. Trenton towners had definitely more finish around the net especially when Watson was in position. They checked going both ways and they were value for the three goal win on the night's play.

Watson fired home the first goal from twenty-feet out early in the first period and put his team two up at the eight minute mark on a pass from Schmidt.

The teams battled nip-and-tuck in the second period with Bridgeman in the Trenton nets making some fine stops from the desperate surging Flyer squad. Millar finally beat him on a neat solo effort after eight minutes had gone in the period. The teams divided four penalties in this session with the Flyers having an edge in territorial play.

As in the first game the teams played the best hockey in the third period with Watson flashing the red light after forty-five seconds had gone.

Performs Hat Trick

Provost and Bullock drew penalties and then McQuooster got the gate for hooking. Schmidt weaved in and about several attacking Flyers in his area and shot a long forward to Watson. The winger moved in and made no mistake for his hat-trick goal of the night.

Flyers flashed back savagely but they were weak around the Trenton nets while a stubborn red shirted defence threw them back time and again. Trenton flashed home two goals in quick succession from Bert Bastedo and McQuooster and at the thirteen minute mark Watson rammed home his fourth marker of the game.

Watson, the Bastedo brothers, McQuooster, with Skelcher being the outstanding player on the ice looked the best for Trenton while Miller, Middleton, Sargent Ault, Bullock and McLeod went well for the losers.

The Teams

Trenton RCAF— Goal, Kelly; defence, Sherman, McLeod; centre, Ault; wings, Millar, Brackenbury; subs; Middleton, Bullock, Gray, Christie, Lawlor, O'Meara, Sargent, Provost, Jackson, O'Connell, LaRochelle, Abel.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Belleville District Hockey League got off to an auspicious start last night in Memorial Arena when 1,000 fans saw a big potential powerful Belleville Rockets junior club defeat the Cobourg Pavilions 7-1 and the hard-checking potent squad from Trenton Town down their old rivals from the Trenton RCAF Station by a 6-3 count in a hectic night-cap.

The hockey was not exactly National Hockey League calibre, but it was rugged rip-roaring stuff that was crowd-pleasing to say the least. Generally speaking it was somewhat above the usual pre-season type of hockey and the boys were prone to rough matters a bit and consequently 31 paraded to the cooler during the twin bill. Referee Speedy St. Louis apparently wasn't fooling when he made the pre-game statement that his officials were going to clamp down hard at the start and nip any potential riots in the bud. The piccolos played a steady tune last night and were given no chance to freeze.

The ice was in excellent condition and the blackout appeared to cause little inconvenience to the crowd. Fifteen or twenty minutes after the lights flashed on some six hundred people were in the rink and this number steadily mounted after the first game got under way.

The Belleville Municipal Band was in attendance, and dispensed some sparkling melodies while the teams were getting the pre-game warm-ups. Opening ceremonies were conducted by Alderman Claude Tice, chairman of the Arena Commission, President Eddie Schrieder of the Belleville District Hockey League, and yours truly, his Man Friday from a secretarial point of view.

All-in-all the games last night augured well for the future of the league. When conditional wrinkles are ironed out and the teams get a few more practices and games under their collective belts, the calibre of hockey should rate with good Intermediate types, as we have seen it in these parts. Last night, the boys were prone to lay it on somewhat, and let the finer points of the game slide, but that fault will remedy itself.

The Cook-McNaught "crew-cut" Rockets showed plenty of potential strength in their clash with Cobourg although many of their plays did not get clicking until the third period. Individually they showed up well, but like the rest of the squads, the polish was lacking, but that doesn't mean to say it isn't there. Joe Nolan, is the most-improved player on the squad although he didn't get any goals. Don Semark showed plenty of effectiveness as did Johnny Green and Tommy Schrieder. Hay, a newcomer defenceman showed class but is prone to rough matters somewhat and as a result spent some time in the cooler. Jud Semark was also going well, while Trussel, another newcomer played rather consistent but far from flashy hockey. Art Wright in the nets has lost none of his effectiveness, while McKay, a newcomer goalie who worked the last part of the second, and third period showed lots of ability.

As a matter of fact, all the squad showed up well after the first few minutes with Bone and Hogan especially doing good service as did Barrett, Germaine and Creeggan. Rockets will definitely improve with practice and games. They are big, rugged, and should round out into one of the best junior "B" squads here in years.

But don't sell this Cobourg squad short. True they were defeated by a somewhat lopsided score last night, but that doesn't mean they were at their best. Rather the opposite. Plainly short on condition in the third period, the Haynes crew all dolled up in beautiful hockey creations which sport the colors of the "Galloping Ghosts" football squad of their home village, have plenty of hockey ability in their ranks. ranks. And they'll be heard from before the whistles toot finis to the league schedule. Their veterans have lost none of their speed and ability, but last night they were woefully weak in front of the nets. But watch 'em go after a game or so.

Jim McDonald's Trenton crew paced by the uncanny goal-getting wizardry of Mac Watson who fired home four tallies last night, also showed plenty of their old-time power. Watson's eye has lost none of its sharpshooting prowess and the guy is plain poison when he gets within range. Schmidt did not show up to his mid-season form of last year — but don't worry about him. He was content with his job behind the blueline last night and did little foraying up front.

Trenton has a former junior, Skelcher, who caught the eye of the fans last night. He was easily the fastest man out there, a fine stickhandler and a keen heavy checker. If this youngster's performance last night is a criterion, his mid-season ability should rate him a berth with any senior "B" outfit in this district. The Bastedo brothers were as effective as ever with Doug doing a fine job. Another newcomer to Trenton, McQuooster, by name, showed plenty of ability. When you're laying the long lettuce on the line, don't pass up this Trenton crew.

Flyers had a lot of the old familiar faces out there—the most of them veterans of last year's loop and that hectic OHA playoff series with Trenton. They showed plenty of the old zip, but apparently due to lack of practice, the old teamwork and finish was missing. They were prone to be weak around the opposing nets when the opportunity offered although Bridgeman staved off some dangerous attacks with some neat work. Ault, Miller, Christie, "Pop" Middleton, Nicky Sargent, Sherman, McLeod, Bullock, Brackenbury, Provost all are back again with some new faces. But don't worry about Flyers that setback last night may be the spark to the flame of latent ability. They'll be heard from.

Columnar orchids to Lieut. Col. Jack Cousins, commanding officer of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment RCA, and his officers. At a mess meeting last night these gentlemen unanimously decided to sponsor a Belleville midget hockey team which will be coached by Cy Barriage and managed by B. Strachan. This is the team that went to the Ontario finals last year, and were a credit to themselves, their sponsor and their city. Coach Barriage informed us that practice will start as soon as organization is complete. The team will enter a district midget group and go on into the Midget "A" OMHA playdowns. Again, hats off to the officers of the gunner regiment. You won't be sorry, we are sure. Your gesture is one to be commended—and emulated by other organizations in the city.

And we have an excellent authority—in fact one well-known public-minded citizen offered us $100 in coin of the realm—that sponsors are in the offing for the Belleville juveniles. Since the offer was made, it has been learned that two or three other citizens are willing to help the cause.

National Billiards generously donated "flat fifties" of cigarettes to the players scoring the opening goals in the games last night. These were won by Bulger, of Cobourg and Mac Watson of Trenton.

Comes Thursday night and three other teams swing into action, the fourth being Cobourg which is scheduled for two games this week. The CNR Diesels make their seasonal debut against Walt Gerow's Napanee Legion squad while the newly-born Northern Electric crew will face the Cobourg Pavilions in the night-cap. Should be another brace of exciting hockey tilts.

Harry Hurst Will Be Paid Purse By Commission

(By The Canadian Press)

Harry Hurst, Montreal Boxer will receive his purse from his Toronto fight Monday night with Pete Zaduk of Toronto, formerly of Guelph, but the Ontario Athletic Commission plans disciplinary action against Hurst's manager, Maurice Foreman.

Hurst was automatically disqualified in the third round of a scheduled 10-rounder when Foreman threw in the towel and climbed into the ring after it.

Foreman's plea for jumping into the ring was that his boy had been injured by the first punch (one that floored him) and that Hurst came out of it by instinct and might have been seriously injured had the bout progressed further.

Con Smythe was re-elected president and general manager of Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens at a meeting of the shareholders Tuesday.

Also re-elected were: Vice-Presidents George McCullagh and J. Y. Murdock; W. A. H. MacBrien, chairman of the board, and J. P. Bickell and E. W. Bickle as members of the committee.

There was only one change on the 21 man board of directors. Larkin Maloney replaced Alfred Rogers.

Johnny Quilty, who suffered a broken leg last January and has been unable to get going since, returned to his Ottawa home Tuesday and the Boston Bruins placed his name on the National Hockey League's retired list. He is a forward.

J. H. Ross, acting chairman of the National Council on physical fitness, has started a Canada wide tour to stimulate cooperation among national sports organizations, council officials in Calgary said Tuesday.

Mr. Ross recently sent an invitation to all major sport organizations in Canada to send representatives to a sports meeting at Ottawa Jan. 7. The meeting was called to give the organizations an opportunity to discuss problems associated with joint sports efforts and also to explore the possibility of further co-operation in promoting greater fitness through more participation in sports.

Heavyweight contender Lee Savold said in Halifax Tuesday that if he wins his next fight against Bruce Woodcock in London, Dec. 6, "I'll be fighting Joe Louis in June." The 30-year-old Savold said he thought he could win both encounters.

His manager, Bill Daly, said: "Lee will beat Woodcock, alright. If by some chance he doesn't, we will go in for the movie business."

Al Todd, 44-year-old former big league catcher and one-time player with Toronto of the International League, has been signed as manager of the Southern Association Memphis Chicks, Frank Longinotti, club vice-president, said Tuesday.

He succeeds Jack Onslow, who moved up to the American League to take over the Chicago White Sox.

James Honochick, umpire in the International Baseball League the last two years, has been sold to the American League.

Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International loop, said in New York yesterday that Honochick was the fourth umpire from his league to advance in the last two years.

Marcel Cerdan, world middleweight champion, is going to the United States for a month - long series of exhibitions, Lew Burston, European representative of Madison Square Garden, said Tuesday.

Cerdan will leave Paris Thursday aboard an air force plane.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Regina, Nov. 17 (CP)— What some persons would call an upset was registered when Saskatoon Hilltops ran all over Vancouver Blue Bombers last weekend to take the Western Canada junior football championship and the right to meet Hamilton Wildcats Nov. 20 for the Canadian crown.

It had been concluded pretty well Bombers were a sure thing.

It didn't make sense from the first, naturally enough, to Cam (Saskatoon Star-Phoenix) McKenzie who had been thumping a Hilltop tub all year.

No Grounds

"It's difficult to see why this situation should exist," said Cam in a puzzled prose in discussing the unofficial but favorable odds given Vancouver.

"The west coasters, featuring an all-round power house in 1947," built up a terrific reputation as they swept the opposition aside."

But he and Saskatchewan in general, where the Hilltop 37-0 victory caused no surprise, couldn't see where Vancouver's record had been "more impressive than that of Hilltops," this year.

Both teams had lost one league contest, Hilltops playing 12 games to only seven for Bombers, and both had been undefeated in provincial and inter-provincial playoffs.

Count Me Out

In the other end of the province, there wasn't as much thumping when Regina's Saskatchewan Roughriders prepared for the last game of the Western Canada football playoffs where they lost to Calgary Stampeders.

Tom (Regina Leader-Post) Melville halted to assure a critic he'd never been on the Ruffle bandwagon and didn't "yap" in their defence.

Melville was adamant, however, in saying he would continue to cheer Ruffles for extending Stamps several times although they lacked reserves.

Boys Getting Hot Over Ability Of Rocket Richard

New York, Nov. 17 (CP)—The "Rocket" is replacing the flying saucer as the mystery provoking the most comment of the year.

The enigma: Why did Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal Canadiens score 50 goals in the 1944-45 season and only 28 last year?

Manager Frank Boucher of New York Rangers says this is the answer: Richard sifted through war-weakened teams during the height of his scoring flare and now is baffled by rebuilt defences in the National Hockey League.

Oh yeah? hints Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara: "One of these nights the Rocket will resume his scoring ways and the incense burning will start all over again."

This latest Richard rumpus started when James A. Burchard of the New York World-Telegram paraphrased Boucher thus:

"It's ridiculous to compare him (Richard) in the same breath with Howie Morenz, Bill Cook, Aurel Joliat, Nels Stewart and other old stars who really earned their goals. Anybody can score against cream puffs. It's a little tougher against brick ice cream."

Tuesday night Bouched expanded in an interview on the remarks he made to Burchard, which included:

1. Richard would garner a total of 20 goals this season 'if he gets hot." The Rocket has snared two tallies in the 11 games he has played this season.

2. Richard is a "glorified goal-getter who relies solely on finishing plays." The records show that the Rocket has never won in the total-points column. He was second to Max Bentley in 1946-47 and in the same position to Elmer Lach in 1944-45.

Saskatoon Team To be Entertained On Arrival East

Hamilton, Nov. 17 — (CP) —A long way from their own stamping grounds, the western junior football champion Saskatoon Hilltops are in for a royal welcome when they arrive here Friday for their Dominion championship game with Hamilton Wildcats.

Civic fathers, including Mayor Sam Lawrence and Alderman Hugh Brown, will head a welcoming party for the youngsters.

The Saskatoon squad will have a full schedule during their short stay. Friday evening they will be tendered a banquet by the Wildcat Club. Plans for Sunday call for a trip to Niagara Falls, but officials said final arrangements had not yet been completed.

An expected crowd of 4,000 fans — paying anywhere from 25 cents to $1 a seat — will be pepped up by cheer leaders from all five secondary schools. Central Tech, Delta, Westdale and Cathedral High will supply the cheering section while two junior bands will lend a musical backdrop.

High Scores In Major B Bowling Loop

Captain Art. Whalen of the "Just Us" team in the Recreation Alleys Major "B" (Tuesday) Bowling League paced his team to a neat 3-1 victory over the Ontario Intelligencer team last night. Whalen rolled the fine triple of 814 with a single of 339. The "Just Ussers" compiled an aggregate score of 3203 as against 2794 for the "Inspots."

In the other games the ANAF's tied with Black's Meat Market while "Our Gang" hung a 4-0 defeat on the Saco team.

M. Peoples of the "Our Gangers" rolled the high single of 351 and also high triple of 831.

Prize winners in the Saturday "Open Bowling" session at the alleys were Pat Drumm, 777 and Miss Young, 476. The scores:

"Just Us" (3 points)	3203
Ont. Intell. (1)	2794
Sacos (0)	2790
Our Gang (4)	3192
ANAF's (2)	2640
Black's Meats (2)	2690

Sports Roundup

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Four members of the Ivy League, which is dead set against lending a hand to commercial, charitable Chamber-of-Commerce promoters in putting on football "bowl" games, will send crews to Palm Beach, Fla., for a mid-winter regatta next Dec. 31 . . . Princeton, Yale, Cornell and Pennsylvania will participate . . . This could be because crew racing is notoriously unproftibale, thus eliminating the stigma of commercialism, or because Palm Beach has a higher social rating than Miam', New Orleans, Pasadena, etc . . . But those reasons don't exactly jibe with the fact that Ivy League basketball teams will be junketing to all corners of the United States this winter.

The weight limit on the parcel you can send is 20 lbs. There is no yardage limit. Your relatives will have to give up the regular coupons. They will also have to pay duty. On cotton materials it is 33 1-3% of the purchase price. On nylon, rayon and silk, it's 100%. On towelling, either cotton or linen, it's 50%. HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Know the blanket purpose of a jump bid. It is to signal partner that a game exists in the pair. Therefore, it promises a hand that has enough to make game with what partner has shown.

If the jump is in a suit bid, there is promise of enough suit tricks. If the jump is in a no-trump bid, it promises enough no-trump tricks. A game at no-trump needs nine tricks.

At a tournment was dished up the deal you see here:

NORTH
♠A 8 3
♥8 6 4
♦A K 7
♣Q 6 4 2

WEST
♠K Q J 6 5 4 2
♥J
♦Q 10 5

EAST
♥K 9 7
♦J 9 8 4 2
♣J 9 3

SOUTH
♥A Q 10 5 3 2
♣A K 7 5

The bidding should go like this:

South	West	North	East
1 H	1 S	2 NT	Pass
3 H	Pass	4 H	Pass
4 NT	Pass	6 D	Pass
6 H	All Pass

The north no-trump promised enough high cards to help make a no-trump game. An opener of one in suit promises four high cards. A jump no-trump responder shows five; or four with two sure.

The south heart suit is two cards longer than the club suit. For this reason it was bid twice before attempting to show the other. This is how a player shows six and four in two suits.

Answering four no-trump, six diamonds is a signal for two aces and one king. Spade king was not needed. Lacking also another king south could not be blamed for landing in six instead of seven.

Opening lead was a spade. Dummy ace won. A heart was finessed with south queen. Dummy got in with a diamond. Another heart finesse of the ten won. South heart ace then dropped the east king.

When the clubs broke in good shape, it meant that all 13 tricks came in. Same would happen at no-trump. But it would be no place for a player with a weak heart.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 17 (AP)—Film stars are the most interviewed people in the world. So I guess it was inevitable that a couple would break under the strain.

When Ida Lupino and Glenn Ford were approached on the "Bonanza" set, they broke into the open field and started interviewing each other—with the expert touch of the cliche born of long practice. Here's the results:

—Ford: "What do you dislike about actors?"

Lupino: "When they behave like actors off the set."

Ford: "Me, too. And young actors who don't take their work seriously."

Lupino: "Right. It takes many years and hard wrok before you're an actor. You know, the two actors I've really enjoyed working with are you and Richard Widmark."

Ford: "I'm probably sticking my neck out, but the only two really fine actresses I've worked with are you and Bette Davis. This sounds like a mutual admiration society. Would you like to work for a woman director?"

Lupino: "No, I'd rather work for a man. I like the directness of a man. Women are indirect creatures. What do you like most in women?"

Ford: "I don't know. I guess it's a sense of humor. What do you like most in a man?"

Lupino: "Tenderness. What irritates you most about women?"

Ford: "Nothing. They're wonderful."

Lupino: "Should an actress love the actor in love scenes?"

Lupino: "Naturally — for the moment. After all, the actor becomes the character she is in love with. Do you like women to pick out your ties?"

Ford: "No. I like my pipe and slippers set out at home, but not my clothes. Do you like fans?"

Lupino: "Of course. They give me my bread and butter. What has shaken you recently?"

Is it Sensible to Suffer Deafness?

Is it sensible to let deafness retard a business career? Irritate family and friends? Make you a social recluse? Modern thinking and modern practice says no. No more than it is sensible to refuse to wear glasses when eyesight is poor. This is the age of progress, and among the great achievements of science is a compact, inconspicuous hearing aid made by the makers of famous Zenith Radios. HUNTER HAS HINGE WELDED ON WOODEN LEG

Munising, Mich., Nov. 17 (AP)—The enthusiasm of Michigan's current deer hunt season was demonstrated when an unidentified man stopped at a factory here to have a broken knee hinge on his wooden leg welded. As soon as the job was done, he continued his quest for a deer.

AT THE BELLE — Always together — those Belleville favorites—Robert Hutton and Joyce Reynolds, in Warner Bros. lively romantic comedy, "Always Together," scheduled to open today at the Belle Theatre. M.G.M.'s true-life Technicolor adventure, "The Secret Land" is a worthy added feature attraction.

The Navy Did Feed Elephants at Sea--And That's His Story

Aboard Navy Flying Boat Marshall Mars (AP)— Now, look Honey, you just gotta believe me

That mid-Pacific feeding of famished elephants and hungry birds from Siam was no gag. The navy did it honest. This big air-plane, one of the largest flying boats in the world, spent an hour and nine minutes over its target, the Far East Lines' Swarthmore Victory, a floating menagerie.

That's what I meant last night when I telephoned to say I wouldn't be home, Honey—that we were flying out over the Pacific to feed the elephants.

In that hour and nine minutes the navy dumped into the Pacific two tons of hay. It was stored in 12 waterproof packages that would float.

And listen, Dear—honest, that last bale of hay tossed out of the starboard hatch had a can attached. In it were 2,500 meal worms.

The worms were for those tropical birds.

You see, Dear, those baby elephants were hungry. The master radioed the navy that five of the eight were neurotic from hunger.

For some reason the ship had run out of the proper fodder for pachyderms. Maybe it was because it stopped at Guam and stayed long enough there for the children to come aboard and see the animals. Some had never before seen such a critter.

But you should have seen the way the plane's captain, Lieut. D. A. Maloney, and his co-pilot Lieut. W. F. McSharry, handled this monstrous craft over the target.

Nary a miss

On the plane's second deck the squadron commander, J. G. Lang directed the dumping of the bales out of the hatch.

Heaving the hay were four navy crewmen.

The bales of hay dropped 118 feet into the water as a score of newspapermen, cameramen and radio men watched from the ports.

The Swarthmore was lying to—no dear, I didn't mean lying too—I am not lying —I mean the Swarthmore had stopped and one of her lifeboats was in the water.

The operation completed, the master of the Swarthmore, Capt. G. T. Nielsen, radioed:

"All boxes recovered in good shape. Good work."

Squadron Commander Lang turned to his men and smiled.

What's that dear? You say it's a pipe dream I thought up at the corner.

Now. Honey, I couldn't dream up anything like that.

You go call up the navy and ask them.

Mysterious Cities

Lhasa and Mecca

Underlying the special fascination of all travel, there is the desire, first of all to see something which others have described, then to see something which few others have ever seen. To us, says Air-Commodore Buss, Mecca, and not Lhasa, has become 'the symbol of this kind of aspiration'.

(From London Calling)

I suppose that we have all been drawn by a mysterious longing to see, say, Rome, or Athens, or Cairo, some places less hackneyed and less accessible than the one we live in. A story heard in childhood, perhaps, or some picture we have seen, starts by exciting our curiosity and ends by imprisoning our fancy. For underlying the special fascination of all travel there is a kind of ambitious curiosity; first of all to see something which others have described, and then to see something which few others have seen.

To us, Mecca has become the symbol of this kind of aspiration, and I have been wondering why. Why do we say: 'Stratford-on-Avon is a Mecca for the American visitor', and never that the equally forbidden city of Lhasa is?

And yet, both Mecca and Lhasa are not only 'forbidden cities', they are also centres of religious devotion and places of pilgrimage. From some points of view, we might be inclined to say that Lhasa ought to be the better symbol of these two: it is the centre of a fertile plain, in an almost inaccessible tableland, 12,000 feet above sea-level, in the heart of Central Asia; while Mecca stands in an almost waterless valley, surrounded by rocky and arid hills.

The approach to Mecca from the Red Sea coast offers little excitement to the traveller. Lhasa and the surrounding countryside must, at least, be a pleasant relief after the formidable climb up to them. And yet, for us, Mecca is the symbol, not Lhasa.

The answer must lie somewhere in the religious significances of the two places. Even there, they have something in common, in addition to the strange coincidence of the foundation of their shrines within thirty years of one another, in the seventh century A.D. —though in the case of Mecca we should rather say the reconsecration of its shrine to Islam.

Before that time, the city of Mecca was a commercial centre of no little importance, and entry was forbidden only to the shrine in which the gods of the polytheistic pagans of Arabia were housed.

But Lhasa—and, indeed, the whole of Tibet—owes its quality of a forbidden place as much to the difficulty of getting there as to the deliberate hostility of the people, which appears from its greater intensity in the nineteenth century, to have had a political at least as much as a religious origin.

The religions themselves are in strong contrast. the Buddhist cult, which has its centre in Lhasa, is monastic and exclusive. Islam is democratic, is based on brotherhood and equality; it has no priestly caste. The ceremonies of the pilgrimage to Mecca are performed by each individual pilgrim as a personal and independent ritual. The rites of Lhasa are conducted by the Lamas before the people.

The Jokhang Shrine itself, in Lhasa, founded about 652, the metropolitan sanctuary and the church centre of Tibet, contains a sacred image of Buddha. The Ka'bah is an empty shell; it contains nothing save the memory of its ancient past; it is no more than a symbol of the oneness of Islam and a reminder of the belief in Islam as the religion revealed by God to Adam and rescued from corruption through the teaching of the Prophet, Mohammed, who prescribed the pilgrimage to the Mecca shine as a duty of every able-bodied Muslim.

I would like to think that we use the name of Mecca as a symbol because we prefer democratic equality to priestly castes, but I have very little doubt that some of our crusading ancestors were much more familiar with the religious habits of the Muslims than with the ideas of democracy.

If you come to think of it, we have known about the Muslim world for a very long time, and we owe it a great deal more than many of us realize—not only words in our everyday language —like algebra and admiral—but the basis of much of our knowledge of the ancient philosophers and scientists came down, to a very large extent, through the Arabs. Contact with the Arab and Muslim world was not maintained by crusading adventurers alone. But Lhasa—until last century Lhasa meant nothing to any of us, and I daresay some of us may be a little uncertain even now where it is on the map.

Mecca is much more than a place on the map. It is planted in our language as the type of the goal of pilgrimage because we have been hearing of it for so long and because it is the centre of the whole world of Islam, not of just one nation or one sect. What we feel about it is a reflection of its place in the Muslim world.

Every Muslim grows up con-

pleteness in his spiritual life. From him, a pale reflection of this comes over to us, tinged with the knowledge that to Christians Mecca is forbidden. None but Muslims may go there, and very few others ever have.

It is not many years since all travel in Arabia was a tough and arduous affair, and Arabs were surprised that anyone should face the difficulties and dangers unless they had to. I was making the short journey once from Karbala to Ramadi, and had stopped at the oasis of Shifathah, which stands like a rather lonely outpost in the desert, and somehow the talk came around to the subject of travel, and one of the company recalled a visit Gertrude Bell made there before the first world war.

He said the old men talking to her had wondered what an Englishwoman alone was doing, 'Tiring herself,' as they put it, 'with all this travelling.' So one of them asked her. She told him what she was looking for—she used the Arabic which means 'ancient relics.' 'Ah! then you needn't weary yourself any more,' he said, 'just look round here; we are all ancient relics!'

The way of life of the principal visitors to these oasis-dwellers is even more ancient than their own. The Arabs of the desert tribes—the Bedouin—have changed little since the days of their forefather, Abraham. The harsh and precarious life they lead in search of water and grazing for their flocks breeds many virtues, but many vices too. In the not too distant past, no traveller, even the pilgrim, was safe from their lawlessness.

In earlier days, great pilgrim caravans assembled in Damascus and Cairo with military escorts for protection on the road, and their departure and return were occasions of great pomp and circumstance. Times have changed, and though the Mahmal with the new covering for the Ka'bah still leaves Cairo each year with impressive ceremony, modern inventions have both subdued the Bedouin and eased the journey for the pilgrim.

It is difficult for the Western mind to throw off the instinctive feeling that there is some intrinsic merit in that old discomfort, and that a duty easily performed is a less acceptable tribute. The Arab is more progressive. Moreover, austerity for its own sake is contrary to the spirit of Islam.

Even natural conservation and its prejudices have disappeared, and the motor-car and the aeroplane have, to a large extent, taken the place of the camel even for the pilgrimage, as they have for other desert journeys. It is only Westerners, with what, to Arabs, is an incomprehensible taste for the picturesque, who see incongruity in the association of the ancient ceremonies in their historic setting and the products of Coventry or Detroit.

But though Western means of transportation have come in they have not completely ousted the older form of travel. Both for the journey to the Hijaz and after arrival there, thousands of the poorer pilgrim must walk or ride on camel or donkey. Crowded steamships from Suez and Port Sudan bring the faithful from all parts of Africa and the East to Jiddah, the port of the Hijaz.

The stories which they have to tell of their journeys and experiences are as varied as are their races and dialects. But they do not often talk about the greatest experience of all—what must be to every one of them the greatest experience of his life. Do not we all find it difficult to put into words what we have felt in moments of great stress?

Three or four years before the war, a very old Iraqi friend telegraphed to me from Suez—I was in Cairo at the time—saying he was homeward bound from the pilgrimage and asking me to go and see him.

We met in the little hotel in Suez where he was staying. I congratulated him on his new status as a pilgrim—his Hajiship if I may coin such a word; we sat down to our cups of coffee, and I asked him to tell me all about it.

He said: 'Yakhi, my brother, I will tell you. You remember I wrote and told you I was going by ship from her to Jiddah? Well, we sailed, and on the second day, towards sunset, we were waiting for the sunset prayer. And I was standing on the deck of the ship and was looking down toward the sun which was sinking slowly into the sea. When only a little of it was left, the sea seemed suddenly to swallow it up, and at that instant there was a flash of green light. Subhan Allah, I thought, no light in all the world could be brighter.'

'I know,' I told him, 'I have seen it myself.'

'Good,' he said, 'then you will understand. Well, at last we came very happily to Jiddah—you have seen Jiddah in the time of the pilgrimage and you know the boats with sails, like our mahallas, that come out to meet the ships, and the small boats, and the landing, and the crowd, and the confusion.

'I had arranged my mutawwif, my guide, a good fellow, and he was there to meet me and he made everything easy. In the afternoon, we took a car and started to Mecca the blessed. And soon after the 'asr, the afternoon prayer—we could not travel fast because of the dust and the other cars and the groups of pilgrims walking and riding—we came to the Jebel En Nur, the Hill of Light, where the word of Allah first came to the Prophet—may upon him. And over the next hill-rise we looked down and saw before us the Holy City and the Haram—the Holy Place, and the seven minarets, and, in their midst, the Ka'bah.

And in my mind came a great flash like the flash of the sun swallowed in the sea, and my heart was lifted up, and I was crying with all the rest: "Labbayk, Allahumma, Labbayk. Here I am, O Lord, here I am"—and the tears were running down my cheeks.'

The significance of these ceremonies lies less in their intrinsic symbolism than in the sense of the unity of Islam inspired by their performance, and the equality of all believers. Discarding their ordinary clothing and donning the ihram—two seamless cloths, or towels, wrapped round the loins and shoulders —men and women, rich and poor, old and young, from all races of the world, equal before Allah, perform the ritual for the good of their individual souls.

Mecca to them is less a city than an idea; an idea which for 1,000 years has drawn men and women together in brotherly worship. To the Muslim, Mecca gives not the earthly satisfaction which an explorer may feel on reaching a longed-for goal, not the feeling of an aspiration at last fulfilled. To him, the pilgrimage to Mecca is a new life beginning, not, as with us, merely a vague, verbal symbol of 'journey's end'.

Trans-Canada Highway Will Be Discussed

Ottawa, Nov. 17 (CP)— Representatives of the Dominion and the provinces will gather around a table here December 14 to see what can be done about building a hard-surfaced Trans-Canada highway stretching from Atlantic to Pacific.

Resources Minister MacKinnon who two weeks ago invited the provinces to come to the capital for a highway conference announced Tuesday that all provinces have accepted and that the discussions will open Dec. 14.

He said he expected "100-percent attendance and co-operation at the talks, expected to last several days.

The conference is expected to open with a general discussion of the problems of completing a coast-to-coast highway. Later, the delegates likely will appoint committees to deal with the technical aspects of the problems. The conference then likely would be adjourned to a later date.

Canada for years has lacked a through highway from one coast, to the other. There are road links across the country but some notable those in northwestern Ontario, run through rough, uninhabited country and in such poor condition that Canadians motoring from one part of the country to another prefer to trave part of the way through the United States.

Sections of the present route are unpaved and ungraded.

In the depression-ridden 1930s the Dominion offered, partly as an unemployment relief measure to meet highway costs with the provinces on a 50-50 basis if they would work on roads which would link up with highways in adjoining provinces.

REDS TAKE RAIL EQUIPMENT

Vienna, Nov. 16 — (AP)—The Russians are confiscating hundreds of Austrian locomotives and freight cars despite the efforts of Austrian officials to negotiate the Russian claims, authoritative sources said Monday.

Brighteners

Seattle — (AP) — Clifford G. Broman, charting wind velocities at the Boeing Field Weather Bureau Tuesday, turned to a co-worker and remarked:

"It's getting pretty strong. In that last squall the wind hit 54 miles an hour."

Just then the telephone rang. It was his wife to inform him the wind had just blown the brick chimney off his house.

Milwaukee — (AP) — Printer Charles Koktavy does varied types of work, his court appearance revealed Tuesday.

Koktavy was charged with printing football pool tickets — in legal phraseology aiding by printing in the setting up of a lottery. Detectives produced 322 cards seized at his shop.

After he'd been questioned, Koktavy watched intently while city and state warrants were filled out. Then he pointed to the forms.

"I printed those, too," he said.

Shelbyville, Ind. — (AP)—Glen Dale, who lives on a farm southeast of here, has some mighty fine friends.

He found on his doorstep a box containing $746.20 in cash and a note from "your friends and neighbors" expressing sympathy for recent misfortunes.

One of Dale's sons required extensive hospital care recently after being stricken with tetanus. Another son must go to a hospital soon to have a broken nose mended.

Neighbors also have shucked 30 acres of corn for the Dales.

'$500 TIP NOT TOO HIGH'

Washington, Nov. 16 — (AP)— A Washington automobile salesman said Monday he always expected a "tip" when he sold a car and he didn't think $500 was excessive. The salesman, William Manuel of the Kearney Oldsmobile Company, testified before a House sub-committee investigating automobile trade practices.

GREAT FIRE

The Great Fire of London in 1666 destroyed 13,200 houses and 89 churches, including St. Paul's Cathedral.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By SHAUN McQUILLAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 11 (CP)— For 22 years Joe Davis, undisputed Peer of Shot and Pot, has chalked up snooker and billiards records that make his opponents seem mere slivers of light across the shadow.

So there'll be little surprise when the chalk starts a-scribbling again.

The other day, while playing Sidney Smith in a £1,000 ($4,000) handicap tournament, he laid low a four-day bogey by whipping up 119 to complete his 300th snooker century. As he said himself:

"No man ever heaved a deeper sigh of relief than I did. For four days I had been hearing nothing else, by phone, in the street, in the club, but 'Did you do it?' or 'When was the only person who kept silent about the whole thing."

Some idea of the old maestro's superiority—he retired undefeated in 1947 after 20 years as world snooker champion — over other home players can be seen from a comparison of their 100-breaks. Next on the list is Sidney Smith with 95, then comes Walter Donaldson who made 82. Fourth is the present world champion, Joe's younger brother Fred, with 52 and after that the list reads: Alec Brown 40, Albert Brown 34, John Barrie 16, Sidney Lee and Jack Rea 15 each, and John Pullman six.

Big billiards and snooker breaks cost Joe money. He paid out £1 on a friendly bet when he made this latest snooker century. Then at Birmingham in 1932, when he notched a 1,000 billiards break against Clark McConachy, the New Zealander, a fan offered Joe a new hat for a repeat performance in the evening session.

Joe bantered: "I'll buy you one if I get another 1,000 today." He did, so Joe and the fan ceremoniously bought each other a hat.

Joe's first century break came in 1926, but he has knocked up the last 99 hundreds in less than 2 1-2 years. Twenty years ago not nearly so much snooker was played by top-liners, but nevertheless, Joe Davis, like some wines, seems to improve with age.

He's still the champ—in all but name.

It was a battle of the whistle at the local "derby" soccer match between Ipswich and Norwich. One of the 24,500 crowd appointed himself unofficial referee and throughout the first half he and real referee, J. W. Muller, were in competition.

Muller looked baffled, the players worried. Then came an ultimatum Muller said if the rival whistle did not cease the game would.

Ipswich Club officials app[illegible] over the loudspeakers, the crowd booed—and it became a one-whistle match.

TUNNEL COLLAPSES, KILLING TWO BOYS

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP) — Two 12-year old boys were buried alive Tuesday night when a tunnel they were digging at play collapsed. Firemen, summonded by relatives, dug out the bodies.

The victims were John Whalen and Francis O'Donnell.

PROBE JEWISH ALLEGATIONS

Haifa, Israel, Nov. 17 — (AP)— The United Nations is investigating Jewish allegations that Britain has sent reinforcements of men and material into Trans-Jordan. This was disclosed Tuesday by Brig.-Gen. William E. Riley, chief of staff for the U. N. truce commission in Palestine. Britain has denied the Jewish charge.

THE VENABLES

BY KATHLEEN NORRIS

"And she said, 'Did you see the diamond he has? It's bigger than any your old aunt has,' and she talked to me so nicely, and said that we were going back to town the next day, but that she advised me not to say anything to anyone until we came back from Tahoe."

"And you knew it when you were home that time? Oh, Lily Venables, you big cheat!"

"I couldn't say anything, Flo, because I could hardly believe it myself," Lily said honestly. "You see, Arnold's the uncle of Elsie Deller, at school, and she used to talk about him and how important he was, and that he had to go to New York every year and all that.

"Only I didn't remember the name until I met his sister, Mrs. Harold Deller, and she's in the Social Register and everything, and then I suddenly remembered and said, 'Oh, you're Elsie's uncle Arnold I kept thinking that if I said anything he might write Aunt Lizzie that it was all a mistake, and then I'd die of mortification!"

"You'll be in the Social Register, won't you?"

"I guess so."

"And go to New York and everything?"

"Yes, and that part of it's fun." Lily said again. And for a moment they were both silent. Then Flo began again, in lively curiosity.

"Lily, do you like the way a man smells?"

"A man smells?" Lily echoed faintly.

"Yes. Of whiskers and soap and tobacco and as if he'd been drinking coffee and eating meat. When they kiss you,". Flo added, enlighteningly.

Lily considered it. "No, I don't" she finally said, in a cautious undertone.

Something was lacking in Lily's marriage; Flo finally analyzed it as laughter. Lily and Arnold did not laugh together. He was always protecting and grave and advisory; she shy and small and confiding.

Not that Lily cried, either. It was not that. A bride ought to cry; at least gay tears always seemed so proper a part of a bride's conduct during the last days at home. But Lily was only proud and grateful for everything, even to the latest hour.

The skies wept steadily on her April wedding day. Window panes in the Shotwell Street house ran water as the women's hands dressed Lily; streets ran commee-colored rivers. The heavens were low and dark; wedding garments were spattered as the little company gathered in Aunt Lizzie's dark house at four o'clock, and fires were muttering sulkily in the steel-rodded grates of both the double parlors.

All through the ceremony Flo, who was inexplicably crying, heard rain slashing at the thick-curtained windows.

Lily was in a daze of terror all day. Now that the time had come, she did not want to be married at all. She did not want to live with Aunt Lizzie any more, either; she wanted terribly, achingly —like a shipwrecked mariner who sees a sail fade away on the horizon — to be home with Mama and Flo and darling Spencer, and go to market to Valencia Street, and wipe dishes while she and Flo ate their after-dinner apples.

Early on the morning of her wedding day she tried to say something of this to her mother, but it was no use. Willie put her off nervously, laughingly.

Why, all little brides felt that way, and then when they were married they were the happiest people alive! Compare Aunt Ida and Grandma to poor Aunt Harriet and Aunt Daisy. Lily wanted a house and a husband and children someday, and this little bit of it was just nerves. She was tired, but after tomorrow she could have a long rest!

But Lily's panic was not stilled. As the hours of her wedding day went by, it so completely possessed her that she was only vaguely conscious of what was going on about her.

Three o'clock; four o'clock! She was married, and being kissed, her veil and flowers being mussed and straightened again, and still she felt nothing but scare. Flo and Louise and some of the aunts presently rushed her upstairs, and she was helped out of her wedding gown and into a tailor-made; then she and Arnold were in the Belcher carriage, off for his mother's house.

But although Lily heard her own voice through all this, her own thanks, even heard that queer laughter of departure, she was conscious of no emotion, no feeling except fear.

Her mother-in-law was a rather formidable old woman who had sat in one chair in one room for almost all the waking hours of eleven years, and would sit there with brief intervals for driving or sleeping for the remainder of her life.

She had been kind to Arnold's childish little sweetheart through the engagement, and she was kind now. Lily would be tired, she said and perhaps like to lie down before dinner.

Lily left the invalid mother-in-law's room after a dutiful kiss upon the shining smooth braids of black hair and traversed a wide upper hall that smelled, as all the house smelled of expensive hangings, rich carpets, rubber plants, leather, old wood.

She and Arnold had a front room facing northeast; there had been no sun on this wet day, but even when there was sun these rooms were in early afternoon shadows all the year round.

The bed was enormous in a carved walnut frame with a high back and curved foot; the chairs were enormous; the white marble fireplace was curved to look like a tombstone. A fire was laid; newspaper kindling, coal; it looked as chilly as only an unlighted fire can look in damp and cold weather.

The bathroom was large, with a wooden grating beside the big tub and a hinged screen of window shutters to be drawn modestly beside it. The bowls were of mottled brown marble, and the windows in the Belcher house, were enormous.

Trembling, her head aching and her mind confused, Lily took off her tailor-made and the heavy hat with the big bird wings, the plush roses, the velvet ribbon loops, and put on a thin kimona. She unbuttoned her high scalloped kid shoes, and lay gingerly down on the bed, pulling a satin comforter over her feet.

Arnold, assisting her, presently wound a rotary bell handle by the fireplace. The housekeeper, a grim-looking woman of 50, immediately came in.

"You fix this, Hannah," Arnold said helplessly. "My wife wants to rest before dinner." ner.

Lily climbed down and sat on the edge of a big chair and watched Hannah capably removing from the bed the Battenberg spread and the blue satin spread under it, the pillow shams and the heavy white cotton spreads.

Then she lay down, the big pillow feeling deliciously soft to her tired head, even though unaccustomed hairpins were driven into her scalp as she touched it. After all, she had put her hair up for the first time only a year or two ago, and what Aunt Hattie had done to it in the last twenty-four hours with pins and rags and twists and curlers only Aunt Hattie and she fully realized.

Arnold sat beside her and read to her from Omar Khayyam. He had taken off his coat and put on a dark maroon velvet jacket with braid trimming; he had lighted the fire, which presently roared violently behind the blower and burned quite acceptably even when the blower was taken away.

"I wish it was a year from Tuesday!" Lily thought, watching him.

She put on her blue sateen for dinner, a meal that consisted of mutton soup, chicken patties, roast beef with potatoes and sprouts, apple pie with yellow cheese. It was served by a young Chinese boy in a black native costume and slippers. Arnold's mother never came downstairs, but they went up to see her immediately after dinner and sat with her for some time. The rain continued and rattled the heavily curtained windows; two wedding presents arrived, the boxes spattered with rain. A silver cake plate from the Powells; a chocolate set from the Bargetts.

"That makes four chocolate sets, and six cake platters," Lily said, smiling shyly as she displayed them to her mother-in-law.

"Put them on your list," Arnold said.

"I will. As soon as I go to my room."

"Whose room?" he asked, humorously.

THIS PHOTO OBTAINED AT GREAT PERSONAL RISK IN BERLIN

We're not drilling any policemen—anyway, we don't have enough policemen to drill, is the general gist of Russian replies to western powers' questions on the reported great increase of Red-zone police power, and rumored "military drilling" of the police as militia. However, this photograph obtained at great personal risk by Allyn Baum, I.N.P. cameraman in Berlin, partly discredits the Russian disclaimers. The photograph taken through a window of a blocked-off and remote area of the Russian sector of Berlin, shows Berlin police terminating a military drill with a march off to the auditorium (background), where they were lectured on the "blessings of the Russian occupation." ABBOTT SPEAKS FRANKLY ABOUT DOLLAR SHORTAGE

Canada Must Cut Imports Unless the U. S. Raises Exports

Boston, Nov. 18 — (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott said frankly today Canada is faced with the alternatives of raising her exports to or cutting her imports from the United States.

He told the governors' session of the New England Council the Dominion's exchange conservation program "has been singularly successful insofar as we ourselves have been able to go."

But, he added in a prepared address, "it would be misleading to exaggerate the significance of our improved position" in the dollar shortage.

To the extent improvement was due to more exports, it signified initial success of a long-term program. To the extent, however, that it was due to restriction of imports and E.R.P. there was no lasting significance.

"We must make a great deal more headway in the expansionist part of our program before we can be confident that we are really out of the woods," he said.

"We can no longer afford to do business with the U. S. on the basis of $2 of imports for every $1 [illegible] ports. We must achieve a m[illegible] [illegible] balance in our trade w[illegible] [illegible] country."

C[illegible] needed American help in enlarging her markets.

"Too often we find that the tariff structure of your country makes it difficult, often impossible, for our goods to flow into the U. S. market. At times this is due to the nature of your customs administration rather than to the tariff itself, although generally your tariff is much more protective than ours."

SEEKING FIFTH TERM

Chatham, Nov. 18 — (CP) — Municipal elections are slated to be held here Monday Dec. 6, with nominations one week earlier on Nov. 29.

Mayor R. D. Steele will be seeking re-election for his fifth consecutive term, but whether he will be opposed for office is uncertain. Ald. W. G. Kerr, K. C. has been mentioned as a likely contender for the office, but he has not yet made any decision. To be elected are three aldermen, four school trustees and one water commissioner.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP)— Synopsis: Another storm presently centred over Kansas is gathering strength for an onslaught on the province. Rain and increasing winds will be experienced in the Windsor area soon after midnight Thursday and will extend rapidly northeastward. This storm will cause warm air to flow steadily northward and give warm weather ahead of it with cool air flowing in behind the storm as it passes. The impending storm is still far enough away, however that most of Ontario can enjoy sunshine and balmy air today while being prepared for the mor-

Morocco Infantrymen Move Into Dunkerque, May Take Over Docks from Strikers

Paris, Nov. 18 (AP)— Two thousand Morocco infantrymen moved into Dunkerque today and faced a like number of Communist-led dock strikers over barricades of ship cargoes.

No immediate action was reported.

The 25,000 dockers of France, overwhelmingly members of the Communist-controlled Confederation Generale Du Travail, have been called out on strike for Monday. Those at Dunkerque and at some other ports jumped the gun.

It originally was believed troops might try to take over the Dunkerque docks. Reports from the port said any such action would not come before tomorrow.

Commerce Minister Robert Lacoste told the assembly four-fifths of the 335,000 coal miners had returned to work. The strike of the Communist-led unions was called seven weeks ago.

Troops are unloading ships at Bordeaux. At Dieppe, Calais, Le Havre and Cherbourg, 50,000 tons of coal are on the docks.

Other dock workers throughout France's vast chain of ports received a strike call from the Communist led Confederation Generale du Travail. Interior Minister Jules Moch charges this week that the coal and dock strikes have been ordered by Russia.

Reports from Dunkerque said the situation was tense. The government may try to take over the port later in the day.

Woman Attacks Elderly Pensioner

Victoria, Nov. 18 (CP)— An elderly woman pensioner is not expected to live after being brutally beaten and robbed by an unknown assailant early Wednesday. Police said Mrs. Mary Attwood, 74, a widow was attacked by a woman in a public lavatory in City Hall. She is in hospital, her skull fractured in several places, and her scalp deeply gashed.

Mrs. John Stuart Eludes Reporters After Her Arrival

Halifax, Nov. 18. (CP)—Mrs. John Stuart, 57, hurrying from England to aid her son William, charged in Kitchener with public mischief, eluded reporters after her arrival here Wednesday on the veteran liner Aquitania.

Mrs. Stuart could not be found in her cabin and failed to answer calls over the Aquitania's public address system. A roommate said Mrs. Stuart told her she would leave Halifax on the first train available after she cleared custosm. She was reported to have passed through customs shortly before noon Wednesday.

Railway officials said Mrs. Stuart probably left Halifax at 3.10 p.m. or 4.30 p.m. A.S.T., on a Montreal train.

A Canadian citizen, Mrs. Stuart is bound for (86 Tait Street) Galt, Ont, where her husband lives. She had been visiting in England.

The public mischief charge was laid against her son in connection with the disappearance last Sept. 13 of Mrs. Emma Phol, 37-year-old housewife. Mrs. Pohl's decomposed body was found near Plattsville, Ont., Oct. 25. Mrs. Stuart told friends in London two weeks ago she had what she believed was "vital" evidence in the case.

Police who questioned William Stuart quoted him as saying he met Mrs. Pohl the day she disappeared, paid off a $600 debt he owed her for two years and was given a receipt. A handwriting expert described the receipt as a forgery.

Mrs. Stuart's evidence was reported to concern money allegedly passed between her son and Mrs. Pohl. She said earlier that Mrs. Pohl told her in private of giving William $600 to buy a car for "mutual pleasure", friends reported.

'Les Cochonailles' in Quebec at Hand, Pig Squeals Rend the Countryside

Quebec, Nov. 18 — (CP) — On Quebec's 135,000 farms this is the month of "les cochonailles"—pig slaughtering—and from Abitibi to Gaspe the familiar November pig squealing chorus means good winter food for the generally large families of French Canada.

For children of rural Quebec, les cochonailles is a time of excitement with a whole ritual to watch from the time a stabbed pig is strung up by hind quarters to bleed until its scorched ears and shrivelled tail are crisp and ready to eat.

The Quebec pigs — like pigs in any other province — start to squeal the moment they are dragged from their pens. Until November and the killing season wanes one county's pigs can be heard in the next.

Blood caught in a pan when the into scrubbed tripe for blood pudding;

The pig's feet are served in a delicious "ragout" made with burned flour;

Upper legs, salted and cured, are served as ham;

Rib meat becomes salt pork for breakfast;

Simmered for hours, the head is used for head cheese, or served whole according to custom brought over from old France.

The Quebec housewife knows how to spice odds and ends of the pig and turn them into fine farm sausage. She also gets loin roasts and pork chops.

"Graisse de rotie" from roast fat makes an appetizing spread and a combination of fat and meat is cooked to be eaten cold on bread or between.

Eisenhower Says British Side Accepted Necessity of France's Invasion Only With Reluctance

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 18. (CP)—Gen. Eisenhower, who commanded all the Western military forces in Western Europe, says that if Britain's view had prevailed the second-front invasion of France in 1944 might well have been delayed.

This is one of the many sidelights of the war in Eisenhower's book, "Crusade in Europe", which will be published Nov. 22 (By Doubleday and Co. Inc., and Doubleday Canada, Ltd.).

The Supreme Commander says the British side accepted the necessity of invading France only with reluctance.

But while Eisenhower does not hesitate to point up differences that arose between the main western allies, his main theme is that his Anglo-American supreme headquarters worked marvellously well and that modern wars can be won only by absolute co-ordination among allies and their land, sea and air arms.

Wanted to End War Quickly

"Crusade in Europe" emphasizes throughout the determination of Eisenhower and Gen. George C. Marshall, then United States Chief of Staff and now Secretary of State, that the war should be fought with no other consideration but to end the fighting as soon as possible with the least possible loss of life.

In contrast, Eisenhower contends that Winston Churchill sometimes tried to change military strategy to achieve political advantages even when (in Eisenhower's view) it might mean a longer war.

Churchill never directly advocated abandoning the western front but indicated that he thought it should be postponed to some unstated later date. However, Eisenhower says, Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, then chief of the Imperial General staff, did intimate his willingness to abandon the project in favor of a massive Mediterranean operation.

News Divergent Till End

Eisenhower relates that the divergence of views on how the war should be fought continued to the end, with Churchill advocating an all-out drive on Berlin in the later stages of the war, at the expense of stopping other operations in central Germany.

For a long time arguments have raged as to whether Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, now Field Marshal Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada, or Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, now Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, was the better British General.

In Eisenhower's eyes, Gen. Alexander was the better. He writes:

"I regarded Alexander as Britain's outstanding soldier in the field of strategy. He was, moreover, a friendly and agreeable type; Americans instinctively liked him."

Proved to be Mistake

On the role of the press in war, Eisenhower says:

"I believe that the proper attitude of the Commander toward representatives of the press was to regard them as quasi staff officers, to recognize their mission in the war, and to assist them in carrying it out. Normally, the only justifiable excuse for censorship is the necessity to withhold valuable information that the enemy could not otherwise obtain. During the war I personally violated this general rule by imposing temporary political censorship in North Africa, and by withholding advance notice of the eventual command arrangements in Normandy. Though my reasons on both occasions seemed valid to me, I never failed to regret what later proved to be a mistake."

CBC Refuses to Sell Drew Radio Time to Discuss Hydro

Ottawa, Nov. 18 — (CP)—The CBC announced today that it will not sell George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, any network time to discuss Ontario's power shortage.

Mr. Drew said in Toronto last night he had applied to the CBC for radio time to reply to statements made in London, Ontario, last Saturday by Trade Minister Howe. Mr. Howe laid the blame for the current power shortage on Mr. Drew, former Premier of Ontario.

In its statement signed by E. L. Bushmell, director-general of programs, the CBC said: "The CBC has received a telegram from the Honorable George Drew asking to buy a provincial Ontario network for a speech on the hydro electric power situation. After consultation with A. D. Dunton, chairman, who is in Calgary, the following reply has been sent:

"Under its well-known white paper, the CBC cannot sell network time for the discussion of controversial and political matters and therefore cannot meet offer of money to buy time for such speeches. The CBC does provide network time free for such discussions with free periods allotted equitable among different parties on mutually agreed basis.

"Under these arrangements the Progressive Conservative party has regular free periods on national network and also on Ontario networks for discussion of provincial matters. Note one of these periods for this party coming up next Monday evening.

"CBC cannot go outside agreed free time arrangements to give one party or leader special concession for network speech as you suggest."

Justice Minister Ready to Contest Marquette Riding

Shoal Lake, Man., Nov. 18 (CP) —Justice Minister Garson Wednesday accepted the Liberal nomination as candidate in the Dec. 20 Marquette Federal by-election and pledged himself to "continue to seek a full-fledged Dominion-Provincial agreement."

In accepting the nomination, the former Manitoba Premier made it apparent that his campaign to win the seat formerly held by J.A. Glen, former minister of mines and resources would be keynoted by the Dominion-Provincial issue.

Mr. Garson criticized Premier Duplessis of Quebec and George Drew, former Ontario Premier now leader of the Progressive Conservative party with the statement:

"Because certain public men in these two wealthier provinces think as they do, they have refused to join with all the other provinces in signing an over-all agreement as proposed by the present Dominion Government."

It was learned Mr Garson probably will be opposed only by a C.C.F. representative in the by-election.

The C.C.F. will hold its nom-

First-Class Feud Brewing Before Delegates Meet

London, Ont., Nov. 18 — (CP) —Delegates from various parts of Canada sat down today to what has been described as a three-day routine annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Association of Canada but the fuse for a first-class feud has already been lit.

The "routine" business to be discussed today and Friday covers various reports and resolutions, election of officers and decision on "outstanding-athlete" awards. The poor showing of Canada's athletes in the Olympic Games at London this summer will be a major topic on the agenda.

The Canadian Olympic Association, headed by Sidney Dawes of Montreal, joins the gathering Saturday and it is here the fireworks are expected.

Sparks of the impending tangle flew last August when Dawes announced publicly that his organization, a committee set up by the A.A.U., should have its own charter, by-laws and officers. George C. Machum of Montreal, chairman of the A.A.U., replied Dawes was trying to "undermine" his organization and declared the Olympic official should resign.

"We look for a fight, but some delegates agree that the Olympic organization should be set apart from our association," an A.A.U. delegate said before the opening meeting. "It should be interesting."

SUCHOW BATTLE HEADING FOR SECOND PHASE

Both Sides Regrouping To Carry on Fight

Nanking, Nov. 18 (CP)— The great Suchow battle between government and Red troops headed for its second phase today.

The Reds were reported regrouping northeast of the battlefield and Chiang Kai-Shek threw reinforcements into the fight.

Meanwhile, American marines at Guam prepared to rush to Tsingtao, United States naval base 225 miles northeast of Suchow.

The Guam reinforcements were being sent to aid 3,600 marines already at Tsingtao in guarding naval installations there and evacuating Americans.

Tsingtao is virtually surrounded by Red troops who may attack it at any time. American authorities have not said what the marines would do in the event of a Red attack.

The tenor of Chinese field reports indicated both the Nationalists and Reds were gathering their strength for new assaults in the swirling battle that has engulfed a large area around Suchow and more than 1,000,000 Chinese.

There was nothing as yet to suggest an early decision in the major civil war battle which holds the fate of Nanking, China's capital, 180 miles to the southeast.

But only developments can tell whether Chiang's troops can remove the threat to Central China or whether they will bring about a stalemate as winter sets in on the plains above Nanking.

Greek Cabinet Will be Coalition

Athens, Nov. 18 — (AP) — A new coalition government of Populists and Liberals was sworn in today to replace a similar cabinet combination which resigned six days ago under the fire of dissident Liberals.

The cabinet again is headed by 88-year-old Premier Themistokles Sophoulis, leader of the Liberals. Populist (Royalist) leader Constantin Tsaldaris also retains the posts of deputy premier and foreign minister.

The new cabinet went into its firts informal meeting immediately after being sworn.

The Liberals took over the key position of minister of war, which formerly had been filled by Populist George Stratos. Constantine Rentis, former minister of public order, was given the job, with a Populist undersecretary.

Several former ministers took over new posts in a reshuffle aimed at strengthening the prosecution of the war against the Communist rebels. Criticism of the conduct of the war was one of the reasons for the fall of the old coalition government six days ago.

Tiny Dab of A-Energy Makes Paintings Ring Bell When Thieves Touch Them

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, Nov. 18 — (AP) — By putting a tiny dab of atomic energy on them, valuable paintings can be caused to ring a bell or blow a whistle when thieves touch them.

This new use of radioactive atoms is told by L. Yaffe, of the atomic energy project of the National Research Council of Canada at Chalk River, Ont., in the new scientific journal, Nucleonics.

The rays from atoms placed somewhere on the painting would fall continuously on a circuit in the wall behind the work of art. Removing the picture would break a circuit and start the alarm.

The atoms for such a purpose are the fission products, the new atoms created by splitting uranium, when plutonium is made for bombs by transmutation of uranium. These fission products are made in great quantities in the Hanford, Wash., United States plutonium plants. There probably are by now hundreds of pounds, because for every pound of bomb plutonium there is nearly an equal weight of new atoms due to splitting.

What to do with these new atoms has been one of the secret projects. There are 34 kinds, and of these 32 are heavy chemical elements for which there have been no important industrial or medical uses.

Yaffe says there are many possible uses. One is to prevent dust explosions in grain elevators and other places.

Sparks of static electricity set off the explosions, and the fission atoms in minute quantities would discharge this electricity without sparks.

Saunders Expects Big Power Boost By December 15th

Returns from Consultation On Welland Canal Diversion

Toronto, Nov. 18. (CP) — Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission, said today he was "very optimistic" about a favorable reply from Washington on diverting water from the Welland canal to ease the Ontario power shortage.

He said he believed that by the time Welland Canal navigation closes about Dec. 15, Ontario will be diverting water from the canal and doubling the generating capacity of the Decew plant near St. Catharines.

Mr. Saunders has just returned from Washington where he asked permission to divert the American allotment of water.

Would Add 1,250,000 KWH

By taking 2,500 cubic feet a second more water from the Welland canal, about 1,250,000 kilowatt hours of 25-cycle power daily would be fed into the Ontario power system. This would not meet the 5,000,000 kilowatt hours daily deficit, but it would be a major supply source during the winter, Mr. Saunders said.

The plan wouldn't cost Ontario a cent for additional installations. Navigations wouldn't be affected since the extra water would be taken from December to March when the canal is closed.

Man Who Complained He Was Robbed, Faces Impersonation Charge

Toronto, Nov. 17 — (CP) — A man who told police he was beaten and robbed of $43 by a boy and a girl was under hospital arrest today on a charge of impersonating a police officer.

William Dougherty was arrested after a boy and girl — Douglas McTaggart and Joan Van Lane— told a different story about the incident. They said they were in a parked car when a man who said he was a police officer attempted to arrest them for trespassing.

McTaggart demanded authority for the arrest and the man pulled out a toy pistol. McTaggart struck him, took the pistol and gave it to police when he visited them after they had found Dougherty at a service station in need of medical attention.

DENIES ALLEGATION

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 18 — (AP) —An article in a student newspaper has charged that Northwestern University fired its women's councillor because she was "too liberal about Jews and Negroes," but the university denied it Wednesday. The charge was made by Miss Mary F. Hutchiss, 22, daughter of Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, in an interview with the student newspaper.

500 PILGRIMS FEARED DROWNED IN GANGES RIVER

Steamer Capsizes Returning from Fair

Patna, India, Nov. 19 (Reuters) —Some 500 pilgrims were feared drowned today when a river steamer capsized on the sacred Ganges today while returning from Sonepur Fair, the year's biggest Hindu festival.

The pilgrims, jam-packed on the lower deck of the vessel, were believed trapped when it capsized.

Survivors said the vessel was approaching the landing stage here when the passengers rushed to one side. More than 100 cattle and some horses also were drowned.

The scene of the disaster was near the junction of the Ganges and the Gandak river. The junction is considered a spot of special sanctity to Hindus.

PLEADS GUILTY TO CHARGE OF ATTEMPT TO ROB

Toronto, Nov. 18 — (CP) — William Hilley, 19, today pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to rob a collection agent for the American News Company, a magazine - distributing agency. He was remanded to Nov. 26 for sentence on the attempted robbery charge and another charge of having an offensive weapon.

Detective-sergeant James Priest read a statement made by Hilley after his arrest in which the youth claimed he was offered $50 by an unnamed man to commit the robbery.

CLIFFORD OTT SUCCESSFUL BIDDER FOR CAR

It was a long way to come to buy a car, but at least Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Ott, of Waterton Lake National Park in Alberta will have a shiny new automobile to drive back home. Mr. Ott was the successful bidder on the new Ford car sold Tuesday night on the Y's Men's Club radio auction.

In yesterday's edition of the Ontario Intelligencer it was stated that Mr. Herbert McCabe, Chatham Street, submitted the successful bid on the car but today this was stated to be incorrect. Mr. and Mrs. Ott are visiting at the McCabe home, the former submitting his own bid on the car.

The court proceedings will commence at one o'clock in the afternoon.

Included among the civil cases listed for trial are the two motions by the Belleville Public Utilities against the City of Belleville. In the other the Utilities are protesting council action in seeking to increase the membership of the Commission from three to five members.

Judge Anderson Endorses Sea Cadet Campaign

Judge J. C. Anderson has endorsed the coming campaign of the Belleville Corps of the Naval Cadets, H.M.C.S. Quinte.

Said Judge Anderson:—

"I understand the Belleville Corps, H.M.C.S. Quinte has an ambitious program in store and one which I am sure will capture the imagination of the cadets who are now enrolled and provide for training of an increased number of cadets.

"The work of the Naval Cadets provides constructive outlets for the natural energies, and enthusiasm of our boys. It trains the boys, teaches them teamwork and it inspires high ideals.

"I hope that the committee will raise sufficient money to enable 160 boys to be trained instead of the 100 that were enrolled this year."

The quota of the campaign of the Cadets Corps is $4,500 which will be used to complete buildings and install a heating system in the property acquired last year. The club house will be in use all year round. The money spent so far has been spent in a most economical way and high value has been received.

It is felt the H.M.C.S. Quinte is a valuable asset to Belleville and district and that every citizen should have a financial interest in advancing this youth-training program.

Police Seek Information On Death of Guide

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP)—Provincial Police headquarters today announced a reward of $1,000 for information leading to the arrest of the party responsible for the death of Jack Hafgis, 68 year-old retired railwayman and guide. He was found shot Oct. 25 in the charred remains of his Trout Lake cabin, 150 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Criminal Investigation Inspector Leonard Neil has returned to Toronto from the scene, and police say investigations are proceeding. The inquest has been postponed indefinitely.

Canada Plans Increase of Naval Strength Report

Ottawa Nov. 18 (CP) —Informed sources confirmed today that Canada plans to increase her naval strength.

One official source said some anti-submarine vessels would be added to the Royal Canadian Navy. He could not indicate whether they would be corvettes or frigates, used by Canada in her wartime anti-submarine campaign.

He was commenting on a Boston dispatch which quoted Rear Admiral E. R. Mainguy, flag officer, Canadian Atlantic fleet, as saying the Navy will be expanded "because of the International situation."

Unlike most large cities in Ontario, Hamilton has averted hydro cutoffs by an intensive power conservation program. Here a store is being checked to see that the light per square foot of store space does not exceed the restrictions. Measuring the floor space are Gordon Smith, hydro inspector, and J. S. Brunton, one of a group of commissionaires engaged in store patrols. D. A. Robbins (middle), managing secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, checks the figures. Work is under the direction of the Chamber. —Lloyd Bloom

Labor plays a major part in conserving power to avert cutoffs. Larry Sefton, international representative of the United Steelworkers of America, checks schedules for weekend work.

Chinese Government Claims Complete Victory at Suchow

Nanking, Nov. 18. (AP)—The government claimed complete victory in the Suchow battle today.

Gen. Chang Liu-Shih, official military spokesman, told his weekly press conference:

"The battle for Suchow can be considered as concluded. What the Communists do now is subject to conjecture."

Chang pictured the Red forces in flight. He said government troops and planes were mopping up an area extending 30 miles around Suchow.

The spokesman asserted 130,000 casualties were inflicted on the Reds as against 40,000 suffered by Nationalists.

Other Government sources said the government won at least the opening phase of the Suchow battle against 300,000 veteran troops. This victory, they added, means Nanking is safe at least for a month or longer.

Foreign observers placed the result of the fighting along the Suchow front somewhere between the government's official claim of complete victory and the Communists' continued insistence that they still hold the initiative.

It appears certain that Red Generals Chen and Lieu Po-Cheng—if they have not been defeated—have been forced to abandon the immediate conquest of Suchow and withdraw for regrouping.

The spokesman said incomplete statistics showed general Huang's Seventh army group alone was credited with inflicting 63,000 Red casualties; Chiu and Li Mi's army groups 10,000; Chiu and Sun Yuan Liang's army groups 10,000 and 3,000 killed and wounded by the Chinese Air Force.

(Both sides often exaggerate casualty claims in China.)

Jewish Force Will Not Retire To New Lines in Negev Region

Tel Aviv, Nov. 18 (CP) — Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion told the Israeli state council tonight that Jewish troops will not withdraw to new lines in the Negev region of southern Palestine.

"Additional troops brought to the Negev to help break through the outlying settlements were already withdrawn, but troops who were in the Negev before Oct. 14 will continue to guard the Negev against aggression from Egypt and also to defend Jerusalem against Egyptian attack," he said.

The United Nations has called for withdrawal of troops to positions held before Oct. 14, when the recent fighting in the Negev flared up.

Earlier the Israeli army said a large number of Arab sheikhs of the Negev desert had asked that their people come under the authority and protection of Israel.

Outlay on Drugs Light in Sweden

Stockholm (CP)—The average annual outlay for medicine per person in Sweden is 16 kronor, or about $4. The Stockholm resident is the greatest consumer of drugs in the country, spending approximately 31 kronor.

Lowest medicine bill in Sweden is that of the fishermen of the western province of Bohuslan, who spend less than 10 kronor a year.

Housing Scheme Proposed For Artillery School

Picton—According to word received here from Ottawa it is likely that a housing scheme in connection with the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (AA) here will get under way in the near future. Quarters for married personnel will be given preference. The housing program was delayed until it had been determined if the army camp was to be a permanent one. Such a program would help relieve the housing problem in town and permit personnel to bring their wives here.

New Post Office

Another development concerns a new post office for the village of Bloomfield. For some time purchace of a house there for such a purpose has been sought and this week an order in council was passed in Ottawa approving the taking of an option on the building. The house is owned by Morris Jenkins. The effort to get a new post office have been George Tustin, M.P., Donald Baxter, M. P. P. and G. L. Bell.

The Royal Canadian School of Artillery here is installing its own power generators to overcome inconveniences resulting from power cut-offs. A conservation program has been in effect. Many local businesses have also installed power generating plants.

Find Body of Man On Roof, Victim Of Heart Attack

London, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP) — The body of Pete Zapotichny, 56, was found today on the roof of his small cottage on London's north side where apparently it had lain all night. He had climbed on the roof late Wednesday to repair damage caused by high winds on Tuesday.

A hydro wire sagged over the roof and it was thought at first that the man had been electrocuted. Coroner A. R. Routledge found no burns on the body and said Zapotichny likely suffered a heart attack.

Germans to Work In Rand Mines?

Johannesburg (CP)—The gold mines of the Witwatersrand are seriously short of European miners and the Transvaal Chamber of Mines is worried about the position. An intensive recruiting campaign is being carried out in the Union and in Britain and Holland.

It may be necessary to recruit men from Western Germany, said H. B. Hockley, of the Government Miner's Training Schools.

Eire Bill Studied For Effect on Trade

Ottawa, Nov. 18 (CP)— The Canadian government is studying the Republic of Eire Bill to determine its effect upon trade and tariff relationships between this country and Eire, it was learned today.

Informed sources said a copy of the bill aimed at snapping Eire's last link with the Commonwealth, has been received in Ottawa and is being checked; as well, to see what effect it will have upon Canada's citizenship statutes.

"It is too early yet to come to any conclusions," one official said. "However, the changes with regard to trade and tariffs are not expected to be of any great consequence."

IN MEMORIAM

ANDREWS—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Thomas Andrews, who passed away on Nov. 18th., 1946.

Your last parting wish we would like to have heard,
And breathed in your ear our last parting word,
Only those who have lost are able to tell,
The pain in our hearts at not saying farewell.

Fondly remembered by his wife and daughters, Emma, Elva and Faye. N18

MITCHELL—In loving memory of Garnet Arnold Mitchell who passed away Nov. 18th., 1947.

Beside your grave we often stand,
With heart both crushed and sore,
But in the gloom the sweet words come,
Not lost but gone before.
God knows how much I miss you Garnet,
He counts the tears I shed,
And whispers he only sleeps,
Your loved one is not dead.
So I'll be brave dear Garnet,
And pray to God each day,
And when He calls me home to you,
Your smile will guide the way.

Sadly missed by Dorothy. N18

MITCHELL—In loving memory of our dear son, Garnet Arnold Mitchell, who passed away one year ago, November 18th., 1947.

There is a home not made by hands,
Beyond its golden door,
Awaits the one who's now away,
Not lost, just gone before.
And in that home not made by hands
The Master will prepare,
A place for us, and when He calls,
We'll meet our loved one there.

Sadly missed and dearly loved by mother and daddy. N18

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 18 — (CP) — Industrials eased slowly on Toronto Exchange today as the session progressed while golds continued firming from yesterday's declines. Base metals were also ahead and the quiet western oils strengthened.

Papers led the downward trend in the industrial groupings as trading slackened. International Paper, selling ex-dividend $2, dipped 2 1-4 at 59. Steel of Canada lost a point in a mixed steel list and refining oils weakened. Bell Telephone and C. P. R. were down in utilities.

Junior golds moved slowly upwards but weakness in the seniors tended to cut into early gains. McIntyre sold down a point at a new low of 50 and Kerr Addison weakened fractions in the seniors. San Antonio, Central Patricia, Bralorne, Eldona, Giant Yellowknife and Lake Shore strengthened.

Key base metals issues forged ahead. Smelters and Noranda were up 5-8 and Normetal, Reeves Macdonald and New Calumet firmed. International Nickel and Hudson Bay weakened.

National Unity Need is Stressed

London, Ont., Nov. 18 —(CP)— The Chamber of Commerce movement is "one of the great means of promoting unity within our country," Henry G. Birks, of Montreal, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce said today.

He told a meeting of London Chamber of Commerce the need for national unity "is borne in upon us as never before" by "fear and selfishness on the international level."

"We must have in Canada, above everything else, unity of understanding, unity of purpose, and unity of effort. Give us these three things and the buffeting of world forces will do nothing more than mould us into a strong and expanding force."

Consider Problems Arising Out Of Eire's Decision

London, Nov. 18 — (Reuters)— Lord Chancellor Viscount Jowitt and Philip Noel-Baker, Commonwealth relations secretary, are understood to have reported to the Cabinet today on this week's Paris talks concerning Eire's relationship to the Commonwealth.

Representatives of Britain, Eire, Canada, Australia and New Zealand took part in the conferences, concluded yesterday.

One of their main purposes was to bring out the full legal and constitutional implications of Eire's decision to repeal the External Affairs Act — her last link with the Commonwealth.

The Eire parliament yesterday gave first reading to the bill which is to repeal the act.

British quarters today made it clear that the Paris talks were in no sense a last-minute attempt to persuade Eire to refrain from repealing the act.

Their main purpose was to consider how the grave problems to which the repeal will give rise can be solved in a friendly and practicable manner.

London Industry Instals Generator

London, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP) — One of London's major industries, a cereal company, (Kellogg Company of Canada) will install a $100,000 diesel generator with a daily output of 24,000 kilowatt hours to ensure uninterrupted production during the hydro crisis.

In making the announcement today the public utilities commission said the company will make available surplus power to other industries. The generator will be the largest auxiliary unit in the city.

London still was meeting its quota, with a Wednesday consumption of 534,000 kilowatt hours

Deadlock Forces Bramuglia Into Peace-Maker Role

Paris, Nov. 18 (CP)—Western-power resistance that the Berlin deadlock must be settled within the United Nations Security Council has pushed Juan A. Bramuglia of Argentina back into the role of leading "peace-maker."

Bramuglia, November President of the Council, has been working behind the scenes on a new formula for resolving the Berlin dispute.

His hand strengthened by Wednesday's western-power notes, Bramuglia conferred again with Soviet delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky. They talked for nearly an hour, and are reported to have discussed a new formula for ending the crisis.

Details Not Disclosed

Details of the plan were not disclosed, but it is believed to involve some form of gradual lifting of the Berlin blockade along with a similar process of instituting the Russian-zone mark as Berlin's currency.

The separate British, United States and French answers Wednesday to U.N. leaders Herbert V. Evatt and Trygve Lie made lifting of the blockade a prerequisite to direct four-power negotiations.

The Russian reply indicated the Soviet Union would be willing to discuss the dispute either in the Big Four Council or Foreign Ministers or possibly in a meeting of the four chiefs of state.

REPORT DEER CARCASS BOOTLEG MARKET

Winnipeg, Nov. 18 — (CP) — Provincial game wardens and R. C. M. P. were reported today to be rounding up members of a ring operating a large-scale bootleg market in deer carcasses. G. W. Malaher, director of the Provincial Game and Fisheries Department, said numerous arrests had been made in the area north of here.

Shipping Firms To Probe Possible Stowaway Ring

Montreal, Nov. 18 (CP) —The possibility that an organied ring may be operating in Britain and the continent to help stowaways board ships for Canada was suggested today by a spokesman for Montreal shipping companies who said the companies intend to seek an investigation.

The spokesman said the companies intend to ask the Federal government if it is possible to investigate existence of such a ring.

So far 39 stowaraya have been caught in Montreal this season, compared with 28 last year, and a message received from the freighter Federal Pioneer, bound here from Santo Domingo said a stowaway has been found hiding aboard ship.

The spokesman said one stowaway caught several months ago told authorities he had paid to be hidden aboard ship in Europe. Two other stowaways arrested here in the last few days had their baggage with them and even musical instruments.

WILL INVESTIGATE "LEAK"

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP) —A secret quarrel in the United States Armed Forces became public Wednesday and Defence Secretary James Forrestal said he will investigate the "leak." What got out was bitter criticism of the Navy by Air Secretary Stuart Symington. He said that statements made by the navy before a Congressional committee were a "challenge of the ability of the air force to accomplish its primary mission." His statement was published in a number of newspapers Wednesday.

AIR-LIFT PLANE CRASHES

Berlin, Nov. 18 — (AP) — A British C-47 Dakota air-lift plane crashed Wednesday night in the Soviet sector of Berlin, British authorities said today. The pilot was killed and the two crew members were severely injured.

Business Spotlight

(By The Canadian Press)

Workers of diverse skills and chiefly of European origin make up the labor force engaged in the needle trades in Manitoba—an elastic term appropriate to an expanding industry.

There are about 5,000 persons employed in manufacturing caps, women's coats, sports wear, overalls, work shirts and fur garments in Winnipeg and centres such as Selkirk, Portage La Prairie, and Brandon.

Work in the needle trades is exacting, but trained employees do well financially on piece work.

In Mantioba there has been no difficulty in recruiting suitable workers. Some are drawn from former employees of the needle trades who have married and returned to their home towns. They are readily absorbed by rural branches of Winnipeg firms, for the industry has moved toward decentralization.

During the depression of the 30s, firms in the needle trades were compelled to scramble for business. Old-established enterprises formed the nucleus of the expanding industry. Large stores made small purchases at first.

Quality improved as the result of keen competition for the available business and the number of firms in the trades grew as sales became larger

Some 50 of the workers in the Manitoba plants are displaced persons, brought from Europe in a move under which they were distributed among manufacturers in Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal.

Wednesday's Markets

New York, Toronto and Montreal stock exchanges recorded general declines. The New York Board felt the effect of heavier selling pressure. Golds sagged at Toronto, and at Montreal both mines and industrials sold off. Coarse grains were irregular on Winnipeg brain exchange.

H. N. BECKER, Esq.,
Chairman of Finance,
H.M.S. Quinte,
Belleville Corps

Navy League of Canada.

DEAR MR. BECKER,—

I heartily endorse the coming campaign of the Belleville Corps of the Naval Cadets, H.M.S. Quinte.

I understand the Belleville Corps, H.M.S. Quinte has an ambitious program in store and one which I am sure will capture the imagination of the cadets who are now enrolled and provide for training of an increased number of cadets.

The work of the Naval Cadets provides constructive outlets for the natural energies, and enthusiasm of our boys. It trains the boys, teaches them teamwork and it inspires high ideals.

I hope that the Committee will raise sufficient money to enable 160 boys to be trained instead of the 100 that were enrolled this year,

Yours truly,

S. C. ANDERSON.

Time to Prepare

November draws the curtain earlier and earlier in the ing as the year moves swiftly to its close. Drivers of and trucks take perennial interest in the weather cially at this time for hazards increase and more time nt on the roads in the dark than in the summer time. November however has been acting very benignly and given a longer-than-usual lease of the mild season. But r or later the change is bound to come for November vember, a late autumn month that does grow colder more bleak.

Old Farmers' Almanac really goes in for long-range asting of weather in the United States and has set a d which is very often close to the mark in the weather the years, especially in the last five winters.

The time has come to consider that winter is winter will be here in due course. For the United States the nac believes this winter will be an icy one and will well into March. That inspires the New York Sun to crumb of comfort in the possibility of a less cold er than last year's. Mr. Weatherwise forecasts fre- t rains, and sleet storms as well as snow.

If these are the prospects of winter and even if condi- s in this part of Canada vary from the forecasts for northern States, the necessity faces the motorist to are himself with skid chains lest slippery weather . It is up to everyone to be on guard when driving alking on the highways and roads.

Japan's Warmakers

The wages of Hideki Tojo who led the Japanese into and had emissaries in Washington presumably to tiate peace, even while the Japanese military com- d were carrying out the treacherous raid on Pearl bor, will be death on the gallows, not a pleasant pros- even for that cruel and sadistic leader. The recent ment against the Japanese makers of war and prac- s of savagery, treachery and deeds of sadism which ked mankind will be accepted as just in the Allied d. There is little doubt of that.

Six other leaders will die with him and the other en who were tried will be prisoners for life.

Those whose aim was to make war as Hitler and the nese war criminals did are remnants of savagery in age which will not put up with such crimes as those which the condemned Japanese were confronted and . Those whose hands were set and who plotted nst the lives and happiness of others have proven nselves unworthy of being allowed to live in the society e modern world.

ovincial Geographical Aspects Booklets

Students of geography and social studies, in fact all ens of Canada, are interested in the story of Canada in geographical aspects. The Canadian Geographical rnal has now issued Provincial Georgraphical Aspects klets. The nine of the series issued recently make an in- taneous appeal because of the dependability and the iased account of each of the provinces. A tenth book- will be issued dealing with Newfoundland.

The project is one which does the Dominion and its vinces and the people a service of inestimable value. objective has been to provide a useful instrument to mote and consolidate unity, to hold up a mirror in ch the Provinces can see themselves and their sister vinces, and which will reflect Canada in her true and istic colors for the world at large. Research workers scientists throughout the Dominion have rendered man service, experts lent their aid and the result is up- ate authentic data. Here is historic background of province, with maps and apt illustrations of various ses of Canadian life, of industry, and the varied occupa- ns of the people, their habits and customs, their forests water resources, their hunting grounds, and the wild . The photographs and the story provide the distinctive lity and flavor of life in each of the great divisions of country. There is no better way to get to know Canada n by a journey through these booklets. They are in- ational and give an intimate understanding of Cana- n life and progress. There is so much that is not gen- lly known or appreciated which these booklets reveal t they should be of unusual value to everyone who has interest in the Dominion.

HOME FOR CHILDHOOD

w make the home a happy spot?
'd venture at the start s not from things delight is got,
But from the human heart.
children are not loved at home,
But often frowned away,
won't be long before they roam
Afar their games to play.

o lacks the heart for childhood's noise,
And orders it to cease,
e children's love of home destroys
For temporary peace,

Who will not let them tramp the grass,
And use it for their play,
Loves more a lawn than boy or lass—
A fearful thing to say!—

Who gives to carpets greater care
Than childhood's every need
May drive the youngsters off to where
From scolding they are freed.
The happy home where laughter rings
From roof to cellar floor
Comes not from cherishing its things,
But loving children more.

WHICH SIDE?

Every Bible reader recalls the description found in the Gospels of how Peter, after declaring Jesus to be the divine Son of God, immediately called forth the Lord's displeasure by denying that this same Jesus would have to suffer to fulfill his ministry. One of the modern translations has phrased Jesus' reply in graphic terms. It pictures him as saying to Peter: "Get out of my sight, you Satan! You are not on God's side, but on men's side."

Just where, as a matter of fact, do we stand in our daily living? If the sum total of our words, attitudes, actions, and influence were to be laid on the counter and then measured in some sort of supernatural balances, the accuracy of which could not be doubted, just where would we be found to stand? Would our lives as a whole be on God's side or on men's side?

For there is a difference. The kingdom of God and the ways of this present world cannot be reconciled. They do not conflict in every point but the points at which they do conflict are of overwhelming importance. Chiefly they conflict in the matter of moral purpose. The demand of the kingdom of God is that man's life should be lived wholly to God's glory. They ways of the world have but one object — the glorification of men.

Which side than are we on? God's side or men's side?

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

STILLNESS

One reason why people are so nervous and unsettled in mind these days is that they do not still long enough in one place. I often think that the patient who waits in the outer reception room of a doctor's office gets more good from this relaxation than from the medicine that the doctor later prescribes.

It's a conservation of energy, and not a waste of time, when a man or woman decides just to sit still for a time — and think. Or even not to think for a time. Too many people think more than they do, anyway.

Every moment of relaxation and stillness is health-wealth in the bank. Immediate dividends follow. We all need much in reserve, in order to face the many emergencies of life, and to meet each responsibility with coolness and courage. It would revolutionize millions of lives if people could only school themselves into devoting but an hour a day to sitting still — either at reading, quiet talk, or easy thinking!

There is an expression in the Bible that has always fascinated and attracted me. Here it is "Be still, and know that I am God." And then, in the 23rd Psalm, there is that line — 'beside the still waters."

When sorrow, disappointment, or distress comes into our lives we want to get by ourselves — alone and undisturbed. There we want to be still — to think everything over, or to sit with closed eyes in prayer. Out of this procedure there always comes a light that guides us to happier days.

And when doubts come, what better decision than to find a quiet place and sit still — to measure out our thoughts, then to piece them together and make them stand for something vital and hopeful. And then to put them to work!

There is inspiration to these Autumn days as the golden leaves fall so silently to the earth, their mission performed and fulfilled. And how quieting to the nerves and the distressed mind is the stillness of the night.

Mackenzie's Column:

Nanking Govt. Facing Greatest Crisis in History

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's direct appeal to President Truman for an American policy statement to bolster the morale of Chinese anti-communist forces arises from the greatest crisis the Nanking government has yet faced in combatting the Moscow-bolstered red rebellion.

The Generalissimo's regime is battling for its life, and he would be a hardy man who tried to predict the outcome as things now stand. But that being so, why should Chiang appeal for moral support at this critical juncture rather than for material aid?

The answer, I take it, is that China's need is so urgent it can be met only by aid that can be transmitted with the speed of a message; it can't wait for material assistance to be moved by ships across the seas. Wellington Koo, Chinese Ambassador to Washington, also made an appeal to the State Department, in which he employed language that serves to amplify the Generalissimo's message.

Oddly enough news of the Generalissimo's letter arrived at my desk in New York while I was lunching with Pen Hsueh-Peh, Chinese cabinet adviser and delegate to the United Nations, who is en route from Paris to Nanking via Washington. He had just arrived in New York by air, and one of the first questions he asked me was what American policy was to be. He explained that the morale of the hard-pressed Nationalist armies might collapse unless they received assurances of continued American support.

Under Consideration

I told Pen that the question of policy was being considered in Washington now, and that it was expected to figure in the projected conference between President Truman and State Secretary Marshall in Washington next Monday. With that Pen turned on me with a grin and asked:

"What would your policy be?"

A question like that rather flabbergasted me for a minute, and I pointed out that I didn't make Washington's policies. However, my personal feeling and that of a lot of other observers was something like this:

Quite apart from friendship, the United States couldn't afford to see China collapse and be taken into the communist camp under control of Russia. That would be giving Moscow a stranglehold on the Orient.

SEARCH DISTRICT ELSEWHERE FOR PLANE

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 17 (CP) — Planes searching for a United States twin-engined bomber missing since Nov. 5 turned towards the Peckford Island area today after the lightkeeper there reported finding a piece of aircraft wreckage.

The wreckage was not definitely identified as that of the B-25, missing with six men aboard on a flight from Washington, D. C., to Argentia in Southeast Newfoundland.

JAPANESE MINERS TRAPPED; ARE RESCUED ALIVE

Sendai, Japan, Nov. 18 (AP) — Four Japanese miners trapped in a cave-in Nov. 6 were rescued alive today. Their rescue came after days of effort and hospital attendants said the four miners were expected to survive their 12-day ordeal.

40-Mile Gale Sweeps Down Western Coast

Victoria, Nov. 18 — (CP) — A 40-mile-an-hour gale, reaching 60 in gusts, today was sweeping down the British Columbia coast and all north Pacific shipping had its hatches battened down in preparation.

It was unlikely that the new storm — the third in the last five days — would build up to the intensity of the earlier hurricane winds which took seven lives, sank three tugs, isolated communities, dashed rocks and debris on highways and railways, and snarled communication lines.

The weather bureau in Vancouver reported the gale, "not as serious as the earlier blows," would probably be all over by nightfall.

Unlike the earlier storm which reached a 15-year high of 74 miles an hour for a sustained wind, today's blow was accompanied by heavy rainfall and dropping temperatures.

Meanwhile victims of Tuesday's storm were returning to their home ports.

Three survivors of the wrecked tug St. Clair, which sank with the loss of three lives off San Juan on Vancouver Island, were due to arrive in Vancouver today.

The 10 survivors of the Seattle tug Neptune were taken into Astoria, Ore. Wednesday by the rescue cutter Balsam. Another Seattle tug, which had been towing 3,000,000 feet of lumber from Alaska, put into Prince Rupert for rudder repairs.

Port of Halifax Geared to Handle Many Ocean Liners

Halifax, Nov. 18 — (CP)—The port of Halifax was geared today for what may be its biggest job in peacetime history.

With eastern United States ports tied up by a longshoremen's strike a queue of ocean liners and other vessels — headed by the Queen Elizabeth — is due in Halifax.

The 2,000 members of the Halifax Longshoremen's Association (A. F. L.) — who staged a two-day slow-down in sympathy with the American strikers — went back to work Wednesday after examining their legal position.

The Queen Elizabeth is scheduled to arrive Nov. 24 and it is expected that the Queen Mary will sail from Southampton for Halifax next week. Harbor officials say a host of other passenger ships and freighters are expected and the boom may reach proportions exceeded only in wartime.

J. J. Campbell, Association president, said his union is legally bound to handle all ships entering the harbor and "that's just what we're going to do."

With Christmas in the offing, waterfront workers were elated to find themselves wage-earners in what for Halifax is a premature shipping season rush.

Revenue from the ocean traffic reaches to nearly every phase of life in this old port, where business ordinarily reaches its peak after the freeze-up closes off Montreal for the winter.

NEWSPRINT RATIONING TO END IN AUSTRALIA

Canberra, Nov. 18 (Reuters) — Newsprint rationing in Australia will end Jan. 1, Prime Minister Chifley announced today. Declaring his intention to disband the Australian newsprint pool, Chifley said newsprint would continue to be subjected to import licensing regulations because of the dollar shortage.

The Packsack of Gregory Clark!

My grandmother was very forehanded. When she read of the San Francisco earthquake, she promptly took steps to safeguard her own menage against the effects of a similar disaster.

The first thing she set up was an earthquake reserve of food supplies on the top shelf of the pantry. A bag of flour, tinned meat, salt, sugar and other staples, packed in sturdy containers and ready for the emergency were stowed with instructions to everybody in the house that these were never to be touched.

In the attic — figuring that the attic ruins would be on top of the rubble — she filled a trunk or two with earthquake emergency clothing. All the old heavy sweaters, spare footwear and underclothes were pinched from their familiar cupboards and marshalled in the attic trunks against this emergency. She filled a tin biscuit box with candles, bandages, medicines, pills. This trunk was never to be disturbed.

Her solution of the water problem was the masterpiece. In the accounts of the San Francisco disaster, she read of the broken water mains and the dread menace of contaminated water. Grandma had us all into the dining room for a lecture.

"Now if there is an earthquake," she commanded, "nobody, under any circumstances, flush the toilet. That tank of water above the toilet will be all that stands between us and death by typhoid."

"How about that boiler in the kitchen?" asked one of her daughters.

"You can't drink bath water!" retorted Grandma indignantly.

Water intended for the bath and bath water were the same thing to her. One of her irreverent grandchildren wrote a sign for the toilet tank: "In case of earthquakes, do not flush." Grandma died full of years; no earthquakes came; the pantry iron rations vanished; the old trunk was salvaged by the Red Cross. But sometimes in the night, when the national news bulletin is grim, we wake and remember Grandma.

A DILEMMA ABOUT A PHOBIA

The Georgia Department of Public Health has furnished antirabic vaccine for the so-called Pasteur treatment of 50,000 persons since 1925. Dr. T. F. Sellers, director of laboratories of the Health Department, stated in a report published in American Journal of Tropical Medicine that, after thirty years of practical experience, it is his belief that antirabic vaccine is not harmless, and that it has caused more deaths than has rabies when given to persons only indirectly or remotely exposed.

In five cases of "treatment paralysis", three were fatal. These five persons had been only "remotely exposed." They were given the Pasteur treatment mainly "to allay undue apprehension."

Dr. Sellers is convinced that it is not hydrophobia but rather rabiphobia (morbid or irrational fear of rabies) that constitutes the major and most troublesome problem to the practicing physician and health officer.

Thirty-two of the 50,000 persons given the antirabic treatment died of rabies, the report states. Nineteen of these deaths occurred in persons bitten severely on the face. In no instance did rabies develop after superficial face wounds. Five of the deaths followed bites on hand or arm only one death followed a bite on leg or foot.

From his observation and experience Dr. Sellers concludes that antirabic vaccine (Pasteur treatment) should be given all persons bitten or scratched by the teeth of known or suspectedly rabid animals, regardless of the outcome, as the danger of the disease (rabies) is far greater and more serious than any ill effects from the vaccine Pasteur treatment). But for exposures other than actual bites, he believes, the danger of treatment complications far exceed that of either rabies or rabiphobia.

How is that again? I (Brady) have gone over it repeatedly and every time I end up with a question mark.

I suspect that Dr. Sellers, like 99.44 per cent of the medical profession, the real doctors, I mean, who are in general practice, suffers from rabiphobia or, as it seems more logical to call it, hydrophobia-phobia.

Hydrophobia is a word invented by the benighted doctors of the early nineteenth century. It connotes what is not true, namely that the victim of the putative rabies fears water. In the spasmodic or convulsive stage of tetanus (lockjaw) the patient has extreme difficulty in swallowing because of the dryness and constriction of the throat by spasm of jaw and throat muscles. This the old timers and too many present day "authorities" attribute to fear of water.

It is interesting to note that Dr. Sellers published his report in the medical journal under the title Rabies. The Physician's Dilemma.

To a conscientious physician, yes, it is indeed a dilemma. Not to the protege the boss in another city appointed to head the health department. Such an "authority", annoyed by my views on this question, declared in published statement that "cauterizing the wound with fuming nitric acid is the only way to destroy the rabies virus"—but did not explain for the benefit of ordinary mortals how one can tell whether virus is present, let alone whether it is destroyed.

In order to clear up any misunderstanding, so far as I am able, let me say here that—

1. I don't know whether rabies occurs in man. I doubt there is such a disease in man — although nine out of ten physicians seem to believe rabies sometimes happens.
2. In any case of wound, bite or scratch by claw or talon of any kind of wild or domestic animal or bird, there is the ever present risk of tetanus (Lockjaw) infection, because the tetanus germ, Clostridium tetani, is a natural inhabitant of the alimentary tract of animals and man. To guard against this, first aid treatment of the bite or scratch should always include an immediate phophylactic dose of tenanus antitoxin and a second dose of it 5 to 7 days later.
3. If I were bitten by an animal that presumably had rabies (in the opinion of a veterinary physician) I should want only the first aid surgical treatment that is necessary for any wound, plus the tenanus antitoxin. No Pasteur treatment.
4. If you are bitten by animal or wounded by fowl or bird, the only advice I'd give you in any circumstance is this: Place yourself immediately under the care of your own physician and take whatever treatment your physician thinks necesary.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Eggs

I take a raw egg in a glass of milk three times a day, to help put on weight. Is this good or bad? (Miss H. R. W.)

Answer—It is all right, if it doesn't spoil your appetite for regular meals. Cooked egg, cooked the way you like best, is always more nourishing, more completely digested, than raw egg. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask for the pamphlet How to Gain Weight.

Comes to Work In Wife's Hat

Queenston, Cape Province, South Africa —(CP)— The manager of a local store was asked to be the model for a hat his wife planned to wear to a wedding.

Her husband reluctantly agreed but soon changed his mind and fled from the home when his wife turned her back.

A few minutes later he greeted his staff, nonchalantly — and unknowingly — wearing the new creation on his head. The staff sympathetically suggested that the boss take a long holiday.

WEDDINGS

DOYLE—REID

Holloway United Church was the setting for a very pretty wedding on November 13th at 3 o'clock when Hazel Verdena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Reid, Belleville, was united in marriage to Gerald Clarke Doyle, R.C.A.F., Trenton, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Doyle, Westchester, N.S., in a double ring ceremony. The Rev. C. A. Perkins officiated.

The ferns, yellow chrysanthemums, and pews with white satin ribbon bows, designating the space reserved for relatives and close friends, made a lovely setting for the occasion.

Mr. William Connor, organist of the church, presided at the console of the organ, and rendered the customary wedding music. Mrs. Jeffery, soloist, accompanied by Mr. Connor, sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "Because".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a grey-blue suit, with navy accessories, and carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Stanley Reid, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, and wore a wine-colored suit with black accessories, with nosegay of baby 'mums, carnations and pink roses.

Mr. Joseph Sistokas, RCAF, Trenton, was groomsman, and William Attwater, RCAF, and John Ferguson, RCAF, both of Trenton, were ushers, and like the bridegroom, wore air force uniforms of blue.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, and was beautifully decorated with ferns and yellow 'mums.

The bride's mother, wearing a dress of mauve, with grey accessories, and corsage of yellow roses, assisted by the bridegroom's mother in wine crepe with grey accessories, and wearing a corsage of pink roses, received the guests.

For travelling, the bride wore a wine ensemble with brown accessories on their honeymoon to Ottawa, Pembroke, and points east. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville, Ont.

Out-of-town guests were from Kingston, Toronto, Westchester, N.S., Eldorado, Peterborough, Pembroke, Ivanhoe, and Trenton.

Mrs. J. A. McFee Resigns Position Recording Secy.

The members of the Childrens' Aid Board met for their monthly meeting in Bridge Street United Church on Tuesday.

It was with feelings of deep regret that they received the resignation of Mrs. J. A. McFee, who has for so many years acted as a very efficient recording secretary. Mrs. McFee felt that her health would not allow her to continue longer in that capacity.

Miss Corbett, the assistant superintendent was introduced and gave a very interesting account of her work in St. John, N.B. and in Montreal.

Beside the routine reports, Mr. Lockyer brought some of the highlights of the recent Regional Conference held in Ottawa.

There are at the present time more than 300 children being cared for by the society which surely merits the interest of every citizen of the city and county.

Bridge St. Church W. A. Bazaar, Tea Delightful in Richness of Display

Gusty winds and lowering clouds failed to deter the friends and patrons from attending the delightful bazaar and tea held under the auspices of the Women's Association of Bridge Street United Church, on Wednesday afternoon, in the church parlors.

As the inner doors opened, the scene that met the eye was one of loveliness, and warmth, quiet dignity and mingling of happy voices. Here, the President, Mrs. Ralph Morden, and Mrs. Donald Amos welcomed the many guests with gracious and kindly greetings and just beyond, the Treasurer, Mrs. R. Grant, collected the monies of the treasury.

A little farther on was the tea room, charming in its simplicity of arrangement, its soft lighting from two, tall lamps, one at either end of the long tea table; its background of potted ferns, and little individual tables seating four, each with its lacey Madeira cloth and silver holder with tall green taper, pleasingly placed throughout the fenced-in space. Here, beside the red, wide open gates, were the two receptionists, Mrs. W. Northcott and Mrs. N. Montgomery, extending hospitality to each and all. Presiding over the tea table, immaculate in its whiteness, its lovely silver tea services; its crystal bowl of snowy baby chrysanthemums, and silver candelabra with tall tapers were, Mrs. H. Ackerman and Mrs. H. Rollins, who, later in the afternoon turned the honor over to Mrs. F. S. Deacon and Mrs. W. Holmes.

Busy Scene

Moving about here and there among the little tables, bearing trays of dainty sandwiches and petite cakes of every shape and color, were the servers, Mrs. T. K. Franklin, Mrs. R. Clapp, Mrs. H. Fox, Mrs. MacMillan, Mrs. O. R. Thompson, Mrs. N. Wilbur, Mrs. V. White, Mrs. H. Croll, Mrs. Jack Parrott, Mrs. I. Hefkey, Mrs. S. Robb and Mrs. M. Hill. As soon as the trays were emptied others which had been replenished by Mrs. H. McBurney, Mrs. G. Wade, Mrs. N. O'Neill, and Mrs. L. Gale took their place upon the table. The silver teapots, too, were continually being refilled by Mrs. N. S. Eaton and Mrs. C. E. Meyers from the abundant source provided by Mrs. G. Lee. And over all this were the capable conveners, Mrs. H. Seldon and Mrs. E. Buchanan, with Mrs William Hunter and Mrs. Jessie McGie at the helm in the kitchen.

The bazaar itself occupied two of the Sunday School rooms leading from the tea-room, and whether by co-incidence, or by intent, the home-cooking had chosen that with the beautiful, stained-glass window from which the Good Shepherd, whose bountiful hand had feed the hungry thousands so long ago, looked down with tender gaze upon the wonderful and bounteous array below.

Tempting Food Displayed

Here were all manner of delicious cooking, such as the eye seldom sees, and such as would satisfy the fastidious taste of the most fastidious epicurean. Here were cakes of so many varieties that one was lost in the selecting; cakes deep with cocoanut icing; rich in chocolate, cakes with nuts generously sprinkled upon their sweet toppings; angel cakes, devil cakes, and one particularly gorgeous cake which held the centre of the display, a cake with pastel-tinted green icing, topped with a holly branch and a deep-red candle; a jewel of a cake, like an emerald. Then, there were scores of dainty tarts, with many kinds of fillings, all so tempting and so mouth-watering; Maid of honor tarts, taffy tarts, Danish pastries, dream cakes drowned in minced, nut-meats; Chinese chews, lemon tarts, and jelly tarts; date loaf cakes, layer cakes, petit 4's; lemon pies, apple pies, buns, tea biscuits, croissante rolls, timbale cases for creamed chicken. jar of jellies, canned peaches showing golden in their rich syrup, hermits, fudge, fondant pinwheels, maple creams, cookies with jelly hearts, and so many and each and every one a work of cooking artistry, so delectable that the longer one looked the hungrier one became.

Green and red was the color scheme of this room. Bands of red and green edged the table, and garlands of red and silver swept across the front in long, loose, graceful loops, while vines of red and green crept up the tall pillar near by. Mrs. Jack Marsh, Mrs. C. R. Clapp and J. M. Wood were in charge of this.

Difficult to Select

The next room consisted of the apron booth and the White Elephant booth. The apron booth was convened by Mrs. B. Howard assisted by Mrs. P. C. McGuire, and had for sale aprons of so many shapes and colors and designs and all so pretty, it was hard to choose. There were two or three outstanding ones, according to desire, one of mauve organdy with bands of white bias binding around the bib, across the bottom and running up the centre and on the pocket. A truly pretty apron, dainty as a hepatica flower, and as lovely. Another was, of pink with white organdy frill, a big, generous apron, just the thing to slip on over the best dress when getting the hasty Sunday snack after church. And then here too was another patchwork apron, a regular flower garden contained in one half yard; a yellow glazed chintz apron with yellow organdy frill, like a beam of sunshine, ideal for some cold, frosty morning when skies are dark and foreboding; a dainty white tea apron, needing only the tea service, and a congenial companion to complete the picture. Then there were pairs of knitted socks, those new diamond design ones, some in brown and yellow, others in blue and red, all oozing cosy warmth. Green mitts were here, and white mitts, and hot mats, made in green crochet, all beautifully done. And away down at the far end was a cute little brown kangaroo with a little baby tucked in the cradle provided by nature. This booth was pretty in its white frilled skirt with silver trimmings.

And last, but not least, was the White Elephant booth in its black trim with white elephants mounting slowly up the sides, meandering slowly across the front and doing a circus stunt across the top. Here were all manner of articles; books, vases, shoes, a big bronze-colored ship resembling the one that brought Columbus so near to America; picture frames, a chemist craft set for some budding young chemist; tall cacti, a pot of African violets; a pretty Hawaiian dancing girl made from shells; relish dishes, beads of every shade and hue, necklaces, brooches, two doleful-looking pups that had become salt and pepper shakers—no doubt the act of some mean witch; and then there was an electric iron, complete with cord; a tempting plate of red McIntosh apples; and next came a white kid dog with blue button eyes, keen on the track of Peter Rabbit who, in his haste to escape to the refuge of the old brier patch, had turned a half somersault, and next a really lovely pinkglass salad dish with a scroll of leaves around the edge. So many things, so varied in their uses, that those who came to look, remained to purchase. In charge of this were Miss H. Sulman, Mrs. W. Ormond, Mrs. H. McCabe and Mrs. E. Fairman.

This was a charming bazaar, carefully planned, cleverly executed, and satisfactorily culminated; definitely a credit to those who so co-operatively worked together.

Canadian Education Week

Schools Need Support Of Parents and Public

Perhaps the most fundamental principle in a youngster's upbringing is consistency. If a preschool child is told one thing by Mother, and a different one by Father, he becomes confused and does not learn. If he is taught one thing at school, and the opposite at home, he cannit learn. If the youngster acquires an unreal picture of the world, he cannot adjust himself when he goes out into adult life.

If these things do happen neither teachers nor parents nor public are individually to blame.

Education is a co-operative endeavor. Teachers, parents and public must work together all the time — the one cannot function without the help of the others.

This involves:

A spirit of partnership in a great enterprise;

A desire to learn about the other partner's promlems:

—teachers to learn about parents;

—parents to learn about teachers;

—and the community to learn about the school.

Constructive criticism, given in a friendly way, and accepted as such;

Pride in the school as part of pride in the community.

The future generation will get the most out of its schooling if the school is a place that pupils want to attend. Conditions should be as good as in the best homes in the community.

Firemen Stage Ball for First Time Since War

The first dance sponsored by members of the Belleville Fire Department since before the war, the Firemen's Ball at Club Commodore on Tuesday evening was a gala and very successful affair with the large crowd enjoying itself to the utmost. In future the dance will be an annual affair, it was stated.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance excelled himself as master of ceremonies at the dance, announcing the various dance numbers and keeping the fun rolling at a fast pitch throughout the evening.

Winner of the first door prize of a radio phonograph combination was Don Frazer of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; winners of the next two model radios were Mrs. H. McKee, 248 Foster Ave., and Mrs. J. Fisher, 123 Moira Street, West.

In all there were 15 door prizes, all donated by local manufacturers and merchants, and one special prize of a Christmas cake which was won by newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. H. Meuncer. There were 15 spot dance prizes, these also being donated by local merchants.

Dorothy Lawlor, "Wife for Sale" Is Still Unsold

By SAUL PETT

New York (AP) — Dorothy Lawlor, the "wife for sale", is still no sale.

In the fiive months since she same into the public eye by advertising for a husband with $10,000, the ledgers of the shapely blonde divorcee shows: letters, 3,000; wrong steers, 100; near misses, 20; paid night club appearances, seven; all-expense-paid trips to interview prospects, two; husbands, none.

Whether it's the inflationary price or diminishing demand and increased supply, the 28-year-old Mrs. Lawlor isn't sure. But she notes that a "good man is hard to find; the woods are full of phonies—kibitzers, cranks, comedians and guys just interested in a good time, not marriage."

A Colorado rancher wrote he was worth $100,000 but later he couldn't dig up Dorothy's fare; an Ohio machine-shop owner asked twice for pictures which do "not conceal your lovely attributes" and told her to write him care of his barber shop.

An Englishman vacationing in Southern France casually invited her to "take a ship and come over here if you can afford it"; a "muscatel drinker" in Arizona apologized for having written that he was a wealthy ranch owner—he was really only a window washer, but surely, he said, Dorothy would like the Arizona air.

The two most definite offers resulted in trips for Mrs. Lawlor. One proposal from a Miami night club owner took her down there for two weeks until, she says, she discovered he was only interested in the publicity.

After that, she accepted a cabled invitation to visit a Dominican banker in Ciudad Trujillo but it turned out, she says, he was twice her age and had daughters who were her contemporaries.

"He was really very nice," Dorothy explains. "But he said he had thought I was much older." One man, after two letters, suddenly discovered his religion would frown on marriage with a divorcee. Another remembered he was still married.

Hope For Film Contract

"That's about the way it went," Mrs. Lawlor says. "Out of all the publicity, I was beginning to hope for Tommy Manville or a Hollywood contract, maybe. I like dramatics, you see. But I never came close to either.

"What gave me the idea? I was sitting in that chair, cold broke, no job. I suddenly thought this was the way to provide for my two young children and my parents. So I got a lot of publicity, so I got a few night club dates at $5$00 a week, so I'm broke again. The money was used for doctor bills and other old debts.

"But I'm not too discouraged. There's an attorney in New York who says there's a man in the Philippines and another in France who are interested in me. Maybe I'll be travelling to interview them soon. I may not get married but I'll see the world."

After her fruitless trips to Miami and Ciudad Trujillo a theatrical agent got her night club dates in Pittsburgh, Detroit, Buffalo and private clubs in West Virginia.

R. C. N. TO EXPAND

Boston, Nov. 18 (CP)—The Royal Canadian Navy will be expanded "because of the internaional situation," Rear Admiral E. R. Mainguy, flag officer, Canadian Atlantic fleet, said here Wednesday.

In Boston on a tour of naval installations, Admiral Mainguy said that "as far as I know a shipbuilding program in Canada hasn't begun as yet but the program of expansion will go into effect."

Rev. O.J. Smith Will Address Youth Fellowship

The Christian Youth Fellowship group is bringing to the city Rev. Oswald J. Smith, D.D., Litt. D., F.R.G.S., as special speaker for their monthly meeting to be held in Holloway Street United Church on Tuesday evening next.

Dr. Smith is known throughout the world as a preacher and author of distinction. He is the editor of "The Peoples" magazine and author of many hymns, one of the best known being "The Saviour Can Solve Every Problem." His many books include "Prophecy—What Lies Ahead?"

REV. OSWALD J. SMITH

Dr. Smith, who was born in Odessa, Ontario, has preached his way around the globe. His whole outlook is missionary and a familiar saying is attributed to him "Why should anyone hear the Gospel twice before everyone has heard it once?" There are no less than 135 missionaries connected with The People's Church, Toronto, of which he is pastor.

He has recently returned from a tour of Europe and while in Germany he addressed large gatherings of young people, some of these meetings numbering five thousand listeners.

Guest soloist at the meeting Tuesday night will be Rev. Leon Cook of Watertown, N.Y., who is in the city conducting special services at Grace Chapel. Mr. Cook was tenor soloist in the World's Fair Chorus and is a gifted musician. The C.Y.F. Chorus will sing some of Dr. Smith's hymns and the Salvation Army band will also be in attendance.

VON Monthly Report

The regular monthly meeting of the V.O.N. Board was held at the Y.M.C.A. on Monday evening, with Mr. C. B. Morgan, president, in the chair.

Mr. D. Burr gave the secretary's report in the absence of the Secretary Mrs. H. Francis, Mr. K. L. Reid gave the treasurer's report.

Plans for the annual meeting were discussed and a committee appointed to make the final arrangements.

Miss H. McGeary, nurse in charge, reported a busy month in October: 68 new patients were admitted an increase of 15 over October of last year. A total of 505 visits were made during the month, an increase of 124 for the same month last year. 4,634 visits were made to date this year.

A great increase has been made in visits to chronic patients, 118 having been made as compared to 33 last October. The total to date, in this group for the year, is 609 compared to 415 last year.

There also has been an increase in visits to medical and surgical patients, 1,146 being made this year to date, as compared to 814 last year.

There were 19 night calls made in October. The relief service had to be used more than usual, partly because of the assistance given in public schools.

igaret Loses Exchange alue on German Curb

By GEORGE BRIA

Berlin — (AP) — Currency re- m in western Germany has anged the fortunes of many a ck market and brought the [illegible] a thriving new one.

[illegible] igaret, once good as gold [illegible] in counters of the defeat- plunged dizzily in western rmany with the birth of the utsche mark. It held nearly its n only in blockaded Berlin, oyed up in the uncertain swirl crisis.

American cigarets used to bring out 100 marks a package. After rrency reform they dropped to out five marks. Taking into nsideration the fact that the rk was slashed on a 10 for one is the new price for cigarets [illegible] ects the heavy blow dealt [illegible] lack market.

[illegible] rlin, however, a package cigarets still gets around 10 west-marks.

Candy bars, coffee and soap, which opened many doors to easy money in the first days of occupation, also have lost much of their barter power. Men say they would rather work for the marks.

The new mark itself, resting on the European Recovery Program, made two nations out of Germany overnight, one rooted in the coal pits and forges of the Ruhr, the other chained to the dismal economy of the Soviet occupation.

A black market sprung up in Berlin as soon as Russian authorities followed the western currency reform with a money change of their own and banned the Deutsche or "Clay" mark from east Germany. The "Clay" mark hit a four for one ratio with the Soviet or "Sokolovsky" mark, and with slight fluctuations has held that ratio.

Military payment certificates (scrip) used by Americans and Britons get about 11 marks for $1 in western Germany. Real greenbacks bup 13 to 14 marks. New York set the exchange rate there at six to 10 marks for $1. At present there is no international rate except for import-export transactions where it is pegged at one mark for 30 cents.

The cigaret and candy markets in western Germany dwindled greatly even before currency reform was adopted. The boom was in the first days after the war when a week's army post exchange ration would keep a man living comfortably for a month on marks from the ration sale.

Small fortunes were built by changing marks into dollars at 10 cents each. Currency reform stopped that.

The cigaret market thrived for a couple of years, however, on shipments from overseas until these were banned in 1947.

Barter in post exchange items was still good for laundry, work around the house and auto repairs but it no longer built fortunes.

The new mark dealt a death blow to all this in western Germany, outside Berlin. The cigaret no longer is the factor it once was in German life, and its value is less than in French or Italian black markets.

London Showgirls To Discuss Wages

London — (CP) — Mass meetings of London chorus girls and film extras are likely to be called before the end of the year to discuss wages, contracts and other problems connected with their work.

British Actors' Equity Association, which has more than 8,500 members and is affiliated to the Trades Union Congress, is being "held up and frustrated on many issues on which a decision is urgent," says Gordon Sandison, general secretary.

"Active support may be needed before the end of the year," he told members.

A meeting of film workers who are also members of Equity may be held in November. Equity is calling for representation on the councils of the film industry, and it is in this field particularly that Sandisen finds grounds for complaint.

Complain About Contracts

Revision of contracts is another field in which Equity complains of "unnecessary delays." West End chorus contracts provide for a minimum of £ ($20) a week but in practice this becomes £7 as girls will not accept less.

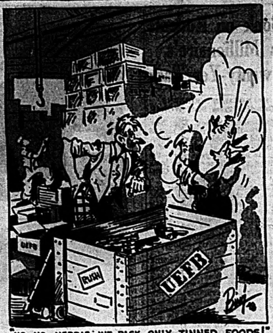
In the provinces, hundreds of Equity members are getting the minimum of £4 a week.

A new contract for repertory plays, now in preparation, provides for a minimum of £4 10s a week, but it is stipulated that no actor whose salary is £6 a week or less can be asked to provide more than two lounge suits and one evening suit.

Under the same contract actresses earning £8 a week or less must not be asked to provide more than two ordinary day dresses and one evening gown.

ARTISTIC INDIVIDUALITY

Montreal — (CP) — "The artist is an individual and always will be," Sir Osbert Sitwell, British poet, critic and novelist said here during an interview. The tendency in today's world "for us to be made into ants; the attempt to have everything standardized" is not congenial to the production of good art, he said.



"NO, NO, HERBIE, WE PACK ONLY TINNED FOODS!"

Older Age Group Replaces Youths in British Prisons

By SHAUN MCQUILLAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP)— Viscount Templewood, former British Home Secretary, says that the problem children of Britain's courts today are crmnals between the ages of 21 and 30, some of whom grew up wthout respect for God or man.

Addressing the Magistrates' Association at the Guildhall on the Criminal Justice Act, recently before Parliament, he said:

"Hitherto the chief interest prompted by the bill has been in the problems of juvenile crime and delinquency. While juvenile delinquency seems to have passed its peak, adolescent and adult crime is still increasing."

Increases in crime by the 21-30 age group were:

Theft: From 11,819 cases in 1938 to 13,985 in 1946 and 17,264 in 1947.

Breaking and entering: From 1,589 in 1938 to 3,371 in 1946 and 4,290 in 1947.

Crimes of violence: From 509 in 1938 to 823 in 1946 and 1,300 last year

"These sinister figures said Viscount Templewood, "convince me that it is the age group of 21 to 30 that needs the closest and most persistent attention from the administrators of justice and penal reformers.

"Prison governors are insistent that this is the age group in which prisoners are most difficult to manage and reform."

Maidstone prison's governor reported:

"They, (the 21-30 age group) often have backgrounds on which it is impossible to work. They have no religious belief or moral code ... they have no faith in this world or the next.

"Short sentences are worse than useless for these young criminals.

Viscount Templewood said he hoped that full use would be made of provisions under the Criminal Justice Act whereby young persistent offenders could be sentenced to long terms of corrective training.

He believed the Act would help to rationalize Britain's penal system and bring more common sense into penal administration.

The Viscount called the "urgent attention" of the great religious bodies in Britain to the gravity and complexity of these problems and asked their help in a crusade in which no government, judges, or prison workers could succeed without the motive power or moral and religious fervor.

Referring to boys between 14 and 17, he said that probation had been less used than in 1938 and short jail sentences had substantially increased. He hoped the Act would stop many of these "useless and unwise sentences that almost invariable did more harm than good to the young offender."

CLEAN SHEET

Edmonton (CP) — Hyperkeratosis — a disease which has been sweeping through certain sections of the United States and which causes thickness of the skin in cattle—is not attacking cattle on Alberta farms. The disease is known here but has not occurred "very often" in the last few years.

Railroad Watches Are Kept Correct By Careful Check

Edmonton (CP) — Tardy persons would do well to meet F. V. Pickersgill of Winnipeg, chief inspector of time service for the Canadian Pacific Railway's western region.

On an inspection tour here, Mr. Pickersgill explained some of the facts related to his task of maintaining correst time for a railroad company.

Each day, the vast C.P.R. network from coast to coast receives by telegraph key a time signal from the Dominion government observatory at Ottawa. The signal starts at 11.54 a.m. E.S.T., hits 11.55 on the nose and then repeats at 11.56 to give the listener a double check.

May Be Accurate

The timepiece in a dispatcher's office, says Mr. Pickersgill, is a key mechanism and its variation from the correct time must not exceed 10 seconds "at any time". A little more leeway is given to railway employees' watches. Even then the leeway isn't much. The watches must be checked by an inspector every two weeks and a maximum variation of 30 seconds is allowed.

In the western region, daily performance reports on the company's key clocks are filed with the Winnipeg office, "Offenders" are shipped to Winnipeg for a thorough overhaul.

The chief inspector, who has spent 22 of his 26 years service with the time service and visual branch, carries two time-keepers —a wrist watch and an official railway watch.

The wrist watch is for convenience but when official business call out comes the standard timepiece.

Asked if he used an alarm clock, Mr. Pickersgill replied: "You bet I do . . . but I never hear the darn thing."

B. C. Woman's Hobby Is Clay Modelling

Vancouver — (CP) — A graying 63-year-old woman has realized a lifelong dream and founded a career through attending an art class.

Mrs. Margaret Charlton always wanted to model clay figures.

Now her work is praised by Vancouver artists, who term some of her satiracal little figures "true mood pieces."

At a class sponsored by the Community Chest, Mrs. Charlton found an expression she had sought for years.

"I'm alone in the world," she said. "I live in two little rooms, and this is something I've wanted to do all my life."

Historic Quebec Statue of Virgin Saved From Decay

Anse St. Jean, Que. (CP)—Not even the whimisical impulses of visitors who aided weather elements in its desecration have been overlooked in the restoration of Cape Trinity's 67-year-old statue of Our Lady of the Saguenay.

Repairs to the famous white Virgin near the summit of one of three immense peaks included a roomy plaque for initial carvers

Another small plaque nearby asks would-be sculptors to "Respect the statue, write on the tablet."

The 35-foot high statue carved out of white pine means a great deal to the people of the Sagenay and La Societe Historique du Sagenay employed six men for a month restoring the statue after a public hue and cry at its state of desecration. The people contributed $4,000 toward the job.

Whole pieces of the pine Virgin had been carved away as mementoes by visitors who also had covered its lead surface with thousands of initials. Rain had almost finished the job. The pine had rotted and the statue was near collapse.

Difficult Task

Repairmen found the most difficult part of their work portaging the huge amount of lumber that had to be replaced. A rough sea kept them from landing for two days and then the lumber had to be carried up an almost perpendicular cliff some 600 feet.

Sculptured in 1881 by Louis Jobin, it was erected by Charles Napoleon Robitaille, one of the first commercial travellers to visit the Saguenay.

Stricken with an incurable disease on one of his many trips up the river, he made a vow that if he lived 10 years longer he would erect a statue to the Virgin on the 1,800 foot cape. After 10 years he kept his promise and in spite of his illness lived another eight years.

Excursion boats on the Saguenay river at night play search lights on the immense statue while ship's orchestra's play Ave Maria.

HARD TACK TO GO?

London — (CP) — Ship's biscuits, the "hard tack" of the Royal Navy and merchant ships, are likely to be replaced in favor of canned bread. The Admiralty has been experimenting with tinned bread for use in submarines and small ships which have no bakeries.

Bolster Marine Force

Washington, (AP)—The United States, bolstering its marine force in China, left open today the question of whether "circumstances" might lead to armed conflict with Communist troops.

The Navy said 1,250 marines will sail from Guam next Tuesday to reinforce the 3,600-man garrison at Tsingtao.

This force, said the navy in adding details to a surprise announcement by Defence Secretary Forrestal, "will assist in the orderly evacuation of United States Nationals through the Port of Tsingtao."

Forrestal was asked by reporters whether the Marines will fight if the Communist armies attack Tsingtao. That, replied Forrestal, is a matter for the State Department to decide.

At the State Deparment, Press Officer Michael J. McDermott took this position:

"The answer is that it all depends on circumstances and there is no answer now. I don't know what the answer will be. I can't pretend to say now what they will do in certain circumstances."

May Take Anytime

On the basis of information available here, the circumstances at this time are these:

1. Tsingtao, Yellow Sea port at the base of the Shantung peninsula, is close to Communist-controlled areas—so close that the water supply for the city is within Communist-held territory. Some experts believe that the Communists can take the city any time they choose, without much opposition from Nationalist forces.

2. In the Shanghai-Nanking areas there are about 3,050 Americans. In other sections, including the evacuation Port of Tsingtao, there are 1,574 others. These figures do not include military people such as those on the American advisory missions to Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist government.

3. The primary reason for the presence of the marines in China is to protect American lives and property. It is to be assumed that if shooting between marines and Communists should occur it would be in defence of these lives and the property they represent.

Another classroom pools its bright ideas on conservation in a suggestion box. The best suggestion or motto is picked each day and illustrated on the blackboard. "Save power every hour," and "Take care, have power to spare" are two favorites, illustrated by houses showing only one light.

Wins Polite Cheer For Halting Horse Startled by Signals

London, Nov. 18 — (AP) — Lewis Douglas, former principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University and now United States ambassador here, got a polite cheer today for subduing an ornery horse with a frightened woman aboard.

The animal, startled by traffic lights at Hyde Park's Albert Gate, reared in front of Douglas' car Wednesday, the ambassador hopped out, grabbed the reins and led the plunging horse to the nearby Rotten Row bridle path.

Explained the Daily Mail: "Mr. Douglas has been a rancher i n Arizona."

Movie Star Poses In Engine Cab, Train Starts Late

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP)— The train for Montreal left here 12 minutes late this morning while Torontonians said hello to movie star Ronald Reagan.

Reagan, who is en route to Halifax where he will board a ship for Britain, posed in the engine cab, a pipe in his mouth and an engineer's cap on his head, while passengers crowded around to watch.

"Take our pictures!" railway workers shouted. "After holding the train up for 12 minutes we deserve it."

Book on Rodents Is Millionaire's Twenty-Year Task

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Eastbourne, Sussex, Eng. Nov. 18 (CP)—Birtain's richest man 38 year-old Sir John Reeves Ellerman, is nearly at the end of a task he began 20 year ago —the writing of a three-volume book entitled "The Families and Genera' of Living Rodents."

Tall, with long brown hair and a nervous smile, he is often called Britain's shyest millionaire. His fortune, built on shipping, land, breweries and newspapers, is estimated at £37,000,000 ($148,000,000) and is shared by his Canadian wife, formerly Esther de Sola of Montreal.

Sir John has been collecting information for his 750,000 word book since he was 18, but the idea for it was born when, as a boy he kept porcupines as pets.

He was 23 when his father, a shipping magnate, died, leaving him the greatest fortune ever recorded in Britain —an estate of nearly £40,000,000. The world of trade lay before him but, instead he chose the world of rodents.

The family business headed by Sir John's cousin, Sir William Cox, continued to prosper —and Sir John's book on rodents grew larger and larger. The final chapters are being written in his 20-room mansion standing in two acres of wooded land encircled by a six foot wall topped with a three foot hedge.

Complete Seclusion

Here Sir John enjoys complete seclusion. His name appears in no directory. His telephone is not listed and is known only to a few intimate friends. Few people in Eastbourne would know him if they saw him.

In the writing of his book, Sir John has been assisted by his wife, who studied art in London and Paris before she married him in 1933. As Lady Ellerman she has made many of the sketches of skulls, jaws and skin formations which will be used as illustrations.

The book, described as "collossal" by zoologist M. A. C. Hinton, who is editing it, will be dedicated to the late Sir William Cox.

Sir John is a trained accountant and his book is said to be as systematic as an auditor's report, as objective as a balance sheet. Year by year, probing all the evidence which other experts have produced, Sir John whittled the 440 forms or groups of rodents which had been given full generic rank down to 343.

Some days he does research at the London zoo and the Natural History museum. The staffs there are pledged to silence about his work. So is his secretarial staff.

LOAD OF GLASS TOPPLES ON TRUCK DRIVER

Hamilton, Nov. 18 (CP)—George H. Robinson, 43-year-old truck driver of Toronto, was in critical condition in St. Joseph's Hospital here today, suffering internal injuries after a load of glass toppled on him.

The accident occurred at Hamilton Beach. Robinson is reported to have stopped to help another driver straighten a shifting load of glass.

The load toppled on Mr. Robinson, crushing his chest.

COOL INTRUDER GETS $38

Brantford, Nov. 18 (CP) — While a customer waited at the counter and an employee checked the stockroom for machine repair part, an unidentified man strode into the firm of Greenwood and Plaunt, Darling Street Wednesday helped himself to $38 in the cash register and calmly walked out.

Police are searching for the intruder.

Murderer Hanged For Stabbing Of Chambermaid

Norwich, Norfolk, England, Nov. 18 — (AP) — Stanley Clark, 34, first murdered to be hanged in Britain since last Feb. 19, [illegible] with his life today for killin[illegible] boarding-house chambermaid.

Clark, a pig dealer, pleaded guilty to stabbing Florence Bentley to death at Great Yarmouth.

Twenty-eight other condemned men have been reprieved since the House of Commons voted last April 14 to suspend the death penalty for murder for an experimental five-year period.

The no-hanging clause, par[illegible] the criminal justice bill, later rejected by the House of [illegible] The second chamber also refused to accept a compromise which would have established two degrees of murder, the first punishable by death.

Another murdered, Peter Griffiths, 22, is under sentence to be hanged tomorrow. He was convicted of the murder of the three-year-old June Devaney, who was snatched from a ward cot and battered to death on the grounds of a hospital at Blackburn.

Vescio to Hang On Friday For Sex Murder

Winnipeg, Nov. 18 (CP)—Pudgy, dark-haired Michael Angelo Vescio, 23, will mount the gallows at nearby Headingley jail ome time after midnight tonight r the sex-murder of 13-year-old George Robert Smith more than two years ago.

Barring an unexpected last-minute reprieve, the Port Arthur youth will meet death for what police described at the time as one of "the most atrocious crimes ever committed on the North American continent…or elsewhere."

Vescio was convicted by an as- court jury of Smith's murder ov. 24, 1947 with sentence to be hanged imposed by Chief Justice E. K. Williams of Court of King's Bench.

A second murder charge, in connection with the sex-slaying of another 13-year-old Winnipeg boy Roy Evan McGregor, Jan. 4, 1946, was not pressed.

McGregor's body was discovered huddled in a coal bin in a south Winnipeg fuel yard, a bullet wound through the head. Police described the unknown slayer as a "sex-crazed killer" and said the boy was criminally assaulted. They also confirmed that at least four other youths were sexually mistreated within four months of the slaying.

Nine months later the story was repeated. On Sept. 18, 1946, George Robert Smith was accosted a stranger while on his way me from a Boy Scout meeting. he next morning the boy's body was found in a back alley, shot through the head and stripped to the waist.

TIDAL PORTS—The famous Bay of Fundy tidal bore is a tourist attraction for the Maritimes but skippers of vessels which use the busy ports on Minas Basin in Nova Scotia would be quite happy if the attraction were missing. The 25-foot tides which surge up the Avon River to the ports of Windsor, Port Williams, Avonport, and Hantsport twice a day pose navigation problems for the sailors. Photo on left shows the British freighter Edda floating as a ship should beside the dock at Windsor, N.S. The dark waterline on the pier indicates the tide has already started to recede. Photo on right shows the Edda resting on a hardwood grid, held upright against the pier by its lines, but high and dry as far as water is concerned. Through these "waterless harbors" flow large quantities of apples, fertilizer and lumber to foreign ports. (CP Photo)

30 Mennonites From Canada Die In Paraguay

Winnipeg, Nov. 18 (CP)—Sickness was reported today to have killed more than 30 members of the Mennonite group of 1,700 which went from Western Canada to Paraguay last summer.

B. B. Dublenski, Winnipeg lawyer who acted as legal counsel for the Mennonites and who accompanied them on the trip to South America, said he had been told of the deaths in a letter from one of the band. The writer since had returned to Manitoba with other Mennonites.

Mr. Dubieenski said the letter had said 30 children and several adults had died. All children among the emigrants had contracted dysentery from the change in water, Mr. Dubienski said, and this disease had been responsible for the deaths.

He said he knew of only three families that had returned to Manitoba because of dissatisfaction with their lot in Paraguay, where other Mennonites settled in 1926.

He identified the letter writer as Peter F. Heppner, now located at Altona, Man. Yesterday it was reported that two Mennonite families which had returned to Altona from Paraguay nad claimed that more would follow because of extreme hardships and bickerings among the group.

Mr. Dubienski said yellow fever was a menace where the Mennonites had settled in Paraguay, but that conditions generally were good. He added that the Mennonites had decided to move to a new land because the eldrs felt too many of the young people were drifting away from the tenets of the sect. The Mennonites are descendants of Dutch families who fled centuries ago to Germany and then to Russia.

Two instances of auto theft were reported to city police during the night. One of the autos was recovered by police this morning.

William Morton of Stirling also reported that his auto had been stolen and this morning it had not been recovered. The Morton car had been parked on Station Street near the C.N.R. Station and was reported stolen a short time before midnight.

William Brant, Toronto, driver for Carwill Transport, reported a handbag stolen from the cab of his truck while it was parked in the city.

RCMP Round up Man. Bootleg Marketeers Of Deer Carcasses

Winnipeg, Nov. 18 — (CP) — Provincial game wardens and RCMP were reported today to be rounding up members of a ring operating a large-scale bootleg market in deer carcasses, extremely profitable because of high meat prices.

G. W. Malaher, director of the provincial Games and Fisheries Department, said numerous arrests had been made in the area north of here. Radio-equipped patrol cars and a plane have been employed in the round-up.

Flying over the area where poachers were believed at work, the air observer spotted poachers' lights and directed the cars by radio.

Mr. Malaher said a central market has been set up in Winnipeg to distribute the meat. Carcasses sold at $25 to $30 and a dressed carcass yielded 80 to 100 pounds of meat. He said the carcasses were obtained from hunters shooting for sport, although out of season, and from an organized band using lights and working at night.

Book Author Gets 20-Year Term

New York, Nov. 18. (AP)—The author of a book titled "How to Commit Murder and Get Away With It" was sentenced to 20 years to life today—but for robbery.

Dapper Daniel Francis Ahearn, 45, shouted: "I thought Hitler was dead" after he was sentenced. Judge Owen W. Bohan imposed the sentence on Ahearn as a fourth offender.

The writer was convicted Oct. 27 of second degree robbery in connection with the beating of a 26-year-old department store buyer. Ahearn was accused of taking $2,000 in jewelry and $200 in cash from her.

Ahearn told the court: "I never assaulted or robbed any woman, but was kind to them. My trial was held in Nazi fashion. I feel that the court insulted itself in allowing a book to hang me."

"How to Commit Murder and Get Away With It", describes how to get away with everything up to and including murder. In 1934 Ahearn said he was still receiving royalities from the book, which had been published in seven languages.

The car was discovered some days later abandoned in a woods in the Read district. When found the car was minus two tires and wheels, and the gasoline tank had been drained.

Provincial Police Constables Chas. Sipia and Jack Hurrie, who investigated the car theft, stated today that the apprehension of the two young men and the recovery of the stolen tires was "one in a million." Apprehension of the two men resulted from the chance questioning of a local resident who owned a car similar to that which had been stolen.

The questioning revealed the owner of the local car had recently purchased two white wall tires from two young men. The tires later were found to have been the ones taken from the Meagher vehicle. The wheels were found under a barn in the Holloway district.

Police believe the two young men had been in the Read district on the night in question and had run out of gasoline with their car. They believe the Meagher car had been driven several miles to a secluded spot where the tank was drained, the tires and wheels stolen, the tires later being sold in Belleville.

GEN. DE GAULLE QUESTIONS RECENT DECISION OF U.S.

Declares Marshall Plan Must Not be Allowed to Displace Interests of France

Paris, Nov. 18 (AP)— Gen. Charles de Gaulle declared Wednesday the Marshall Plan must not be allowed to displace "the essential interests of France."

The war-time resistance leader whose party has moved into a strategic position in the Upper House of Parliament questioned the recent decision of the United States and British military governments to return control of Ruhr industries to German trustees.

He renewed his insistance that the defence of France must not be "centred in England," and declared that the Communist party should be outlawed if it is true, as the government charges, that the Cominform has been financing French strikes.

In an apparent reference to the plans undertaken by the Western European Alliance for coordination of their military defences, de Gaulle said it is hard to harmonize the defence interests of Britain and France.

"An organization for European defence centred in England is not a good organization," he said. "It is not acceptable to France. It is inconceivable that the defence of France should be assured by anyone other than the French themselves."

Will Meet in France

Unofficial reports have said the defence headquarters for the five-nation Western European Alliance —France, Britain, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg —will be in Fontainebleau, southwest of Paris.

He made no mention of the projected North Atlantic Military Alliance which would link the United States and Canada with the Western European link.

The general spoke at a press conference which was prompted by the success of his Rassemblement du Peuple Francais in capturing more than 40 per cent of the council of the Republic. The council has only an advisory capacity, but by refusing to approve National Assembly measures can force the Assembly to vote on them a second time when an absolute majority is needed to make them law. Considering the present division in the Assembly these absolute majorities are hard to get.

De Gaulle whose strategy is to force the Assembly to dissolve itself, reiterated that it should quit and call new elections which he thinks would sweep him into power.

De Gaulle said the British and American Military Governments' decision to turn Ruhr mines and steel mills over to German trustees was the gravest decision made so far during the Twentieth Century," and added:

Had No Difficulty

"England and America flatter themselves they can make something of the Reich to oppose against Russia. Perhaps they can. But perhaps not. Hitler had no difficulty reaching an accord with Russia when he wanted to dominate Europe and France. To which side will the new Reich turn? The question is disturbing.

Commenting on the wishes of the United States and Britain for the French to merge their occupation zone of Germany with the British and American zones, de Gaulle said "I am told that if we don't this might stop the operation of the Marshall Plan."

"And what then?" he demanded. "We have lived for centuries without the Marshall Plan. On the contrary, I have said everything good about it that I can think of. But above the Marshall Plan are the essential interests of France."

GRAND CHAMPION STEER OWNED BY ROCKWOOD BOY

Aberdeen - Angus Animal From Same Sire as Winner Last Year

Toronto, Nov. 18. (CP)—Championships came thick and fast Wednesday at the Royal Winter Fair with the final judging of market steers, Ayrshires, Holsteins, potatoes, barley, oats and other seeds.

Topping the list of livestock winners was the grand champion steer of the fair—Cannonbally, a year-old Aberdeen-Angus steer owned by Lloyd Mack of Rockwood, Ont. The winner was by the same sire as Lucky, which won last year's grand championship at the fair for the Rockwood farmer.

A western steer owned by Ed Noad, of Olds, Alta., won the reserve grand championship, losing out to Cannonball in the final judging.

Three world championships in oats, barley and potatoes were awarded to two westerners and one Ontario farmer. "World King" awards were initiated at the fair last year in wheat, barley and oats, and this year rye and potato crowds were added.

The two grain kings are Louis Robbins of Laura, Sask., who showed Hanchen barley, and John Boulton of Abee, Alta., with Larain oats. They join a third grain champion, John Allsop, who was crowned wheat king on Tuesday. Only one world award, in rye, has yet to be decided.

Potato King

Potato king was Arthur Budarick, of Palmer Rapids, Ont., whose Katahdin potatoes won out over the netted Gem potatoes of Mrs. Grace Paul, of Newgate, B.C., who was named reserve world champion.

A capacity crowd of approximately 8,000 at the horse show last night saw Hatuay, a Mexican gelding jumper ridden by Capt. Ruben Uriza of the Mexican military jumping team, win the second successive prize for his Olympic-champion team.

Grand championship Holstein and Ayrshire bulls were also named.

Top Holstein bull at the Fair was Chip of Nettie and Aaggie, a nine-year-old bull shown by Franlo Farms, of Hopkins, Minn. At 3,300 pounds, he was the biggest animal in the show. The massive bull reversed a defeat at last year's fair to repeat his triumph won in 1946.

The Fair's grand champion Ayrshire bull was Smithson Ivanhoe, owned by J. H. Black, of Lachute, Que.

Reserve grand championship for Holstein bulls went to Sovereign Supreme, entered by J. M. Fraser of Streetsville, Ont.

Sir Burton's General, owned by Rupert McIntyre and Sons, of French, Ont., was chosen reserve grand champion Ayrshire bull and reserve senior champion.

Ten of the main seed championships were decided yesterday. They were: Corn, G. Tellier, St. Joachim, Ont.; Clover, R. Bernard, Bourget, Ont.; Grasses, MacMillan Bros, Dalkeith, Ont.; Peas, J. H. Frisby, Markham, Ont., and O. Timmins, Pakenham, Ont.; Alfalfa, Sam Horton, White Fox, Sask.; Flax, Louis Wendell, Neudorf, Sask.; Rye, R. Wennerstrom, Camrose, Alta.; Soybeans, R. Tulte, Woodslee, Ont., and Beans, Angus D. McLean, Parkhill, Ont.

SERVES LARGER POPULATION

Toronto, Nov. 18 — (CP)—Toronto serves "over three times as large a population as Hamilton, takes almost three times as much horsepower from the Ontario hydro; but has a daily quota from the Ontario commission only double that of Hamilton," Bert Merson, vice-chairman of the Toronto Hydro Commission said today.

He was commenting on a statement made yesterday by A. W. Brandt manager of the Hamilton hydro, that he "doubts Toronto could do the same" in saving sufficient power to avoid daily interruptions.

Britain Asks U.S. For Bernadotte's Plan for Palestine

Motion Calls for Committee To Supervise the Division

Paris, Nov. 18 — (AP) — Britain formally asked the United Nations today to apply the late Count Folke Bernadotte's plan to Palestine.

The British delegation submitted to the 58-member political committee a resolution following the lines of the slain mediator's final report. The resolution calls for a conciliation commission of three countries to supervise the division of Palestine between Arabs and Israelis.

The resolution suggested that the conciliation commission also take over, at the request of the Security Council, any or all functions of the acting mediator, Ralph J. Bunche, and the present United Nations Truce Commission.

The conciliation group also would appoint a technical boundaries commission to aid in outlining frontiers in Palestine "based on specific conclusions" of Count Bernadotte, and "subject to such adjustment as may promote agreement" between the Arabs and Jews.

The proposal was placed before the committee following a debate on the Palestine situation. British delegate Hector McNeil expressed hope the full General Assembly would support the Bernadotte plan.

The endorsement of the plan was the first in the committee by any major U. N. member.

The chief points of the Bernadotte report are the assignment of the Negev Desert in the south of the Arabs, giving western Gallilee to the Jews and placing Jerusalem under U. N. control.

Israel opposes giving up the Negev area, which was given to it in the Assembly partition plan of Nov. 29, 1947. Israel contends also that Jewish Jerusalem and a corridor from Jerusalem to the coastal area of Israel must be given to the Jews.

The Arabs also have rejected the Bernadotte plan. They oppose any form of partition of the Holy Land and demand a single Palestine state.

Make Attempt To Refloat Steamer Milverton

Cornwall, Nov. 18 — (CP) An attempt will be made either Friday or Saturday to refloat the steamer Milverton from a reef in the St. Lawrence River west of Morrisburg, Transport Department officials announced here today. The Milverton was involved in a collision with the oil tanker Translake 24, 1947 and 12 of her crew were killed in the resulting explosion and fire.

Tests have been carried out on pumps which will draw water from the submerged afterend of the coal carrier. Slings now are being placed in position beneath the hull to hold the vessel when she is pumped out and floats free as expected.

It is planned to tow the vessel to Kingston.

Radiant Heat Will Help Keep Road Free of Ice

Detroit, Nov. 18 (CP)— Radiant heat will help keep two 500-foot sections of eight mile road free of ice and snow this winter.

Heating grids have been installed experimentally in both concrete and bituminous surfaces by the State Highway Department. Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler said that Michigan, so far as he knew, was the first state to undertake such a project.

The grids, 98-foot sections of sidewalk reinforcing mesh, 18 inches wide, are imbedded an inch and a half beneath the road surface, underlying the wheel tracks. Control by thermostats they will be heated by electricity whenever the roadway temperature drops below freezing.

Electrical equipment for the 1,000 foot test area cost $2,500 Ziegler said and will last 20 to 25 years, the life of the pavement.

Dognappers Seem To Have Added 'Catnappings'

Hamilton, Nov. 18 (CP)—Three or four daily complaints to police indicate that Hamilton district "dognappers" have added "catnappings" to their operations officials of the Hamilton branch of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said today.

Society officials charged that one blue and another red panel truck were in operation in other parts of the province. They said pets were kidnapped and taken to a laboratory "probably in Toronto' for vivisection.

The officials reported that a black panel truck used in the capture of scores of Hamilton dogs and cats was an old hearse. The hearse made its appearance in nearby Westdale during the summer and turned up recently in eastern sections of Hamilton.

AFTER A TWO YEAR HIKE OF FREEDOM . . .

This group of 136 Russian men, women and children left Communist-dominated Sinkiang province in China in December, 1946, and has just arrived in Shanghai. As this photo was made, the arrivals were being fed by the International Refugee Organization. Members of the group showed great reluctance to talk and beyond saying they "did not like it," refused to state their reasons for leaving Sinkiang. However, most of the refugees had previously fled from the Soviet Union and settled in Sinkiang, but the spread of communism engulfed them there, too, and they just moved again. Meanwhile, Chinese Communist troops have been hurled back east of the vital government base of Suchow, in which Nanking hailed as a major victory. A Communist assault to the south, however, threatens to encircle Suchow, which is 200 rail miles northwest of Nanking (Central Press Canadian)

New York Herald Tribune — " . . . He will have the sincere good wishes of Americans . . . who have been close to the successes he has won and the causes for which he has fought."

Hamilton Stays Within Quota

Hamilton, Nov. 18 — (CP)—In a province beset by dim-outs and power blackouts, the city of Hamilton stands out as an oasis of light.

Not a switch has been pulled or industry interrupted nor a home blacked out during Ontario's current electricity shortage. A survey showed Wednesday that thanks to conservation methods the city has stayed within its daily power quota.

Factors helping the situation are the high concentration of heavy industry, the fact almost every industry is working weekends or during non-critical weekday hours, an aggressive conservation program and the fact that the city's biggest industry (The Steel Company of Canada) generates its own power.

6,000 New Homes Completed in Sept.

Ottawa, Nov. 18 — (CP) — More than 6,000 new homes were completed in Canada during September.

The Bureau of Statistics Wednesday placed the number of new units at 6,667, bringing the total for the nine months ended Sept. 30 to 50,238. Starts were made on 10,651 units during September and the total number under construction at the month-end was 63,656.

Since April, starts have exceeded completions every month and the number of units under construction has increased by more than 21,000 from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30, distributed over all regions. The prairies, with construction more than doubled in the nine months, showed the greatest increase.

The bureau said it is expected larger numbers will be completed in the last three months of this year and that the total for 1948 will reach 80,000. In 1947 the number of completed dwelling units totalled 73,300, excluding conversions.

The bureau estimated that 27 per cent of the units completed were for rental purposes, with the remainder being owner-occupied.

Dickens' Son Rider of Plains

The force's tie-in with the creator of Mr. Pickwick, David Copperfield, Mr. Micawber, and the Wellers, rests on official records, yet has the glamor of mystery, T. Morris Longstreth writes in the R.C.M.P. Quarterly.

Charles Dickens' third son and fifth child was born January 15, 1844, and christened Francis Jeffrey. Later he was nicknamed Chickenstalker by his affectionate and doting father. For some unexplained reason he was educated on the continent. He was brought back to England to go into business but could not stick it and left for India to visit his brother Walter, who died while Francis Jeffrey was on the way out. He joined the Bengal Police and became district superintendent in his 20's.

Back To England

At Charles Dickens' death in 1870, Francis Jeffrey, now suffering from sunstroke, returned to England. In spite of inheriting his father's gold watch, he was not always punctilious as regards time. He outstayed his leave in London and lost his commission in India. He came to Canada in the spring of 1874 and on Nov. 4 of that year was appointed sub-inspector in the new North West Mounted Police, as the force was then known but "lost" a couple of days in Toronto.

This lapse from punctuality cost the junior officer nearly $200 as he had to defray the expenses incident to rejoining the force from his own pocket.

However, he shook down into the service and saw 12 years of active duty which culminated in the half-breed uprising of 1885 and his defence of Fort Pitt, a police outpost on the north branch of the Saskatchewan River.

Historical Fact

This story can be read in all the histories. His gallantry was praised in the press and a medal awarded. Sir Henry Fielding Dickens, the last surviving child of the great novelist, shortly before his death 15 years ago, asked that this medal be placed in some museum connected with the Mounted Police and for the past five years it has reposed in the R.C.M.P. Museum at the depot barracks.

Francis Jeffrey's increasing deafness and debility led to his being invalided in 1886 with a gratuity of 12 months' pay in appreciation of his services. Three months later he was dead. His body lies buried at Moline, Ill.

The mystery begins when one starts to think about this man, so long in a responsible position, so little known. His father's biographers barely mention him. His brother officers found him an enigma. A few intimates called him "Dickie", but his manner is most often described as absorbed, almost morose. He had two confidants, an Irish retriever and a favorite shotgun.

Spared Questions

The most familiar picture given by his associates is that of a thin, smallish, heavy-bearded man with reddish brown hair strolling off on the prairie with these companions, neither of which could embarrass him with questions.

People persisted in asking why he did not follow in his father's footsteps and write books. When sufficiently goaded he had an answer to that. He would write one book, he said acidly. Its subject would be the prohibition-dry Northwest Territories, its title "Thirty Years Without Beer." It would have been a corker.

It is a commonplace that the sons of genius almost never exhibit the drive, the intensity, the quality of inspiration of the father. So one accepts Francis Jeffrey's differences, his saturnine moods in contrast to Charles Dickens' expansiveness and exuberance.

"Fruits of Solitude"

Perhaps his coldness was a mask for sensitiveness. Perhaps his tendency to withdraw may have been a seeking of what William Penn called the "fruits of solitude". It must be difficult to be the offspring of one of the most loved and idolied men of your time. To Francis Jeffrey it may have grown intolerable.

Yet I think the mystery goes deeper than that. "Why did Francis Jeffrey Dickens decline to talk about his father? Where was the natural pride in such a family celebrity? In a broadcast, Mr. James McCook pictures Charles Dickens' gold watch that "timed the pages of David Copperfield and marked the minutes as the Indians howled about Port Pitt" as a drama of contrast which the elder Dickens would have seized with rapture. But the son disposed of the gold chain to a batman and the watch itself to an acquaintance. Did he feel no attachment to the heirloom? Or none to his living father? And if so, why? Some psychoanalyst may have the answers?

Woman Offers Free Trip on How To Pick Double

Bowie, Md., Nov. 18 — (AP) — An elderly woman, one of the 11 persons at the Bowie race track who had a ticket on a $2,942.80 daily double Wednesday offered this free tip on how to pick winning combinations:

Watch telephone poles.

After pocketing a cheque from the track and admonishing reporters not to use her name "because my husband wouldn't like it," she explained her luck this way:

"I was riding to the track on the train and was wondering what to play in the daily double when, for some unknown reason, I looked out of the window and noticed the numbers 11 and 8 on one of the telephone poles.

"I just couldn't get those numbers out of my mind. When I reached the track, I walked to the sellers and asked for 11 and 8."

The No. 11 horse was Reighaway which won the first race and paid $35.80 for $2. No. 2 was St. Elmo, Jr., winner of the second race at a price of $150.80 for $2.

Together, the combination paid the highest double of the year at a Maryland track.

Comb Pacific Isles For Lost War Fliers

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — An expedition of more than 100 men is still combing the lonely islands and out-of-the-way spots of the Pacific in search of last war fliers.

Members of the expedition under Capt. E. L. Harrison, U. S. Army, are now in Australia to check reports that may lead them to aircraft that disappeared in this country.

The unit is based on Honolulu and comprises men drawn from all branches of the United States forces. It operates in the Central and South Pacific.

Since leaving Honolulu in June Capt. Harrison and his team have investigated a number of cases with "gratifying success."

Members of the expedition said their work was like that of detectives, with all kinds of clues to investigate. Some of the clues take weeks to delve into and then amount to nothing, but they all must be checked. In the New Hebrides the party got a tip from a vague native that he had seen an American plane crash up on a mountain side during the war. They took a week to get up the mountain but found the plane, a fighter, and buried the remains of the pilot. Similar cases are reported from all over the Pacific.

While in Australia one section of the unit will work up the eastern states to Townsville, where they will link up with the others working in from Perth, West Australia, through the Northern Territory and the Gulf of Carpentaria. They are expected to join forces before Christmas.

Pensioner Refuses To Talk of His Good Fortune

Vancouver, Nov. 17 — (CP) — An old-age pensioner today remained hidden behind locked doors while Vancouver newspapermen futilely tried to ferret out his reaction to a $64,000 inheritance.

Herbert Alexander Ross, 63, buried himself in his room Monday night when the news of his good fortune reached the newspapers in a Canadian Press report from Manchester, Eng.

"He won't talk to anybody," his landlady, Mrs. N. Traversey, yelled from atop a flight of stairs in the rooming house which he shares with 13 other pensioners.

The Manchester report said Ross inherited the money from his uncle. Ross' counsel claimed the money was concealed from Ross by "a wicked uncle" for 50 years. For 40 years Ross "walked the length and breadth of Canada as a laborer," his representative said.

Fears Many May Continue to Use Own Hydro Power

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP)—E. C. Roelofson, member of Toronto Board of Control, said Tuesday many Toronto businesses are becoming independent of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission and will probably continue to use their electric power generating facilities when the current shortage ends.

"As the shortage continues more and more industries which used to be large users of hydro power are finding their own sources," he told a meeting of Toronto Women's Electors' Association. "This means that when the shortage is eased, businesses with their own power making equipment may use it rather than switch back. It may create an awkward situation."

"This is a serious encroachment upon one of our oldest and best established public utilities."

Constable Queries Man in Sombrero

Toronto, Nov. 17 — (CP) — He might have been someone out of the Old West with his 10-gallon sombrero, his bearskin coat with coon collar and his twanging banjo.

And when Constable Jack Elliott questioned him, the stranger said he had a horse too. He pointed to a bicycle, which carried a western bridle in a wire basket, and said that the bike was his horse.

But the bicycle cowboy refused to say who he was or from where he came. Police said he would be held as a vagrant.

r those who haven't any odd es to make into novel gifts, aps there are odd pieces of ics that can be made into ern accessories. At a recent ion show we saw a smart belt ed together with velveteen, serge in 3-inch rectangles and te sequins sewn on domino erns.

To make slippers from an old felt hat is not difficult. Cut the hat up the back to the crown, steam, press flat and scrub with a brush dipped in soap suds. Then use a pattern for best results or buy insoles that can be sewn.

From top to toe there are ideas for using out-dated materials in modern yet practical gifts.

COOKING HINTS TO SAVE ELECTRICITY

1. Use canned cream soups for sauces often. Never let them boil . . . .only heat hot enough to eat.

2. Blend flour into meat juices, then add hot water to make the best brown gravy quickly.

3. A layer cake may be baked in 35 minutes at 375 degrees, while the same batter in a square tin requires 55 minutes at 350 degrees.

4. Bake a meat loaf mixture in muffin tins for even servings and it cooks quickly this way.

5. Scalloped potatoes made with a hot cream sauce require only half the baking time.

6. Shred cabbage, turnips and beets on a slicer and using a small amount of water, cook the vegetables in fifteen or twenty minutes depending upon the amount.

7. Pastry turnovers are more quickly baked than heavy fruit pies and baked on a jelly roll pan require 20 minutes, at 400 degrees.

8. Use a pint measure to fill your tea kettle and heat only the required amount of water for tea. (There are commercial powders available at your electrical dealers which should be used to remove lime from your tea kettle.)

9. To hard cook eggs, wash them and put in the potato kettle for exactly ten minutes. This saves turning on an extra electric element.

10. The pressure cooker may be used to cook a number of different foods in the same pan. Make full use of this quick cooking utensil. Watch the clack to prevent over-cooking.

"Confidentially I owe a lot of my oomph to Libby's"

The upsets which often accompany baby's first solid foods are caused by the fact that baby's immature digestive system cannot completely digest coarse fibres and the cellulose walls of food cells. Even the most careful straining does not break them down.

But Libby's patented homogenization process pulverizes them before the process of digestion begins so that baby's digestive juices can immediately act on the liberated nourishment.

As a result, baby can digest Libby's quickly and completely. He gets more nourishment than from the same amount of food which has been strained but not homogenized, and with less risk of digestive disturbance.

Small and Smart

AFTER ALL THE moonlight and roses, ostrich feathers and lace, we'll settle for the beautiful, beguiling, artless little hat fashioned of fine fabric deftly manipulated, with the trimming only used because it is an integral part of the design. As a prize example of our theme here is one of the delightful pinhead series from Mr. John, Inc. That talented designer has taken a hood of pewter gray beaver felt and fashioned it into a little peaked bonnet trimmed effectively with pearl-headed pins and a neat little veil.

Some Out-of-the-Ordinary Ways to Serve Potatoes

Potatoes were discovered by the early Spanish explorers who were searching for gold in South America. Over the centuries potatoes have become so widely used that they are just as valuable to humanity as the gold for which those early adventurers sought.

Potatoes are one of the most popular foods. Nearly everyone likes them. Being bland in flavor, they blend well with other foods and the texture is always pleasing. Economy is ever an important point to the homemaker and potatoes always score on this point. They are appreciated as a vegetable but should be used more often in other ways such as in bread, cakes and puddings, to which they add an unexpected richness and moistness. Potatoes in soups and sauces provide a smooth pleasant thickening. Potatoes should not be considered a fattening food since it is more likely to be the butter or gravy served on them that puts on the pounds. From any standpoint, potatoes offer good value for money spent.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, suggest several out-of-the-ordinary ways to use potatoes.

Toasted Potatoes

6 medium-sized potatoes
2 tablespoons fat
1 cup finely rolled cracker crumbs
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons fat

Peel potatoes, wash and dry well. Cut in halves if they are large, rub with softened fat, roll in cracker crumbs, dip into slightly beaten egg and again roll in cracker crumbs. Place potatoes in a greased casserole, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dot with fat. Cover and bake in a hot oven, 400°F., until tender, about 1 hour. Yield: six servings.

Creole Fried Potatoes

5 medium potatoes
2 medium onions
2 tablespoons bacon fat
3 tablespoons tomato catsup
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Peel potatoes and slice very thinly. Peel onions and slice thinly. Melt fat in a heavy pan, add potatoes and onion, cover and cook until tender, about 40 minutes, stirring often to prevent scorching. Remove cover add catsup, salt and pepper. Stir well and continue cooking, uncovered, for 10 minutes. Yield: six servings.

Chocolate Potato Cake

1 ounce chocolate (1 square)
¼ cup shortening
½ cup brown sugar
¾ cup riced potatoes
1 egg
¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup milk

Melt chocolate over hot water, add shortening and sugar. Beat well, then add potatoes. Beat egg and add to potato mixture. Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Add to first mixture alternately with the milk. Bake in a loaf pan 8" x 4" x 3", in a moderate oven, 350°F., for 35 minutes.

Gals, Why Not be Distinctive And Try a Sari for a Change

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, (CP)— Next time daughter comes begging for a new evening gown, tell her to go buy a piece of silk print and wear it.

This answer isn't as frivolous as it sounds. Five and a half yards of silk, draped becomingly make a "sari"— traditional dress of the women of India and one which New York fashion designers are said to be copying into their latest models.

"There's no sewing—all you do is put it on," said attractive Chaturi Vaswani, a member of the Indian High Commissioner's office.

She was wearing an acquamarine print with gay yellow border.

Bright colors are so much more attractive than dull blacks," she laughed, recalling that when in Hong Kong on her way to North America a merchant succeeded in selling her two black saris.

"But I couldn't bring myself to wear them," she said. 'I finally sent one back to my sister to see if she would wear it."

Miss Vaswani, who arrived in the United States two years ago, was a student of journalism at Syracuse University in New York before joining the staff at the High Commissioner's office. She hopes to complete her course before returning to India.

Matter of Drapery

But back to the sari again. How is it worn?

Simply by draping the silk—which must be quite wide —to form a long skirt, and then bringing it back over one shoulder.

"It really doesn't take long when you know how," Miss Vaswani explained.

A long bright petticoat usually is worn beneath the sari, alng with a plain short sleeved blouse.

"Midriff blouses are popular for evening," said the Indian girl but shook her head upon hearing the midriff claimed as an American style.

"In India a midriff blouse is a very ancient form of dress," she laughed.

While for day time wear Miss Vaswani goes in for colors, evenings she may wear a white sari perhaps gold empbroidered.

As far as Canadians are concerned right there lies the catch to this Sari fashion. Where is the girl who can do really delicate embroidery? And if there is one where can she find a piece of fine Indian silk?

St. Catharines, Nov. 18 — (CP) — A. BY KATHLEEN NORRIS

"Our room," she amended it. Arnold's mother called his attention to an article in a magazine. He read the editorial aloud; they discussed it. Lily sat looking at the fire, thinking of home and the long - ago days, of Mama telling Georgie that it was almost eight, of Spencer sound asleep with his tousled curls all over his pillow, of Virgie-Lou and Weeny whispering in the bathroom as they washed, and splashed and toweled, of Mama going up to Grandma's room to stand in the doorway talking, talking, of darling red-headed Flo racing upstairs and down on her long legs — but no, she couldn't think of Flo tonight!

She couldn't think of the bare, sweet, plain old rooms the oat meal bubbling on the stove, the rain sounding fresh and friendly somehow as it battered on the tin roof of the laundry.

Homesickness seized her like a sort of nausea of the spirit. She had had all that and let it slip; she could have been there now! Instead she was here in this dark handsome room among the curtains and tables and heavy chairs with an old woman and a man more than twenty years older than she whom she hardly knew.

Later she found herself in her nightgown and wrapper, sitting on the side of her bed alone in the large dark bedroom.

Her mother, only this morning, had given her her only advice as to the conduct of a wife.

"Now, Lily, don't worry about anything," Willie had said. "And remember that whatever happens it's all right. Mama knows about it and Mama understands, and you must only think that Arnold loves you very much — and it's all right."

That was all. It had sounded comprehensive enough as Lily remembered it later, when she was paling and flushing nervously as they buttoned and tied and pulled her into petticoats and corset cover and lisle stockings on her wedding morning.

Mama had had only a moment alone with her and had squeezed in these words hastily, ashamedly, as if she must say them but was thankful to have them said.

Lily had said, "All right, Mama." But now somehow she felt as if everything were all wrong.

The blood surged in her heart and throat as Arnold came in, she watched him as he walked to the fire and dropped into a big low chair. He was smoking a cigar, but he threw the end of it away and turned to look at her over his shoulder, smiling and holding out his hand.

"Come over here and talk to me, Birdie," he said.

Lily slowly approached him; he took her hand and drew her to his knee, tucking her robe warmly about her and adjusting his shoulder so that her head could rest comfortably on it.

"Well, that was a simple wedding, but I think it was just right," he said cheerfully. "Every time I get married it's going to be just that way!"

Lily made a strange little sound like a stillborn laugh.

"Only fifty people," said Arnold, "not too much music. And I thought your mother looked so pretty! Do you know that you have a very pretty mother?"

"Mama's — lovely," Lily agreed with a dry throat and some difficulty.

"And I think my mother was especially nice today," Arnold went on. "She made a great sacrifice, not being able to get to the wedding; she's lame, and she does not like going out. But when I wanted to have the wedding here in her room, oh no, she wouldn't have that! It was Lily's wedding, and it was going to be where she and her aunt wanted it. I didn't hear you thank her."

"Oh, I did thank her!" Lily answered earnestly. "At least I said that we had all missed her, and that I was terribly sorry she could not come! I'm sure I thanked her."

"Do." Arnold tightened his arm. "She's old. My mother's almost 67," he said, "and she likes attention. And that reminds me of a few things I want to say to this dear little bride of mine. Mother likes to run her own house. She doesn't want anyone to talk to the servants, or make friends with them, or have any dealings with them whatsoever.

"Now, another thing," he presently added, as Lily answered merely by bringing her beautiful violet eyes to his with a serious nod, "you're a Belcher now, my darling, and your own family must make up its mind to see less of you. Understand?

"When you want to visit at home, tell me at breakfast and I'll speak to my mother. She drives nearly every day; she'll love to go down town shopping with you, wait while you shop, come back here for tea and have you meet her friends.

Arnold had lifted the loosened soft hair at the back of Lily's neck and was kissing her neck. She wished he would stop.

For months before the wedding matters at home had seemed to move with miraculous smoothness. Aunt Lizzie had been in a gracious and generous mood; old Major Burns had given Lily a hundred dollars for "thingumbobs" for her trousseau, which Lily had immediately donated to the fund of common family expenses. Other little sums had trickled in; the McKims had sent as a wedding present an old silver tea set, which Flo had sold at a second-hand store for seventy-five dollars.

So, even with company for every meal and Miss Potts as a constant fixture, there had been enough money to pay the most pressing expenses, and excitement, sociability and the constant interest of dresses, presents and plans had kept everyone's spirits at a high pitch. But afterward's things seemed to go flat. They seemed to have lost Lily completely. Even Aunt Lizzie made no sign.

Flo and her mother transferred to the Fillmore Street car one day and went to see Lily, but Lily was just ready to go driving with old Mrs. Belcher when they arrived; an unfriendly nurse was helping the old woman down the stairs to the carriage, and Lily seemed nervous and fluttery; answering their questions with fleet smiles, her eyes always straying toward the carriage doorway through which the invalid, her nurse, the coachman and the butler, with pillows and rugs, had disappeared in a confused group.

"I can't keep her waiting, Mama!" Lily murmured, kissing her mother. She evaded Flo's astonished eyes, Willie's shrinking back. "Mama, I'll come see you soon!" she said.

When the carriage swept away from the side door, Lily looked down the street. Getting old Mrs. Belcher settled was always a slow business, and Flo and her mother had had time to reach the corner on their way back to the Fillmore Street car.

Flo turned to wave at Lily, and Lily saw her mother rest a hand on Flo's arm as she waved and smiled, too, looking small and tired in the bright early - afternoon light against the background of steps and gardens and houses.

Aunt Lizzie hadn't been to see them at all since the wedding, but she had asked Mama and Georgie to come have dinner with her and Lily and Arnold. Somebody had to be left with the smaller children on this occasion, and it turned out to be Flo.

Mama and Georgie had reported a pleasant evening and a nice dinner. But Aunt Lizzie, Flo knew had not slipped any money to her mother that night or at any time since the happy days of the wedding preparations. Mama was running short and getting very anxious.

Groceries were written down in the little brown books now rather than paid for, and Willie had borrowed seven dollars and a half from her mother, who really needed it for her new teeth. Miss Potts was unpaid for the last 11 days of hard work, and Flo's new shoes were still listed on a bill marked "Kindly remit." Even Georgie's nickels for all-day suckers had stopped.

Aunt Daisy lived with Aunt Ida now, and Aunt Harriet often visited Gussy. But came to the Shotwell Street house almost daily to see their mother and sister, and both usually stayed for lunch. That meant four grown women's appetites to satisfy, and the ravenous hunger of the children as well. Flo was past 17 now, Georgie 15, Weeny and Virgie - Lou 10 and 8 years, and Spencer 6.

Nine persons usually sat down at Willie's for luncheon, and for weeks she had fed Miss Potts besides. Bread, butter, tomatoes, grapes disappeared like magic; in her husband's day Willie had almost always had a bowl of lettuce on the table and had mixed a careful dressing herself. But now olive oil was too dear for her purse, and bread and tapioca puddings took the place of the syllabubs and meringeus she had once delighted to make.

Flo listened to many worried talks among her elders as to their resources. Her unmarried aunts were violent in their denunciation of themselves for settling down on poor Willie and not doing a thing about anything!

Her grandmother racked her brains to think of someone who had once owed the Hawkses family a favor and who might most acceptably liquidate that obligation. The Carolans, the Hopkinses, the Spreckelses — Papa had know them all once. It was inconceivable that she had no claim on them now.

In July old Major Burns did something about it by quietly dying. Flo had playfully been promised a legacy more than once by her old admirer, but she had cherished no serious expectations and was therefore elated beyond measure to discover that he had left her five hundred dollars, and left each of the younger children a hundred.

Lily's name was not mentioned, perhaps because Lily had just made a very good match. But Flo was not surprised that Lily was just a little hurt and disappointed. She had suspected before this that young Mrs. Belcher was not too well supplied with pocket money.

This windfall was accompanied by the bad news that they must move out of the Shotwell Street house unless they wanted to pay a sixty - dollar rent, which was quite out of the question. Major Burn's heir, the new owner, could hardly be expected to permit them to remain on the present no-rent terms. But the prospect of the children's receiving nine hundred dollars, which she could borrow from them in small sums, cheered Willie enormously, made Flo feel safer and happier than she had for months, and solved all immediate problems at least.

Lily and Arnold came to call upon her family almost every Sunday morning. They arrived at about a quarter to twelve and stayed exactly an hour, for the midday dinner at their own home was served at one o'clock.

The carriage waited for them in the street, adding a note of great elegance to the quiet of neighborhood, and everyone who could liked to get a glimpse of beautiful little Mrs. Belcher being helped out by her big husband at her mother's garden gate.

They never would stay for lunch, no matter how appetizing the smells that came from Flo's kitchen, for Arnold felt that he must return to his mother, who, as he always explained, as if they had never heard it before, was an invalid and had been so extremely generous to Lily and himself that he felt he must not fail her in any attention.

On these visits he and Lily sat in the parlor, and the various members of the family presented themselves or disappeared on household duties as the moment required. Spencer was always in evidence very cunning and friendly, and Virgie - Lou was Arnold's especial favorite, and she would bring her dolls or her schoolwork down to display to him.

Grandma often was present for the entire visit, sitting in her rocker with the morning paper, listening, saying something in her harsh, shrewd old voice now and then. Willie always tried to be there, not to miss a minute of Lily.

Before they left, Georgie and Weeny were summoned by calls from the back porch or the front door. Georgie would come in flushed and untidy and breathless, his nice shirt with the little anchors all over it perhaps dirty or torn. It was time for him to clean up for dinner anyway, but he generally looked rather resentful as he greeted the visitors. "Lo, Lil. How do, Mr. Belcher?"

Western Captures Seven of 12 Positions on Intercollegiate Rugby Union All-Star Squad

By WALLY IZSAK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 18 — (CP)—University of Western Ontario Mustangs, who bucked their way through 37 games without a defeat before being tamed by Varsity last Saturday, captured seven of the 12 positions on the 1948 Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union All-star team.

Undisputed kings of the college gridiron range since 1939, the Mustangs placed three men less than last year on the dream team selected for The Canadian Press by football coaches and writers in the four union cities. Ballotting is weighted to give equal voting strength to each union city.

The team:

Flying wing—Don McFarlane, Western; half — Jack Parry, Western; half — Bruce Cummings, Varsity; half (secondary)—Murray Hayes, McGill; quarter—Al Lenard, Queen's; snap—George Wearring, Western; inside—Bill Jarvie, Western; inside—Dave Copp and Ian Clark, Varsity (tied); middle—Fraser Mustard, Varsity; middle—Bill Ford, Western; outside—Fabe Curry, Western; outside, Bill Wardle, Western.

Parry, Cummings and Hayes were all unanimous choices, with each receiving the maximum 48 possible points. Lenard had 32 and McFarlane 21. All but Cummings had all-star ratings last year.

Two Fastest in Canada

The choice of Don McFarlane and Jack Parry provides the team with two of the fastest men in Canada. Both were Olympic track entrants along with Don's brother, Bob, who dropped from the all-star squad from last year.

Toronto's sensational Bruce Cummings rose like a meteor to take over Bob's spot. Cummings is rated as almost on a par with Parry in passing, inferior in running but superior in kicking. He was second highest scorer in the league with 33 points, 11 behind Parry.

Lenard and Hayes are right at home in the classy company and can pass, kick and run with the best of them. Hayes is especially noted for his deadly defensive play and line smashing, while Lenard is just about the schrewdest play-caller in the circuit.

Top Lineman

Varsity's Fraser Mustard received most support along the line with an almost-unanimous 36 points. The bruising 206-pound middle was Varsity's top lineman all season. Rock-ribbed inside Bill Jarvie and six-foot-five centre George Wearring, came next with 29 and 25 points respectively. Bill Ford of Western, took the other inside spot with 18 points, while two rugged blues—Dave Copp and Captain Ian Clark—tied for the remaining inside position with 18 points each.

Western's pass-snatching pair—Fabe Curry with 35 points and Bill Wardle with 29—took the outside berths. Both are around the six-foot mark and deadly tacklers.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Little gleams of light are beginning to push their way through the hitherto dark clouds that have cast a pall over the senior "B" hockey situation in these parts. 'Tis no secret that Peterborough will have the Petes back with a brand new name the "McGillises" or possible the "Mics" for short in honor of a sports-minded gentleman of their fair hamlet who has opened the personal purse and poured some much-needed dinero into the lean exchequer of the club; and the Legionnaires, the Nicholls et al, of last year's championship team.

Now from a very authoritative source in Kingston comes the word that the Limestone lads will shove a brace of squads into the senior "B" pot; to wit the Canadian Corps, and the Navy Combines, the latter master-minded by none other than our old hockey friend Maxie Jackson. With these cheering words and the persistence of the rumor that out of the intermediate-age squads of the Belleville District League there will emerge a senior "B" team, the fans hereabouts are feeling considerably "perked up."

Up around Lindsay way, a squad of Toronto-sponsored veterans have banded together a smart squad dubbed the "Meteors" which their supporters claim are the hockey "cat's whiskers" and of very definite Senior "B" calibre. They have met and defeated a few top-flight teams including one or two from the United States. The story down this way has it that "Meteors" have "adopted" Lindsay as their home balliwick and will play their home games there. Perhaps the "Meteors" could be persuaded to join the Petes; Belleville-Kingston grouping if such a thing comes to pass. What a honey of a loop that would create.

Looking over the lineup of the Kingston Navy team which hung a defeat on the Barons, said to be Kingston's hopes for an OHA junior "B" championship this season, we find a lot of familiar names. There's Stone in goal, Plumb and Anderchuk on the defence, Dugan centering Murray and Dunn, with Ohike, Casterton, Belwa, Graves, Clarke J. Aitken, Flint and Andress, rounding out the squad. Last year's Locos dressed up in Navy unifrems with a few extra ratings thrown in.

The Barons paraded Andersen in goal; Reynolds and Bender, defence with C. Aitken doing centre ice duty flanked by D. Shepherd and White. The subs were Jamieson, Hartman, Joyce (perennially junior) W. Shepherd, Gemmer, McGaughey, Anderson, Godwin and Weese.

Tonight's clash between the CNR Diesels and Napanee will see some former team-mates in action against one another. The Goyers will parade their wares in a Diesel uniform while former linemate Walt Gerow will sport the paraphernalia of the Napanee Legion. The Meagher brothers, Al and Bernie will also wear the C N R livery as will several other veterans of the Belleville hockey wars. Napanee underwent a heavy workout after Tuesday night's doubleheader and showed a lot of strength. 'Tis said that Joe Jocko's "Sinatra" tenor will lead a Gibbardville cheering section this evening. 'tis understood that his "West Virginia" theme song will be barred.

A lot of eyes will be centered on Don Barrett's Northern Electric team when they trot out on the ice in their 1948-49 debut against the Golden Ghosts of Cobourg. 'Tis reported that the Electrics have a strong squad on paper that should give a good account of itself on the ice. The first game gets under way at 8.00. It has been suggested, that due to the lateness in starting due to power cutoffs that the third period of each game be of fifeen minutes (time-out) duration. The matter is being taken up by the executive.

Mr. Malcolm Robb of the city legal firm of Robb and Park handed this corner his personal cheque yesterday for fifty dollars "to help sponsor a juvenile hockey team in Belleville. And if you need another fifty, just ask for it," the sports-minded lawyer said with a smile. Since then we have learned that two or three business men of the city are willing to contribute to the juvenile cause so things look exceedingly bright for the under-junior players.

By the same token we are informed that the Sergeant's Mess of the 9th Anti Tank Regt., RCA, is considering the sponsorship of the juvenile team. This would not only be a fine gesture on the part of the "sarges" but it would keep the regimental hockey sponsorship in the same basket since the other night Col. Cousins and his officers of the regiment took over the sponsorship of the Cy Barriage-coached Belleville Midgets.

When the Monarchs of the English National Hockey League are on the ice for a practice session in London, a number of barrels are in evidence, spread around the rink. The players use the kegs to sharpen their puck passing, the idea being to pass between the barrels while skating at a fast pace. The barrels are empty, not being filled with anything to quench the thirst, so no player attempts to hit one to put a hole in it.

The sports fraternity of the city, especially softball circles, learned with sincere regret of the passing of Frank Sedore, well-known war veteran and sportsman of Point Anne. Besides spending five and one-half years "playing in the Greatest Game of All" overseas, the late Frank was always connected with one or another sports venture in his native village. He managed several Point softball teams, some of which went through to provincial titles. He was an aggressive player, coach and manager and always "fought" hard for his players and team. His activities in the realm of sport will be greatly missed. This column with sports fandom of the city and district extends sincere condolences to the bereaved family.

Wrestlers Have Kindest, Cruellest, Ugliest Faces

Nov. 18 — (CP) — By Baillie likes faces. He says everybody should have one, if at all possible.

Baillie should know. In his 15 years as a sport artist he has immortalized, more or less, the mugs of nearly 1,000 sportsmen and women. Baillie knows every wrinkle in the business.

Of the artist Eric (Vancouver Province) Whitehead writes:

"Having during his career sketched every type of athlete from pin-setters to polo players, Baillie has come to these conclusions:

"The kindest faces belong to wrestlers. The ugliest, to wrestlers. The cruellest, to wrestlers. In fact, for those who know faces best, it's wrestlers, two to one."

Loveable Strangler

Whitehead says the reason for Baillie's partiality toward wrestlers is "they have such beautifully scrambled maps."

Baillie says the finest subject he ever sketched "was a kindly old wrestler named Ed. (Strangler) Lewis."

The Strangler, in Baillie's own ecstatic words, was "the most gorgeously scrambled specimen I ever encountered. Such ears . . . such eyes . . . such noses . . . ahhh."

Barney Disappoints

"One of the most disappointing subjects," says Whitehead, "was the great lightweight scrapper, Barney Ross. Barney was a 'dead-pan.' Fred (Cyclone) Taylor, hockey immortal, was interesting, Fred's face was a fascinating patchwork of scars, the result of 54 stitches."

Hamilton Tigers May Not be Easy For Rough Riders

Ottawa, Nov. 18 (CP)— You'd think with the betting odds 2-1 in favor of the Rough Riders, coach Wally Masters would be all mellow with confidence that Riders will down the Hamilton Tigers easily in the Eastern Canada Football final Saturday. But he isn't. In a dressing room rally he told the Riders Wednesday night:

"This Tiger team is tough. We're going to have to go 60 minutes full out to stay in the ball game. They had to go through one of the hardest training grinds the Big Four champions had to sweat out this season.

The odds are in favor of the Riders all right but Masters, with his eye to Frankie Filchock's abilities as playing coach, points out some of the things the dopesters may have overlooked:

"No matter what any person tells you," he says, "these Hamilton players are sharp, well-drilled and well coached."

He'll go a little farther and predict the Bengals will put on one of the biggest passing displays of the season —and when it comes to passing with Filchock as the tosser, the Bengals already have shown their worth.

Lou Hayman, coach of the Montreal Alouettes, has said the Riders will win Saturday's tilt by at least two touchdowns. But coach Masters starts figuring out the Bengal's passing display and then adds up some of the yardage gained by the Hamilton boys in recent games and wonders.

For instance in the final game between Toronto Beaches-Indians and the Tigers, the Tigers marched to 31-1 victory over 500 yards in rushing. The Ottawa Rough Riders have an average of 250 yards gained rushing in the games they've played this fall.

Toronto, Chicago, New York All Unwilling Tenants Of Cellar Spot in National Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

It's crowded today in the National Hockey League basement with Toronto, Chicago and New York all unwilling tenants.

They moved in Wednesday night when Rangers tied Detroit 4-4, Boston beat Toronto 2-1 and Chicago upset Montreal 4-3.

Boston's win and Detroit's tie left Red Wings hanging precariously on to first place, one point ahead of Bruins who have two games in hand.

It was Grant Warwick night in Boston as Warwick got both Bruins goals to widen his lead in the league scoring. He now has 17 points for 10 games.

Rangers cut loose with a three-point barrage in the first four minutes of the second period to move ahead of Red Wings who fought back with two goals in the final frame.

The big scrap that started in Montreal between Canadiens and Black Hawks last week was resumed in Chicago Wednesday night, with Jim Conacher and Rip Riopelle featured in main bout.

It was the fifth straight home win for Bruins. It came when Warwick batted the puck past Leaf goalie Turk Broda.

Warwick got his second goal by deflecting in Milt Schmit's long shot while Bill Barilko sat out his third penalty of the game. Max Bentley got Leafs only score.

Right-winger Fernand Gauthier scored twice for the Red Wings with Jim Enio and George Gee connecting for the other two. For Rangers it was Tony Leswick, Edgar Laprade, Pentii Lund and Clint Albright.

Half of the 18 penalties thrown at Montreal and Chicago were called during the scoreless first period. Joe Carveth started the see-saw scoring battle with his second-period goal but Bill Mosienko tied it minutes later.

Hawks went ahead on the first of Gaye Stewart's two goals, dropping behind again as Elmer Lach and Doug Harvey each went in for quick scores.

Trailing 3-2 at the start of the last period, Hawks tied it on Gus Bodnar's early goal and won on Stewart's second tally.

War-Scarred Vessel Built 31 Years Ago

Montreal (CP) — Bombed, torpedoed and rammed during her 31-year sea career, the 7,000-ton Norwegian-owned Porsanger recently put into Montreal harbor—still working efficiently at her job of carrying iron ore from Norway's mines.

The Porsanger was the first ocean-going freighter ever built by Canadian Vickers, Ltd. Her master since 1924, Capt. J. Pedersen, says proudly: "She is a fine ship and even has her original engine and boilers."

In 1924 the Porsanger suffered considerable forward damage when she collided with the 17,000 ton Royal Mail liner Orca in a dense fog. In 1940, while lying in a Norwegian harbor, she was heavily bombed and then torpedoed by the Germans. After Norway was conquered, the Nazis patched her up and she returned to her work.

Saskatoon High On Team to Take Hamilton Squad

Saskatoon, Nov. 18 — (CP) — Saskatoon is high on the Hilltops —confident the team will capture the 1948 Canadian junior football championship, first official playoff since 1933.

The Hilltops meet Hamilton Wildcats, Eastern Canada representatives, in a sudden-death final at Hamilton next Saturday.

Carrying 25 players, the club left here Wednesday morning. Since walloping the highly-rated Vancouver Blue Bombers, unofficial Canadian champions last year 27-0 here last Saturday, Hilltops held practices Monday and Tuesday nights and departed without serious injuries.

Only a second-year club, Hilltops eliminated Winnipeg Rods, 33-13, in a two-game total-point Western semi-final, then went on to whip Vancouver for Saskatoon's first Western junior title in 28 years.

Hilltops have played 13 games this season and dropped only one —a 9-6 verdict in league play to Regina Bombers, whom they defeated 17-11 in the sudden-death provincial playoff.

Galloping Ghosts Of Cobourg Win Semi-Final Game

(By The Canadian Press)

Cobourg Galloping Ghosts Wednesday beat Orillia Bombers 6-0 in Peterborough to win the Ontario Rugby Football Union Intermediate semi-final. It was a replay on neutral grounds of an overtime 16-16 standoff in Orillia last Saturday.

The Ghosts now meet London Falcons in Cobourg Saturday in a sudden-death Provincial final.

The Intercounty Baseball League voted Wednesday to give the president rather than the League executive power to penalize any team or player for infraction of the league rules.

The league's annual meeting at Galt also voted to appoint a salaried non-voting secretary. The league secretary now receives an honorarium.

Keith Burgess, rookie wing of Omaha Knights of the United States Hockey League, entered a hospital Wednesday for an operation on his knee.

Team officials said Burgess had a growth on the knee as a result of an earlier injury. It has limited leg movement.

J. A. Bloomfield of Galt and N. Bowes of Palmerston yesterday advanced into the final round of the Gore Trophy event in Galt's Early Bird Bonspiel.

Broomfield defeated W. R. Wheeler of Guelph 9-5 and Bowes swamped O. F. Hazelgrove of Wingham 17-2.

Bobby Jones, one time emperor of golf, is reported in "good" condition at Atlanta's Emory University Hospital where he underwent an operation about three weeks ago.

Jones received an injury to the base of his neck, several years ago. The operation was to relieve pressure.

Jimmy Galbraith, former Montreal Royals defenceman signed Wednesday to play with Shawinigan Falls Cataracts of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

A rugged rearguard, Galbraith was loaned to Dallas of the United States Hockey League earlier in the season. He played three games in that circuit before returning to Montreal of his own accord.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Clint Albright, New York, who scored a goal and one assist as Rangers tied Detroit Red Wings 4-4.

..Gaye Stewart, Chicago, who sniped two goals against Montreal Canadiens as the last-place Hawks earned 4-3 victory.

BEAN PEST

Calgary Squad Heading East For Grey Cup

Calgary, Alta., Nov. 18 (CP)—Calgary's galloping cowboys packed their saddle bags today before heading eastward in quest of the Grey Cup and vengeance for a 37-year-old "slight."

The powerful Stampeders, newly crowned football kings of Western Canada leave by rail for Oakville, Ont., tonight. There they will set up training camp for the final week of workouts before trying to hogtie and brand either Ottawa Rough Riders or Hamilton Tigers in the Dominion football final.

To old-time Calgary grid enthusiasts, selection of Toronto's Varsity Stadium as site of the Nov. 27 fall grid classic is an omen auguring ill for the east's chances of retaining the coveted Grey Cup.

Just 37 years ago, another Calgary team —the Tigers—waited impatiently for a crack at Canada's top football award. They never got it. To the horror of this Foothills City, University of Toronto was declared Dominion football champions for 1911. The Canadian Rugby Union of that era had taken no action of a membership application from the western bloc but the title remained in the east.

It has taken Calgary's wounded pride 37 years to recover from the slight and mould a second western championship squad.

Coach Les Lear told old Tiger captain Squib Ross Wednesday night:

"Stamps will be fighting in the East the way your Tigers would have been fighting if they had been given the chance back in 1911."

Louis Praises Jimmy Bivins

Cleveland, Nov. 18 (AP) — Heavyweight champion Joe Louis labels Jimmy Bivins the toughest opponent he has faced so far on his exhibition boxing tour.

"I don't know why he shouldn't be a contender if he gets serious about his training," Louis said in his dressing room Wednesday night after engaging in a six-round no-decision affair with the Cleveland Negro.

"He threw two good right-hand punches and I knew I was hit, but they weren't hard enough to bother me," the champion added. "Anyone who fights him has to be very careful."

With both fighters using 12-ounce gloves instead of the regulation eight, Bivins opened a cut above Louis left eye in the second round. Joe received the wound originally Nov. 8 when he accidentally bumped heads with Johnny Shkor in an exhibition at Boston. The injury had not healed completely and the champion entered the ring with a small patch over it.

Bivins did most of the leading during the exhibition while Louis opened up only sporadically. He almost dropped Bivins with a right in the second when the two were in a neutral corner.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By SHAUN McQUILLAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 18 (CP).—Directors of Droylsden Football Club, bottom team in the Cheshire League, are puzzled about their newly-signed forward. They're wondering who he is.

The powers that be thought he was Tommy Kiernan, of Stoke City. Two thousand spectators watched him play his first game for the club the other day against Chester Reserves.

They were surprised: his standard of play was far below Droylsden's. Droylsden lost, 5-1, and the new man did not score.

"When the game started," William Simcrock, club chairman, said, "he started up the field towards the opponents' goal—without the ball.

"We wondered what the idea was. It was obvious 'Tommy' was an unconventional player. At half time he wanted a new boot, but it made no difference.

"By then one of the Chester players had recognized our new man as not being Tommy Kiernan of Stoke. We telephoned Stoke and found that Tommy Kiernan was playing that day for Stoke Reserves.

"We challenged our player after the match. He told us he had changed his name by deed poll. We haven't seen him since and we have withheld the playing fee."

Tommy Kiernan, who cost Stoke $32,000 when they signed him from Glasgow Celtic in October last year, is on the open-to-transfer list at his own request.

Observant Referee

W. H. E. (Bill) Evans, of Liverpool, one of Britain's top soccer referees is an official with a difference; a referee who takes personal note of the ability of all the linesmen who have officiated with him since he joined the Football League list 10 years ago.

He started the practice as a hobby and has kept it up in every match ever since.

"It's my own personal record," he says. "I make my entries after every match, assessing in my own way their general all-round ability. When I come across them in a later game it's interesting to see what progress they have made."

His general opinion of present-day linesmen?

"They measure up well and do a difficult job excellently."

Double One

Detective-Sergeant T. Ryan, of Buckinghamshire constabulary, set a record at Harewood Down golf course near Chalfont St. Giles, Buckinghamshire, by twice holing out in one in the same day.

Buckinghamshire police were playing Metropolitan T Division, Twickenham, and Ryan holed out in one at the third and 17th holes, which are 156 and 120 yards. He says he is "only an average player".

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

The Kibitzer

It is tough to know when to expand with a cumbersome partner like Jed. He is often as weak in his hand as you find him to be in his head.

One heart was the opening bid with his hand:

♠A K 7
♥A Q 9 5
♣J 8 4 3

North responded with a bid of one spade. Two spades said south and north went to four. When this was defeated, somebody wanted to know why. So an argument started with me in the middle of it.

South wisely reminded that the spade takeout was forcing for one round. This was not disputed. He sagely pointed out that an assist comes before no-trump in the order of choice of bids. All agreed.

Then he went on to say that he had spade support. Therefore, he contended, his hand called for an assist in the suit his partner had bid. This was where the difference of opinion was expressed.

What south failed to consider was the number of tricks he was showing. His opening bid promised five tricks. He had no more than the five his opening had already announced.

His raise to two spades was an increase in number. This promised an additional trick. His assist promised six tricks. He had only five.

North went to game with only four tricks. This was influenced by the six expected in south. So, where does the fault lie? It is in the lack of the sixth trick that south announced.

Being forced by the spade takeout, south must not pass. Despite support, he must not raise without a sixth trick. The only bid then available without a raise is one no-trump.

Many players do not know or employ such a precise count. Their sneer at it is amusing. Except when they happen to be your partner.

If success you desire let me offer; this crack: And bid may expire from the tricks that you lack.

Allege Woman Taught Youths Theft Technique

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 18 (AP) — A 50-year-old Springfield woman, described by police as a teacher of robbery techniques to three youths is in jail on three charges in connection with their brief crime spree.

Police said Mrs. Florence Moomaw was arrested last night and charged with armed robbery, attempted robbery, and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The three youths, in signed statements, admitted one robbery and an attempted robbery. They also are in jail and are charged with robbery and an attempted armed robbery.

Mrs. Moomaw signed a statement relating her connection with the three youths. Police said Mrs. Moomaw's statement disclosed that two young girls who lived at her home—one 11 and one 14—had lured the three youths to her home. She instructed them in procedure in staging robberies, escapes and disposal of loot. She told them to rob women.

The two girls are held in the juvenile court. Police said the 11-year-old girl said in her statement she had been intimate with one of the youths, who has been charged with statutory rape.

Hollywood, Nov. 18 — (AP) — Bing Crosby's kids may follow in their fabulous father's footsteps, but they'll have to finish college first.

Bing said his sons seem to be developing talent, although it's too early to tell if any of the lads will have a voice like their Pop's. Bing seems to approve of show business careers for them, but he wants them to get college educations.

Bing has had a pretty easy year. He vacationed the whole summer and just recently started his first 1948 film, "Top O' the Morning." He indicated his pace next year will be almost as leisurely.

"I'll probably make one picture in the spring and another in the fall," said Bing, who has averaged about three a year.

His next has been announced as a musical version of "Broadway Bill," the old Warner Baxter film. It apparently will mark the start of Bing's new contract, which he and Paramount have been discussing for a year. The crooner said the terms have just about been agreed upon.

Having lately heard some "Boo-boo-boo" Crosby records, I wondered if his style of singing hasn't changed with the times.

"Well," answered Bing, who is never one to stir up a controversy, "if my style has changed, it hasn't been intentional."

Capsule Review

Los Angeles—The No. 2 engine of the T.W.A. constellation just in from Chicago was purring mighty pretty, thought airport mechanics.

Milwaukee—An appreciative skunk which didn't do what a skunk usually does was reported yesterday by police.

They were called to see what they could do about the skunk, trapped on a front porch when it stuck its head too far inside a glass fruit jar.

Officer Henry Dombrowski tapped the jar gently with his club. It broke. The skunk shook its head and took off.

The report ended like this: "Broke jar, skunk ran off, everything OK."

Newark, N. J. — Newark police searched last night for a hit-and-run yo-yo pilot.

He was described as pint-sized, fast on his feet, but not too good with his string-work.

The yo-yo he wielded flew out of control as he passed Alfred Rother, 50, crashing into the man's mouth.

Rother, who required first aid, told police he ran after the boy but couldn't keep up with him.

Sydney, Australia—A sea leopard is worrying the organizers of the world professional sculling title race, which will be rowed on the Parramatta River here Nov. 20.

The sea leopard has been in the area for several weeks and has developed a habit of charging boats. A shell in which an oarsman was pacing was recently overturned.

Evans Paddon, the Australian professional champion, only just escaped the leopard by rowing away at top speed.

If the sea leopard does interfere the race will be re-rowed.

Storm Repairs Keep Crews Of Workmen Busy

By The Canadian Press)

Repair crews in many parts of Ontario still had a full day's work ahead of them today, mopping up after a sudden 50-mile-an-hour gale that slashed through the province Wednesday.

It snarled power and telegraph lines, ripped out trees, slowed down great lakes shipping and damaged buildings.

Five people in Hamilton were injured when the roof was blown from their house and in Windsor the wall of a new building was knocked over by the wind.

The wind hit 80 miles an hour in gusts. It blew up from the United States and swept north across the province.

In Bruce Mines, 42 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie, it spread a fire through the town's business section, causing damage estimated at $500,000.

A 60-foot tower of a salt well was blown over near Goderich and a tall steel chimney at St. Thomas was left tottering.

The Shelburne area was left without power Wednesday when a falling tree cut off a main circuit and Hamilton-Goderich telegraph lines were cut when another tree was blown over.

Hydro poles in Southwestern Ontario were tipped out and roads were littered with falling branches.

Waves were piled high along the shores of Lake Ontario and shipping was held up in the Welland canal. The ships were moving again late Wednesday night.

Toronto May Not Get Night Cut If All Co-operate

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP)— Two cheering notes sounded for hydro users in this power-short city of 700,000 today. Hydro consumers were told they may not have to pay the 83 cents minimum rate each month and also that there was a possibility of halting night power cuts.

City council was told Wednesday by Bert Merson, vice-chairman of the Toronto Hydro Commission, that he has appealed to the Ontario commission for permission to eliminate the minimum bill.

Mr. Merson in the council session was replying to Alderman Allan Lamport who declared: "With these hydro blackouts, restrictions and voluntary savings many people aren't using that much power. It is not right that they should have to pay for something they aren't getting."

Mr. Merson said the Toronto Commission was ready to remove the minimum charge as soon as permission was received. He was unable to say how many consumers would be affected.

Five Million Sheep, One Million Cattle Die of Thirst in Australia

Canberra, Nov. 18 (CP) — More than 5 million head of sheep and cattle have perished in one of Australia's worst droughts of this century.

Parts of the grazing lands of West Queensland and the Northern Territory have been without adequate rain for the last three years. Unless rain falls within the next few months soil experts fear for the recovery of the affected land.

Conservative estimates put the number of dead sheep in Queensland alone at 4 million. In the Northern Territory 1 million head of cattle have died and 1,000 more are dying daily.

Large areas are being churned into a great dust bowl by high winds that are carrying thousands of tons of soil into the Pacific Ocean.

Reports from Oodnatta, in the centre of the continent, 600 miles north of Adelaide, say dust storms with winds up to 80 miles an hour are burying sheep alive in the western districts of South Australia. Dust getting into their fleece weighs the sheep down and allows the shifting sands to blow over them.

In the northern parts of Queensland, the water shortage is acute at Townsville, 700 miles northwest of Brisbane, and Mackay, 500 miles northwest of Brisbane, both seaports, residents are digging wells in their backyards to ensure a reasonable supply for washing purposes as the main water sources threaten to dry up.

Water board engineers have told Townsville's 35,000 inhabitants that their water supply cannot last more than two weeks without rain.

The Queensland Government is rushing water trains daily into towns in the western drought belt. These towns, however, are not entirely without water. They lie within a great artesian basin where most of the water comes from fast-flowing artesian bores. Livestock thrive on artesian water, but it is unpalatable to the human taste.

William James, Press Photographer Of Note, Dies

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP)—Dean of Canadian press protographers, William James of Toronto, died here last night in his 83rd year.

As a young man in Walsall, Staffordshire, England, Mr. James began his career as a photographer when he traded a telescope for a camera and took a picture of his two eldest sons. He came to Canada in 1906 as a novice photographer and soon developed into one of Canada's most versatile and accurate photographers.

He photographed the first cable car run across the Whirlpool Rapids in the Niagara River and claimed the distinction of being the first photographer to fly over Toronto to take moving pictures.

Baby is Choked To Death by Cord Of Dressing Gown

Toronto, Nov. 18. (CP)—Four-month-old Paula Kimmerly last night was choked to death accidentally by the cord of a dressing gown.

The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Kimmerly, left her in care of a baby sitter while they went to a movie. The baby sitter told police that when she went to look at the infant she found her blue in the face and with the cord wound tightly about her neck. Firemen worked over the baby with inhalators without success.

Coroner Dr. C. N. Mooney said death was due to accidental suffocation. The squirming of the infant caused the cord to twine around her neck.

Education Should Help in Making Sound Judgments

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 18 — (CP) — Education should give children a foundation to help them form sound judgements and think for themselves, Education Minister Dana Porter said last night.

"Education should be designed to equip children for life," he said. "It should leave them better off to adjust themselves to society than if they had not had education. It should enable them to earn a better living. It should fit them to make a greater contribution to their community. It should give them a greater appreciation of their place in the nation."

He said the soundness of a child's education depended upon co-operation of parents and teachers.

Infant Prince 'Healthy Baby'

London, Nov. 18 — (Reuters) — A medical bulletin from Buckingham Palace today said that Princess Elizabeth's infant prince was "a healthy baby and is doing well."

It was the first direct reference describing the child made in the medical bulletins since the birth Sunday evening. But visitors to the palace who have been near the nursery testify that the boy obviously has a fine pair of lungs.

Today's bulletin said Princess Elizabeth had passed a comfortable night and was doing well.

SUFFERS INJURIES FROM AIR COMPRESSOR

Toronto, Nov. 18 — (CP)—Fred Freestone, 29, who suffered severe internal injuries Wednesday in an accident involving an air compressor, today was reported in "fair condition after a fair night" in hospital.

Police will question fellow-workmen, said to be 'fooling' with the compressor when the accident occurred.

Appeal for Food Control Action To Government

New Hamburg, Nov. 18. (AP) —The Grand Valley conservation authority, meeting here Wednesday, resolved to carry an appeal for flood control action to the Ontario government. A three-man delegation was appointed.

The decision arose out of two motions designed to bring some relief to New Hamburg, Bridgeport, Galt and points between.

The first motion authorized steps "to rectify the situation at New Hamburg, where the Nith river floods the town each Spring.

The second attacked "silting-up" in Channels at Bridgeport and Galt. The authority agreed to approach the government to urge a competent engineer be engaged to study the problems and outline financial procedure.

A third motion endorsed possible purchase of a farm in Water- [illegible] ion as a flood control measure.

Drew Will Give Essential Facts On Shortage

Toronto, Nov. 18 — (CP) — A growing controversy between Trade Minister Howe and the man who may become opposition leader in the House of Commons took another turn last night.

George Drew, National Progressive Conservative leader said in a statement he had applied for use of a provincial radio network next Tuesday or Wednesday night "so that the people of Ontario may be fully informed regarding all the essential facts of Ontario's power shortage."

He declared the federal minister had not accepted his challenge to a public debate on the reasons for the current crippling power scarcity.

In the statement, issued in reply to Mr. Howe's Washington offer yesterday to debate the issue on the floor of the Commons, Mr. Drew said Mr. Howe "knows that the power shortage in Ontario is not a subject for debate in the House of Commons."

"He knew that last Saturday when he joined forces with the Socialists in an effort to make it a political issue in Carleton."

Seeks Federal Seat

Mr. Drew, chosen party leader last September, is seeking a federal seat in a Dec. 20 by-election in Ontario's Carleton riding, where he is opposed by the C.C.F. He was referring to Saturday's speech by Mr. Howe at London, Ont., in which the federal minister blamed the former Ontario premier for the power situation.

The challenge by Mr. Drew, followed, with the minister's reply coming from Washington where he is visiting for talks with United States defence and munitions officials.

He said in an interview that as the challenged party it was his privilege to name the time and place of the debate. He named the floor of the Commons, providing Mr. Drew was successful in Carleton.

But Mr. Drew said last night Mr. Howe "has made it clear that he will not meet me in debate . . . his completely inaccurate statements must be corrected effectively long before the House meets."

Bigamy Prevalent As Ger. Widows Re-Marry Hastily

By RUTH MAISTRE

Berlin (AP) — Thousands of Germans live today in bigamy without knowing it.

This is what happens:

A woman has not seen her husband for several years. Maybe he was killed or captured. Perhaps he is held by the Russians. She has not heard from or about him. Enough time has gone by for her to presume the man is dead.

The wife goes to a tribunal, declares that her husband is dead and gets a judgment. This is where the trouble starts. Under the law, the judgment must be published in a daily paper. Once that is done and a month has gone by, the woman may marry again.

Seems simple, doesn't it? Judge Erich Schubart of a Berlin court says it isn't.

Too many people are unaware of the strict technicality of the law. As a result they insert their advertisements in the only newspaper they know about. In villages it's usually a weekly. That is not good enough.

This wouldn't matter much except that Many Germans lately have been showing up after they are supposed to be dead. Then the fat is in the fire.

Schubart illustrates with the story of a woman whose husband had been missing since October 1943. There was testimony of friends who had last seen him wounded on a battlefiefld. On the strength of this evidence the man was declared dead in July 1947. Paper shortage and a backlog of advertisements made it impossible to publish this fact before Dec. 1, 1947.

Husband Re-appeared

Meanwhile, the widow, engaged to be remarried, decided Christmas day would be a good day for the wedding. Everything went off fine. The registrar saw the death declaration and was satisfied. But four months later, the missing husband re-appeared from a prisoner of war camp. He went to a lawyer. The lawyer found that the second marriage took place a week before the legal deadline and his client had a clear suit for bigamy.

Schubart, who is writing a book on the subject, says many persons who have been declared dead in the last 10 years—there have been more than 50,000 in Germany—are coming back alive.

If these people find their spouses remarried within the boundaries of the law there is not much they can do except claim their property. The second marriage is valid unless the supposed widow herself wants to go back to her first husband. Her second marriage can be annulled, but she then may not marry anyone except her first husband.

Judge Schubart says that women whose husbands are prisoners in Russia or interned in Soviet camps in the Soviet zone of Germany are in the most difficult position. They risk remaining "unconfirmed widows" for many years. The Russians are opposed to circulating lists of prisoners and are chary of disclosing deaths.

The "unconfirmed widows" have the toughest break of all. Those who are caught in bigamy are not punished because German judges are sympathetic with their dilemma. But there is nobody or nothing to help the woman who sits and waits.

Edmonton Prohibits Large Dog Families

Edmonton — (CP) — Note to the Bumstead family: stay away from Edmonton.

It's not that Edmontonians consider themselves too good to associate with Blondie, Dagwood and the other comic-strip characters, but their household would be too crowded to meet city requirements.

The offenders would be the dog Daisy and her brood of five lovable but numerous pups. According to the by-law committee of city council, she'd have to get rid of three of her progeny or brand the Bumstead establishment as a commercial one which would be barred from Edmonton's residential area.

The argument arose from a complaint that a woman was keeping 11 English bulldogs in the city for breeding purposes. That, the committee agreed, was too many. Existing by-laws provide for licensed kennels on the city's outskirts, but some dog-lovers were getting around the law by purchasing individual licences for all their dogs.

The World Renovators

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

Addressing a gathering of automobile workers in Rome, Pope Pius referred to the Communist union leaders as "those renovators in the world who take upon themselves the care of the interests of workers as though it was their own monopoly". He said they "flash before the eyes of the people a mirage of future prosperity and richness based on the superstition of technique and organization . . . The church never promises equality which others proclaim, because it knows that life always produces a scale of gradations and differences in physical and intellectual qualities".

I am not a Roman Catholic, but I think the Pope in these few sentences exposed the fallacies that are the root of most of the social, political and international troubles of our time. Communists and Socialists alike have set themselves up as world renovators, and as a result of their work we have had, in one generation, two of the worst wars in history. Socialism originated in Germany and it gathered strength under Bismarck who, although he was a conservative, set up a system of State Socialism in order to placate and control the workers and strike the ground from under the Marxist Socialist agitators. This was followed by an intensification of German nationalism and imperialism under the Kaiser, who conceived the idea that his mission was to spread German culture and rule throughout the world.

The Second World War was planned and launched for the same purpose under National Socialism by Hitler and his Nazi Party, with a result that is only too well known. But the lesson of those two wars has not been heeded by Socialists, and the rulers of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics are today following in the footsteps of the Kaiser and Hitler.

The lesson of the two world wars is that Socialism, whatever name it assumes, leads eventually to totalitarianism and aggressive imperialism.

Both Hitler and Mussolini were originally Socialists and they climbed to power on the backs of the workers, whom they immediately suppressed and turned into State slaves. They flashed before the eyes of the people the mirage of a Utopia in which everybody would have perpetual prosperity and freedom from the cares of this world. For a while they seemed to succeed in fulfilling their promises, but the mirage faded and the last condition of the German and Italian people, as we see it today, is far worse than the first.

Instead of improving the world, these "renovators" have made a mess of it. And the reason for their failure is that the world is made up of a great variety of human beings who can not be pounded into a mass and reproduced in a single mold. As the Pope says: "Life always produces a scale of gradations and differences in physical and intellectual qualities." Christianity does not promise equality, but it does insist upon individual responsibility and human brotherhood under the Fatherhood of God.

All men are brothers, but all brothers in a family are not alike; yet there can be a bond of mutual sympathy and help between them. And that is the first essential to the true brotherhood of mankind. Then renovation of the world must begin from within the hearts of men, with the salvation of the individual from the sins of selfishness, greed, envy and hatred, which are the causes of all social, national and international strife. It is all summed up in these words of Scripture: "From whence come wars and fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members? Ye lust, and have not; ye kill and desire to have, and cannot obtain; ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because you ask not."

TENSION EASES IN CENTRAL CHINA AFTER VICTORY

People Look to Chiang With New Respect

By HAROLD K. MILKS

Nanking, Nov. 19 — (AP) — Tension eased in Central China today as the government's news of a complete victory in the battle of Suchow gave fresh hope to the unnerved capital.

The city obviously was impressed by the military spokesman's triumphant statement Tuesday: "The battle for Suchow can be considered as concluded." People who had begun to talk of Chiang Kai-Shek's possible abdication looked up to the Generalissimo with new respect.

Few sources, however, expected the communist commanders to take the reported setback without planning another fight to open the road to Nanking.

Clear days and moonlight nights favored government air strikes against communist troops deployed without cover on the exposed plains.

For that reason, communist losses likely were heavy. Maj.-Gen. Chang Liu-Shih, government military spokesman, estimated 130,000 red casualties to 40,000 for the Suchow defenders.

The government halted the red advance without the use of reinforcements and supplies stalled at Pengpu, midway between Suchow and Nanking. These presumably would be available in the next phase.

The entire length of the Pukow - Suchow rail line, with many miles of tracks destroyed, was reported in government hands, although some neutral sources doubted this.

The United States navy announced in Pearl Harbor meanwhile that its transport Bayfield will leave Guam for Tsingtao about Nov. 23 with 1,250 marines to bolster the marine force in that Shantung peninsula navy base.

There are signs of communist activity in the area of Tsingtao, headquarters of United States naval forces in the Western Pacific.

Military, Economic Alliance Between Britain And Eire Likely Negotiated in 1949

Paris, Nov. 19 — (CP) — Commonwealth leaders predicted today that Britain and Eire next year will begin negotiating a treaty for a close military and economic alliance.

Responsible informants, here for the United Nations Assembly, said the talks are likely to begin soon after Prime Minister John A. Costello's bill to repeal Eire's External Relations Act becomes law. This bill will be the final step taking Eire out of the Commonwealth.

Costello has gone on record as favoring close association between his country and the Commonwealth.

It is held likely that the question of Eire's entry into the five-power Brussels alliance and, subsequently, into the planned North Atlantic defence system, will be discussed early next year.

At a conference Tuesday among Eire and Commonwealth officials, the informants said, it was decided that there will be a time gap between the date on which Costello's bill becomes law and its practical application.

This means, they said, that no immediate crisis will be involved in such matters as:

1. The status of Irish nationals living in Commonwealth countries.
2. Finance and trade relations between Eire and her present Commonwealth partners.
3. Eire's position in the sterling area.
4. Eire's position in the imperial preferential tariff system.

The duration of the time gap was not disclosed.

NEW PITCHBLENDE FIND REPORTED NORTH OF 'SOO'

Many Prospecting Parties on Way to Area

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP) — The fever of a new mining rush hit Algoma district today with the report of a new strike of pitchblende, radioactive ore containing the valuable atom power uranium in the area at the mouth of the Agawa River, 106 miles north of here.

The staking rush centering in a field about 16 miles northeast of the original Oct. 8 strike near Theano Point was said to be a continuation of the same rock formation.

Mining recorder W.N. Miller said today that a total of 26 claims have already been registered in the Agawa River country.

A large number of prospecting parties left this morning on the northbound Algoma Central Railway train, some of them equipped with the essential geiger counters. All ticket purchasers in the prospecting groups made the same demand to the A.C.R. ticket clerk mile 106 please.

Alona Bay Continuation

One local geologist, apparently governed by the Federal order-in-council which controls atomic energy development declined to authorize any statement concerning the possible new pitchblende discovery but offered the opinion that these early reports might substantiate the believe that the reported new strike was a continuation of the Alona Bay mineral formation.

The mining recorders office, the newspaper and several local mining offices were flooded overnight with telephone calls from several points in United States and eastern Ontario.

Acording to first reports the claims just north of Frater, straddle the Algoma Railway.

A total of 327 claims have now been recorded at the Sault Ste. Marie office covering the whole of the "strike area" extending from Alona Bay shores to the northern portions of the famous Agawa Canyon.

UN Rejects Russ Proposal For Cut In Armed Forces

Vishinsky Refuses to Tell Number of Men in Army

Paris, Nov. 19 — (AP) — The United Nations Assembly today rejected a Russian proposal for a one-third cut within a year in the armed forces of the Big Five powers, but adopted a western-backed resolution looking toward reduced world armaments.

The Assembly also voted down Russia's demand for an immediate ban on the atom bomb.

Usual Division

The vote against the section of the Soviet proposal calling for the one-third arms cut was 36 to six. The Russian bloc voted with the Soviet Union for the section and 10 countries abstained.

The vote against the atom bomb proposal was 37 to six, with nine abstentions and the eastern states, as usual, in a solid bloc.

Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet deputy foreign minister, told the Assembly during earlier debate he would not answer questions in the political committee as to how many soldiers Russia has under arms, and would not answer them now.

Vishinsky said that information would be supplied in due time to the international control organ which was suggested in his resolution. The Soviet resolution already had been rejected by the 58-power political committee, which had approved the western supported resolution.

"Directed Against Russia"

Vishinsky declared the United States is building a western European system directed against Russia.

In addition, he charged, the United States is building up a western European system directed against the Soviet Union.

The Russian spoke after John Foster Dulles, acting chief of the United States delegation, attacked the Soviet proposal for a one-third arms cut as "almost irresponsible" and a "real deception."

Dulles, speaking at a full meeting of the Assembly, urged it to approve unanimously a majority proposal calling for further study of steps toward arms limitations.

Russia attacked that proposal and tossed in her counter-plan that would reduce military personnel and arms of Britain, the United States, France, Russia and China. The Assembly's political committee has approved the majority plan and defeated the Russian resolution.

Says Proposal Deceiving

Before Dulles spoke, Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France told the Assembly the Russian-sponsored one-third cut in armed forces and armaments would be deceiving unless controls are established.

In a brief speech, Schuman urged the Assembly to adopt the majority proposal, which was sponsored by France and Belgium. The political committee voted 35 to 6 for the French-Belgian plan.

THREE ONTARIO CITIES LAUNCH CIVIC ELECTIONS

At Least Five Cities Will Have New Mayors, Most Cities Vote on Dec. 6

Toronto, Nov. 19 — (CP) — Nominations today in Hamilton, Stratford and Welland launch this year's municipal election races in Ontario's cities and towns.

By the time the final ballots are counted New Year's Day, at least five cities, including Ottawa, will have new mayors. Most cities will vote Dec. 6.

A mayoralty contest in Hamilton as a result of today's nominations is considered unlikely but in the Dec. 1 vote contests are expected for board of control, aldermen and school trustees. A complete acclamation may be given the present council in Barton township adjoining Hamilton.

Up to today, Stratford's mayor Thomas E. Henry had given no indication whether he would seek re-election but Alderman Thomas Jones, 32, planned to seek the mayor's chair. Voting is Dec. 13.

Mayor Harry W. Diffin, 38, dealer in coal and builders' supplies, planned to run again in Welland. It was expected he would be given an acclamation as two-year tenures are usual there.

Nominations are scheduled for Nov. 22 in Guelph and London, for Nov. 24 in Windsor and for Nov. 25 in Sarnia, Sault Ste. Marie and Oshawa.

Nov. 26 brings nominations in Belleville, Brantford, Brockville, Cornwall, Galt, Kingston, Kitchener, Waterloo, North Bay, Peterborough, Sudbury and Woodstock.

C.C.F. Candidate Claims Drew Has Not Kept Promises

Ottawa, Nov. 19 (CP)— Eugene Forsey, C.C.F. candidate in the Carleton Federal by-election, claimed Thursday night that Geo. Drew still hasn't kept two pledges he made five years ago about an Ottawa Valley Power project.

He renewed the power attack on Mr. Drew, former Ontario Premier and Progessive Consevative candidate in the by-election in a speech prepared for delivery to a supper meeting of his workers and supporters.

Mr. Forsey said that in July 1943 at Renfrew Mr. Drew gave "two very definite pledges on the Des Joachims power development of the Ontario Hydro Commission.

One was that he "pledged immediate cancellation of the agreement under which the development is now taking place" the other was "prompt steps to develop Ottawa River power so 'that the people at whose very door it has been placed would benefit first from it.'"

The agreement had never been cancelled. It still stood, Mr. Forsey said, although Mr. Drew at that time was quoted as describing it as "utterly illegal."

Mr. Drew as Premier, also had not lived up to his second promise. For more than two years "Des Joachims was not given top priority by the Ontario government."

Mr. Forsey said Mr. Drew's two years "of total inaction" on Des Joachims and two more years "of slow motion cannot be brushed aside as of no real importance, nor can they be excused on the plea of shortages of men asd materials."

Winter's Coming To Windsor Area With Flurries

Windsor, Nov. 19 — (CP) — Winter will sweep into Windsor today with near freezing temperatures tonight and snow flurries tomorrow, the weather bureau predicted.

Windsor and Detroit are in for their share of a storm which ranged from blizzards to tornadoes in most parts of the midwest states Thursday night.

From a high of 54 this afternoon, Windsor temperatures will drop to 37 degrees or lower by tonight, with intermittent rain and sleet, the weatherman promised.

Govt. Hoping For U.S. Approval Of Seaway Project

Ottawa Nov. 19 (CP)—Federal government officials are hoping President Truman will include a request for quick approval of the St. Lawrence River Seaway and Power Project in his first message to the New Congress.

This was learned on good authority but it was not made clear whether or not any formal or informal representations were being made to Washington.

However, it was believed the long-standing efforts of proponents of the development will be resumed soon after Congress meets, whether or not the President requests it.

During the last Congressional session the agreement with Canada for joint development of the project was subject of long debate in the Senate but it was defeated.

The importance of the seaway and power resources for defence purposes and the prospect of inland transportation needs resulting from development of new Labrador Quebec iron ore deposits, remain among the most significant arguments of the proponents.

These arguments were used in vain last spring when the Senate shelved the resolution approving the project agreement signed between the United States. and Canada in 1940.

Government officials here realize the political change which now finds both the Senate and House of Representatives controlled by Democrats with a Democratic regime in the White House, does not necessarily mean the project will receive any more favorable treatment.

The project was sponsored last spring by two Republicans and the votes that have killed that and earlier attempts to get approval of the project have been sectional rather than partisan.

President Truman is on record as opposing any piecemeal development and believing it should be all or nothing, and that it should be a project of the two Federal governments.

Drew Replies To Statement Made by C.B.C.

Ottawa, Nov. 19 (CP)— George Drew and the CBC disagreed Thursday on whether he should be allowed to buy provincial network radio time to discuss Ontario's power shortage.

The CBC said in a statement that its "White Paper" prevented it from selling network time for discussion of "controversial and political matters." It added that Mr. Drew could speak next Monday evening on the CBC free-time broadcast set aside for political discussions.

The Progressive Conservative leader replied in Ottawa with a charge that the CBC network charge that the CBC statement ws "simply another example of the serious restrictions on free speech which now exists in this country."

He said he will avail himself "of other channels which still are open for the purpose of conveying to the people of Ontario the information to which they are entitled."

His request for broadcast time made Wednesday night arose from a statement last weekend by Trade Minister Howe that Mr. Drew, as former premier of Ontario, is to blame for the power shortage.

Replying to the CBC Mr. Drew made this statement:

"I am well aware of the contents of the 'White Paper," under which arrangements could have been made for the type of broadcast for which I applied, and for which I was prepared to pay. I believe that the Canadian broadcasting Corporation are aware that I am no longer Premier of Ontario, and consequently, the free time on a provincial network next Monday is not available to me for this purpose...

"I might add that the subject is hardly controversial in the sense implied in the telegram I received, as Mr. Howe's inaccurate statements last Saturday are flatly contradicted by an official publication dealing with the same subject and issued by his own authority."

Hydro Consumption

(By The Canadian Press)

Eight of 11 Ontario centres reporting today were under their hydro-electric power quotas yesterday.

Under: Timmins 4,320 kilowatt hours; Kitchener, 6,000; Waterloo, 500; Peterborough, 3,700; Woodstock, 7,855; Stratford, 752; St. Catharines, 2,300; Sudbury, 2,045.

Over: Brantford, 5,000; Kirkland Lake, 760; Kingston, 4,000.

EXPECT ANSWER FROM CAPITAL WITHIN A WEEK

International Agreement is Necessary Before Water Can be Diverted

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)—Whether the United States will agree to diversion of Welland canal water to ease Ontario's power shortage is expected to be known within a week.

International agreement is necessary before the water can be diverted, once navigation closes for the season, into the generators of the Decew Falls plant near St. Catharines. Engineers estimate that would add 1,250,000 kilowatt hours daily to Ontario's shrunken hydro resources.

The extra energy would not meet the daily power deficit of more than 5,000,000 kilowatt hours which has brought week-day power interruptions to city and farm. But it would enable present quotas to be maintained during winter months.

Little relief from the power dearth, said to have been brought on by low water at generating plants and an increasing power demand from industry, is expected until the spring break-up swells northern rivers.

Kitchener, Galt and Hamilton so far have avoided cutoffs through judicious juggling of available power. Those cities have embarked on vigorous power-saving campaigns which have paid off in kilowatts. Weston, near Toronto, is in the midst of a conservation drive.

PLANS FOR EXTENSION

Montreal, Nov. 19 — (CP) — Plans for a $1,500,000 extension of facilities at the St. Ann's branch of Dominion Textile Co. Ltd., in Montreal were announced today. A completely new manufacturing unit with a capacity of 40,000 pounds of medium count combed yarns a week will nearly double the present output of this plant.

Installation of the new unit will start next year and it is expected to be in production by late 1949 or early 1950.

Teen-Age Youths Win in Wild Race, Capture, Deliver Two Men to Police

Peterborough, Nov. 19 (CP) — Cowed and silent after an eight-mile road chase at speeds close to 100 miles an hour, two men surrendered themselves to two teenagers Thursday night and are in jail here. The pair: Fred Axford 26, no fixed address, and James, Cunningham, 22, McMasterville, Quebec, were turned over to Provincial Police by their captors, Henry Russelle, 18, and George Collins, 19, of Peterborough.

Axford and Cunningham are being held pending word from Montreal police regarding the car they were driving. It is reported that it was stolen in that city. Axford is also wanted in Peterborough for questioning in regard to a recent theft here. Police said. They were both booked on charges of vagrancy.

Tip-off which started the wild race came when Harold Louis, manager of a road camp on No. 28 Highway, spotted the pair passing his camp. Recognizing Axford as warned he ran to the Russelle service station to put in a call to police.

Russelle and Collins jumped in one of the garage's cars and gave chase.

The two cars speeded over city streets, dirt roads and highways.

"We were going at an awful clip there sometimes" Russelle said, adding that the speedometer during the chase registered 95 several times.

Seven miles from the city limits the pursued car got into difficulties. It shot into the ditch at high speed, apparently damaging a tire, shot back onto the road and then a tire blew out.

"I guess the ditch visit finished them, because their tire was blown out and they had to stop about a hundred feet farther down the road," said Russelle.

There was no fight or trouble with the two, he said. "We just walked up to them and they gave themselves up, guess they were pretty scared. They acted that way. They're both sort of little guys."

Sticking by Billy Says Mrs. Stuart On Arrival Home

Galt, Nov. 19. (CP)— Mrs. John Stuart arrived here from England today and was met by her son William, out on $4,000 bail on a public mischief charge. "I'm sticking by Billy," she said.

The charge against 30-year-old William Stuart followed the disappearance of Mrs. Emma Pohl, 37, whose strangled body was found in a thicket near Ayr, October 27, after she was missing for six weeks.

A former friend of the slain woman, Stuart is expected to be one of the main witnesses at an inquest into Mrs. Pohl's death at Woodstock Monday.

Mrs. Stuart also was met by another son, John.

Court Admits Signed Confession In Murder Case

Calgary, Nov. 19 (CP)— Lack of funds to "take out" his girl friend led to the slaying of a Calgary Chinese grocer, Stanley McLaren, 23, of Toronto and Calgary, said in a signed confession admitted as evidence in Supreme Court Thursday.

McLaren is charged with the Sept. 24, 1945, murder of Chinese grocer Lum Yum Wing. The grocer died shortly after he was brutally assaulted about the head. His assailant escaped with about $11 rifled from the store's cash register.

Chief Justice W. R. Howson ruled the confession admissable after more than two days of legal arguments.

"I told the Chinaman I wanted his money and he started to holler," the confession said. "I told him to shut up and then I hit him on the head several times with the butt of the revolver."

Rulers of Egypt And Iran Divorce Queens Who Bore no Male Heirs

Cairo, Nov. 19 (AP)—The young rulers of Egypt and Iran have divorced the beautiful Queens who bore no male heirs to the thrones.

This news came with stunning suddenness today in two communiques from Egypt's Royal Palace.

One communique proclaimed it "God's will" that the 10-year union of King Farouk and Queen Farida be dissolved.

Under Egyptian law, only male offspring of the King can inherit the throne.

The Shah took Fawzia for his bride in March, 1939, when she was 17 and he was the heir to his throne. Farouk's sister, considered one of the world's most beautiful women, was proclaimed Empress of Iran Sept. 17, 1941. The couple have one daughter, now seven. The Shah is 29. Fawzia just turned 27.

An official announcement in Tehran said the Shah and his Empress were formally separated and divorced because of the Empress' continued illness, which forced her return to Egypt.

Both the Egyptian and the Iranian announcements said the divorce would have no effect upon the friendly relations of the two countries.

Farouk, now 28, ... was married in January, 1938. The bride, then 17, was Sasi Naz Sulfikar, granddaughter of Mohammed Pasha Said, former Prime Minister of Egypt. Her father, Youssef Sulfikar Pasha, subsequently was named Egyptian ambassador in Teheran.

Three daughters were born to the Royal couple. There was no male offspring of the marriage. According to the Egyptian constitution only males can inheret the throne.

The three Princesses are Ferial, born Nov. 17, 1938; Fawzia, born April 8, 1940 and Fadia born Dec. 15, 1943.

Farouk changed his wife's name to Farida, meaning "peerless" and gave her a birthday cheque for $50,000. Farouk, who was educated in England, inherited $50,000,000 from his father, King Faud. His annual income has been estimated at about $500,000.

Empress Fawzia, oldest sister of King Farouk, was born Nov. 5, 1921. She was married to the then heir to the Iranian throne March 15, 1939, and was proclaimed Empress of Iran Sept. 17, 1941.

The couple has one daughter, Princess Chahinaz now about seven, who is living with her

His Mother's Request Prompts Leasing

Hamilton, Nov. 19 (CP)— A mother's request not to allow use of the building for smelling liquor lies behind the leasing of Preston Springs Hotel, Preston, to the Lutheran Synod of Canada as a home for the aged.

Honoring his mother's wish, A. R. Kaufmann, Kitchener industrialist, has leased the building, capable of housing 150 to 175 persons, to the Lutherans who hope the place will be ready for a limited number of guests by the beginning of the year. Leased at a nominal monthly rate, the hotel will probably be sold to the Lutherans for a small price in a year or so, should operating expensese prove feasible for continuing.

Missing Hunter Turns Up in Hunting Camp

Bancroft — (Special) — Missing since Wednesday when he set out alone to hunt, Archie Kehoe, 30, employee of the Standard Chemical Company at Harcourt, 30 miles southwest of Bancroft, was located today in a hunting camp.

The hunter late Thursday night had wandered into a hunting camp operated by Burt Griggs.

Early this week Kehoe had asked for time off to go hunting and when he failed to return Wednesday night other hunters in the district formed a search party. Kehoe is believed to have crossed Binors Lake and searchers Thursday found his canoe. Friday another search party headed by Provincial Constable Doug Ketcheson of Bancroft, assisted by Rangers Henry Taylor and Daniel Poff was organized when word came through that Kehoe had turned up at the hunting camp.

Mrs. Lillian May (Anderson) Hughes, wife of Mr. Frank R. Hughes, died at her home, Dundas Street, Deseronto, on Friday last, Nov. 12th. She was in ill health for the past year and a half, but was only confined to bed for about two weeks before her death. She was most patient during her long illness and had a cheery smile for all who visited her. She was a devoted wife and her genial disposition and the many fine traits of character which she possessed endeared her to many friends.

The late Mrs. Hughes, who was in her 58th. year, was a daughter of the late William Anderson and his wife, the late Elizabeth York. She was married in 1911 and leaves no family. She was a faithful member of the United Church and fraternally she was a member of the Eastern Star Lodge Napanee.

Grand Governor of Ontario For L.O.O.M. Tells Members Of Work Done by Order

Members of the local branch of the Loyal Order of the Moose, together with friends, had an interesting and enjoyable evening Thursday when at the I.O.O.F. hall they heard ranking officials of the Order, attended at a banquet and later enjoyed themselves during a social hour dance.

The evening's entertainment was planned by the local Moose lodge as part of a membership campaign and visitors received a graphic illustration of the humanitarian work of the Order when moving pictures showing life at Mooseheart and at Moosehaven, outside of Jacksonville, Florida, were shown.

In the first picture the over 900 children of deceased and financially embarrassed lodge members were shown at the $40,000,000 Mooseheart "plant," where they are trained to become honest and law-abiding citizens at no cost to the country. Every phase of activity at Mooseheart including play, work, and studies were shown the finale being the graduation of students following their learning either a trade, vocation or profession.

Days in Comfort

In the second picture activities at Moosehaven were shown where many elderly members of the lodge end their days in comfort and amid interesting surroundings.

Ex-Mayor Frank S. Follwell acted as chairman for the program of speechmaking, while Governor Vincent Freeman introduced the speakers.

George Winkworth, Grand Governor of Ontario, brought greetings and emphasized the importance of the work the lodge is doing at Mooseheart and also through its extension work.

"The work of the lodge at Mooseheart is very definitely a great service to the country," stated the speaker.

"We believe that if a child is given the proper training he or she will never be in trouble with the law."

No Juvenile Delinquency

Mr. Winkworth went on to say that of the over 5,000 graduates from Mooseheart, not one had gotten into trouble with society. "There was definitely no juvenile delinquency at Mooseheart," he said.

Joseph Jackson, one of the oldest members of the lodge in Canada, and the oldest Pilgrim member, stated he had become a member because of the desire to serve humanity, not because of any thought of getting something out of the lodge.

Told of Activity

He also told of activity at Mooseheart and at Moosehaven and stated that the lodge claim of taking care of its members from the "cradle to the grave" was no idle boast. The Moose Lodge, he said, now had a membership of close to a million; it was non-sectarian and non-political, but persons belonging to an "ism" could not become members.

Other speakers during the evening included Mayor D. L. Storey, Joseph Kelly, Governor of Toronto Lodge, and Deputy Grand Governor Oscar Pierce of Trenton.

Women of the Moose, Lodge No. 435 at Belleville catered to the banquet, following which members and guests enjoyed themselves at a social hour and at dancing.

During the course of the evening Governor Vincent Freeman was presented with a Governor's pin, awarded for outstanding performance and activity by all members of the lodge. This is a gold lapel pin studded with diamonds and a small moose head.

Fifteen applications for memberships were received one of the applications being from Mayor D. L. Storey. This application was sponsored by Ex-Mayor Frank Follwell, who is chairman of community service for the lodge.

Local Radio 'Hams' Step Into Breach

Amateur radio "hams" stepped into the breach when Wednesday's gale disrupted communication lines throughout Western and Northern Ontario, it was learned here today.

As result of the wind of gale like proportions telephone and telegraph lines were down between Toronto and North Bay, but radio "hams" stepped in to transmit an urgent message which brought a St. Thomas district man when serious illness occurred in the family.

Mr. Klass Berenbregt of Union, Ontario, near St. Thomas, was with a hunting party at a hunting lodge at South River, some distance south of North Bay, when serious illness occurred at home. But fate intervened and Wednesday morning's gale disrupted communication lines with result neither a telephone nor telegraph message could be put through.

It was here that the amateur radio "hams" stepped into the picture with result that Mr. Berenbregt was soon hurrying home.

When the regular means of communication failed the family at Union contacted VE3NI an amateur radio station at St. Thomas. He broadcast a call to any other station operating on the 75 meter band asking that a North Bay station be contacted.

The message was picked up by George Fralick of Belleville who tried for several hours to raise the North Bay station without results. Finally with the assistance of other amateurs at Beamsville, Timmins and Scarboro Bluffs, station VE3BUS at Lockerley, Ont., near North Bay, was raised. This amateur phoned a friend in North Bay who motored to South River to relay the urgent message to Mr. Berenbregt.

Then the Lockerley "ham" stayed on the air to notify other participating stations that the message had gone through.

Test Samples of Radio-Active Ore From Hastings

Kirkland Lake, Nov. 19 (CP)— A one time partner of the late Sir Harry Oakes, veteran prospector T. B. Tough said Thursday he is awaiting reports from the National Researcsh Council at Ottawa on samples of radio-active ore from two mining properties he has staked in Ontario.

Mr. Tough who was in partnership with the millionaire gold mining magnate in the Tough Oakes Mine in 1912, said he had staked claims some 500 acres in Hastings County in Eastern Ontario on the other property in the Parry Sound district. He and his Partner Jim Staples, a blind wa veteran from nearby Larder Lake expect a report on their find in about a month.

THE EDITOR,
Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ontario.

DEAR SIR,—

Re the campaign for funds now progressing in support of the Sea Cadets, Belleville Division, I would like to make a short comment.

The Navy League of Canada has supplied our boys with a club house here, including improvements, at a cost of over $10,000. This is money supplied by people of goodwill from all over Ontario. The Belleville funds raised last year only covered the local yearly expenses.

Last year 100 of our boys were taught seamanship, manliness and courtesy and they liked it. This year we would like to double the ship's company and it should be remembered that Sea Cadets receive all the privileges, free camp and uniforms, without cost to themselves or parents.

Ask yourself: Does this cause deserve support and if so how much can you afford to give?

Yours very truly,
P. H. WILLS.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 19 — (CP)—Western oils climbed ahead in dull trading on the Stock Exchange here today. Industrials and base metals firmed after a weak early session and golds steadied in quiet action.

Western oils were in a one-way upward movement. Home Oil gained 3/4 and Anglo-Canadian was ahead 20 cents. Calgary and Edmonton, Royalite and Pacific Petroleum also advanced.

Base metals recovered from the early downward trend to chalk up some good gains. Eureka Corp. traded heavily and was down 62 cents. Consolidated Smelters, Noranda and Hudson Bay were strong and Waite Amulet rose 30 cents on a dividend announcement.

A few papers and utilities brightened in a quiet industrial list. Refining oils were easier and Goodyear dipped a point.

Dome was down 1/8 in easy senior golds. Juniors also weakened with most changes held in a narrow range.

Kitty Hawk Comes Home to U.S. Aboard Carrier

Bayonne, N. J., Nov. 19 (AP)—The "Kitty Hawk" came home today from 20 years exile in London.

The flimsy Wright Brothers' plane, which first carried man aloft in sustained flight 45 years ago, arrived aboard the 13,000-ton carrier Palau in company of 24 of its descendants — sleep, new, deadly United States Navy Corsairs.

It came in three wooden crates en route to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

The Kitty Hawk, originally named the "Flyer," was sent to London after the late Orville Wright became involved in a dispute with Smithsonian Institution officials as to whether the plane was the first heavier-than-air craft to carry a man aloft.

Soccer Pool Head Denies Threat to Drag Govt. Down

London, Nov. 19 (Reuters)—Harry Sherman, head of the third largest soccer pools in Britain, today denied he had ever threatened to "drag the government down."

Sherman was testifying at a tribunal hearing inquiring into alleged corruption in government circles. The statement was made in reply to a question asked by counsel for Sidney Stanley, alien alleged to have brought business men and government ministers together.

Stanley's counsel asked Sherman if it were not true that he (Sherman) had carried on a "cold war" against Stanley and that unless Stanley kept Sherman in touch with government officials, Sherman would "drag him (Stanley) and the government down as well."

Sherman replied that

"They said if I smiled my face would crack . . . so I tried it!"

NEARLY ALL DAIRY CATTLE JUDGED AT WINTER FAIR

Nine Grand Champions Proclaimed from Biggest Entry List in History

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP) — With final judging in dairy cattle scheduled for today the Royal Winter Fair will complete the first half of its eight-day show in the Coliseum at Toronto's Exhibition Park.

No less than nine grand champions were proclaimed Thursday by judges hard at work picking winners from the Royal's long list of livestock entries—one of the biggest in the Fair's history.

San Isidro, a bay stallion, was awarded the Ontario Jockey Club challenge trophy at Thursday night's horse show as grand champion thoroughbred stallion. The champ is owned by the Canadian Hunter, Saddle and Light Horse Improvement Society.

The James Cosgrove challenge trophy for grand champion thoroughbred mare was won by Maurice S. Trasler, of Scarboro Junction, with Watussi.

Thursday night's horse show, playing to a sell-out crowd of 9,500 persons who filled the arena seats and jammed every inch of rail space, provided a colorful change from the routine of agricultural exhibits.

For the third successive evening the high-flying olympic-champion Mexican horsemen defeated the French and Canadian military jumping teams.

Atop the seemingly unbeatable Hatuay and Arete, Col. Humberto Mariles, Mexico's captain, and Capt. Ruben Uriza brought a surprise ending to the 'touch and out' competition.

Vying against his team captain in the contest's third jump-off, Capt. Uriza leaped the first barrier and left the ring. Col. Mariles balked, Arete in front of the jump, taking second place and leaving the honors to Capt. Uriza and Hatuay. From their faultless performances in the first two jump-offs, it was apparent the two could have carried the test into at least another jump-off.

Cardy's Horse Wins

The Lady Eaton trophy for lady's hunter competition was won by Gold Lode, an entry of Vernon Cardy of Montreal and ridden by Miss Edith Ferguson of Montreal.

There were three near-accidents—but no injuries—in the colorful event. Two riders fell beneath their mounts' hooves on difficult jumps, and third averted a fall by clinging to her horse's neck after losing her stirrups.

Six of Thursday's grand championships were warded to dairy cattle.

They were: Canadian bull—O. A. Fowler, Kingsbury, Que., Tixandre Ferme Centrale I-M; Canadien female—Albani Nichols, St. Hyacinthe, Que., Blandinette des Etangs 2-Z; Guernsey bill—Curtiss Candy Co., Cary, Ill., Curtiss Candy Levity Peer; Guernsey female—Curtiss Candy Co., Afton's Golden Marie; Jersey bull—James Bagg and Son, Edgely, Ont., Brampton-Medallion Basil; and Holstein female—Franlo Farms, Hopkins, Minn., Rosehill Fayne Wayne.

First grand championship for sheep in the fair to date was won by W. J. Brodie, of Stouffville, Ont., with his winning market wether lamb.

J. J. E. McCague, of Alliston, Que., for years a leading Holstein breeder, won the Premier Breeder award in that class.

The Burns trophy, awarded to young farmers under 21 years of age for the best display of showmanship and sportsmanship in exhibiting Guernsey cattle, was won for the second successive year by Alex Birley of Paris, Ont.

Wadded Silk Used To Suffocate Girl

Ossipee, N.H. Nov. 19. (AP)—Ruth Eisenberg, 22, Newark, (N.J.), was killed struggling with a slayer who jammed her silk panties down her throat, medical examiner Francis Dube said yesterday.

Dube said the girl was suffocated by the wadded silk and her skull crushed in a wild battle in Summertime Woods, "three to four months ago."

Ruth, daughter of Ephraim Eisenberg, a Newark school principal, vanished July 20 after leaving a Newtown, Conn., home, where she was employed. Police said they hold no clues to her slayer.

Dr. Dube said Ruth's dental chart, sent here after the body was found by hunters, Wednesday night, "matched tooth to tooth and filling to filling" the dead girl's mouth.

Dr. Dube said it was "probably a sex crime". He said the condition of the body made it impossible to determine rape. But, he said, the girl's brassiere showed knife slits similar to those he

Napanee, Belleville Girls Win Volleyball Title at COSSA Bay of Quinte Area Jamboree

Napanee Collegiate Institute senior girls and Belleville Collegiate juniors are the respective volleyball champions of the Bay of Quinte section of the C.O.S.S.A. by virtue of their victories in the second annual Volleyball Jamboree held in the Armouries here yesterday.

Napanee won the title the hard way, the end of play seeing them tied with the starry Ontario School for the Deaf team at four games each. The subsequent playoff saw Napanee emerge victors by a 22-13 score.

B.C.I.'s junior volleyballers swept through their series undefeated and untied and won the title by record of their jamboree performance.

Miss McCammon, OSD, convener for the volleyball meet today expressed the appreciation of her committee to Lt. Col. Jack Cousins, for the use of the Armouries for the contests.

The jamboree was highly successful from all angles, and this is due mainly to the efforts of Miss Helen McCammon, O.S.D., convener, and her assistants the Misses L. Leverance, J. Dillon, S. Evans, P. O'Grady and Messrs. H. Vaughan, J. Hodgson, A. Clare and J. Chard, also of the staff of the O.S.D.

Eleven schools of the district competed. These included Belleville C. I., Napanee, Picton, O.S.D., Campbellford, Wellington, Trenton, Stirling, Brighton, Marmora and Albert College.

The parade floor of the Armouries was a colorful scene prior to the start of the jamboree. The balcony was lined three deep with cheering supporters of the various teams.

Stepping in time to Scottish airs piped by Jamie Clarke a grand parade of school teams and cheer leaders set the jamboree in motion. The tartan costume of Jamie Clarke, the golds, blues, yellows, greens, whites and reds of the teams, the antics of the cheer leaders presented not only a colorful scene but an effective impression on the spectators who stood watching the outstanding girl athletes of the Bay of Quinte district marching by.

Close Competitipon

There was close competition and much cheering among all the schools as they each played their four junior and four senior games. The final rating left the schools with the following senior wins: Brighton 3, Picton 2, Wellington 0, Campbellford 2, B.C.I. 3, Stirling 0, Trenton 1, Albert College 1, Marmora 1, Napanee 4 and O.S.D. 4.

The junior wins were as follows: Brighton 3, Picton 2, Wellington 0, Campbellford 3, B.C.I. 4, Stirling 3, Trenton 1, Albert College 1, Marmora 0, Napanee 3 and O.S.D. 3.

Mr. Pete Beach of Albert College managed the program during the hydro cut-off from 7.15 to 7.45. Every school was called upon to "give" with their yells—some were prepared the majority impromptu.

Napanee presented a snappy set of routines, the four yellow and blue customed cheer-leaders making a pretty picture as they gave forth Yea, Napanee! The pepplest drill was put on by the green-clad Albert College co-eds, but the limelight was snatched by the boys and girls of the O.S.D. who once again demonstrated to their hearing brothers and sisters that they simply won't give into a handicap called deafness. The tremendous ovation left no doubt in the minds of the judges that this school deserved top place in the cheering competition.

Following the final game, the teen-agers jived, waltzed and "trotted" to the records of popular orchestras.

Leaside Director Of Recreation Addresses C. of C.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce and interested citizens attended an Open Forum of that organization at Kiwanis Centre on Thursday evening and heard Ronald Hannigan, municipal director of recreation of Leaside, explain the workings of a society where all can engage in recreation in their leisure hours. The meeting was presided over by H. N. Becker, while Gilbert Scott introduced the speaker to the gathering. At the conclusion of his talk motion pictures were shown of cities in the United States, that have an organized system for recreation for young and old. A question period followed.

Before the address of the evening, two important changes were made in the by-laws of the Chamber of Commerce. The directorate was increased from nine to thirteen members and fees for non-active participants in the Chamber at present, first-year business men and others were given a rate for joining of $10 per year, while the old rate of $25 per year was maintained for other groups.

Work Became Monotonous

"The question of recreation springs from a work background" said the speaker. "For many years people have concerned themselves with making money and no preparation has been made for leisure time. Work becomes monotonous when it is routine and many people in many municipalities want to enjoy some recreation in their spare time and so the community recreational program came into effect." The speaker was against the idea of having star teams perform but rather leaned to the theory that it would be better for all to be participating in some form of recreation than sitting on a hard bench in some stadium watching others perform. "Recreation is not a means of keeping people out of mischief but rather it is a way of life and a way of living" said Mr. Hannigan.

Must Recognize Need

To start a recreational program in a community there must be an awareness of the local situation.

There must also be the thought if the people want a recreational program conducted by the municipality, then steps must be taken to harness the resources of the community. Schools stadiums and every inch of square space must be utilized so that the program can spread out. There is also need for over-all planning and this must be a community effort if the plan is to succeed, claimed the speaker.

"It will be necessary for the group taking hold of this plan to sell to the municipal council the need of a recreational program or else the whole plan will fall because the Council should be the body that implements the wishes of the people. If the need is shown, the council can then appoint by by-law a recreation committee of 12 to 15 members and these persons should be appointed on their interest and ability in the scheme. There should be only one or two members of Council on the committee, but it should contain women, members of the Board of Education and citizens, who have the confidence of their fellow citizens," said the speaker. He explained that this committee would have to sell the idea to other groups and then an advisory council can be formed, embracing all the groups in the municipality.

Short Term Projects

He believed Belleville was interested in short term projects that would show the people how the program works and he was sure that no trouble at all should be experienced in having a fine recreational program set up in this community. The thanks of the meeting was expressed by Lorne McDougall.

Russia Claims Output of Metals Above Pre-War

Moscow, Nov. 19 (AP)—Russia has exceeded its pre-war metal output, a Soviet official announced today.

F. A. Merkulov, vice-minister of the metalurgical industry, told metal workers that blast furnaces and pipe mills throughout the Soviet Union had met their quotas and most steel smelters and end rolling mills were up to schedule.

Many plants, Merkulov said, already have fulfilled their programs for this year.

Merkulov did not specify that

Builders Exchange Will be Located In C. of C. Offices

Directors of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday granted permission to the Belleville and District Builders' Exchange to use the Chamber offices and stenographic facilities, after hearing a request from members of the Exchange executive.

Edgar Rutherford who with Messrs. Jack White and Harry Rollins, represented the Builders' Exchange at the meeting pointed out that their organization had been in operation for over a year and now have a membership of 25.

One object of the organization was to provide a service for members by having a place where they could find plans and specifications of current construction jobs as that tenders could be made. "Up to now," said Mr. Rutherford, "his office has been used as Exchange headquarters but this was felt to be unsatisfactory because members hesitate to use it and submit tenders in competition with him."

Committee named

With reference to the recent reolution that the Chamber support morally and financially, a series of broadcasts on national affairs and current events, the Chamber appointed a committee composed of Harold Seiaou, Chamber president; G. A. Freeman, manufacturers' section representative, W. F. Brown, retail merchants' representative and Dr. R. M. Anderson, medical association representative. It moved that a member of the Bar Association be appointed to the committee.

Director H. N. Becker, speaking on the power shortage situation stated that every opportunity of stressing the importance of saving power should be used. He recommended that the schools through the Board of Education run an essay contest on "Saving Electricity" and that the Chamber of Commerce provide $20 in cash prizes; $10 to high school students and a like amount to public school students. Distribution would be $5, $3, and $2.

Director Becker and Director Art Francis agreed to donate $10 each for this purpose. This was approved by the directorate and will be referred to the Board of Education.

Christmas Seals Campaign Plans Near Completion

It may still be a while before people begin to count the number of shopping days before Christmas but the Christmas spirit is gathering speed down at Christmas Seal headquarters where busy workers are trying to get the bulk of the work done before they start counting those shopping days.

There are mailing lists to be revised, envelopes, (hundreds of thousands) to be addressed, seals to be folded, supplies to be checked. Nobody has to fold idle hands.

Discussing the need for a successful campaign, the chairman, Mr. D. L. Storey, said there were still over 5,000 deaths a year in Canada, of which Hastings County usually contributed ten.

"As tuberculosis is a communicable disease, like measles or whooping cough, it can be prevented by breaking the chain of infection, and we know how that chain can be broken. It's a question of finding cases early, before they infect others, and getting treatment before they get any sicker themselves," said Mr. Storey.

"We ought to be so thankful to belong to a generation which has the tools for early finding that there should be no trouble about money to get it done," concluded Mr. Storey.

USED SAME OIL LAMP

Burlington, Nov. 19 (CP)—During a power cutoff in the middle of the golden wedding anniversary celebrations, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Walker illuminated the festivities with the same coal oil lamp with which they started married life. Mr. Walkter recalled that even the streets were lighted by coal oil lamps when they were married.

Picton

County Will Have Extra Cut in Power Sunday

Picton — Prince Edward County is to experience an extra cut in hydro power on Sunday afternoon, from one-thirty until four o'clock. This is for the purpose of permitting hydro workmen to change poles and transformers in preparation for the winter. Officials point out that there are many such changes to be made and that they are necessary if trouble is to be avoided during the winter months. There was a cut-off from 12.30 to 1.30 yesterday afternoon while similar kind of work was done.

New Fire Equipment

The village of Bloomfield yesterday received delivery of a new and modern fire fighting equipment. This is a fire truck embodying ladders, hose and a motor-driven pumper, with fire extinguishers and a 500-gallon tank or water as auxiliary equipment. An addition has been built on the town to house the equipment. An old chemical outfit has been discarded.

Stolen Safe Recovered

A safe, which was stolen from the service station of William Conn at Brighton, on October 25, was recovered this week near the village of Consecon. It was found on the farm of Samuel Danford, who had noticed it several times but had not examined it closely and thought rubbish had been dumped in the woods there. When he found that it was a safe, he notified Constable Earl Marvin of Wellington. The safe had been blown open and the contents, $250 taken. Two acetylene torches which had been used, were left behind.

Many Parcels Sent

There has been a very heavy shipment of parcels from the local post office for overseas, according to local employees. Many of these are those reaching the 20-pound limit. The rush began early and has continued steadily.

Brush Wolf Shot

Arthur Moore, one of a party of deer hunters in North Hastings County, shot a brush wolf, according to reports received here. Local hunters appear to have had good luck as many fine deer are being brought home.

Galt, Nov. 19 (CP)—Stanley White 19, and Louis E. Weatherbee, 18, both formerly of Nova Scotia were arrested early this morning at noon charged with rape of a 17-year-old girl late Thursday night in Central School yard. To My Customers & Friends:-

After many difficult months I have been obliged to make an assignment. The mounting costs of doing business, the constant change of help, of which many were not dependable, and my own poor health, have made the business financially unprofitable to the extent I can no longer finance it.

The Roblin Dairy have offered to service my customers and I trust their product and service will be acceptable to you.

I wish to thank all Customers for their business that I have been favored with during the past thirty years.

Increase Export of British Livestock

Representatives of the Royal Agricultural Society of England have been in Canada on a most important mission, Lord Digby, vice-president of the society, E. G. E. Griffith, a member of the society's council and of the Royal Welsh Agricultural Society and Alec Hobson, O.B.E., secretary of the Royal Agricultural Society. They are interested in exploring possibilities of increasing the export of United Kingdom livestock to Canada. They have already visited in New England. At present they are attending the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto. They have met members of the Dominion Department of Agriculture and visited the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa. From Toronto they will go to the International Livestock Exhibition in Chicago.

They have a special interest in the Royal Winter Fair in that it corresponds in Canada to the Royal Show which is held each summer in England. While in Canada the party will invite Canadians to attend the Royal Show, which is being held at Shrewsbury in July, 1949.

Exports of livestock are playing an important part in Britain's battle to close the dollar gap. During the first nine months of this year, Britain earned three million two hundred thousand pounds, (twelve million eight hundred thousand dollars) from the sale of livestock abroad, according to Mr. A. G. Bottomley, Secretary for Overseas Trade. This was only three hundred and seventy-four thousand pounds (one million four hundred and ninety-six thousand dollars) less than the total for the whole of 1947. Before the war the actual total was under two million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

During the whole of 1947 farmers in Canada, the U. S. and other hard currency countries imported one million six hundred thousand dollars worth of pedigree U. K. livestock.

Lord Digby, who has worked actively with Britain's Royal Agricultural Society for the past 20 years, farms some 1,000 acres in Dorset. He is a breeder of pedigree Guernsey cattle, Jersey cattle and Dorset Horn sheep. For the last 25 years he has been a foremost breeder of hunter and polo ponies, winning many championships.

Mr. Griffith owns 3,000 acres of land in Denbighshire and Cheshire. He has operated a 350-acre mixed farm in Denbighshire since 1936. A noted judge of British Friesian cattle, he owns the Plasnewydd Herd of pedigree attested British Friesian cattle.

Mr. Hobson has been Secretary to the Royal Agricultural Society since 1946. For 26 years prior to this he was Secretary of the National Pig Breeders' Association, and during that period he founded and edited the Pig Breeders' Annual and Pig Breeders' Gazette. He is a founder-member and on the executive committee of the British Society of Animal Production.

Enlists Young in Saving Power

80,000 boys and girls in Ontario, members of youth groups, in practically every community will participate in a campaign launched by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission to promote voluntary conservation of electricity in the present temporary but serious power shortage. Among the organizations taking part are Boy Scouts, Cubs, Girl Guides, Brownies, Cadets, Sea Rangers, Rangers, Loon Guides, Post Guides and Salvation Army Brownies.

These Junior Power Wardens through literature provided for the purpose, in personal contacts in the home, at school, and among neighborhood playmates will be in a position to co-operate in the program being carried on to impress domestic consumers of the gravity of the existing shortage and the various means of saving electricity.

Instruction letters which have been sent out to the group members explain the most effective means of effecting conservation. Pledge forms are being distributed and a Junior Power Warden's button will be presented to each boy and girl signing the pledge.

Chairman Robert H. Saunders of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission points out in making the announcement that "during the winter months, as the need for voluntary power conservation becomes increasingly necessary, each Junior Power Warden will have the opportunity to make an important contribution to the continued prosperity of Ontario."

He believes these boys can accomplish this job by setting a good example themselves and by enlisting the cooperation of their parents and companions in saving electricity every hour of each day.

THE HIGHER WILL

There is much we cannot see.
  There is much we cannot know.
Why the sorrow has to be?
  Why the heart must suffer so?
But faith blossoms out of pain
As the flowers after rain.

If God granted every prayer,
  Made the will of man
    supreme,
Then more terribly unfair
  Would the hurts and sorrows seem.
By the good allowed to me
Countless others wronged might be.

Since so much we cannot know.
None has ever rightly guessed
  Whether good or ill the blow.
To grant all for which we plead
Might to greater sorrow lead

Since we cannot understand
  Why the disappointments fall,
For what purpose they are planned,
  Faith must strengthen one and all,
Trusting God's will rather

40 YEARS AGO

Nov. 19th., 1908.

"Citizen" writes strongly to this paper against a return to the ward system, a question which will be voted on at the next elections. Incidentally he thinks that government by three commissioners would be the best thing for Belleville. Perhaps it would, but a good deal of cumbrous and expensive legal machinery would have to be set in motion in order to bring that about. In the meantime the next best thing is a council of ten aldermen and a mayor, elected by the people at large, thus doing away with any possibility of clanishness or favoritism. To return to the archaic methods of the ward system would surely be a step in the wrong direction.

STRENGTH for The Day

Dr. Earl L. Douglass

THE CONVERSION OF MOORHOUSE

It was said of Henry Moorhouse, the English evangelist, that he moved Dwight L. Moody who in turn moved the world.

But Henry Moorhouse gave little promise in his youth of ever being a Christian. He was indescribably profligate; once he tried to poison himself; and the accounts of his youthful escapades are many and lurid.

One night, passing the Alhambra Circus in Manchester where Richard Weaver was preaching, Moorhouse heard a noise within and, thinking that a fight was going on, he rushed in, ready for the fray. As he entered he heard the arresting word "Jesus" uttered by the evangelist, and the word went as a bullet to his heart. All the wickedness of his life suddenly rose before his eyes like a vision, and for the first time he became aware of the fact that a different life was possible and that he might lay hold on such a life. He was suddenly and soundly converted, and from that time until his death many years later, he carried on a glorious service for God both in England and in America.

In Moorhouse, God laid his hand on one of the most unpromising men in the whole of England; yet the power of God's holy spirit in his heart made him a mighty worker in the vineyard of the Lord.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

GOOD TALK

What a stroke of genius on the part of James Boswell, to have jotted down the good talk of Dr. Samuel Johnson, over the most fertile period of the latter's life. And so it is that the world has been bequeathed a masterpiece of biographic and philosophic literature.

Good, happy talk will never go out of style. We will always want someone near us with whom to talk. We always feel better after a talk with some friend. Stevenson once wrote that "speech of two or more is by far the most accessible of pleasures. It costs nothing in money; it is all profit; it completes our education, founds and fosters our friendships, and can be enjoyed at any age and in almost any state of health."

One of the joys of travelling is in hotels, at various gatherings, at lunch counters, and at filling stations — here are to be contacted people of all types, and all interesting, regardless of origin, education, or avocation.

Some of the most interesting people whom I have ever met have been those contacted on boats and trains. People are most natural when met thus, for they move in a restricted area and have the talk urge, which is a blessing all round!

Being a booklover, I can say that I have met some of the most thrilling of friends — all book lovers are friends at sight — in book shops. Here I have often contacted authors, collectors, and ordinary "book worms." But there is a friendliness among lovers of books that is unlike any other friendliness. Invisible hands, in a book shop, are forever

The talk of country folks is always inspiring, for it is so sincere and honest. People in the country take time to think — and they usually think very much to the point. They attend Nature's classes every day, and get their information first hand. And their hospitality always matches their intelligence. Talk with any tiller of the soil, and you will learn

Mackenzie's Column: Control of Ruhr Toughest Issue For Big Three

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Ultimate control of the rich German Ruhr, industrial keystone of continental Europe, is providing one of the toughest issues to be settled by Britain, the United States and France.

Twice now the Ruhr, with its wealth of iron and coal, has been the arsenal of an aggressive Reich engaged in world war. The Allies have sworn that never again shall Germany be able to utilize the treasure of the Ruhr in this manner.

However, the Ruhr is so important to the rest of Western Europe that its strength must be restored.

Not so long ago that problem seemed fairly simple. Just keep the Ruhr under rigid military control while the war damage is repaired and manufacturing is got under way.

Not So Easy.

Well, it isn't as easy as that. Germans must work the coal mines and the blast furnaces — and you can't get full production from sullen workers. They must have inducement, and so Britain and the United States have decided that one incentive would be eventual operation of the industries by the Germans themselves —with proper military controls, of course.

But France, thrice overrun by German armies in seven decades, is insisting on international operation of the Ruhr. She is afraid to let Germany control an asset which is a potential war threat.

France's Gen. Charles de Gaulle says the decision to turn the Ruhr mines and mills back into German hands is "the gravest decision made so far during the 20th century." He adds:

"England and America flatter themselves they can make something of the Reich to oppose Russia. Perhaps they can. But perhaps they can't. Hitler didn't have any difficulty in reaching an accord with Russia when he wanted to dominate Europe."

No Difference

There is no difference of opinion among the three Western Allies over the need of absolute security against further German aggression. The split comes over this matter of putting the Ruhr resources back under German ownership as an expedient to inspire greater efforts towards recovery.

Of course, France went through a somewhat similar argument at the Versailles peace conference after the First World War.

So one can understand France's present fears. However, she will have to consider the alternative to the American-British proposal: failure to rehabilitate the Ruhr quickly may cause a collapse of the Marshall Plan on which the economic recovery of Western Europe depends.

In Peterborough, Mayor William Owens is retiring after three years and alderman Max Swanston, city council veteran, has announced plans to seek the mayor's chair.

YOU MUST HAVE FAITH IN PORK AND BEANS

I am doing all my own housework now and climbing stairs like a girl and I am sixty years old, writes a reader, whose report has a moral for a lot of you geeks with the rheumatiz. Listen to the lady:

Ten months ago I wrote for advice about arthritis condition. I had spent oodles of money going to orthopedists, osteopaths, chiropractors and quacks (nice distinction there) and I was still almost a cripple, for my shoulders, hips and knees were affected. I needed help to get out of bed and to go down or up stairs.

You sent me two pamphlets —one titled Young Folks and Old Folks (available to any reader who asks for it in writing, not with a clipping, and incloses stamped self addressed envelope)—and I started taking the vitamin-mineral tablets.

For two months or more I noticed no change, except that I began feeling better in a general way — maybe what you call vite. Now after ten months I am glad to report that I am almost entirely well. Not only from the arthritis but from an anemic condition as well. I feel so grateful to you and here's wishing you health, luck and happiness.

The difficulty is to make people understand that the vitamin-mineral ration I recommend is food, not medicine, food everybody requires for good nutrition and most young folks and old folks alike fail to get in adequate quantities in their daily diet.

One must have faith in pork and beans, bread and butter, pea soup and Johnny cake or whatever victuals one must eat to live. Enough faith to keep eating them more or less the year around.

Obviously the reader regarded the vitamins and minerals I advised her to take daily to supplement her inadequate diet, as medicine. She does not say so, but it is quite likely that she has stopped eating vitamins and minerals and hence it will not be long before her newfound vite begins to decline and the old rheumatiz recurs. It was prolonged, perhaps lifelong nutritional deficiency that crippled her in the first place, and if she now falls back into the old habit of subsisting on refined food which is inadequate to maintain good nutrition, what else can she expect?

Possibly every one would get an adequate vitamin and mineral ration from food if every one consumed not less than 3 pints of milk daily or its equivalent in the form of cheese, buttermilk, skim milk, cream, butter, yogurt; ate real whole wheat bread instead of white bread; ate a genuine salad (dish of raw herbs and vegetables and fruits) with lunch and again with the main meal; ate fresh fruit in season, for breakfast and again as dessert instead of refined sweets; and ate sea fish or shell fish twice a week—at least canned sardines and canned salmon and tuna and other sea fish or shell fish, which are good food sources of vitamin D.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Iodine

Please let me know whether it is advisable for a person with a plus-8 metabolism to take iodine. (R. C.)

Answer—Neither such a person nor any one should take iodine without his or her physician's supervision. If you refer to nutritional iodin, in my opinion every man, woman and child needs that to keep well. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask for instructions for Taking an Iodin Ration.

Sick Headache

I suffered for years with sick headache. Treatment by three different doctors brought no relief. Sent for your pamphlet, began taking the calcium as recommended therein, gradually got relief until now sick headaches for me are only a memory. My only regret is that I didn't know about calcium earlier. (Mrs. C. O'H.)

Answer—Thank you. Of course we don't know whether our old friend C. O. Incidence had anything to do with it. We do know that a good many migraine (sick headache) sufferers get relief when they boop their calcium and vitamin D intake. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (no clipping, please) for pamphlet Why Have Headache? Other ailments due to calcium deficiency and other ways of booping or increasing your calcium and D intake are described in booklet The Calcium Shortage, 25 cents.

Air Condition the Office

In our office we have the usual trouble—some of the girls object to open window, saying the least draft gives them a cold. Others complain about the stuffiness, saying it gives them headache and slows their work. What can you suggest? (Miss B. L.)

Answer—Use in at least two windows screens of unbleached muslin. It admits fresh air, desirable moisture, excludes wind, draft, dust, rain and snow. It saves fuel too.

RUMOR CAUSES PANIC

Edmonton — (CP) — A recent buying panc caused a temporary automobile tire shortage in Edmonton. Origin of the shortage scare is believed to have been an ambiguous radio announcement to the effect that rubber had been tied up in the United States. The situation has returned to normal.

Large Price Spread in Meat Caused By 50 P.C. Loss in Non-Edible Portion

Toronto, Nov. 19—Why does the housewife have to pay from 69 to 75 cents per pound for steaks and roasts when she sees by the paper that good steers are selling on the city market for 25 cents per pound? It looks to her like a big spread between market and consumer prices and an undue profit to the butcher. But steer is not all table beef and the spread takes care of the non-edible portion.

To give the consumer some idea of why costs build up as they do, and to show the housewife the most profitable cuts to buy and how to cook less tender ones so they will be appetizing as wel as nourishing, the Department of Agriculture is putting on a demonstration of buying and cooking of beef and poultry at the Royal Winter Fair. An array of tempting cuts of government-graded red brand beef highlights the show in the upper west annex of the Coliseum.

Reduced to 480 Pounds

"If the farmer sells a 1,000-pound steer to the packing plant, the packer buys only about 530 pounds of beef," explains R. P. Bennett, chief of marketing services, Ottawa. "And if the retailer buys this 530-pound carcass, he has only about 480 pounds of beef to sell, due to the shrinkage, bones, sinews and fats of no great retail value."

Only about 18 per cent of the carcass is accounted for by what the public considers the choice cuts of beef—sirloin, porterhouse and T-bone steaks and roasts, he said.

The butcher, in order to make a profit and stay in business, has to sell these cuts at whatever the people will pay for them, he explained. The housewife will not pay average prices for chuck steaks and roasts, flanks, shanks, etc., and so he has to sell these portions at low price—he must necessarily charge high prices for the choice cuts.

Origin of Cut Names

"It used to be there was only one steak—round," said M. W. Gordon, who demostrated the general cuts into which the carcass is broken up. "Sirloin gets its name because an early English king knighted this portion of the beef after he relished a dish of it which his chef had prepared."

"Poterhouse" was named for a tavern-keeper named "Porter" on the outskirts of New York who specialized in this cut.

Meat cooked at a low temperature — 325 to 350 — is much more economical than at the usual higher temperature (around 500 for searing, then reduced), said Dorothy Batchellor MacKinnon, home economist with the department. There is about 11 per cent more edible meat with slow cooking. Tender cuts may be cooked in dry heats, roasted or broiled; less tender ones require moisture. For a pot roast a cup of liquid, water, tomato juice or spiced vinegar and water. Dressed flank steak is a tasty and economical dish.

One-Pan Meals Economical

One-pan meals—which conserve power — are popular at the moment. But vegetables should be added to the meat, allowing the minimum of time for cooking, to look attractive, she said.

Government-grading has taken the guesswork out of buying poultry, said Inspector Laing of Toronto. Grade Special, in limited supply, are marked with purple tag; Grade "A," red; Grade "B," blue; "C," yellow. Tenderness maybe gauged by pressing the knee bone, which should be pliable, and the leg muscles, which should be soft.

Eviscerated (drawn) fowl is handier for the average city kitchen, and the cost compared with undrawn fowl is only slightly higher. Chicken portions — whole or half breast, legs, backs, wings and giblets — are becoming increasingly popular, especially for small families. And considering the wastage in the whole bird, drawn or undrawn, the price for these cuts are not high.

Dressed Chicken Safe Buy

Eviscerated poultry — especially cellophane-wrapped and chicken portions are a safe buy for the housewife — they have been prepared in government-supervised plants, said the inspector.

Half turkeys for small families are also gaining favor, since turkeys seem to be getting heavier and smaller ones are limited in supply, he said.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

The engagement is announced of Miss Anna McMahon, eldest daughter of Mr. Fenton McMahon and the late Mrs. McMahon and Florian Florek, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Florek, Edinboro, Pennsylvania, the wedding to take place on November 25th, in St. Margaret's Church, St. Louis, Mo., U.S.

WEDDINGS

MORTON—JONES

Ferns, white chrysanthemums and yellow baby 'mums, along with tall white tapers, and evergreens, formed a very picturesque setting for the pretty Fall wedding in Thomasburg United Church, at two o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, when the Rev. Harold Neal Burgess, B.A., united in marriage, Freda Fern, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Jones, of Thomasburg, and Earl Jack Morton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Morton, also of Thomasburg.

Mrs. Fred Porter played the wedding music and also accompanied the Misses Jean and Vera Martin, who during the signing of the register, sang "Always".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a gown of white sheer, featuring a waist-tucked bodice, sweetheart neckline and cowl drape cape back, with long lace gloves. Her fingertip veil was held in place with a halo headdress and she carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Joyce Morton, sister of the groom, was the bride's only attendant. She chose a gown of sapphire blue satin with matching shoulder length veil and carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations and white baby 'mums.

Mr. Cyrl Latchford was the groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Harold Morton Jr., and Mr. Gordon Boldrick, brother-in-law of the bride.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the rooms were attractively arranged with pink and white streamers and cut flowers. The bride's mother was attired in black with a corsage of American Beauty roses and white baby 'mums, while the groom's mother chose black with white accessories and a corsage of cream roses.

The happy young couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes for Toronto and western points, the bride travelling in a gray coat with Persian lamb trim and red accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Morton will reside at Thomasburg.

MURDOCK—MOWERS

On Saturday afternoon, Nov. 13, at 3 o'clock, a very lovely wedding was solemnized by Rev. D. C. Amos, B.A., in Bridge Street United Church, when Patricia Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Mowers, 207 Dundas Street East, became the bride of Graham Clark Murdock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Murdock, Brinston, Ont. The church was prettily decorated with baskets of yellow chrysanthemums and the guest pews were marked with white satin ribbon.

The wedding music was played by Mr. Alec Gordon. During the ceremony "Where'er You Walk" and "O Promise Me", were very beautifully rendered by Mr. James Bankier.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in an original model designed on Victorian lines, of crystal white satin, with fitted bodice, the very full skirt of satin and nylon net flowed to a graceful train. Her full length veil of tulle illusion was beautifully embroidered and fell from a coronet of seed pearls. She wore a 6 strand pearl necklace and shoulder length mitts of net and carried a cascade of American Beauty roses.

Miss Betty Mastin, bridesmaid, was gowned in pale green taffeta, with off the shoulder collar and buttoned down the back to deep bustles and a full long skirt; shoulders and bottom of skirt caught up with pale yellow roses. She wore a headdress and mitts of matching tulle and carried a bouquet of roses and yellow pom-pom 'mums.

Little Miss Janice Murdock, sister of the groom, as flower girl was gowned in yellow nylon, floor length and carried a bouquet of snapdragons with matching headdress.

Mr. Alton Miller was best man and the ushers were Mr. Ted Mowers, brother of the bride, and Mr. Wm. Moore, Iroquois.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at Lanthorn Inn, where the bride's mother received in a gown of royal blue trimmed in crystal, with a corsage of Sweetheart roses and was assisted by the groom's mother, gowned in grey silk jersey with black accessories. She wore a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

Amid showers of good wishes the happy couple left on a trip to Toronto, and Niagara Falls. The bride choose for travelling, a suit of teale blue gabardine, with grey accessories and corsage of Sweetheart roses. She carried a topcoat of matching blue.

Guests from out-of-town were, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Murdock, parents of the groom and Janice; Mr. and Mrs. James Barnes of Selby, grandparents of the bride; Mr. John Mowers; The Misses Irene, Beatrice and Geraldine Mowers, Selby; Mrs. Geo. Moore, Napanee; Mrs. Liza Cole; Mrs. Fern Cole; Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Brown; Miss Norene Gartland, Miss Ruth Nugent, all of Deseronto; Miss Jeane Tucker, Empey Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kimmerly; Dr. and Mrs. Anderson, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mastin, Shannonville; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gibson, Havelock.

The happy couple will reside at 618 St. Lawrence Street, Prescott.

'The Admirable Crichton' Well Produced And Presented by Drama Club of Collegiate

The Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School Dramatic Club production of Sir James M. Barrie's four-act play, "The Admirable Crichton" was considered a success by the large audience which attended the opening night Thursday evening. Attendance fell short of filling the house, but it is considered that numerous conflicting activities in the city were responsible.

The presentation was introduced by Miss N. P. Merry, director of many past performances, who took the opportunity to express appreciation to those who had lent assistance to the group. The school band, under the direction of Mr. A. Cooper, supplied a preceding musical interlude and entertained during the change of scenes.

The 26 members of the cast were headed by Bruce Walmsley as Crichton. Bruce, who has appeared in many past performances, proposes to make a career of the stage, and from his past achievements it would seem that it is a profession for which he is well suited.

The play in four acts has three changes of scene. In the first act the curtain goes up on a drawing room scene in the Earl of Loam's Mayfair home. The theme of the act is the Earl's radical views on the servant-master situation. It is his belief that servants should be treated as equals, and accordingly he arranges monthly teas at which the members of the family serve the servants, much to their apparent disapproval. Crichton, the butler, sternly disapproves of such departure from tradition and voices his opinion in saying his ideal is to serve a haughty English family.

Depart on Yachting Cruise

Act I concludes with the Earl announcing the departure of the family on a yachting cruise, and his informing the members of his family that the servant staff will be greatly reduced, much to their consternation.

Act II opens with the family as castaways on a desert isle. The Earl is supposed lost at sea, and Crichton's superior capabilities become apparent to all. The Earl is located and relates being washed ashore. "Clinging to a hen-coop." Immediately, he is exhorted to exercise his authority over Crichton whom the others feel is getting out of hand. Failing to influence his servant, the Earl and his family decide to depart to a different part of the island. The act closes with the family returning across the dimmed stage, magnetized by the aroma of Crichton's stew wafted on the westerly wind.

Still on Island

Act III finds the family still on the island, and during the course of two years between acts many changes have evolved in the castaways. Under Crichton's direction a hut has been erected, clothing made, furniture and other necessities provided. The master-servant situation has done an about-face with Crichton now being accorded the reverence of royalty by his former employers. During the conclusion of the act, Crichton and Lady Mary, one of the Earl's three daughters decide to have the Rev. John Treherne, also a castaway, unite them in marriage. Excitement reigns at the end of the act as a naval officer from a passing ship arranges to return them to England.

Act IV returns the group to their drawing room in England, and the master-servant situation is returned to near normalcy. The Hon. Ernest Wooley, cousin of the Earl and a castaway, writes a book in which he makes himself the hero of the situation. The love-match between Lady Mary and Lord Brocklehurst is terminated in a proposed wedding following a thorough questioning of his servants Crichton and Tweeny, a kitchen maid who accompanied the yachting party, by the Countess of Brocklehurst, who considers herself a paragon of the virtues and expects her son's future wife to be the same.

The final act concludes with a scene by Lady Mary and Crichton after the latter had tendered his resignation. Lady Mary vows never to forget him telling him to have courage.

Members of the cast were:

Crichton, Bruce Walmsley; The Hon. Ernest Wooley, Leo Marcus; Lady Agatha, Shirley Allyea; Lady Catherine, Marcia Blatherwick; Lady Mary, Donna Ferguson; Rev. Australia Plans to Grow Tea to Cut Heavy Imports

By LESLIE BRODIE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia (CP)—The Australian government plans to grow tea in the northern parts of Australia and on the Highlands of New Guinea.

Experiments have proved successful and experts are satisfied that the land and climate tested will grow good tea.

Absence of colored labor has held back the industry in the past. Without cheap labor it would be useless to attempt to grow and harvest tea under the orthodox methods. Agricultural department authorities believe the harvesting problem will be overcome by the development of a mechanical harvesting machine now being tested in Ceylon.

A member of the department, L. G. Vallance, reported from Ceylon tat he had watched the mechanical tea plucker operating and believed it eventually would do away with hand picking method. Vallance stated that it was still in the experimental stage, but it was regarded optimistically by Ceylon tea planters.

Australians use a great deal of tea, all of which has to be imported. In normal years without rationing it amounts to nearly 50,000,000 pounds—almost 8 1-2 pounds for every man, woman and child in the country. The government has subsidized tea heavily for many years to keep it within reach of everyone, and are continuing the war-time rationing to offset any increase in the subsidy allowance.

Tea and butter are the only consumer goods now rationed in Australia.

Blueprints for the establishment of a native tea planting industry in New Guinea have been laid down by the external territories department at Canberra.

One of the proposed areas is in the valley of Mount Hogan, in central New Guinea. The area is suitable for tea-growing, but the long haul to the coast by air is considered by many to be too great to make it a paying venture.

All freighting would have to be done by air because the valley lies between mountain ranges up to 13,000 feet high. Less tuan 20 years ago it was unknown to the white man. Today it is still unknown to all but a few native patrol officers and a few gold prospectors.

Michael Vescio Dies on Gallows For Sex Killing

Winnipeg, Nov. 19 (CP)—A little smile playing about his lips, Michael Angelo Vescio died on the gallows early today for the sex-murder of one of two 13-year-old Winnipeg boys. Their deaths shocked the country more than two years ago.

The 23-year-old, olive-skinned youth—native of Port Arthur—walked into the bleak, white-washed death chamber at 1:01 a.m. with a whistle puckering his lips.

He glanced half smilingly at the 48 witnesses as he mounted the scaffold. The seconds went fast... 22 of them... then his pudgy, 156-pound body hurtled through the trapdoor.

Fifteen minutes later Vescio was declared dead, with police closing the books on a case which occassioned one of the most extensive searches for a phantom killer in Canadian criminal history.

It started Jan. 4, 1946, when the body of Roy Ewan McGregor was found in the coal bin of a south Winnipeg coal yard. Criminally assaulted, the body was stiff with frost when located, a bullet wound through the head.

Nine months later the body of George Robert Smith was found, huddled in a rain-swept back alley, stripped to the waist and with a bullet wound through the head. Police said criminal assault had been attempted in his case.

Vescio, who had been sentenced to a three-year term for his part in the robbery, at Port Arthur, was interrogated. August 9, 1947, police announced he had confessed.

His trial on the Smith charge—the McGregor one never brought to court—resulted in conviction and resultant death sentence Nov. 24, 1947. Appeals, denied by the Supreme Court of Canada, deferred execution of the sentence until early today.

PROFESSIONAL DEBUT—Marilyn Ruth Take, former Canadian figure skating champion who last May traded her amateur card for the gold and glitter of a professional skater, made her debut as a featured skater with an ice show in New York this week. Twenty-year-old Miss Take, who comes from Toronto, shown in this Ice Follies photo, placed second to Barbara Ann Scott for three years before winning the Canadian title in 1947 when Miss Scott did not compete. Vancouver Port Marks Greatest Boom in Years

By ED ROMAIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver, Nov. 19 (CP)—The port of Vancouver is bustling in its greatest boom since pre-war days.

As eastern Great Lakes ports close for the winter season and the United States west coast longshoremen's strike enters its 12th week, the already busy port is preparing for still greater activity.

Foreign ships normally destined for American ports are being diverted to unload their cargoes here and are re-loading with Canadian grain, lumber and coal.

National Harbors Board officials here today predicted that a record amount of coal and lumber will leave Vancouver within the next two months.

They said grain has thus far showed a slight decrease from the first six-month total of this year.

Other shipping officials say the influx of oreign ships is giving Canadian shippers a chance to buld good-will with countries which previously confined the greater part of their trade to the United States.

TRADE AGREEMENT

Canberra — (CP) — Australia has concluded a new exports agreement with Sweden. Australia will ship wool, grease, ores, rutile and tanning extrat to Sweden, and in return will receive lumber, kraft paper, cardboard and wall paper.

Racial Problems Under Study In South Africa

Capetown, (Reuters)—A South African bureau of racial affairs, to study racial problems in South Africa, has been formally established in Capetown.

Aims of the movement were set out in a statement issued after the inaugural meeting:

1. To study racial matters and the promotion of good relationships among the various race groups in South Africa;
2. To accept the basis of separate development of European and non-European race groups; and
3. To protect and safeguard the interests of these groups.

"Not the least doubt can exist about the need for such an organization, which will be in the service of the entire population and above party politics," the statement added.

"Indeed, the measure of enthusiasm with which this thought has been welcomed throughout our country, and the actual support which it has received from Afrikaans and English-speaking people, both inside and outside the union, has given adequate proof that the inauguration of such an organization cannot be postponed any longer.

Thorough Probe

.."The main object of the bureau will be to examine racial problems thoroughly and scientifically, to ensure a fair and just control of racial matters in South Africa, to assist the promotion of the interests of the European, colored and native groups of the nations, and to do its best for the proper development of the native areas.

"Furthermore, it is the intention of the bureau to disseminate information (also for the creation of healthy public opinion overseas), concerning the elementary facts in connection with race matters in our country: the implication of a policy of apartheid (segregation), among other things.

"The establishment of a division or institute for scientific research in connection with racial matters in our country will be a particular task of the bureau.

"To ensure the success of this organization, it is of course absolutely necessary that a large section of the people should throw its full weight into the movement.

"To make it possible for everybody to support the bureau, provision as been made for various groups of members. (A similar organization or organizations for our non-European groups will receive the most serious consideration of the bureau.)

"Representatives of these various membership groups will then serve on a council, in whose hands the control of the bureau will be vested."

White House Will Undergo Extensive Repairs This Winter

By GERALD RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 19 (CP)—Latest word on the White House—from a man who should know—is that the second floor is staying up "purely from habit."

Buildings Commissioner W. E. Reynolds says the building itself, home of President Truman, wouldn't pass the fire-code requirements of "any responsible city in America."

People have been saying for years that something would have to be done about the structural weaknesses of that second storey. The job now is under way.

Moving Day

Historic White House furnishings are going into storage this winter: The Lincoln bed, a specially-built concert grand piano, crystal chandeliers, French period furniture dating back 100 years, and other treasures.

The President and his family, on return from a post-election holiday in Key West, Fla., will live in Blair House, near the White House, while extensive repairs are made in the executive mansion.

Not since the White House was remodelled at the turn of the century has it been cleared of furniture as will be done during the next few weeks. Changes have been made since the expansion and remodelling of 1901, but none has been on as grand a scale.

Poorly Reinforced

At that time, steel construction was something new in architecture, so the White House has little or no steel reinforcing. This winter's job will add steel girders and beams.

An estimated 1,000,000 persons visit the White House each year and the sightseers have contributed to the stress and strain, Reynolds says.

Reynolds says servants on the third floor have no way of getting out quickly in an emergency. The President and his family presumably would have to run out on the balcony and use a canvas chute, originally installed for the late President Roosevelt.

STRAYED, NOT STOLEN

Brantford, Ont. — (CP) — Police investigating the theft of a milk bottle and 34 cents found that the money and empty bottle had been moved to the back door of a home by the landlady, who insisted that was the place for a tenant to put them.

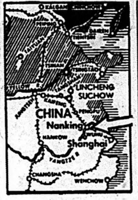
Nanking, Chinese capital, survives Jap attack faces another threat

Fu Tso-yi, Nationalist Defender

Lin Piao, Manchuria Conqueror

Chiang Kai-shek

An estimated 1,000,000 Nationalist and Communist soldiers are locked in the bloody struggle for North China, with greatest pressure bearing east of the Suchow-Pengpu area (see map), north of Nanking, Chiang Kai-Shek's capital. Pitted against each other in mass fight are: Gen. Lin Piao, conqueror of Manchuria, and Gen. Fu Tso-yi, with the former believed holding a slight numerical superiority. Nanking is the prize for which the battle is being fought. China's high command, asserting Communists have already lost 90,000 men, have sent fresh troops into the battle of Suchow. On the other hand, the Communist radio reported nine government divisions were wiped out—which could mean 90,000 men. (Central Press Canadian)



Trouble Spot

U.S. Combat Plane May be First to Go Faster Than Sound

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—the United States Navy thinks it is the fastest fighter in the world.

Its XF7U-1 "Cutlass" may be the first combat plane to fly faster than sound.

Secrecy wraps were pulled aside Thursday on the odd, tail-less interceptor—shaped like an arrow-head—with swept-back wings and twin jet engines.

The Cutlass climbed like a blown leaf, then turned and twisted with dazzling grace. While officially only in the "over 600 miles an hour" class, the craft is "capable of speeds in excess of current models of operational jets, land or carrier based," the navy said in its announcement.

The world's speed record of 670.98 miles an hour was hung up Sept. 15 by the United States Air Force's F86 fighter. The F86 was not "full out" and is estimated to be capable of 700 m.p.h.

In a test flight of a British experimental plane Sept. 6, Sqdn. Ldr. John Derry said his plane exceeded 675 miles an hour "in a screaming dive."

BUSY MONTH

Edmonton — (CP) — The Edmonton fire department experienced its busies month of the year in September when it answered 87 calls, 43 per cent of which were for grass fires which had got out of control. The extra activity was blamed on the dry season.

Canada Seeking Right to Build U.S. Aircraft

Washington, Nov. 19 (CP)—Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Canadian Trade Minister, disclosed today that Canada is seeking permission to build two types of United States military aircraft.

If the United States government grants the necessary rights, the planes will be built in Canadian factories for the R.C.A.F., he said in an interview.

He declined to say how many of the planes Canada would like to build or whether they are fighter, bomber or transport craft. But he said American officials told him they would give "favorable consideration" to the request.

Govenor-General Will Open Legion Hall on Saturday

Picton — His Excellency Field Marshal, the Right Honorable Viscount Alexander of Tunis, K.G., G.C.B., G.C.M.G., C.S.I., D.S.O., M.C., LL.D., Governor-General of Canada, will pay a visit to Picton Saturday afternoon for the purpose of officially opening the new hall of Post 78 Canadian Legion. The reception for His Excellency is in the hands of the Legion headed by President D. P. Pyke. Not since the 1920's when Lord Byng visited Picton to open Picton Fair has a governor-general visited the town and crowds of thousands are expected to greet the distinguished visitor who will be accompanied by many leading figures in the Legion organization.

His Excellency will motor from Toronto, arriving at Trenton at 12:30 p.m. He will travel by car over No. 33 Highway via Carrying Place, Consecon, Hillier, Wellington and Bloomfield, arriving at the war memorial in Picton at 1:50 p.m.

At the memorial there will be a brief ceremony during which His Excellency will lay a wreath in memory of those who gave their lives. The Legion escort will be under command of Major James Inrig and will be inspected. The commanding officer of the Royal Canadian School of Artillery, AA, Col. R. J. Fisher, has arranged the firing of a 19-gun salute.

Leave for Hall

As the last gun is fired, the parade, headed by the R.C.A.F. band of Trenton, will leave for the Legion hall via Main Street which will be kept free of traffic for that period. As it moves off, the carillon at the United Church will be played by organist A. A. Benvie.

At the Legion grounds will be drawn up for inspection, veterans wearing medals and berets, members of St. John Ambulance Brigade, Girl Guides and Brownies, members of the Legion Ladies Auxiliary. Guests who are to be presented to His Excellency later will occupy a space near the entrance.

The opening ceremony will commence with a Remembrance prayer read by Legion Chaplain E. V. C. Lewis. Following the Last Post, a minute of silence will be observed, followed by Reveille.

An investiture will follow with the Governor-General presenting the O.B.E. to Flight Lieut. J. W. Cantelon of Picton, and the Distinguished Flying Cross and Bar to Flight Lieut. Donald Goodwin, Maynooth, a native of Picton. The citations will be read.

Will Extend Welcome

President D. P. Pyke will extend the official welcome and will request His Excellency to officially open the hall. After the ribbon is cut, His Excellency will reply.

The visitors will make a tour of the hall which contains a large hall tastefully fitted, library and billiard rooms and the Legion Auxiliary's rooms. A reception will follow when two hundred will be presented. Later, tea will be served, and music provided by the R.C.A.F. band.

During the reception Mayor L. Nethery will present a gift to His Excellency as a souvenir of his visit. This is a silver cigarette box on the top of which is engraved a picture of the Legion hall. On the under side of the top is an inscription, which commemorates the occasion.

In each of the villages on the route to Picton, school children and adults will be lined up to cheer the vice-regal party. In Picton, spots have been allotted for children. Today merchants are busy hanging out flags for the occasion.

A tremendous amount of work has gone into the carrying out of every details in connection with the visit and a schedule is timed to the minute. Those who will be permitted to enter the hall have received invitations, and these are of necessity limited, but all will be given an opportunity to see the Governor-General and other notables as they pass through the town, and to hear the ceremonies by means of public address systems.

ROYAL GREAT GRANDMOTHER GETS BIG OVATION

Mom Didn't Let Pop Down After False Notice

Montreal, Nov. 19 (CP)—William Thau proudly inserted a newspaper notice Tuesday that his wife had given birth to a baby daughter in hospital.

So far, so good. The only error was that no child, girl or boy, had yet been born, and there certainly was no predetermination of sex.

That could hardly explain it all. He said he was at home in somewhat of a daze with a bad case of fatherhood jitters.

"Someone, I don't know who, said I had a baby daughter."

Thau leaped to the telephone and had the newspaper notice inserted.

Too late to stop the notice, he found out at the hospital that it was all wrong. More woe, worry and jitters for Thau. "What if it's a boy? The notice says girl. What'll my wife say."

Then last night came an authentic call from the hospital.

It's a girl. Thau sighed with relief.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"Mac" Watson lean-flanked winger of the Trenton Hockey Club is up to his old tricks. He took up the goal-scoring thread where it was broken last season—and if Tuesday night's performance against Trenton Flyers is any criterion, he's headed for a bigger and better season and a fatter goal average. Watson scored four markers the other night, two of them the solo variety, to make a very auspicious seasonal take-off.

Last season, he fired home twenty-eight pucks in eight consecutive games, scoring no less than three in each tussle. And if that's not consistent sniping, brother, then Walter Winchell is Joe Stalin's private mouthpiece.

This good-looking quiet-spoken dark-haired fellow as he skates on the ice, to the eye of the average fan, is the last choice for the nomination of "Mr. Poison to Goalies." There is nothing spectacular about his style. There is nothing sensational about his play. He sweeps down the boards with his linemen, sweeps up a pass, or relays one, then grabbing the puck let's drive at the net from any angle. And generally his drive flicks the switch that flashes the red light.

Mac does not pause to take deliberate aim at an unprotected area of goal netting. He pulls the trigger in full flight, and the rubber flashes through the air usually a little over a foot off the ice. And through the uncanny shooting whardry of Mr. Watson's eye and wrists, it selects a small opening where the goalkeeper "aint."

For instance, on Tuesday night the game was scarcely dry behind the ears, when the shifty winger zoomed down the right boards, tobied the rubber into position and let drive. Kelly, in the Flyers net, anticipated the shot and moved to the right side of his cage. But he didn't know Watson. Between the outside edge of Kelly's right pad and goal post was a narrow opening, say four inches. That was enough. Watson's low drive went straight to the mark, flicked between the pad and the post and a surprised goalie heard the tonsilar acclaim of the Trenton fans. Goal number one and ninety per cent of the players had yet to lay a stick on the rubber. Simple, ain't it?

But—don't look now. Last night there loomed up a serious threat to Mr. Watson's fame as a sharpshooter. He's no other than Ashby, centre player for the Cobourg Pavilions who fired home four of his team's six goals in that hectic battle against Northern Electric. The small-sized centre, who also got an assist played with all the effort of a bumble bee and with team mates Bulger and Baker, not forgetting the Cane brothers, sparked his team to a fine effort in a losing cause.

And on the Ashby heels in the goalgetting race was Don "Junior" Barrett and Johnny Semark, Northern Electric stars who each performed the hat-trick in the team's 10-5 victory over Cobourg. Keith MacDonald, another N. E. standout last night notched himself three assists and should have had a brace of goals at least. Looks as though the District League may develop into a goal-getting race.

The second double-header of the league schedule played last night between the CNR Diesels and Napanee Legion and Northern Electric and Cobourg, was practically a repetition of Tuesday night's opener. It was wide open hockey with all four teams showing potential power but lacking in the mid-season polish and finish.

The Diesels, reputed to be a powerful squad on paper, on the play last night, loom up as dangerous foes for any squad in the loop. It has plenty of balance with both offensive and defensive power with accent on the latter. The 6-1 score did not indicate the margin between the teams. The actual difference lay in the Diesels defensive strength "Moureece" LeFort in the nets with Vern Goyer and Mark Storms behind the blue line with Adams and Murney Green to give them a breather at times, turned back the Legions bid for goals time after time. When the Gerow-led crew did crack the defence LeFort in full-season form, turned their efforts aside with the exception of once—and that when he was caught sprawled outside his nets.

Up front the Diesels show plenty of scoring power with the Meagher brothers and Leo Geyer. Tim Williams, Doug Day, Harry Wardaugh, Jerry Moher carrying plenty of punch. Fitzpatrick and Racine, a newcomer, helped out a lot.

Napanee although defeated last night will be a team to be reckoned with. Led by Walter Gerow, and the other veteran Ken Murphy the Legionnaires boast a fast light team that will be dangerous as it improves. They deserved a better fate last night but their Nemesis in their goal-getting forays was that powerful CNR defence. Curry, in goal, played sensationally at times as he turned back the swooping drives of the Diesel front lines. Napanee will be heard from, don't worry.

Northern Electric's debut was an auspicious one, and although not as powerful as was expected, have a sturdy fast-skating team. Sparked by Coach Don Barrett and Keith MacDonald, the planters flashed speedy forward lines. Wardhaugh, Greatrix and Johnny Semark uncorked lots of speed and ability with Peter Jones proving an opportunist when shots meant assist or goals. Williamson and Porky Yorke form a strong defence. The rest fit into the picture nicely.

President Eddie Schreider announced after the games last night that he is going to clamp down on teams that delay the starting of the games. Napanee was at fault last night. The team arrived fifteen minutes late and that forced an unnecessary delay. The power cuts at night have already forced the league to extend the opening time from 7.30 till eight o'clock. This in itself is bad enough without teams further delaying the start by late appearance. In the future, the president said, the games will start sharply at eight o'clock and if the opening teams or team is not there—well it will be too bad for them. Spectators do not want to stay up after midnight to watch the games—and after all it is the box office that makes or breaks any athletic league.

CNR Diesels, Northern Electric Turn Back Napanee, Cobourg In District League Twin Bill

Wide-open hockey with a total of twenty-three goals being scored featured the second double-header of the Belleville District Hockey League in Memorial Arena last night, when a strong Canadian National Railway team defeated the Napanee Legion 6-1 and the Northern Electric squad turned back the Cobourg Pavilions 10-6 to give the latter team its second defeat in as many starts.

Like its predeccessor of Tuesday night, the twin bill provided some rough and ready hockey with all four squads showing flashes of potential form that augurs well for the future.

Individual scoring provided one of the features with Ashby of Cobourg emulating Trenton's Watson's stunt of scoring four goals while Barrett and Semark of Northern Electric each rapped home three tallies.

CNR Diesels 6 Napanee Legion 1

The Diesels flashed one of the best defensive trios seen in the league to date in Maurice LeFort in goal and Vern Goyer and Mark Storms on defence. Play was fairly slow and cautious in the first half of the initial period with neither team opening up to any extent. Both goalies were tested in ganging attacks by the opposing teams and the only score of the period came at the seven minute mark when Rene Racine batted home Doug Days pass to put the Diesels one up.

Led by Walt Gerow, the Legionaires raced back to the attack and twice the left winger was on top of LeFort only to be outguessed by the cool youngster. Day drew a penalty and Napanee sent Ken Murphy and Markle to LeFort's doorstep but again he outguessed them. Goyer was using his body with telling effect with Storms also doing standout work on his flank.

In the second period both teams favored ganging attacks and Curry in the Napanee nets turned aside Diesel drive after drive. Play speeded up and at the nine minute mark Wardhaugh flashed home Moher's pass to make the score 2-0. Five minutes later the same player took Vern Goyer's pass from the blue line and climaxed a fine rush with the red light. Play surged up and down the ice with CNR defensive trio standing off the Napanee drives LeFort turned turned back Gerow's hard corner shot while at the other end Curry took the puck off William's stick at the goalmouth. The period ended 3-0.

Flash Best Hockey

The Diesels flashed the best hockey of the night going into the third period and they rammed home three goals before the Legion finally beat LeFort. Al. and Bernie Meagher bagged the first one on a pretty two-man rush with Al firing the rubber from brother Bernies goal mouth pass. Vern Goyer rumbled his way down the right wing and flipped aforward to Tim Williams William rolled it back and big Goyer made no mistake.

The Meagher brothers again forayed down ice after Mark Storms had flipped Al. the rubber. He raced down the left boards and shot the puck to Bernie who banged it past Curry.

Legion fought desperately to break the scoring egg and sent down wave after wave of players. They ganged the rubber behind the Diesel blueline and in a goalmouth scramble LeFort went out of his net to save. Holmes quickly shot the rubber to McPherson who banged it into the open goal

Vern Goyer, LeFort, the Meaghers, Williams, Day and Wardaugh were the best for Diesels, with Gerow, Curry, K. Murphy, J. Murphy and McPherson going well for the Legion.

Northern Electric 10 Cobourg 6

In all fairness to the Cobourg team, they did not play the hockey they flashed against Belleville Rockets on opening night. They lacked the same team play and drive and had the same weakness around the opposing nets. It was not until late in the second period and the third that they flashed any ETAOINTAO kind of producing offensives, although Plumley in the Electric nets was a bulwark of defence for the planters and turned back the desperate Pavilions time and again.

Meanwhile, led by the smooth line of Don Barrett, Keith MacDonald and Johnny Semark, the Electrics went to work amassing goals. They scored two in the first five minutes from Semark and Greatrix before Cobourg's Ashby got his first of four goals, and then Longhurst drove the rubber home for the planters' 3rd tally of the period.

Outscore Cobourg

Electrics outscored Cobourg 5 to two in the second period with Barrett and Semark getting two each and Jones the other. Ashby got his second marker of the game and assisted Bus Cane to get the teams' third goal. The period ended 8-3.

Cobourg played its best hockey of the game in the third chukker taking advantage of Electric's penalties. Peter Jones fired his second goal of the night shortly after the period opened on a pass from MacDonald. Cobourg ganged the opposition for three goals in succession with Ashby getting his third and fourth and Bulger the other. They tore into the attack in the closing minutes of the game, then Don Barrett broke into the clear and on a fine rush scored his third goal and the last of the game.

Barrett, MacDonald, Semark, Greatrix and Jones were standouts up front for the planters with Plumley in goal and Williamson and Porky Yorke doing good work on the defence. Jones got two goals and MacDonald 3 assists.

Ashby with four and one was easily the star of the Cobourg squad with Bulger and Baker, Haynes, Bus Cane also standing out.

Mighty Mustangs Tangle With Blues On Saturday

Toronto, Nov. 19 — (CP) —The biggest build-up of the season ends tonight and the football squads take over for tomorrow's senior intercollegiate championship battle between the surprising University of Toronto Blue and the mighty Mustangs from the University of Western Ontario.

Western will be seeking revenge as well as its fourth straight title when the Mustangs appear before a sell-out crowd. For Varsity it could mean its first intercollegiate title since 1936.

Western students — dazed by Varsity's 23-8 upset victory last week — have been waging a "trample Toronto" campaign all week in reply to the "beat Western" ballyhoo that preceded Varsity's victory.

The game has been previewed, too, by one of the wildest football scrambles in Toronto history. The few tickets that hadn't been allocated to students, alumni or subscribers disappeared almost as soon as they went on sale.

The playoff was forced by Varsity's victory last week, the first game Western has lost in 28 games since 1939.

Rumors out of Lonodon say that all week long coach Johnny Metras has prominently displayed in the Western dressing room copies of the Varsity, the University of Toronto's daily newspaper, which after the last game headlined " In memoriam to J. P. Metras, Esq., and his Western Mustangs . . . May they rest in pieces."

1,200 Rabid Fans Accompany Tigers To Capital City

Hamilton, Nov. 19 — (CP) — More than 1,200 rabid football fans packed Ottawa-bound trains from Hamilton today. They were following their Tigers to Ottawa for the Eastern Canada football final against Ottawa's Rough Riders.

Tigers left early today and are due to arrive in the capital in time for a final workout tonight at Lansdowne Park.

It's the first eastern championship final for the Bengals since 1935 when they beat Sarnia Imperials for eastern honors and lost the Dominion title to Winnipeg.

Nearly 50 faithful watched the Tigers finish a week of Hamilton training Thursday night, including former Tiger Joey Pal who played this year with Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four.

Club officials said there were no injuries and the whole squad was in top physical condition.

But officials were hot under the collar about tickets for the game and President Jack Lang said he had complained to the Canadian Rugby Union about the allocation of seats. He said only 1,500 tickets were sent from Ottawa and more than half of them were in open bleachers. He said Tigers were entitled to half the best seats for the game but wound up with the worst.

Manager Len Back said Thursday night they were returning some 200 seats to Ottawa where nearly 2,000 people lined up for 300 seats Thursday.

Coach Frank Filchock, whose phenomenal passing record this year has been a large item in the Tigers 11 undefeated and untied games in the Ontario union, had little to say after the 45-minute workout. But there was an unmistakeable air of confidence in the camp.

Sudbury Wolves Represent Canada For World Title

(By The Canadian Press)

Sudbury Wolves, guided by Max Silverman, president of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, will represent Canada in the world hockey championships at Stockholm next February, Silverman was authorized at the last annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to form a team to take to the championship games. The Wolves will start training at Copper Cliff, Ont., late this month and will sail from New York Dec. 28 with the American entry. George Dudley, secretary of the C. A. H. A. said in Midland, Ont., Thursday night a tentative schedule of European exhibition games had been lined up for the Wolves, including games in Great Britain, France and Czechoslovakia. The Czech team — coached by Mike Buckna, formerly of Trail, B. C. — beat out Canada's R. C. A. F. Flyers for the world championship in Prague last winter, but lost to Flyers in the Olympic Games. The world championship tournament is sponsored by the International Ice Hockey Federation, world governing body of the game.

In Regina, Al Pickard, C. A. H. A. president, said a list of the players chosen for Canada's team has not yet been submitted for approval.

Ches McCance, who has played a lot of football both in the west and east, figures that Ottawa Rough Riders should "take h all." Uncle Ches, veteran flying wing of Montreal Alouettes, made only one reservation. He doesn't know much about the Calgary wing line. If it stands up the Stampeders might win the Grey Cup final.

A co-ordinating body to end bickering in Canadian sport and correlate all activities relating to physical development of Canadians, is the aim of Joe Ross, grey-thatched former Calgary school teacher, now spending his holidays in the interests of such a crusade. Joe, who has had the idea in mind since shortly after the First World War, is acting chairman of the National Council of Physical Fitness, and he has invited representatives of 32 amateur and professional governing sports bodies to meet in Ottawa Jan. 7 and 8.

The Brantford Flyers' baseball team, winners this year of the Intercounty Junior League and semi - finalists for the O. B. A. crown, were feted Thursday night by their sponsors, the Brantford Air Force Association at a banquet and entertainment. The Flyers were eliminated by Windsor Cardinals, which eventually won the championship by defeating Toronto Earlscourts.

Guelph Memorial Gardens, a $425,000 hockey arena and recreation centre, will be officially opened Friday night by Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar. It has already been dedicated as a memorial to Guelph's war dead.

The Canadian badminton championships may be played at Montreal next spring, officials of the Montreal Badminton and Squash Club said Thursday night. The title matches were held in Toronto last year.

Final Thomas Cup rivals to select a Canadian badminton team to meet the touring team from India here next month get under way at Toronto today. At Saint John, N. B., Thursday night, a dazzling display of speed and control was given by India's crack badminton team, in Canada for the matches. They gave local fans an exhibition of the net game seldom seen here before. The Indian stars, seven strong, stroked their way to victory in each of the eight matches against the New Brunswick team of local and provincial players.

A team representing the United States Amateur Hockey Association will sail Dec. 28 at the same time as a Canadian entry to take part in the world hockey championship at Stockholm Feb. 6-13, it was announced at New York Thursday.

(In Stockholm, the Swedish Ice Hockey Association said the championships would run from Feb. 12 through 20 in place of the dates announced in New York.)

Welterweight champion Ray Robinson and middleweight Steve Belloise signed new contracts at New York Thursday for their over-the-weight fight at Jersey City Dec. 9. The scrap between the two New Yorkers was postponed after being set originally for Dec. 2.

Lightweight champion Ike Williams pounded Bill Nixon into submission in 1:49 of the fourth round of a scheduled eight-round non-title fight at Philadelphia Thursday night. Williams weighed 139, Nixon 142.

Johnny Quilty To Seek Job Outside Hockey

(By The Canadian Press)

Boston Bruins are in second place by a shadow in the National Hockey League race but this weekend, at least, they're in the driver's seat.

With two weekend games scheduled with last - place clubs, they have their big chance to unseat Detroit Red Wings for the league leadership. Detroit, one point ahead of Bruins, is at home to Montreal Sunday night in the only weekend game for both Red Wings and Canadiens.

When it's all over Monday morning, Boston still will have a game in hand. And if they beat both Toronto and New York they will be one — possibly three — points ahead of Detroit.

Bruins go to Toronto tomorrow night where the Maple Leafs will be out to avenge the 2-1 victory the Bruins won at home Wednesday. Sunday New York will invade Boston where Bruins have won five straight this year.

Veteran Johnny Quilty left the Boston camp this week where he hadn't dressed for a game this year. The 27-year-old centre left for his Ottawa home where he would seek a job outside of hockey.

Quilty, who broke into the NHL with Montreal in 1940 and went to Boston in 1947, broke a leg last spring. The leg was slow in mending and he went to fall training camp this year with Hershey Bears. It was reported he received living expenses this year but no salary and was discouraged with thhe game. At his own request he went on the inactive list.

Canadian Assoc. 30 Years Behind The United States

London, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)—The Canadian Olympic Association, set up as a committee of the Amateur Athletic Union, is 30 years behind the United States.

That was the word passed today by Avery Brundage, U.S. Olympic Committee chairman, in an interview shortly before his scheduled departure to Chicago after a one-day "all expenses-paid" visit here at the invitation of city council.

"About 30 years ago a separate Olympic Committee was set up in the United States, taking in every organization that had anything to do with amateur sport" he said. "The committee has charge of trials, selecting teams, managers and coaches.

"Those interested in each individual Olympic sport have full control in picking our team. Every organization has a voice in its own particular sport and everybody is happy about it."

Brundage's remarks were especially timely in view of the present squabble between the Canadian Olympic Association and the A.A.U. the question of the C.O.A. divorcing itself from the A.A.U. is down for debate at closing session of the union's 3-day annual meeting and a lively discussion is expected

Today's meeting probably will be occupied with discussion of reports by various committees but major topics amongst delegates appeared to be decision of the meeting Thursday to ease regulations concerning amateurs.

A resolution was approved declaring that athletes who compete with or against professionals in sports not under A.A.U. jurisdiction would "suffer no penalty." Previously, athletes were liable to suspension for intermingling with the pros.

Some delegates said the practice of intermingling has been "going on for some years" without penalty and that the resolution doesn't "rid sport of shamateurism." Others took the view it was "just what amateur sport needs."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoolap Oxpert is in a state of suspended bridge animation. His game does not improve. Why? He blindly believes his favorite expert to be an inspired profit who could not be wrong. He asks no proof.

Some time ago he read that a bid meant this and such. The fact that it has since proven sour does not change his opinion. It was what he learned and it is what he is going to follow.

South opened with one club when north held this hand:

♠A 9
♥K 9 6 5 4
♣A Q 7 5

My claim was that the first response by north should be a bid of two hearts. Enough tricks with sure tricks are there for a jump. But Akoolap disagrees with me in this.

He replies first with one heart and later jumps to four clubs. He states: "So-and-so says an immediate jump takeout is an inferential slam force." He has no reason other than the expert said so.

The reason each Horse Sense rule is correct is not because its author says so. It is because it can be irrefutably proven. This goes also for the meaning of jumps and slam showing.

A jump is simply a signal of tricks enough for a game. Opener promises five. So a jump responder shows the other six. It is not a slam force. It is only an indicator of six tricks in that hand.

Suppose the opener has no more than the five tricks promised. He does not see 12 tricks in the pair. So, of course it is not yet a slam force. It is only a game force.

Only if opener has a sixth trick does he discover 12 in the pair. Then is when he sees enough for a slam. Not by inference. Thereafter it is only a matter of enough aces and kings.

No. An immediate jump response is not a slam force. A slam for force is used only by a player who has discovered 12 tricks in his pair. Not only is this Horse Sense. It is common sense.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 19 (AP) — Gregory Peck, filmdom's most "cut-up" star, will be free from studio commitments sooner than he expected.

Ever since his start as a film actor, the La Jolla (Calif.) lad's services have been frozen by contracts to several studios. Now he expects to do a picture apiece for M.G.M. and 20TH-Fox in the first part of 1949. That will make him a free agent, except for a three-picture obligation to Selznick.

"I'll try free-lancing—unless my following starts to drop," he remarked. "In which case, I'll grab for a seven-year deal with a studio." (I wouldn't worry about that happening).

Bits and Stuff

Broadway will have to wait for Betty Garrett. She will join Gene Kelly and Frank Sinatra in "On The Town." After a slow start, her film career is making headway.

Van Johnson will likely join Esther Williams in "The Duchess of Idaho." He's now doing his first costume picture, "The Good Old Summertime." It's the good old "Shop Around the Corner," changed from contemporary Vienna to Chicago in the 1900s.

Max Baer deserted his Sacramento ranch to appear with Abbott and Costello in "Africa Screams". Asked who will be the next champ, he replied: "I don't follow the game any more."

NOT IN PICTURES

Sports columnist Jimmy Powers of the Daily News today says that the controversial Feller-to-Boudreau pickoff play at second base in the first game of the world series will not appear in the official movies of the series. Ford Frick, president of the National League, said he didn't know whether or not movies of the play had been made or included in the official film.

Indian Land, winner of the $50,000 Golden West pace at Arcadia, Calif., last May, was sold Thursday for $20,000 to William W. Erving of Haledon, N. J. The pacer, by Scotland out of Pocahontas, was consigned by Castleton farm of Lexington, Ky.

NEXT AT THE BELLE — Debra Paget is torn by indecision as Victor Mature (right) tries to dissuade her from joining Richard Conte in the latter's last desperate flight from the law in "Cry of the City." The 20th. Century-Fox hit, photographed in the excitingly vivid "news-realism" Technique opening at the Belle Theatre tomorrow.

Angier, N.C.—They brought a sex movie into this town Wednesday night and it took the combined efforts of the police and fire department to bring order.

The thing was entitled "Mom and Dad" and the billing contained such descriptions as "bold! shocking! the secrets of sensible sex!"

Mayor Glenn Wilson said it was the "biggest crowd I've ever seen here," that gathered outside the local theatre.

The entrance was blocked and Police Chief Wade Adams, who also is fire chief, ordered the fire hose to be turned into the crowd. Fists flew as some of the crowd rushed firemen, but no one was injured.

Thursday Mayor Wilson said he wanted to forget the matter. He said that he planned a city ordinance outlawing sex films.

Tacoma, Wash.—Up until Thursday Sam Colorossi was a firm believer in the adage about not putting all your eggs in one basket. Then someone entered his tavern and took:

A cigar box containing $40 in nickels; $80 in nickels in a candy box; $25 from a table drawer; $147.50 in five scattered cardboard boxes; 41 dollar bills from a desk drawer; $4 in pennies from another desk drawer; $67 in an envelope in a third desk drawer; $5 from the cash register, and $44 in nickels from a pinball machine.

A safe was not disturbed. It served Colorossi for keeping his insurance policies.

Cuxhaven, Germany—The crew of a German minesweeper were so excited by the birth of Princess Elizabeth's baby that they shot off all the signal rockets they could spare.

This was the explanation given for a mysterious display of red, green and white rockets which worried lifeboat services ashore Monday night.

Malton, Yorkshire (Reuters) — British beekeepers have heaved a sigh of relief at a judge's ruling that bees have a right to sting.

Mrs. T. Mitchell charged in court here that the bees of neighbor Francis Ellis had stung her 10 times in three years, sent her to bed, and cost her husband 10 working days spent in nursing her.

She wanted an injunction and £20 ($80) damages.

The judge dismissed the case, saying that Mrs. Mitchell's feelings more than anything else, were wounded when she was stung.

AT THE CAPITOL — Champion — Pat O'Brien tells Don Gift of his plan to start a home for newsboys of St. Louis in 'Fighting Father Dunne' —RKO Radio's drama starring Pat O'Brien, and now showing at the Capitol Theatre, today and Saturday. Belgian Cabinet Has Resigned

Brussels, Nov. 19 (AP)— Belgian Premier Paul Spaak's Socialist - Catholic coalition cabinet resigned today.

The coalition had been threatened with collapse after the resignation of Justice Minister Paul Struye.

Struye resigned Thursday after a parliamentary debate on his policy of clemency toward former pro-German collaborators.

The debate occurred after Struye commuted the death sentence of two pro-Nazi Belgians charged with being responsible for the deaths of several patriots during the German occupation. No vote was taken.

The cabinet already was split on the problem of subsidies to non-state (Catholic) schools.

It is believed Spaak, a Socialist, would refuse to head a new government and that Finance Minister Gaston Eyskens, a leader of the Catholic party, might be named Premier.

Prince Charles, Regent of Belgium, will consult with the various political leaders before asking one to form a government.

Girl Motorcyclist Rides at 50 MPH Along Tunnels of Fire

London, Nov. 19 (CP)—Typist June Morris, 16, would say it was a flaming shame if she was deprived of her motorcycle.

For nearly every evening and on her days off, June rides her motorcycle at 50 miles an hour along 24-foot tunnels of fire and through board walls or does acrobatics on a speeding bike.

June first sat on a motorcycle last August. Now she's so good that John Davies, promoter of a dare-devil troupe of motorcyclists, includes her in some of his shows. He said:

"Many men who go through the flaming tunnel wear leathers for the risk; but not June. She just wears a set of painter's overalls and a blouse. She says it's easier."

DEER RUNS INTO CAR

Union, N.J., Nov. 19 — (AP)— Harold Ammerman's automobile was damaged Thursday when a 170-pound, two-point buck deer ran into it. The deer suffered two broken legs. It was shot by a patrolman.

AT THE CAPITOL — Gilbert Roland and Angela Greene are the lovers who keep a rendezvous in Monogram's "King of the Bandits," now at the Capitol Theatre. Roland is starred in the title role in the Cisco Kid adventure film. On the same program Pat O'Brien in "Fighting Father Dunne". Continuous show Saturday from 1.00.

Ex-Guardsman Is Executed

Liverpool, England, Nov. 19 — (AP)—Peter Griffiths, 22, a former Welsh Guardsman, was hanged today or murdering three-year-old June Anne Devaney at Blackburn last May.

The girl's battered body was found on the grounds of a hospital where she was a patient. She had been taken from her bed.

Griffiths was the second man to be hanged in Britain since the House of Commons tried unsuccessfully early this year to suspend the death penalty for murder for an experimental five-year period.

Stanley Clark, first murderer to die since last Feb. 19, was hanged yesterday for stabbing a boardinghouse chambermaid to death. In the meantime, 28 other condemned men were reprieved.

SAYS TORONTO CITY OF NEGLECTED YOUTH

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)— An executive director of the Toronto Young Men's Hebrew Association, Thursday night described Toronto as "a city of neglected youth."

Dr. Hallowitz told a meeting of the Toronto Jewish Youth Council the city had a serious Sunday-night problem of which adults were not aware. He urged establishment of more recreational centres.

The council passed a resolution urging Canadian recognition of Israel.

COULDN'T STAND PAIN

North Plainfield, N.J., Nov. 19— (AP) — Joseph Vitelli, who said he couldn't stand the lingering pain of a tooth extraction, shot and wounded himself Thursday, police reported. He told them he shot himself in the stomach because the pain from the extraction, performed four days ago, was "unbearable."

CELEBRATES 90TH BIRTHDAY

Princeton, Nov. 19 (CP) —Mrs. Peter Slaght, oldest resident of this village near Brantford, today celebrates her 90th birthday. She is the daughter of the late Henry Miles, a captain on the old Grand River canal, who founded the Oxford St. Methodist Church in Brantford.

HELPED MAKE CANDLES

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)—It takes more than a power shortage to beat Toronto's oldest practicing lawyer. Merritt A. Brown, who celebrates his 93rd birthday today, helped his mother to make tallow candles more than 80 years ago. Now with an acute power shortage in the city, he's still at it.

Saskatoon Squad Now in Hamilton For Junior Final

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)—Saskatoon Hilltops, the pride of the West, arrived here today for the first official East-West junior football final since 1932.

More than 4,000 people are expected to see the game Saturday between the Western champions and Hamilton Wildcats who battered their way past the champions of both the Quebec and Ontario Rugby Football Unions to the Eastern title.

Wildcats wound up training Thursday night while Hilltops will work out for two hours today in Civic Stadium, scene of the clash tomorrow.

It will be the first resumption of the East West classic since 1932 when the University of Toronto beat Moose Jaw for the title. The Canadian Rugby Union junior title series was discontinued after Toronto Argonauts won an All-Eastern final in 1933.

Former Westerners living in Hamilton lined up a round of entertainment for the first Saskatoon club ever to reach a Dominion football final. Tonight both clubs will be the guests of a Hamilton theatre manager and Sunday they'll drive to Niagara Falls.

Although there was no measuring stick to judge the two clubs coach Fred Veale and club officials said they were confident the Wildcats would win.

They'll be banking heavily on a big line and fast backfield that includes Brian Timmis, Jr., son of a famous Hamilton Tigers footballer, quarterback Garnet Steeves and halfback Carl Andreef.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Nov. 19 — (AP) — Except for a possible long discussion of bonus legislation, a matter which doesn't concern him much, President Ford Christopher Frick of the National League, is looking for a rather quiet time at the winter baseball meetings next month . . . "There may be considerable talk about the bonus rule and several amendments have been proposed," Frick admitted.

"But I won't comment on that because I'm not an operator. For the league its only a matter of bookkeeping. Besides, one person says this and another says that and I don't know what is the right solution . . . Outside of that, everybody is prosperous and everybody is happy. Nobody even wants to start a fight.— but let attendance fall off four or five million and they'll start something." On that basis, the minor-league gathering this winter may produce the action.

Weight and See

Herbert (Buddy) O'Connor, New York Rangers' injured hockey star, went up to the Polo Grounds the other day to get Giants trainer Gus Mauch to fit him with a special cast to protect his chest . . . Gus was applying the stuff when the football Giants trooped into the dressing room and stood around looking popeyed at the little guy who won two N.H.L. trophies last season in a game that's supposed to be rougher than football . . . Finally a 225-pounder whispered: "Wonder what he weighs?" . . . Just then Buddy answered indirectly. "Gosh, this thing is heavy. With it I'll probably weigh 148."

STRIKE IS FELT—Repercussions of the strike of longshoremen which closed all east coast United States ports are being felt by Windsor, Ont., postal officials. Mail from Europe for the western states is now being routed from Halifax where the ships are docking to Windsor where it is shipped across the border to Detroit. Here Arthur C. Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)—Ever feel sorry for that lonely-looking gent crouched in the nets with his eyes glued on the puck as a forward bore in on him? Or as he dives into a maze of flashing skates to retrieve the loose rubber?

Goal-tending is a tough chore and Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughan writes that Chuck Rayner of New York Rangers recently advised: "Don't raise your boy to be a goalie. The rules of hockey make it tougher for us every year. Half the goals that get by—why, we don't even see 'em."

Rayner told Vaughan it's the screened shot that keeps him awake at night.

"Now you see it, now you don't," said Rayner. "Most of the clubs have developed the practice of getting one of their players a few feet in front of you. Then, as you move to block a shot, the player moves with you."

"Every year it's something else," Church complains.

"You can't hold the puck. You can't skate outside the crease, without getting whacked. You get involved in a free-for-all this year, and everybody else can get away with murder. But not us. For us it's an automatic $50 fine. What will they think of next?"

Accolade

Hamilton Tigers' sensational football star, Frank Filchock, and his suspension from the United States National Football League have been under considerable discussion among the pro loop's players, says Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller.

Miller says that everyone now feels Filchock was "made the goat in a blow-off that didn't seriously touch him," and if a vote was taken for his reinstatement, it would be 100 per cent in his favor.

"Much as Hamiltonians would like to see Filchock at the top of the pro heap, where he belongs with the greatest of them all, they'd still hate to lose him," says Miller.

"If there was ever any doubt of his sincerity, or sportsmanship, it was erased long ago, in this neck of the woods."

Prize of 1,500,000 Pounds of Fish Goal At Great Slave Lake

Ottawa, Nov. 18 (CP) — A small invasion force of men, aircraft, snowmobiles and dog teams is ready to strike for a rich, wet prize—1,500,000 pounds of fish. D-Day is Dec. 1.

That is the day the winter fishing season opens at Great Slave Lake, Northwest Territories, fifth largest lake on the continent. The fisheries department said today it is expected to attract 1,500 fishermen, shoreworkers and transportation men.

MEADOWLARK STREAMLINER CRASHES SUBURBAN TRAIN

Chicago, Nov. 18. (AP)—The Meadowlark, fast streamliner of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad, crashed into the rear of a suburban train Wednesday night near Dolton, outside of Chicago, and at least 29 persons were injured. Most of the injured suffered light bruises, lacerations and cuts.

Riders Indulge In Final Grind Before Big Game

Ottawa, Nov. 19. (CP)—Big Four champions, Ottawa Rough Riders, will drive forward today in their final training session before the crucial match of strength against the Hamilton Tigers begins.

They are showing no signs of nervousness, says Manager Jimmy McCaffrey, but they know they'll need plenty of punch to crush the big aerial attack expected from the Ontario Rugby football champions tomorrow.

The Riders—who opened the training week in easy stages—completed a sharp full-dress rehearsal Thursday of what they believe will take place in tomorrow's push for the Eastern Canadian championship.

McCaffrey says the boys are striving for perfection in their own aerial offensive with the hope of more than matching the big show expected from playing-coach Frank Filchock.

A final session at passing will be completed today before the Tigers take possession of the field for a brief workout.

Non-starters tomorrow are Pete Finlay and Bob Young, the 22-year-old quarterback from Fort Wayne, Ind., benched because of a ruling that only five imports may be used in Saturday's match.

Young will be going back south after the season and the expectancy is that he will not return to the Riders next year. This was confided to The Canadian Press last night by a club official, who added "Bob is a good fellow, but he's just not aggressive enough."

Bert Olmstead Leading Scorer Of U.S.H. League

(By The Associated Press)

Bert Olmstead didn't miss a game last year as Kansas City Pla-Mors wound up in first place in the United States hockey league's northern division.

For Olmstead this season is starting better than last. Right now he's the northern division's leading scorer. He popped in two goals Thursday night while the Pla-Mors were winning 8-4 at St. Paul, and now has a total of 26 points — 11 goals and 15 assists.

Larry Silvestri helped Olmstead with a goal and three assists. Harry Groves also scored twice for the winners.

Houston won its second game in a row over Fort Worth with Leonard (Doc) Haldorson having a part in all of the winners' scores. He scored three of the goals and got an assist on another as Houston won 4-3.

Houston took a 3-2 lead in the first period, the teams battled scorelessly in the second and matched goals in the final round. Haldorson's third-period goal was unassisted.

North Bay, Nov. 18 (CP)—Thomas Alexander McArthur, 77, mining recorder at Sudbury for 20 years, died here yesterday. He came to North Bay from Sudbury last May to live with a daughter, Mrs. John A. Smythe.

Born at Orangeville, he went to Northern Ontario about 60 years ago to work as a dispatcher for the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways. From 1920 to his retirement in 1940 he was mining recorder at Surbury.

ANAF Darts Teams Defeat Kingston RCHA

Three dart teams of the Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans in Canada branch here journeyed to Kingston this week where they met and defeated three teams representative of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery Club of that city. The veterans defeated the host club 18 games to 15.

Wives and sweethearts of the veterans accompanied the players and were royally entertained at the home of Mrs. Wilson, wife of one of the Kingston club members. The party travelled via Rawson bus.

The Kingston R.C.H.A. club will pay a return visit within the next two weeks when they will play and be entertained at the A.N.A.F. club rooms, Front Street.

NEW METHOD

Regina —(CP)— Aerial photography was used to plot the course of a new power line between Melville and Yorkton, the Saskatchewan resources department reported.

Nine Are Guilty Following Scrap, Airmen vs Youths

Trenton, Nov. 19. —A Trenton youth was jailed for three months, a member of the RCAF was fined $10 and costs, and seven civilian lads were placed on suspended sentence, in magistrate's court Thursday, as a result of tangles between young civilians and air force members on Nov. 7 and 8.

Gerald Ellis, described as ringleader of the young gang that started the trouble with the airmen, was sent to jail. Evidence was that he had brass knuckles, but there was no positive evidence that he used them against the airmen. The court was told he had a previous record, with charges dating back to 1944.

Seven others were charged with Ellis as a result of the fight of Nov. 7. Released on suspended sentence for one year, they were each ordered to pay costs of $15.50.

Lewis Loftus of the RCAF and a juvenile were charged as the result of a fight that occurred Nov. 8, arising out of the previous night's row. Loftus was fined $10 and costs. The juvenile, one of the eight charged as a result of the previous night's encounter, was again given suspended sentence, on the payment of additional costs.

It all started when the group of eight began an argument with airmen in a downtown cafe, Nov. 7. The gang trailed the airmen in a car and managed, in Bain Memorial Park, to trip the RCAF lads through the use of shoestrings strung across the sidewalk.

Next night about 150 air force members entered Trenton, apparently to avenge the assault on four of their men the previous night.

The RCAF men, all recent recruits, gathered on one corner of the main street, while the Trenton gang gathered on the other.

A police cruiser arrived in time to break up a fist fight between Loftus and the juvenile. It was suggested that a riot might have occurred, but for the timely arrival of police. Group Capt. Bradshaw, officer in command at the RCAF station, was notified and the 150 airmen were marched back to their station, accompanied by service police and Trenton officers.

Loftus and the juvenile could not explain why they were fighting when they appeared in court Thursday.

LONDON COUNTESS FINED

London, Nov. 18. (AP)— A London countess was fined £10 ($40) Wednesday because the clothing coupons she gave a woman friend turned out to be forgeries. Countess Hollander, a resident of London's high-class Belgravia area, pleaded guilty to having the forgeries in her possession. Her friend, Mrs. Dorothy Ethel Vos, was fined £10 on the same charge.

THE VENABLES

BY KATHLEEN NORRIS

He and the younger girls always called Arnold by his formal name, but Spencer called him "Army," and Arnold was rather amused by it. Sometimes Lily could slip into the orderly, shaded Sunday-morning kitchen for a few minutes to inspect Flo's meat pie or rhubarb pudding.

"The kitchen looks so nice, Flo" Lily might comment wistfully.

"I make 'em keep it decent. The girls go to Sunday School now, and they have to have every dish and spoon put away or I won't let them go."

"Did you go out to the park, did you have a picnic this week? We were driving, and I kind of looked for you."

"Yep. We went on Wednesday. Yesterday we went to the beach and there was a regular high tide rushing in, and a big dead seal on the beach. You can imagine Georgie! He had to help the men with the ropes and shout around there; you'd think it was his business. Lily, if we go — say, Tuesday, couldn't you meet us out at the Cliff House? It's awfully nice. I just sit there on the beach; I always take a book along. Trilby. Remember? It's all about Paris and this girl who had the most beautiful feet you ever saw! Lily, come on with us Tuesday, and I'll tell you — I'll bring it and you can take it and return it to me.

"I couldn't, Flo. I'd love to. But I can't leave Arnold's mother alone."

"But she was alone before you married him, Lil."

"I know. But it's different now."

"But he went to Tahoe and to Del Monte when you were there and stayed for weeks!"

"I know." Lily always spoke gently. Often nowadays her eyes would be fixed on far spaces as she answered Flo.

One Sunday she said a little diffidently: "Flo, is Mama pretty poor?"

"Well, yes. If it hadn't been for Major Burns dying, she was going to ask Aunt Lizzie for a loan. But now we're all right!"

"You see, I can charge anything," Lily had pursued. "And of course we've everything at home. I mean there are about a hundred cakes of castile soap in the linen closet, and coal — the basement's full of it. And — well, things like that. So there's no special reason why anyone — anyone should have money, you know, because Thomas drives us everywhere...

"I mean, I'd like sometimes, if I had it — I mean I have no use for money now. And I only hope Mama understands..."

She had been as usual quiet and gentle as she said it, looking away into space with her puzzled expression. But Flo's face had flushed, and she had laughed uncomfortably.

"Heavens, Lily, Mama knows that! Don't worry about us!" she had said. And almost immediately the conversation had been ended by a summons from the parlor. Arnold wanted to speak to Lily.

"Sorry to send for you, dear," he had said, as he always said when she hurried in. "But the mysteries of Flo's kitchen are something that no mere man ought to penetrate!"

Arnold was always pleasant and polite with Flo and with everyone, and they all praised him when he went away. But nobody ever felt quite at ease with Arnold. Questions were framed carefully in a manner that he would like to answer; with his opinions the entire family always agreed completely.

He was quite right about President McKinley and Abe Ruef and the dreadful, unnecessary accident at the gas works. They listened to the symptoms of his mother's attentively and suggested cures. But of course she had had the best doctors in the city!

Flo always breathed a great sigh of relief, without knowing it was relief, when they went away.

"Didn't Lily look pretty, Mama?"

"She looked lovely. And think he's very proud of her, Flo."

"Oh, he is! Notice how he was watching her all the time?"

"Yes," Willie would say, brightening. "He adores her."

* * *

One Sunday in September, when Arnold and Lily came to pay their regular Sunday morning call, Arnold had something to say. Major Burns had been dead now for two months, and a new tenant, a paying tenant, must be found for the Shotwell St. house Willie said gallantly, faintly, that of course she understood that. It had been a wonderful refuge for them all since Papa's death; they couldn't expect it to go on forever.

"Now the point is," Arnold said, "Where can you go? Mrs. Monroe Venables," he added, in reference to Aunt Lizzie, "had a long talk with me yesterday. She wants to help."

"She's very kind," Willie faltered, her throat thick. Lily, on a hassock at her mother's knee, squeezed her hand sympathetically.

"Mrs. Monroe Venables is a very generous woman," Arnold said. "But of course Lily's wedding was a heavy expense, and she's done a good deal beside."

"Oh, she has, she has!" Willie conceded fervently. Two pink spots burned in her cheeks. She did not move her eyes from Arnold's face.

"She feels that with her sixty-dollar rent here, and everything else, she cannot handle it," Arnold said mildly, almost apologetically.

"Of course not!" Willie breathed.

"Lizzie Venables ain't paying for my meals; I've got my pension!" old Mrs. Hawkes put in. She would not knit on Sunday; it was too like sewing. But she had brought down an old cloth basque and a small whiskbroom, and she was whisking the matted dust and perspiration from the seams or lifting it out in fine gray wedges.

"What is that pension, Mrs. Hawkes?" Arnold asked respectfully. Flo knew that her grandmother resented the question and the necessity to answer. She was rather secretive about her financial affairs. But presently the old woman said briefly:

"Call it twenty-five dollars."

"Well, that's something, isn't it?" Lily said nervously, hopefully. Arnold paid no attention.

The pension, Flo reflected, was really some twelve dollars more than this, but inasmuch as it was entirely insufficient for the needs of the whole family, perhaps the inaccuracy did not matter.

"Now don't count me in on these plans, Arnold," Aunt Harriet said briefly, "for just as soon as I can get a few pupils together I'm going to spread my wings and fly away. I won't promise to find a handsome young man like Lily here, but there is a certain individual who would be very glad to—"

"Where do you think you would like to live, Mrs. Venables?" Arnold interrupted quietly, ignoring these pleasantries.

"Oh, I don't know!" Willie said.

"Now I have a suggestion," her son-in-law pursued. "My mother and I own three houses in good repair, they're shabby and old-fashioned. My father built them, and while they're solid and substantial enough, we don't feel that it would pay us to improve them.

"Gas is in, but no electric light, there's no main for a gas stove, but I believe one of them has a coal stove in it. Quite a few — there are nine flats — are empty, and my mother and I feel that if you would like to move in there, as a makeshift possibly —it would be no loss to us, for the property is going to be torn down in a year or two anyway, and for the present none of the tenants pay very much rent."

"Ah, Arnold!" Flo ejaculated, in impulsive gratitude. Lily's face brightened.

He smiled a little dubiously.

"Well, you'd better go look at them, my dear."

"How big are they?"

"Oh, large, seven rooms."

"And bath?" the old woman snapped suspiciously.

"Oh yes. The baths are—pretty old. But, however, they're baths. And there's a water back. You'd have hot water."

"I just kind of hate to take it from you and your mother. You have done so much!" Willie murmured.

"But I tell you that we're not getting any rent from the property anyway." This really was big of Arnold, Flo thought, not only to offer them shelter but to make so little of it.

"Flo here will be helping you in no time," Arnold said. Flo felt a little shock of surprise go thru her. She had supposed of course that she would go back to Girls' High this fall, had gone there on her way down to the library one day to register for the opening term next week. "I suppose you'll be getting a job one of these days, Flo," Arnold said.

Vistas seemed to be widening before her. A job! Of course, and then she could help Mama. She spoke boldly, as if the idea had occurred to her many times, rather than only a second before.

BIG LINERS HEADED FOR HALIFAX, N. S.

With eastern ports tied up tight by the Longshoremen's strike, Boston army base is rather a mournful place, what with some 10,000 Christmas packages for U.S. troops overseas held up for the time being. Shown above are some of the packages stacked high in an army warehouse. For shipping purposes, only a few days of grace remain if the gifts are to be delivered in time for the holiday. Meanwhile big Atlantic liners thrown off schedule by the strike are heading for Halifax, N.S. Some 20,000 Halifax stevedores who previously had said they would handle no ships diverted to the port, reversed their decision after examning the legality of their action. (Central Press Canadian)

TWO FEDERAL MINISTERS ENTER HYDRO ISSUE

Prime Minister and Hon. C. D. Howe Claim Shortage Caused by Drew

Ottawa, Nov. 20 —(CP)— Two federal ministers—one the prime minister — have entered the controversy over the hydro shortage in Ontario.

Prime Minister St. Laurent stepped into the hydro battle last night, six days after Trade Minister Howe had termed the shortage a "man-made calamity" and said that George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, was responsible.

Mr. St. Laurent suggested in Halifax Friday night hydro development could have been possible five years ago, but the provinces — Ontario and Quebebc — did nothing about it.

Mr. Drew, preparing to campaign for the federal by-election in Carleton, countered Mr. St. Laurent's remarks with a charge that the Quebec Liberal regime was responsible for holding up the Ottawa River project for a year.

Nothing happened, said Mr. Drew, "until the change in government in Quebec the following year." That was the year Maurice Duplessis took over the reins of government. Plans then "proceeded without delay for the development of the upper Ottawa."

A week has elapsed since Trade Minister Howe in a London, Ont., speech branded the shortage as "man-made calamity." The man responsible "is the present leader of the Progressive Conservative party at Ottawa, Mr. George Drew."

Challenges Howe to Debate

Mr. Drew termed Mr. Howe's charge "a low and unprincipled attempt to play dirty politics with a situation which affects every worker, every home and every producer in Ontario."

He challenged Mr. Howe to meet him on "the public platform" and debate Ontario's hydro shortage.

The Trade Minister replied he would take on Mr. Drew in a debate on the floor of the House of Commons, but on two conditions:

1. Mr. Drew first must get himself elected to the Commons.

2. The lights must be on at the time of the debate.

Neither was it a debate for the Commons nor could the debate wait until Commons met, Mr. Drew answered. He applied to the CBC for a provincial network "so that the people of Ontario may be fully informed regarding all the essential facts."

The CBC declined to meet Mr. Drew's request. It said its "white paper" prevented it from selling network time for discussion of "controversial and political matters."

It offered a free-time period set aside for political discussion.

The CBC statement, Mr. Drew said, was "simply another example of the serious restrictions on free speech which now exist in this country."

U.S., Britain Turn Down French Pleas, Issue May Topple Govt.

Paris, Nov. 20 — (AP)— Britain and the United States were reported today to have turned down French pleas against rebuilding Germany's industrial power.

Observers said the 10-week-old government of Premier Henri Queuille may not survive mounting parliamentary opposition to the British - American policy which conflicts with the French people's traditional desire to keep Germany weak.

The French government is expected to submit a memorandum this weekend registering their objections to:

1. The projected return of property rights in the Ruhr steel and coal industries to the Germans.

2. The British - American refusal to extend the period of international control of the Ruhr beyond the period of occupation.

3. The British-American decision to revise again the twice-reduced program for dismantling Germany's heavy industries. This decision would cut down German reparations deliveries to France and revive French fears of a reconstructed German war potential.

The government clearly considers Communism a greater menace to French security than a revived Germany.

But this view is not shared by the French people at large. On the one hand the Communists represent one-third of the population and make up the country's strongest single party. On the other hand there is Gen. Charles de Gaulle's intensely Nationalist Rightist Party which also represents about one third of the population.

It is generally accepted here that the government will fall over the Ruhr issue if the Communists unite with the De Gaullists in asking complete rejection of the British-American attitude.

Singer Carries On Though Her Hair Goes up in Smoke

New York, Nov. 19. (CP)— The old adage about the show going on was born out again Thursday night.

In the midst of an emotional scene in the current musical hit "Magdalena", Dorothy Sarnoff's hair went up in smoke. But the beautiful singer didn't pause in her rendition of the prayerful song she was singing.

The fire ,caused when a floodlight over her head exploded and showers her with hot glass and filament, was extinguished by John Raitt, the show's leading man.

The actress lost about 1 1-2 inches of hair across the top of her head. Raitt suffered blistered hands.

300 Crew Members Queen Elizabeth Walk off Ship

Southampton, England, Nov. 20 (AP).—About 300 crew members of the Queen Elizabeth walked off the ship today in sympathy with striking United States dock workers, delaying the giant liner's departure.

The men walked off an hour before the ship was due to sail with 2,100 passengers on board. The ship already had been delayed three days because of the American longshoremen's strike and had been rerouted to Halifax.

A Southampton official of the National Union of Seamen said the men claimed that if the ship sailed for Halifax the crew would be "breaking faith" with the American strikers.

Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip Spend Wedding Anniversary Quietly

London, Nov. 20 — (CP) — Six days after the birth of their first child, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh are spending a quiet day together at Buckingham Palace observing their first wedding anniversary.

Just a year ago Princess Elizabeth and the Duke stood side by side before the massive candlelit altar of Westminster Abbey, central figures in a ceremony that was superb yet simple, essentially English in its contrasts and compromises.

All around them were kings, princes and prelates, splendid in uniform and cape, while only a few feet away men sat in lounge suits — a cheerful concession to an age of austerity.

Today Princess Elizabeth rests quietly in her room on the second floor of the palace.

And Prince Philip, who has accepted only one public engagement since the baby was born—at the Royal Society of Portrait Painters Exhibition today — is well content to spend the day at his wife's bedside with occasional visits to the nursery where the young Prince lies sleeping.

On Sunday Princess Elizabeth's chief physician, Sir William Gilliatt, may allow her to get up for a few hours. Whatever he does, his course of action is likely to be followed by many doctors in future.

Because of the controversy on the length of time a mother should stay in bed after the birth of a child, doctors and nurses will note with interest the day when Princess Elizabeth is up and about again. Many gynaecologists regard 10 to 14 days as the right period, but in some hospitals now mothers are out of bed within 54 hours of childbirth.

Friday night, while a group of the friends that gave him a bachelor send-off a year ago, Prince Philip held a stag party to mark the anniversary of his wedding eve. Absent, however, were his uncle, Earl Mountbatten, who has rejoined the fleet, and his best man, the Marquess of Milford Haven, who is in the United States.

FIRE DESTROYS INDIAN HOSPITAL, $500,000 LOSS

300 Persons Forced To Evacuate Premises

Sardis, B. C., Nov. 20 — (CP) — Smouldering ruins were all that remained today of the historic $500,000 Coqualeetza Indian Tubercular Hospital following a fire that forced 300 persons to evacuate the premises Friday.

The blaze, believed to have started in a wing that had new electrical fixtures installed earlier in the day, spread rapidly through the three-storey, brick building after its start at 5:30 p.m.

One hundred and eighty patients were among those forced to flee the flames, with at least a dozen babies carried out by nurses in an orderly retreat.

No injuries were reported. The homeless were provided with quarters in the community hall and a church at this small town of 1,500 persons 70 miles east of Vancouver.

Efforts to stem the crackling advance of the flames were made by the fire departments of Chilliwack and Yarrow, aided by army engineers from the Chilliwack military camp. Their work was hampered by lack of water outlets and pressure.

Evacuation of patients and personnel was followed by removal of all possible equipment. Majority of the beds were saved, but much operating equipment lost.

A nurse and two doctors emerged as heroes of the fire. The nurse, identified only as "Mrs. Norris," discovered the fire and reported to Dr. D. Fatheringham, hospital business manager. He tried to hold the flames in check with a hand extinguisher until arrival of fire fighters.

Meanwhile, Dr. T. Maher, a young Irishman who arrived in Canada three weeks ago, made a complete circuit of the hospital, alerting everybody for the evacuation and seeing to it that all left the building in time.

Drew Pays Brief Visit to Carleton County Council

Ottawa, Nov. 20 — (CP) — George Drew, National Progressive Conservative leader, Friday paid a brief visit to the Carleton county council.

It was the first time that a national political leader had visited the council chamber while the council was in session.

He said in an informal talk that municipal bodies such as county councils were "the very cradles of democracy."

"I have long held a very firm belief in the importance of county councils for it is at the municipal level that we get the most direct and effective administration of public affairs."

He added: "The more we can keep responsibility for local administration under these local bodies, the better it will be for the county as a whole '.'

He was accompanied to the council meeting by G. Russell Boucher, former Commons member for Carleton, who resigned to give Mr. Drew an opportunity to seek a seat in the Commons.

The Carleton federal by-election, in which Mr. Drew will be opposed by Eugene Forsey, C.C.F. Candidate, will be held Dec. 20.

More Than Million U.S. Cars Enter Ontario to Oct. 31

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP)—More than 1,000,000 United States tourist automobiles entered Ontario between last Jan. 1 and the end of October — an increase over the traffic for the entire 12 months of 1947.

If the 50,000 expected during November and December come into the province, in addition to the 1,062,000 cars which entered during the first 10 months the total will surpass the 1947 volume by about 10 per cent

Travel Minister Cecile, who released the figures, said the motorist class makes up the bulk of Ontario's tourist visitors. Complete figures are not available for other types of transportation but, for the first eight months of 1948, increases were shown in the number of entries by bus and by boat and decreases in the entries by rail and by airplane.

Prime Minister Makes Comment On Hydro Shortage

Halifax, Nov. 20 (CP).—Prime Minister St. Laurent, in Nova Scotia to honor "an old friend and colleague", has commented on the Ontario power shortage.

The new prime minister, making his first trip since taking office Monday, arrived here Friday night and will speak at Kentville tonight at a complimentary dinner for Rt. Hon. J. L. Ilsley, former justice minister who resigned his seat recently.

Besides the power situation, Mr. St. Laurent discussed briefly in an interview the North Atlantic defence pact, Newfoundland union talks and standardization of arms between Canada and the United States.

Regarding the power controversy between Trade Minister Howe and George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservatives, Mr. St. Laurent said "if the people who now have the hindsight had had the same amount of foresight years ago my colleagues and I feel that this situation would not have developed."

"Back about 1943," he added, "the Dominion Government took legal steps which made possible the handing over of Federal rights to Ottawa river waters to the Provincial Governments of Ontario and Quebec."

"This made it possible for those governments to start immediate development of power. And, in fact, we were under the impression that power developments would be launched immediately. At that time we felt it was better to let the Federal rights go than to hold up the project. But nothing happened."

Mr. St. Laurent said he believed "all matters of policy" have been dealt with in the Canada-Newfoundland talks and a few more days should see the drafting of an agreement.

He said the next step for the North Atlantic defence pact would be serious negotiations.

Jury Finds Son Who Killed Mother Guilty But Insane

York, England, Nov. 20 — (AP) —Mrs. Eleanor Wigglesworth, 48, had asthma.

"The worst case I have ever seen," her doctor said.

Last June she nearly suffocated. Eric Wigglesworth, 22, a medical student described as he "very devoted" son, stood by helpless.

Last August, after another seizure of violent gasping and coughing, she was found dead.

But there were signs of strangulation.

Police arrested Eric on a charge of murder.

"I was so upset to see her in agony that I could stand it no longer," said a letter that Eric wrote to his fiancee. "I killed her."

The letter was read in court Friday.

"The principle of the law is that, in no circumstances whatever save by the authority of the law is a man entitled to take to himself the power of life and death from another human being" the judge told the jury.

The jury's verdict: Guilty but insane.

NINE ARE INJURED IN COLLISION OF TRUCK AND BUS

Both Heavy Vehicles Overturned in Crash

Guelph, Nov. 20 — (CP) —Five of nine persons injured Friday night when a heavy delivery truck collided with a Grey Coach Line bus, four miles east of Guelph on No. 7 highway remained in hospital today. The other victims who suffered less serious injuries were released after receiving medical attention.

Those still in hospital are: Mrs. E. Flint, 76, of Oshawa, suffering from severe shock, possible fractured jaw, injured kneecap and ribs;

Robert Roach, Toronto, lacerated face and injured right arm;

Miss Wilson, Milton, student nurse at the general hospital, facial injuries;

Mrs. James Buckley, Mt. Forest, injured right knee and left hand;

Miss Theresa Moore, R. R. 1 Rothesay, lacerated face and nose.

Both heavy vehicles were overturned in the crash which occurred shortly after 6 p. m. three miles east of the Ontario Reformatory at the Eden Mills intersection. The truck, owned by the Devon Ice Cream Company of Toronto and driven by Robert Roach, is reported to have jackknifed into the Stratford-bound bus while attemping to avoid a collision with a car emerging from a side road. The occupants of the bus were hurled from their seats as the large vehicle toppled on its side. Passing motorists who rushed to their aid, assisted the injured from the coach after breaking the large windshield.

The injured were rushed to Guelph hospital in two police ambulances and private cars. The four persons who were released after treatment were: Miss R. M. Pearcy, of Fergus; George R. Henderson, R. R. 1, Georgetown, who was on his way to Guelph to visit his wife in hospital; J. Cody, Toronto, driver of the bus, and Reginald Engst, R. R. 5, Guelph.

C.I.O. to Start Drive for Wage Raises in 1949

Portland, Ore., Nov. 20 (AP) —A C.I.O. drive for a fourth round of post-war wage raises in 1949 started rumbling here Friday.

Walter Reuther, president of the United Automobile workers, told a group of Portland business men the U.A.W. is "talking already about a fourth-round increase".

"If you haven't heard it," he said, "you'll hear about it next week."

He was talking about the C.I.O. convention which starts Monday. His words seemed to indicate the whole C.I.O., not just the U.A.W., may go on record for higher wages.

Reuther said prices have risen so much in the United States that it would take a raise of 15 cents an hour to give workers the same purchasing power they had in June, 1946, and a raise of 43 cents an hour to put them back where they were in 1944.

He gave clear notice that he still believes—as he did during the big General Motors strike of 1945-46—that wages can be raised without raising prices.

"We are going to keep on making that fight," he said.

Five Sudanese Dead, 40 Injured In Disturbance

Khartoum, Nov. 20. (Reuters) —Five Sudanese were killed and 40 injured in disturbances at Atbara on the Nile when pro-Egyptian parties staged an election demonstration there Friday.

The government charged pro-Egyptian "Nile Unity" parties with making a last minute attempt to "create, by disturbance and the threat of a general strike, conditions inimical to a free vote in the big towns."

Main party groupings in the general election are the independence front, favoring complete independnce, and the national front, which seeks union with the Egyptian crown under the slogan "The unity of the Nile valley."

Results so far indicate that the independence front is winning.

Negev Should Not Be Taken from Jews But by Consent: US

Admission of Israel to U.N. Expected by United States

Paris, Nov. 20 (AP)—The United States told the United Nations today the Negev desert area of southern Palestine should not be taken from Israel without full consent of the Jews.

The United States, in a long-awaited statement on Palestine, also told the 58-power political committee it looks forward to admission of Israel to the United Nations.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup, the American deputy, said his government generally is in accord with the conclusions of the assassinated mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, with the exception of certain principles concerning boundaries.

Bernadotte proposed that the Negev be turned over to the Arabs and that the Jews take Western Galilee in exchange. The Israelis, now in control of the Negev through a successful military offensive against the Egyptians, reject this. The Negev was allotted to them under the original U. N. partition plan.

The political committee scheduled this special session on the Bernadotte plan after having intended originally to adjourn for the weekend.

British Viewpoint

Britain already had asked the United Nations to seek a solution in Palestine along the lines of Bernadotte's proposals. The Jews object because loss of the Negev would reduce Israeli territory by three-fifths. The Arabs reject it because it would imply recognition of Israeli as a state.

While Jessup said the United States supported Israel's claim to boundaries outlined in the original partition plan, he added:

"If Israel desires additions, it would be necessary for Israel to offer an appropriate exchange through negotiations."

This was taken by observers as an invitation to Israel to renounce Western Galilee, which its forces now hold, or to offer some part of the Negev in exchange for it.

Jessup, whose speech still was described as a "preliminary" statement, said of final Holy Land boundaries:

"Our general view is that we must seek further agreement between the parties rather than attempt at this time to draw specific boundary lines."

Speaking of some 500,000 Arab refugees in Palestine, Jessup said:

"We believe that they should be permitted to return to their homes and that adequate compensation should be arranged for the property of those who choose not to return."

The assembly yesterday voted to advance $5,000,000 for relief of Arab refugees.

Resumption of Discussion

The United States is understood to be responsible for the decision to resume the discussion, which petered out earlier in the week for lack of speakers.

Israel's reaction to the Security Council's call for troop withdrawals in the Negev desert of southern Palestine, which acting mediator Ralph Bunche said indicated a willingness to comply with the Security Council's order, was a factor in calling the meeting.

A British proposal to adopt the Bernadotte plan would reduce Israel's territory, as allotted by last November's assembly partition plan, by about three-fifths. It would give the Negev to the Arabs and Western Galilee to the Jews.

Informed sources predicted that American delegate Dr. Philip C. Jessup today would follow the policy laid down by President Truman Oct. 24. The President said then any modifications in the original U.N. partition plan should be satisfactory to Israel.

The Jews oppose the plans because it would shrink their territory. The Arabs oppose it because it would mean recognition that a Jewish state is in existence.

The Assembly voted unanimously Friday to advance $5,000,000 for relief of Arab refugees. The Assembly at the same time called on the world to contribute $32,000,000 to this work and asked the U. N. secretary-general to appoint a director for Palestine refugee relief.

CANADA'S SURPLUS IS $533,600,000 FOR 7 MONTHS

No Hint Taxes Will be Reduced if Large Surplus is Realized

Ottawa, Nov. 20 (CP)—A surplus of $533,600,000 has been built up by the federal government in the first seven months of the current fiscal year.

Finance Minister Abbott announced Friday night that in the April 1 to Oct. 31 period, revenues amounted to $1,530,000,000 and expenditures to $996,700,000. The surplus compared with one of $540,700,000 in the corresponding period of last year.

Mr. Abbott, heading for his third successive surplus, warned that the government's budgetary that the government's bulgetary surplus will continue to increase during the last five months at the same rate as it has during the first seven months of the year.

For instance, if the Canadian National Railways and Trans-Canada Air Lines incur deficits this year, the loss will be covered with money from the government's surplus.

Mr. Abbott, who forecast a surplus of $489,000,000 in his last budget speech, gave no hint as to whether he will reduce taxes if a large surplus is realized. In 1947-48 the surplus was $670,000,000. The previous year the surplus—first in 17 years—amounted to $352,000,000. Most of the money was applied against the national debt which stands at about $17,000,000,000.

The minister said the surplus was a "budgetary one" and not a cash surplus. It excluded, for example, all receipts which represent repayments of loans and advances, and it also excluded all receipts which represent accumulations on annuity, pension and insurance funds.

Nominations will be held in the city next Friday when aspirants for the office of Mayor, council, and board of education will be nominated.

Thus far there has been no assurance there will be a race for the mayoralty, as only Mayor D. L. Storey has definitely stated he will be a candidate for that office.

Hydro Cut In At Coe Hill, No Street Lights

Bancroft (Special) — After twelve months of concerted effort on the part of Reeve Clarke Rollins of Wollaston township to have power lines run through to serve the village of Coe Hill, the lights were turned on in that village Friday— just in time to come in for the current hydro blackouts.

Power lines to serve the Coe Hill district were brought in from the Apsley district, the work of constructing the line taking place during the past summer. The reeve of the municipality had worked officially to get the hydro into the village since last November, but the move had been planned many years previously.

However, Coe Hill being not incorporated there will be no street lights in the village.

In keeping with other municipalities being served by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, which currently is suffering from an acute power shortage, the Coe Hill district will come in for two power cuts daily. These will be from eight until 9 in the morning and from three until four in the afternoon.

Electric lights are not altogether new in Coe Hill as for the past decade several business places have been operating small portable plants for their own use.

Fire Chief Warns Against Filling Gas Lamps Inside

With increasing hydro shortage causing more common use of petroleum products for lighting and heating, Fire Chief Gerald Vance today warned that gasoline and lighting napthas are highly dangerous and should not be exposed to any open flame or spark.

"Due to the high explosive qualities of gasoline and napthas, filling operations of equipment using these products should not take place inside a building," warned the chief. Also every consumer was advised to consult his fire insurance company with respect to storage limitation.

Chief Vance went on to say that gasoline and lighting napthas may only be sold or delivered to the public in leak-proof metal cans which are correctly identified. Such cans must either be painted red or be clearly labelled with the word "gasoline". All such containers for gasoline or naptha must operate with a screw or spring top. Glass containers must not be used.

It was further pointed out that under the Gasoline Handling Act, any dealer's license is subject to cancellation if gasoline is dispensed into portable containers which do not conform with the regulations.

Mayoralty Fights Shaping Up In Municipalities

(By The Canadian Press)

Mayoralty fights shaped up in Hamilton and Stratford today as candidates in this year's municipal elections entered their qualification papers. Welland's Mayor Harry W. Diffin starts his second term by acclamation.

There was some doubt in Hamilton whether William J. Southam, retired newspaper man nominated Friday to oppose Mayor Samuel Lawrence Dec. 1, would remain in the running. He has until 9 a.m. tonight. He said Friday night that pressure had been brought on him to withdraw.

Asked why he had decided to let himself be nominated for a race with Mayor Lawrence, who is seeking his sixth term, Mr. Southam said:

"I thought the people would like to see a contest."

Mayor Diffin was given an acclamation in Welland when Armour McCrea, the only other person nominated, decided against seeking election. Mr. McCrea has been chosen as C.C.F. candidate for Welland in the nekt Federal election.

If all the nominees in Stratford qualify by tonight, that city will see a three-way race Dec. 6 between Mayor Thomas E. Henry, Thomas M. Jones and W. F. Nickel.

All three cities expect contests for other civil offices. Nominees in those fields, too, have until tonight to qualify.

Two in Hospital After Accident

Two people were admitted to hospital yesterday evening following a car accident near Carrying Place. Others were shaken up but were sent home after treatment.

Slightly injured are Mrs. Lucille Miles, wife of Dr. A. E. Miles of this city and Mrs. Gertrude Bertram, R. R., Roblin.

The accident occurred at the junction of Highway 33 and a sideroad near the Carrying Place when a car driven by Robt. Vandusen, Wellington, collided with that driven by Dr. Miles.

Occupants of the Miles' car were Mrs. Miles, baby Miles two months old, Mrs. Bertram, Mrs. Elsie Sandford, Moore Sandford and Margaret Sandford, all of Roblin.

Vandusen was alone in his car when the crash occurred. The Miles' car was severely damaged while that owned by Vandusen incurred damage to the engine and front fenders.

Provincial Police Constable G. E. Coling investigated the accident.

Two Passengers On Bus Injured In Collision

Two passengers of a northbound Belleville-Picton bus were slightly injured Friday evening when the bus was in a sideswipe collision with a southbound truck.

Two windows in the bus were broken with the two injured passengers suffering cuts. Miss Mildred Blackhurst, 19, of Picton, suffered a cut above the eye requiring two clamps to close, while Charles McCabe, Picton chef, suffered cuts about the nose.

According to Provincial Police Harry Caldwell who investigated the accident took place about seven o'clock in a driving rain storm when visibility was reduced to but a few feet. The southbound truck driven by Raymond Crowe of R.R. 8, Picton, was loaded with cordwood and it is believed some of the load shifted with sticks on the back of the truck striking the bus.

Cyclonic Winds Hit Pt. Traverse

Point Traverse — (Special) — Winds of near cyclonic force ripped across the peninsula at Point Traverse, 22 miles southeast of Picton, early Saturday morning, tearing off parts of the roofs of farm buildings and bowling over small buildings and fences. Large tree limbs were also twisted off by the heavy wind.

The twister struck at four o'clock in the morning with a terrific roar and lasted about twenty minutes. The wind apparently came out of the west following a northeast torrential rainstorm. Fishing craft in the Point Traverse harbor withstood the gale as all boats had been tied securely.

IN MEMORIAM

REEVES—In loving memory of our dear mother, Agnes Florence Reeves, who passed away, November 20, 1946.

Two years have passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon her grave
May wither and decay,
But the love of her who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Religion and Emotionalism

By ROY L. SMITH

One of the charges most frequently laid against religion is that it is nothing more than emotionalism run riot.

Partly because men have an instinctive fear of emotionalism, and partly because they undertake to protect their deepest emotions from the gaze of the curious, they undertake to stifle all emotionalism in connection with their religion.

Great Emotions Are Honest

The individual who is willing to be strictly honest with himself will be compelled to admit that the deep emotions of the human spirit are its most powerful agents.

The orator, without great emotion, becomes stodgy and dull. The actress without emotion is no more than a "ham." The musician without emotion is only another player. The preacher without emotion is sometimes a problem.

It was Winston Churchill's amazing ability to gather up all the longings, fears, determination, or faithfulness of the British and crowd them into a rich and pulsing phrase that made him the incomparable war minister. The blazing courage and contagious emotions of the artist-statesman were worth more to Britain than scores of regiments or a dozen men o'war. And who would dare to say that England did not need, and could not be saved by emotions?

Poets and Emotions

During the years following the Babylonian exile there developed among the devout Jews a succession of great poets who committed their spiritual longings, hopes, fears, and consecrations to poetry. Unfortunately, in the King James Version of the Bible with which the average man is most familiar, the poetical form does not appear because there are no rhymes. Moreover, in translating from the ancient Hebrew to the modern English, it is impossible to save more than a fragment of the meter and rhythm which is the chief distinguishing mark in the Hebrew poem.

> The Sunday School lesson for November 21: "Poetry in the Bible," I Samuel 2: 1-10; II Samuel 1:19-27; Psalms 23-24; 103; 136: 1-9; Lamentations 3:19; Habakkuk 3:17-19; Luke 1:46-55.

In the Revised Standard Version New Testament, and in all modern translations and versions, the poetical form of the writing is conserved, at least in part, so that the modern reader can get at least some sense of the emotional effect which was produced upon the ancient Jew who chanted or sang the psalms in connection with his public or his private worship of God.

Once that a large number of Old Testament passages are read as poetry (which they are) we begin to get some of the rich passion and profound spiritual emotionalism contained in them. Then it is that we begin to understand how far the Jew was ahead of the rest of mankind of his day in the expression of the holiest and most beautiful thoughts that dawned upon his consciousness.

The Spiritual Genius of the Jew

To any superficial observer it might have appeared, in the year 586 B.C., that the Jew was done. His beautiful capital, Jerusalem, lay a mass of ruins. His king was in chains. His temple was razed to the ground. Babylon, mighty Babylon, was in complete control of the whole world. So far as any man then living could see, the Empire was eternal.

But has anyone had any dealings with a Babylonian lately?

What became of the Assyrian Empire? The ancient Syrians who so sacked and pillaged the Jewish cities? The double-dealing Egyptians who were always willing to fight their battles to the last Hebrew?

They are all gone, but the Jew is still with us and has within our own time come into political importance he has not enjoyed in almost two thousand years.

What is the explanation?

Turn to the Psalms, Please

For any adequate explanation of the amazing survival power of the Jews turn to the Psalms. There you will find their soul. There you will discover what manner of faith they have had. There you will see the things in which they have trusted—things that are eternal and indestructible, things of God and of eternity, things of faith and hope.

It is by these things that nations and men have survived, and nowhere have they been so beautifully or so convincingly described as in the Hebrew poems which are to be found in the Bible.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

BIRDS' SENSE OF SMELL

Our birds' hearing is acute and their sight more highly developed than man's; but their sense of smell is deficient, and in some cases practically missing. Although scientists have only fossil remains to go by, they prove that the nasal organs of the first known bird were superior. These were fleshy and moist and situated at the end of the bill; those of our modern birds are, for the most part, mere slits, near the base of the upper portion of a horn bill. This indicates decline, and causes our present day birds' sense of smell to be greatly inferior to that of animals.

The arrangement of a bird's olfactory and respiratory chambers is much the same as with reptiles, though the olfactory organ is poorly developed. The membrance sensitive to smell is restricted to the innermost end of the cavity, where it covers a slight lump on the nasal wall. Secretions from this and from a pair of glands moisten and clean the chamber. These glands vary in size and position: they are particularly large in a Plover, extending right onto the forehead. A bird's nasal cavity is also connected to its mouth.

But as smell is not excited except by contact, the substance must enter by a nasal opening. These differ greatly in both size and position. "Tub-nosed swimmers" have encased nostrils: the Shearwater's nostril tubes lie on either side of a narrow space on top of the bill, the Fulmar's so close as to appear like Siamese twins, the Petrel's almost fused into one tube. A Pigeon's and a Bob White's nostrils are protected by a scale; a Grouse's are set in soft feathers; a Crow's and a Jay's are hidden by bristly tufts. A Hawk's nostrils open in a waxy looking space called the cere at the base of the bill. The nostrils of an adult Gannet or Pelican are entirely closed; those of a Puffin are so small, and placed so near the edge of its bill as not to be noticeable. The Cormorant has no external nostril.

Opinions differ as to whether or not a Vulture detects carrion by smell. Experiments have been made with a "dummy" placed in plain sight and a dead animal well hidden. Some people claim to have proved that the Vulture went by sight alone, ignoring the putrid flesh; others have actually found the reverse. Anyway a Vulture's nostrils are exceptionally large and conspicuous.

Rev. Dr Nicholson At Bridge St. U.C. 133rd Anniversary

Observance of the 133rd anniversary of Bridge Street United Church will be marked with special services Sunday Nov. 21. The foundation of this church goes back to the earlier days of Belleville's settlement and on this occasion the members cannot but recall the distant past through which the church has served the community and has continued to grow.

Rev. Dr. C. M. Nicholson of Cape Breton, who will be the special preacher at the services connected with the anniversary of the congregation of Bridge Street United Church.

The preacher of the day will be the Rev. Dr. Clarence M. Nicholson, who comes from Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, a part of the Dominion with a very fine record of the number of young men entering the Christian ministry. Dr. Nicholson is a native of Cape Breton, a graduate of Dalhousie University and of Pine Hill Divinity Hall in Theology. He was ordained to the ministry of the United Church in 1934 and has held pastorates at Imperoyal, N.S., Dominion, N.S., and St. Andrew's United Church, Sydney, whence he was called to the principalship of Pine Hill Divinity Hall in Halifax. He is professor of systematic theology.

His influence in moulding the convictions of the future ministers of the church is increasingly important.

He is on outstanding speaker and is in demand as a preacher throughout the Maritimes. During the past summer he was one of the five official delegates of the United Church of Canada to the World Council of Churches at Amsterdam.

On Sunday he will bring two entirely different messages. He will tell of the historic meeting of the World Council of Churches at the evening service when the members of the United Churches of the city and the students of Albert College join the congregation.

Guarding Childhood

One of the happiest measures taken in the community has been the placing of men on the roads near the approaches to the schools — their object being to guard the precious young children who are making their way to and from school where they are receiving some of the training which life demands of them, not only while children but when they grow up.

Such service rendered childhood pays in dividends beyond all comprehension, in security as opposed to possibility of danger or accident and in a necessary training for children in this swift-moving motor age. There is not only the immediate guarantee of safety to the boys and girls when crossing streets or roads on school days but there is the inevitable impression made upon the minds of the tender boys and girls. They are taught in their most susceptible years to protect their lives by taking common sense precautionary measures, so that they are always at the lookout when crossing streets, not only on school days but on Saturdays and Sundays and in the vacation time. The training lingers and embodies one of the essential facts a child must learn in order to thrive in this swift age of the world's history.

For the men themselves who are engaged in this work, the duty becomes one with a great deal of pleasure for they cannot forget that they are doing something to guard childhood from dangers. They are doing a service for which the entire community is grateful and of course the Board of Education and the City Council are behind this public service.

To the mothers at home there is the realization that watchful eyes and strong arms are guarding their young children as they cross travelled roads. This is a relief which must greatly lessen the anxieties of the mothers especially of the younger children.

These guardians of childhood know their responsibility and they are always on the alert. Anyone realizes that they take their duty seriously. They too know how the children respond so thankfully to the watchful service these friends of theirs are affording them.

November

Winter has lingered on the sidelines but some recent days have given the hint that soon winter may establish itself in this part of the continent. The past season has had many appeals, the only feature lacking being rain, which has been much needed for the land and to help fill the great reservoirs which are built to hold the water in readiness for the turbines and powerhouses. What shortage of water means is all too apparent in the necessity of power cuts.

November often is bleak and barren, frosty and dull yet there has been this year a lack of sullenness about the month for there have been numerous bright days, hardly quite in tune with the usual pattern of the late season. There is mildness but not a wild November. It has been a November to recall when colder days come.

Thinking of Britons

Canadians at this time are thinking of the people of Britain, those heroic folk, who have done so much for the good of the world in the past and especially in recent years. During the war the people of the west became interested in sending parcels overseas and knowing the happy relations Canadian servicemen and Britons enjoyed during the war, many have not failed to continue the practice of sending gift boxes to friends of the ex-servicemen.

In the post-war years Britons have been carrying a heavy load while people in this country have greater ease in securing food than at anytime during the war.

Now this year there is an opportunity to do even better in remembering the British people. The governments of Britain and Canada have co-ordinated in respect to food parcel traffic with the result that the cost of placing a ten-pound package in a British home will be reduced from $2.50 to between 57 and 79 cents under the United Emergency Fund for Britain. This plan is co-ordinating the efforts of Canadian organizations and the generosity of the individual sender of parcels.

In this country there has been little sign of the need of austerity but in Britain there has been austerity because Britain finds it so necessary to preserve and bring in dollars and therefore her people are working heroically to build up exports to improve British economy.

The Fund is making a general appeal to Canadian people for the relief of the hard pressed British people, whose inadequacies and monotony of diet are matter of common knowledge.

LOST CHANCE

He would have reached the top if he had dared
Step after step to climb.
He might have captured greatness had he cared
Enough to spend the time.

The skilful hand by practice must be earned.
For skill the young must wait.
But all the tedious drudgery he spurned
Until it was too late.

Boy, gather skill and knowledge while you can—
Now while it's yours to get—
Lest the lost chance for triumph as a man
Life-long you will regret.

STRENGTH for The Day

Dr. Earl L. Douglass

AN ISSUE PLAINLY SEEN

John Wesley had a great mother, Suzanna Wesley, whose influence upon her distinguished son was a large factor in the founding of the Methodist Church. No one ever brought up her children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord more seriously than did Suzanna Wesley. God made her a great mother that she might be his instrument for the training of great sons.

Her definition of sin gives us an insight into her spiritual nature. "Whatsoever weakens your reason," she said, "impairs the tenderness of your conscience, obscures your sense of God, takes away your relish for spiritual things; whatever increased the authority of your body over your mind — that is sin."

Suzanna Wesley would have scoffed at the idea that she was a theologian, but in all the creeds in Christendom no better definition of sin is to be found than hers. She knew little of philosophy, but she knew much of life.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

SIMPLICITY

More and more, as life grows more complex, worries creep in and there is confusion. One great remedy for all this is simplicity. We have become obsessed with the idea of possessing — accumulating far more than we need or can well handle.

We are overburdened with deadwood. Simple living, with light equipment, is a lesson learned all too late by all too many. Simple statements are longest remembered. The late Joseph Pulitzer, great publisher of the old New York World, was forever urging brevity and simplicity as the first requisite for a good news paper story. It always applies.

I have always noted that the simplest designs in furniture are the most costly. And this is as true in women's garments. Simplicity of design and genuineness of fine material are what count. And in art — the simpler the sketch the more impressive it is. Forain, the great French painter and etcher, did an etching of "The Prodigal Son" that is simplicity itself — a little house in the distance, a road, a discarded hat and walking stick — and father and son in a most poignant embrace. That is all, but it's the story. A masterpiece of drawing—and simplicity.

After the nomination of Abraham Lincoln for President of the United States, a publication requested of Lincoln some data as to his life. He replied that there was little to furnish, as it could all be added up to "the short and simple annals of the poor." It was the simplicity and sincerity of Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address" that has given to it its immortality.

We would all be happier human beings, and more efficient ones as well, if we simplified our lives, did away with the deadwood of worry, and of so many things that we think of as important, but which are not, and lived simpler and less cluttered lives.

From the small towns and villages have come the great of this earth — there where the lessons of simplicity are early urged and where the simple virtues and values are emphasized. Nature's world is one of simplicity from which all of us may learn.

Mackenzie's Column: Victory Gives Hope Red Drive Has Been Smashed

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

The Chinese government's announcement of a sweeping victory over the Communist rebels in the crucial battle of Suchow, gateway to the capital of Nanking, has been seized upon in central China as giving hope that the terrific Red offensive has been smashed.

Certainly the report is encouraging, but we shall do well to await developments before jumping to conclusions. We must bear in mind that this great battle has been raging with unabated fury for some 10 days. The time has arrived when, even under far more favorable circumstances, the attacking Chinese Communists might be expected to pause to bring up their communications and repair heavy losses.

The casualties have been big on both sides. A Nanking spokesman has estimated the government losses in men at 40,000. He placed the Red casualties at 130,000.

Need Replacements

Assuming that the estimate of Communist losses is correct, how are the rebels going to find quick replacements for such a great number of men? From Dr. Peng Hsueh-Peh, adviser to the Chinese cabinet, comes an answer:

"A lot of people in the western world wonder how it is that the Chinese Communists are able to sustain heavy losses and still keep pouring great armies onto the battle-fields, whereas the government may have trouble in finding all the fighting men needed. Some of these folks take this as meaning that the people of China favor the Communists and consequently are more willing to serve in the ranks.

"That is an entirely false idea. The Communists raise their fighting men by terrorism under which every able-bodied male in a red-controlled area is forced to serve. This terrorism may even involve the torture or killing of a man's relatives. All the areas under Communist control are organized through terrorism of men, women and children.

Want Peace

"The people in the Communist controlled areas are like those under government control. They are simple peasant folk who want peace so that they can go about their business of farming. They would gladly support the government if they had the chance."

The Communists are bound to resume the offensive if it is humanly possible. This is true not only because of the strategic value of this route into Central China but because the capital of all China is involved.

VANCOUVER STUDENTS PROBE CHILD'S MIND

Vancauver, — (CP — University of British Columbia social workers are carving soap and doodling in an effort to probe Junior's creative efforts.

The post-graduate students are working on the premise that children learn by example, rather than by intellectualizing.

"What the child learns must be demonstrated," said Miss E. Thomas, assistant professor of social work.

Stressing the need for creative expression in the child, Miss Thomas said that are plays a very vital role in social welfare work.

"It is a sterile life if they haven't got it," she said.

Mayors Demand Re-Examination Of Power Quotas

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP)—Hamilton and Toronto were feuding again today. This time it was over power, and Oshawa got into the act, too.

Mayor Hiram McCallum of Toronto and his brother, Frank, who is mayor of Oshawa, Friday demanded re-examination of power quotas for municipalities by the Ontario Hydro Commission.

The Toronto Mayor said the per capita quota for power consumers in Hamilton was 12.6 kilowatt hours per day, or nearly twice Toronto's 6.4 kilowatt hours.

The quotas were set because of power shortages throughout Ontario.

The Oshawa mayor complained that the biggest industry in St. Catharines, employing only half as many persons as the main Oshawa industry, "is getting more than twice as much power."

Hamilton Escapes

While Toronto has three power cut-offs daily—morning, afternoon and evening—Hamilton has escaped the blackouts so far. And Hamilton residents make a point of letting Torontoians know about it.

A. W. Bradt, manager of the Hamilton Hydro Commission, said a few days ago his city had voluntary cut down on power and organized quotas so cut-offs wkere unnecessary. He suggested that if Toronto pulled up its socks it might be able to do the same thing.

Mayor McCallum said Friday: "I have no intention of getting into any argument or discussion with any other municipality because I realize that the situation is serious and it is a question of co-operation all down the line.

Won't Stand Idly By

"But I do not intend to stand idly by and see the city of Toronto criticized by individuals who point out the wonderful record of Hamilton and state that they are doing a better job in power conservation."

He said the larger the city, the more difficult it was to organize power conservation. He offered these points:

Toronto population is 706,893, Hamilton's 179,565.

Toronto's quota is set at 4,530,000 kilowatt hours a day. Quota for Hamilton is 2,258,000. This meant a per capita quota respectively, of 6.4 and 12.6.

Mayor McCallum added: "I realize that the explanation of this is the fact that roughly 75 per cent of Hamilton is inlustrial power consumption and that of Toronto roughly 50 per cent.

"But the point rises as to whether the individual citizen in one municipality is entitled to roughly twice the power that is allowed to a citizen in another."

MONTREAL DENTISTS CATER TO CHILDREN

Montreal — (CP) — The gentle art of trickery is being practised by some Montreal dentists — but it's all for the benefit of the children.

Youngsters dread the thought of going to the dentist and the main reason is the fearsome array of instruments, Miss Florence Limoges, dental assistant, told the Montreal eDntal Club's clinic.

Some dentists counteract this fear by giving the children favors.

"The main idea," said Miss Limages, "is to get away from the fear approach of the child and get over the idea that going to the dentist is a perfectly normal thing. That's why the favors are made of dental material. We explain to the youngster that what is used in the office is just something which he or she has become familiar with in the form of a toy.

The Packsack

of Gregory Clark

In his book "Winter Sunshine," John Burroughs the famous nature writer described a fox perfectly.

"I saw the fox coming right onto us. I had barely time to note the silly and abashed expression that came over him as he saw us in his path. The rogue did not appear frightened, but ashamed and out of countenance as one does when some trick has been played upon him, or when detected in some mischief."

In recent years, foxes have increased greatly in numbers around the cities and towns of eastern Canada. Now that the woods and thickets are bare, the quiet and slow-walking nature nover is likely to meet with Burroughs' experience anywhere a short distance from city or town limits.

The reasons advanced for the increase of foxes close to civilization are numerous and contradictory. The best one suggests that highways and traffic are the true reasons. Modern traffic in the vicinity of cities and towns kills and injures great numbers of small creatures of all kinds: birds, rabbits, mice, squirrels. The ones we see squashed on the pavements are only a fraction of the number injured which crawl into the fields and thickets along the highways. It is on these crippled creatures the fox and other flesh eaters prey. The food supply is what determines the abundance of any animal. Modern traffic guarantees, summer and winter, a steady provender for the fox.

There are few more beautiful animals to look at than the fox. His colors, burnt orange, black and white, are fascinating against either the dead leaves or the first skift of snow. His movements are indescribably beautiful, especially when he runs, seeming to be lifted by the wind of his own passage. In the past, farmers have given him a bad name for chicken stealing. But around cities and towns, we are now able to reflect upon the countless little acts of mercy he performs in the thickets along the highways, as he culminates, in nature's cold, kindly fashion, the miniature tragedies we have initiated with our swift heedless cars and trucks.

MAGNESIA AND MALNUTRITION

Poorly educated mother (and aren't all mothers poorly educated in the care and feeding of infants) who feeds her unhappy ten-months old baby half milk, half water, along with four tablespoonfuls of a fancy high-priced kind of sugar in each day's milk and water mixture, complains that the baby is "always bothered with constipation."

Naturally. There isn't enough residue in the starvation rations the poor kid gets to give the normal stimulus to the function of the bowel.

This mother's complaint, which is typical of thousands, reminds me of training dogs. There was Bob, nondescript, just a dog. I began training Bob with the idea that I knew more than he did. Never got anywhere with the job. But then there was Tony the Wirish Terror. From the first I somehow harbored the suspicion that Tony knew more than I did. So I was pretty easy with him. He got knocked rolling by automobiles two or three times when we were out for a stroll. Then presently he would wait until I said "All right" to cross a boulevard and toward the last he and I showed each other great respect and consideration—without either of us losing his dignity either.

On recommendation of a doctor this young mother resorts to physic to counteract the effect of the starvation diet.

At the age of six months a well fed baby should be taking whole milk undiluted and without extra sweetening. The sugar in milk (lactose, milk sugar) is the best sugar for babies—that's why it is naturally in milk. If the milk is diluted for feeding a very young infant, then only sufficient sugar should be added to the formula to keep the proportion of sugar in the mixture equal so the proportion of sugar naturally present in fresh milk. If lactose (milk sugar, sugar of milk) is not available for this purpose then ordinary beet or cane sugar is the next best sweetening, notwithstanding trick child specialists who, of course, must prescribe trick sugar.

Magnesium hydroxide (milk of magnesia, magna mangesiae), magnesium citrate, magnesium oxide or magnesium carbonate, comparatively harmless if used as a remedy occasionally, seriously interferes with the utilization of calcium in the body if used regularly or habitually. And it is well to remember that calcium shortage is perhaps our most common nutritional deficiency today.

So I say that in feeding the baby milk of magnesia instead of the food the baby needs to grow on, any mother invites malnutrition.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Eczema

A burning behind my right ear. Doctor said it is eczema, but his treatment did not help. (B. A. S.)

Answer—Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet on Eczema. Do not use a clipping.

Air Swallowing

Kindly advise whether you have a pamphlet on air swallowing. I don't seem to be able to break myself of the habit. (G. N. W.)

Answer—No, but an article about it will be printed in this column some day next week, perhaps.

Grandma Has Her Figure

I'll never forget the first words of my husband after our daughter was born—he remained with me, of course. "I love you better for that girl." And he did. I guess I was too dumb to realize that a woman who nursed her babies is supposed to lose her figure. I have several grandchildren now, but my son and his wife say "Nana, you have the figure of a girl." (Mrs. E. B. R.)

Answer—Those 50 per cent mothers who don't nurse their babies generally have no figure to begin with. The husband who does not remain with his wife during delivery is a good enough for a fifty-percenter, I suppose.

Eat Before You Sleep

Is there any harm in eating just before you go to bed? I am 21 years old (M. F.)

Answer—It is natural, normal and healthful to eat just before you sleep, or to take a nap after a square meal—provided you get a reasonable amount of general exercise every day. Elderly persons or persons with high blood pressure had better take a walk after dinner, instead of a doze or a nap.

Milk Producers, Distributors Must Agree Soon

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP)—Representatives of the Milk Producers and Distributors have until Monday to agree on a chairman for the Arbitration Board which is to determine the price to be paid farmers shipping to the Toronto market. If they don't, the chairman will be appointed by the Ontario Milk Control Board and most likely will be a county judge.

The representatives are Roy Lick, secretary-treasurer of the Whole Milk Producers' League, and Jack Houck, secretary of the Toronto Milk Distributors' Association.

Farmers now received $4.05 a hundredweight for whole milk and $2.90 for secondary. Whole milk is that which is bottled and sells retail for 18 cents a quart. Secondary milk is used for making butter and other by-products.

The farmers, while not pressing for an increase in the whole milk price, had asked that all the milk they shipped be paid for at the rate of $4.05, with the exception of that going into ice cream. It is understood that larger dairies were agreeable but not so the smaller ones.

Industry representatives say they hope that a decision can be made without any increase in the price to the cosumer.

In Hamilton, the distributors and producers still are negotiating and there is a belief a new contract will be drawn up without necessity of arbitration.

In the 100-odd markets outside Toronto and Hamilton, the price of the producer will be determined by an Arbitration Board headed by Judge D. J. Cowan of Brantford, with Mr. Lick and Carl F. Rosebrugh, representing the Ontario Milk Distributors' Association, as other members.

The price in these smaller centres is $3.90 a hundredweight for whole milk and $2.90 for secondary.

APPEAL ASSESSMENT

Portage La Prairie, Man. (CP)—City Council has decided to appeal against the equalized assessment as set by the municipal commissioner. The new rate is said to boost the assessment by $500,000 or approximately 17 per cent. Council claims this is the highest increase for any city in the province.

Half Ear Left On Running Board Is Sewn on Youth

Hamilton, Nov. 20 — (CP) — Half an ear left lying on a truck running board had police escort to hospital where it was sewn back on Edgar Patterson, 21-year-old youth who was cut about the face and neck in a traffic accident Thursday night.

Patterson and Marion Croft, 18, both of Bartonville, were injured when the truck they were riding in collided with an automobile here. The girl's arm was fractured.

After Patterson was taken to hospital, it was noticed that the tip of his right ear was missing. Police found it on the running board of the truck.

"We rushed to the hospital with it and it was sewn on right away," said a police constable. "It could not have been more than half an hour from the time it was torn off in the accident."

Capital Closeups:

Operator of Privy Council Elevator Has Seen Many P.M's Come and Go

By WILLIAM WILSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 20 — (CP) — If you watch enough prime ministers come and go, they finally become just like everyone else.

At least that's the way Joe Levesque feels. Joe has watched them all since Sir Robert Borden occupied the suite of rooms on the second floor of the East Block—the rooms permanently reserved for the King's first minister.

Philosopher as well as civil servant, Joe is the 62-year-old public works' department employee who runs the privy council elevator.

Joe — as he called by the Cabinet — has a brief word to say about each prime minister he has known.

Sir Robert Borden

"He was a nice man," recalls Joe. "I wouldn't say anything against old Borden."

There are only a handful of persons in the capital who remember Canada's prime minister of the First World War as well as Joe. He took him up and down, into and from his office every day from 1916 onward.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen

Arthur Meighen took over from Sir Robert in 1919 and returned to the East Block briefly in 1926.

"Meighen was a jollifier," he was, said Joe with a smile. "He'd come in and say, 'Joe, what're you looking so grumpy about these days?'"

Former Viscount Bennett

R. B. Bennett was prime minister from 1930-1935, Joe recalls.

"Bennett was the man to remember his staff," Joe said, simply. "He never forgot anybody."

Mackenzie King

Joe probably knows more about former Prime Minister Mackenzie King than a lot of persons, but he isn't saying too much.

"King was fine, but it was the people Mr. King believed in — he really thought about the people, not his staff."

St. Laurent

When Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent stepped out of his car on his first trip back from Government House after he had been sworn in as prime minister, a youthful secretary stepped quickly to the curb to congratulate his chief.

Then the prime minister entered the side door of East Block—the Privy Council and prime minister's door.

The prime minister smiled. "Merci, Joe," he said. And then he disappeared up the elevator to his office.

Livestock Losses Due to Storm Feared Heavy

Kansas City, Nov. 20 (AP)—Parties in three Western States today were cutting through deep snowdrifts to rescue stranded travellers and livestock.

Winter's first swoop across eastern Colorado, southwestern Nebraska and western Kansas ridged the land with drifts from three to 20 feet deep. Trains, buses and motor cars were stalled. Telephone and power lines were down, and many communities isolated.

One death was reported. A 15-year-old girl died at Hutchinson, Kans., of diabetes when drifts blocked efforts to get her to a hospital.

Lack of severe cold lessened the hardships.

Trains on the Santa Fe, Union Pacific, and Rock Island Railroads were moving slowly today as snowplows rammed the tracks clear. Some trains were delayed as much as 20 hours Friday.

Soldiers in Kansas, using military vehicles, were hauling stranded motorists to shelter.

Two airplane pilots, flying separate routes from Kansas City to Denver late Friday, reported seeing more than 200 automobiles stalled near the Kansas-Colorado border. They saw no distress signals, however.

Farmers still were having difficulty reaching outlying flocks of sheep and herds of cattle. Sheep losses were expected to be heavy.

Power companies had the job of restoring electric service. Telephone linemen were plugging at the task of repairing more than 200 long-distance circuits across Kansas, besides the countless breaks in short lines.

The storm tapered off to lighter snowfall and rain as it moved southeastward into Missouri today.

'Slave Boy' Will Receive Another Week of Treatment

Toronto, Nov. 20 — (CP) — Although no longer in official custody, Gordon Kelley, 19-year-old "slave boy" found half starved begging for food a month ago, decided Friday to go back to the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital for another week of treatment.

After telling police a story of imprisonment for a year in a closet, a starvation diet of bread and water and cruel beatings, he was placed in hospital four weeks ago for mental examination.

In juvenile court Friday, he was declared sane by Judge D. Webster, but when it was suggested he go back to the hospital for an additional week of rest and treatment, he readily agreed.

In the meantime Crown Attorney A. O. Davis of Peel county will consult with police on any further legal action concerning the boy who since infancy has been in the custody of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith of suburban Summerville.

Mrs. Smith once operated a foster home with approval of the Children's Aid Society, Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith deny any ill-treatment of the boy, claiming he was regarded as "one of the family."

Judge Webster said "someone has been guilty of gross neglect," whether the boy's story was half-true or complete fabrication.

Gordon was turned over to police by Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Davies who fed him after they found the shaggy-haired boy scatching at their door.

Fashion Flashes

A STEADY GAIN in popularity is that of the Alaska sealskin coat, an ideal choice for an all-around fur coat. Brown is the color used for a handsome, full-length sealskin coat that has two big pockets with slanting flaps and straight sleeves with wide, turn-back cuffs. The collar, shaped by a single horizontal line, can be worn high around the neckline or low in shawl collar style.

BIG MOTIF for trimming is the bee, introduced in the recent Paris collections. A beautiful, three-quarter-length evening coat of amethyst woollen is embroidered with bees in gold thread and tiny gold beads with touches of black jet.

IN THE GRAND manner are several beautiful gala ball gowns. Slipper satin in mauve is used for an exquisite frock, the bodice with pointed handkerchief fold in front and moderately wide halter neckline. The skirt has a slight train ,appliques of midnight blue lace medallions, and there is a stole of matching midnight blue tulle.

AFTER-FIVE frocks have a charm and manner all their own. An ankle-length frock of blue taffeta is trimmed with crushed and shirred bands of self material on the full skirt and the bodice—which has short, puffed sleeves and a deep, sweetheart neckline.

REAL LUXURY, and comfort, too, is all wrapped up in a beautiful nightie of blue, pink or white velvet that is washable. It is soft and feminine, but not too frilly. The shirred surplice bodice is trimmed with white Val lace. A A grand gift, we think!

Need for Trained Personnel For Hospitals Outlined By W. Wakefield, Superintendent

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville University Women's Club was held Thursday afternoon at the Quinte Skating Club room when members were addressed by H. W. Wakefield, superintendent of Belleville General Hospital. Mr. Wakefield spoke on the great need for trained personnel for hospitals and the increasingly higher educational requirements for staff members.

President of the University Women's Club, Miss E. Grout, presided over the meeting at which plans for the art exhibition to be held in the Collegiate on Nov. 30, and Dec. 1, under the convenership of Miss Panter, were discussed.

The Club will send a Christmas box under the supervision of Mrs. Arthur Locke, to Crosby Hall, International Club House, London. This historical house, now the world headquarters for University Women, was once owned by Sir John Crosby, a wealthy London merchant. Many notable people, such as Henry VIII, Queen Elizabeth, Sir Thomas More and Shakespeare, have been entertained in this house.

Committee Chosen

A committee was chosen to inquire regarding glass cases for the Library Hall as the first step toward establishing a musuem for historical relics of the Bay of Quinte district.

Groups interested in modern literature, play reading and music appreciation will be asked to become fully organized following the Christmas season. The facilities offered by the Quinte Skating Club make a most suitable monthly meeting place, it was felt by members.

Following the address by Mr. Wakefield tea was served. The guest speaker, who is a graduate of London University, England, came to Banting Institute in 1931. Later he became the director of laboratories in the Toronto General Hospital and in 1942 transferred to the Administration of Labor and Industrial Relations of the same hospital. He came to Belleville in September of this year.

Speaker Introduced

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Arthur May with club appreciation being expressed by Mrs. Howard Graham.

In his address Mr. Wakefield stressed the need of specially trained personnel, not only for the care of the sick, but greater numbers for the care of the well. Also health programs could not be implemented until the teachers and facilities became available.

He explained why in the modern hospital the education requirements have risen. Nurses are now called upon to perform duties which in the pattern of today's medical treatments require a knowledge of basic sciences as well as the arts of nursing. "Nurses are not just bed-makers and back-rubbers" he said, "but are given highly responsible tasks such as the administration of penicillin, streptomycin and many of the new wonder drugs. The busy doctor has come to rely upon nurses to carry out these new treatments which have meant so much." The need for specially trained nurses for public health programs was stressed as well as many other branches requiring post-graduate study.

Other professional groups were referred to by the speaker, citing the need for a higher standard of education for physiotherapists, laboratory technologists, radiographers, occupational therapists, nutritionists and others without which the modern hospital cannot function. As one example, Mr. Wakefield referred to the work of the late Sir Frederick Banting, and his associates whose wonderful discoveries could not be effective without a modern laboratory and competent dietitian. Radar came into the limelight when the speaker described a new electrocardiograph machine developed in Canada. This machine uses the famous wartime radar principle, but requires the services of a well-trained technician to operate it.

Require Special Training

Hospital mechanics were referred to as men who required specialized technical training to carry out their repairs and maintenance on intricate hospital equipment.

All these branches of such essential work, the hospital superintendent stressed, demand closer study of public and high school standards, need for better vocational guidance, and an awareness on the part of all educationists of the final goal in preparing young people for a vocation in our civilization. It all revolves around good teachers, he reiterated.

A question and discussion period followed and a lively debate showed how much interest such a broad subject aroused.

Mrs. Howard Graham thanked the speaker, remarking how appropriate the evening had been occurring during "Education Week".

Education Week Observed by Q. M. Home, School Club

Education Week was observed by Queen Mary Public School Thursday evening with the Home and School Association sponsoring an "Open House." The business session was presided over by Mrs. T. Franklin who called upon her conveners to give their reports.

Mrs. Bruce Smith membership convener, reported 87 new members registered, bringing the roll to 225. Parent education convener, Mrs. H. Croll, stressed the necessity of a parents' study group. Mrs. E. David spoke on the benefits of a Health Unit in the counties. The attendance banners were awarded to Miss Blue's class for junior school an Miss J. Allen's class for senior school.

Following the business period, a lively sing-song was enjoyed, led by Mr. W. Jackson with Mrs. M. Rorabeck at the piano. A program was convened by Mrs. D. Stewart who arranged appriately educational presentations.

Miss Jessie Tuite, Albert College, directed a cleverly enacted skit entitled "The Chair," presented by four of her pupils, Jane Slavin, Diane Hales and Carolyn and Bobby Franklin. A panel discussion followed on the topic, "Primary Reader," led by Mr. L. A. Kells, Public School Inspector. The teaching staff was represented by Mr. C. J. Frederick, principal, Miss M. Hillis, Miss Thora Allen and Miss Iva Horton, while the parents were represented by Mesdames Callum, Jackson, Titterson and Regensberg.

Helps Children Develop

During the discussion it was pointed out that the reading-readiness plan used in schools is planned to help children develop and practice many of the skills necessary in reading. It is intended to provide many experiences for children which supplement the ideas that they bring to school. The activities of the program aid all children in gaining a common background of experiences and ideas. This principle of providing activities and experiences which will help children understand and interpret what they read, is applied to teachers of all grades. Many of the group activities the child engages in contribute either directly or indirectly to progress in reading, by arousing interest which books will help to satisfy, by building up a background of experiences and vocabulary to make his reading more comprehensive and making an opportunity to try out ideas discovered in books.

Teachers and room mothers greeted parents in their class rooms, and parents viewed the work of their children and had an opportunity to discuss progress with the teacher. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the program and a social half hour enjoyed.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Wants to Walk Out on His Wife

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 22 and about two years ago fell deeply in love with a very attractive girl of 18. A few months later we were married and now I see my mistake. My wife loves me deeply but somehow it seems that I have lost all love I ever had for her. She is expecting a baby within a few weeks and doesn't want me to leave her until after the baby arrives. She says under no circumstances will she agree to divorce me at any time. Please give me some advice on what to do.

"Troubled Husband"

Dear "Troubled Husband":

You haven't lost all love for this girl. You never had any real love for her or you wouldn't want to leave her now. You simply had an infatuation and, like many another irresponsible young person, you wouldn't give yourself time enough to be sure your feelings were what they should be in marriage but went ahead and asked this girl to be your wife on impulse.

No matter how you feel now, you have no right in the world to walk out and leave her. Having told her you loved her, she had every right to believe that you were sincere, and meant to be a devoted husband. The only decent thing for you to do now is to make up your mind that you will give this marriage of yours a fair trial for a reasonable length of time before you are so mean as to walk out on a marriage you were so eager to get into. And by giving your marriage a fair trial, I don't mean just gritting your teeth and enduring it and acting like a martyr so that you make your wife thoroughly unhappy. But I mean making an honest effort to do your very best to make her happy and make the marriage a success. Moreover, by a reasonable length of time I don't mean six months ,but at least a couple of years.

For goodness sakes, be man enough to accept the responsibilities you took on yourself of your own volition.

She's Not Ready For Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a boy for about two years who is very much in love with me and wants to marry me. He is 21 and I am nineteen.

He has been wonderful to me and I think would make me a very good husband, and I thought I was in love with him too. But lately I am not sure of myself. When I go out with my girl friends, I meet their boy friends and not so long ago I met a boy who asked me to go out with him. I think he is very nice but if I date him, I would be cheating on my steady. My steady loves me very much and if I should leave him, he would be ruined.

Do you think the fact that I like other boys proves that I am not really in love and am not ready for marriage? Should I forget about the other boys and continue my wedding plans, or leave my steady and risk the chance of finding out when it is too late that he is the only one for me?

"T. Rose"

Dear "T. Rose"

I think you have worked out the correct answer yourself already. The fact that you would like to go out with other boys is certainly obvious proof that one does not hold all your interest, no matter how much you may think of him.

I can't see why you have to be so dramatic about this thing as to tell your "steady" that you are leaving him, just because you are not certain yet of your own feelings. If he is so much in love with you that he thinks he would be "ruined" if you broke up with him, he certainly would want to stick around and see as much of you as possible even though you didn't give him all your dates. What you ought to do is to talk the thing over with him quite frankly, tell him you are uncertain of your feelings and that while you would like still to see him occasionally, you think it would be wiser for you both to feel free for a while before committing yourself definitely.

Fabric Gloves Make News

By PRUNELLA WOOD

A top dressmaker tried to tell the fashion press a year ago that her clothes were much too elegant to team with fabric gloves...and you should have heard the hoots of mirth. Such gloves get better and better, both in cut and colors, not to mention side trips into novelty, such as the pair shown above. In these gloves, little pancakes of self-fabric have detailed the model, fastened tight with French knots, and for some reason not to be analyzed, the effect is very stylish and feminine. Other gloves from the same collection feature little shirrings at short wrists, take on sweeping gauntlet lengths, etcetera. Colors are wonderful from an ensembling viewpoint, ranging through pastels to hearty tones.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Shine up Your Glorious Hair

Next time you go to the theatre, take a bird's-eye view of the heads of the women who sit before you. You may come to the conclusion that there are altogether too many neglected thatches. Not that many of them are not smartly coiffured, these brain mats, but the hair is not in top-notch form. It lacks life and luster. It may be oil-ridden, cling to the scalp. To be beautiful, hair should carry charming lights and shadows. It should be soft and silky. Quality means more than color.

Tresses will not have that groomed look unless they are brushed every day. In the period of the prehistoric pigtail, when length meant everything, brushing went on at a great pace. When the permanent arrived to delight the hearts of women, to make curly girls of those with stringy locks, the brush went into retirement. If yours has disappeared, go on a still hunt for it. It is your best, most effective, beauty tool.

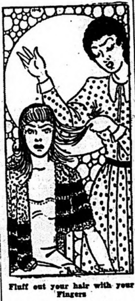
A great variety of excellent brushes has appeared on counters where toilet goods are sold. Attention is given to good bristles rather than ornamental backs and handles, as in the past. You may find a narrow one, with bristles set in groups, most convenient. Then you must learn to use it to best advantage.

The correct manner of brushing will enliven the growth, keep it from falling into a state of depression that may happen at any time. It will burnish the silky shafts, will act as a toning influence on the scalp, stirring up the blood streams upon which the hair lives and thrives.

Place the brush on its side against the napeline. Sweep upward, doing little circles with the bristles. That is a sort of scalp massage.

Take a small strand at a time—at the front, sides and crown — holding it away from the head. Place the bristles of the brush on the scalp, go through the strand with a rolling motion, first on one side of the tres, then on the other. Brush upward and outward. By this treatment your permanent wave will become amiable, fall into pleasing undulations. A good, firm ways can take a lot of punishment, be all the better for it.

Fluff out your hair with your fingers and brisk strokes of the brush, until the growth is standing on end. Place fingers and thumbs on the scalp, pick up the flesh and roll it. A tight scalp means restricted circulation, and that's bad.



Fluff out your hair with your Fingers

Have two brushes so there will always be a clean one at hand. Wash them with a nail brush, place bristles downward to dry so the back will not become water-soaked.

Fashion Flashes

A PERFECT CONTRAST to slim skirts and dresses is a fingertip coat of black Persian lamb which is very flared in the dipping rounded back and has dolman sleeves. The front, shorter than the sides and back, is gently curved. Tiny double upstanding dries in a jiffy and needs no ironket flaps.

Outstanding fur-trimmed cloth coats are available in the under-one-hundred - dollars range. Clouds gray woolen is used for a handsome coat with a graduated tuxedo of silver-blue muskrat. Wide, turn-back cuffs and a four-gore back are other smart style notes.

PRETTY AND PRACTICAL, because it washes like a dream and dries in a jiffy, and needs no ironing, is a nightgown of light blue or pink nylon sheer. Puffed sleeves, off-the-shoulder neckline, fitted midriff, shirred bodice and full, shirred skirt add to the charm of this sleep gown.

Highlights in 1948's Christmas Cards

Do you know—

That the majority of the Christmas cards this year, expensive or inexpensive, really look like Christmas cards? Unlike so many of the cards we've seen in the past several years, they don't give the impression of straining after some original" or "modernistic effect that doesn't have much to do with the idea of Christmas or with the spirit of a Christmas message. And very heart-satisfying this is!

That the 1948 Christmas cards honor and glorify the beloved symbols of Christmas by a charming and very clear-cut emphasis in design? This emphasis is achieved sometimes by radiant color, often by combination with bright metallic papers, almost always by the use of the symbol alone in its glory. One wonderful Christmas wreath. One brightly-lighted Christmas candle. One beautiful Christmas tree in red or in blue or in white. One Christmas angel, all white-and-gold. One wondrous Christmas bell, a-ringing the great message. One dramatic spray of holly, the berries bright, bright red. All this an interesting departure from former, often too-cluttered designing.

That if you are a music lover you can select lovely, lively, gay cards that reflect your interest in melody? There's a song in the air this year . . . that "glorious song of old" on many of 1948's cards, cards on which musical motifs are used as a theme in the design. Traditional cards with carollers and choir boys. Appealing scenes of groups singing—sometimes groups of children, sometimes family groups welcoming Christmas. On several cards are a few bars of a Christmas song or hymn that you will easily recognize.

That in the designs this year there are not so many "traditional scenes" as usual—not so many hunting scenes, stage-coach scenes bringing-in-the-yulelog, and so forth.

That never have there been so many designs of the kindly jolly gentleman known as Santa Claus? He's dramatized, pictured, sketched in all engaging and endearing ways. He's the 1948 glamor boy.

That that lilting, debonair word Greetings is used in a marvelous variety of ways, plain ways and fancy ways, simple ways, dramatic ways? It's a word of real charm, and with the lovely grace of taking on the personality you give it Most often this year it's used alone in distinguished block letters or in handsome script on the first page of folded cards that try to lure you to write your own greetings on the inside pages.

That Great Art is being shown in Christmas cards this year? In many cities the Art Museums are offering reproductions in Christmas card form of some of their classical art originals. In New York, for example, the Metropolitan Museum of Art has selected far card-reproduction twenty-four rare works of beauty and sentiment (price range of these cards from 5 to 20 cents!).

That's what with photography such a raging hobby today, pet negatives are being developed like mad and snapshots-with-the-personal touch are being incorporated into Christmas card designs?

That there have never been so few cards carrying the abbreviation "Xmas"? For which, let's give grateful thanks! Christmas is such a heart-warming word, such a beautiful, inspiring word that it (not "Xmas") should always be used. . . in printing, in engraving, in handwriting.

That it's your own fault if you choose the smart-aleck ,trying-to-be-funny, wise-cracking horrors that are still with us (although, thank Heaven, in much smaller numbers)? If you're tempted to buy them, try to remember, please, how pathetically inappropriate they will be when they arrive at Christmastime. And don't be tempted by the "cute" or "whimsical" cards with designs and message-wording completely lacking in suitability and therefore in taste.

That there has never been such a wide variety of religious cards as this year . . .this year when our hearts and spirits need so much the religious inspiration? There are many beautifuly reproductions of old masters, many reproductions of great paintings of famous Madonnas. Many of these cards carry Biblical quotations, often printed manuscript-style with elaborately illuminated initial letters. One very handsome one is a Christmas tree, star-crowned, formed of the words "On earth, Peace, Good Will toward Men."

That you will be surprised. . . and as delighted as I am, I hope . . . to see the large proportion of blank pages in Christmas cards this year? The better to write your own messages? There seems I think, to be the beginning of a rebellion against the worn-out phrases and the sing-song jingles .. . and there is the hope that we will be inspired, at this beautiful Christmas-time, to write our own greeting, if only "Happy Christmas" or the one singing word "Hallelujah!" in our own handwriting.

Flying Dutchmen Move to Front In Senior O.H.A. Race, First Team to Overtake Hamilton

(By The Canadian Press)

Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen forged to the front in the Senior Ontario Hockey Association last night—the first team to overtake the Hamilton Tigers who broke on top from the start of the season.

Riding on six-wins, five losses and two ties, the Dutchmen went one point ahead of Hamilton by defeating them 4-3 in overtime Friday night. In another Senior game, the upsurging Toronto Marlboros downed Owen Sound Mercurys 6-4.

In the Junior loop, Guelph Biltmores took a 2-1 overtime decision over the cellarite Toronto Marlboros, Stratford Kroehlers bested Galt Rockets 5-2, Barrie Flyers defeated Oshawa Generals 5-2 and Windsor Spitfires downed St. Catharines Teepees 7-2.

Tigers grabbed a one-goal lead early in the first period when Ab Conick scored at the mid-way mark. Fleet Don Bauer notched two goals within a minute to put the Dutchmen ahead.

A goal by Dick Behling on a solo rush put Kitchener two up early in the second frame but Bobby Laurent cut the margin near the end of the period on a three-way play with Tom Smelle and Ab Conick.

A goal by Laurent mid-way through the third stanza tied the game up. At the six-minute mark of the overtime period, Doug Verity counted to give Kitchener the decision.

Blair Starts Marlies on Way

Chuck Blair's goal started Marlboros off early in the first period. Scotty Mair put the Dukes two up minutes later. Ray Hannigan and Red Johnson each counted once in the opening minutes of the second period to give Toronto a 4-0 margin, but Bud White cut the lead with a goal minutes later.

The Toronto squad counted two more early in the third frame—Johnny McLellan and Blair taking the honors—and a three-goal splurge by Owen Sound failed to put them back in the game. Bruno Favero, Pat McReavy and Jack Ingoldsby tallied for the Mercurys.

Barrie took a first-period 1-0 lead when Gardy Gordon counted on a close-in shot. Oshawa tied the game up in the second stanza on Dick Gamble's goal. Paul put Flyers ahead and minutes later Long scored to give Barrie a 3-1 margin. Ernie Keefe and Bobby Hogg tallied for Barrie in the third period and Dustry Blair for Oshawa.

Guelph pulled out their third-period deadlock when Frank Bathgate blasted a screened shot past netminder Roy McMeekin in the overtime session. Eddie Bolan got the other Guelph goal in the second period while fleet George Armstrong tallied Toronto's only counter.

Within One Point

Windsor came within one point of overtaking the league-leading St. Catharines squad with their win. Jack McIntyre shot St. Kitts into an early first-period lead when he outguessed Dave O'Meara. Bert Giesbrecht got the equalizer minutes later on a goal-mouth scramble. Bruce Giesbrecht and George Oulette each counted once in the middle frame to lengthen Windsors margin.

Larry Wilson made it 4-1 in the opening minutes of the third stanza and husky Marcel Pronovost followed with three fast goals. Fred Hildebrand got St. Catharines other tally. Referees Pat Patterson and Jim Primeau handed out a total of 90 minutes in the penalty box—including 12 majors.

Stratford rapped home three goals in the third stanza without a reply to clinch their tilt against Galt. Galt took a two-goal lead in the first period when Pete Tkachuk and Broncho Horvath counted, but Joe Bragagnolo reduced the deficit for Stratford before the end of the stanza. Bibber O'Hearn evened the count with the only goal of the second period.

O'Hearn added another in the early minutes of the third session and Billy Mitchell made it 4-2 mid-way through the period. Then O'Hearn counted again to close the scoring.

In the senior loop tonight, Marlboros meet Mercurys and Hamilton clash with Kitchener-Waterloo.

In the junior circuit, Windsor meets Toronto St. Michael's College, Guelph clashes with Toronto Marlboros, Barrie meets Oshawa and Stratford plays Galt.

Toronto, Boston Meet in Sole Saturday Game

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs, ailing champions of the hockey world, open a nine-game-in-15 days grind tonight against Dit Clapper's bruising Boston Bruins.

It's the only game scheduled for tonight but all six clubs in the league see action Sunday.

Leafs, sunk in a three-way cellar tie after two years of winning the Stanley Cup, haven't won a game on the road this year. They have five away games during the next two weeks.

Bruins can move into first place by beating Leafs tonight and can dig in at the top by licking New York Rangers tomorrow.

Boston now is in second place, a scant point behind the leading Detroit Red Wings who are at home Sunday to Montreal Canadiens.

Following a foot injury to utility forward Joe Klukay, Leafs last night ordered rookie right winger Fleming Mackell to Pittsburgh Hornets to replace forward Harry Taylor, who came up from the farm last week.

Rangers Play Bruins

New York Rangers, still stricken by injuries, have another go at the Boston Garden jinx Sunday night. Rangers haven't won a game there since the middle of the 1946-47 season.

In the other Sunday game the Leafs meet the Black Hawks at Chicago. The Leafs, Hawks and Rangers are tied for the cellar with eight points each.

Hopes of the Rangers were brightened with the news that centre Buddy O'Connor should be back in harness by the end of next week and Nick Mickoski, injured 10 days ago, will play against Chicago next Thursday.

Coach Frank Boucher to date—like the rest of the league's coaches—says he isn't too worried about his Rangers showing so far in the grind.

"Up to now Rangers have had all the bad luck," he said Friday.

He predicted that the red-hot Detroit Red Wings would find the going a bit tougher now that star forward Ted Lindsay is recuperating from an injury at his Kirkland Lake home.

PRICES OF CARS UP

Detroit, Nov. 20 — (AP)—General Motors Corporation Friday boosted the prices of its 1949 Cadillac and Buick automobiles.

Cadillac prices were increased an average of 3.2 per cent more than the 1948 listings, while the increase on the new Buicks rang-

Leo Durocher Must Explain To Commissioner

(By The Canadian Press)

Leo Durocher, who now manages New York Giants, is going to have to explain to Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler how he signed Freddie Fitzsimmons as coach.

A source close to the commission, who suspended Durocher for the 1947 season on the grounds that his conduct was detrimental to baseball, said Friday at Cincinnati Chandler wants to know why Fitzsimmons' appointment as a coach was announced when he still was under contract to Boston Braves.

Durocher, Fitzsimmons, and officials of the Giants will be invited to tell the story to Chandler at the meeting of baseball heads in Chicago next month.

As far as the commissioner's official announcements are concerned, they still do not have Fitzsimmons released by the Braves.

Frank McCormick, veteran first-sacker with the pennant-winning Boston Braves of the National League last season, Friday signed a contract to manage Quebec Alouettes in the Canadian-American League next year, it was announced at Quebec Friday. Amount of salary was not revealed.

The new manager replaces Tony Ravish of Hudson, N. Y. who was fired after the Alouettes finished in last place for a second year in a row.

Palmer Wright, secretary of the Ontario Jockey Club, said Friday at Toronto that nominations already were heavy for the 1950 running of the King's Plate and he would not be surprised if a record number of horses were entered. Nominations for the $10,000 added classic close Nov. 28.

Friday's harness racing meet at Dufferin Park was washed out by rain and a heavy track and race-track gossip centred on today's free-for-all trot.

With 18 horses entered in the $1,500 race, the championship event will be run in two eliminations of nine horses each. The first four horses of each will meet in the final heat.

The first division includes Projectile, which took a two-year-old record of 2:04 while owned in the United States. Ontario trotting champ Billy Stout, owned by Frank Plaunt of Brantford, is among the starters in the second division.

Officials of "Mercure," a private flying concern at Paris, still were without news today of one of their planes which has been missing since Nov. 8 with six members of the Czechoslovak hockey team, bound for London.

Commenting on widespread rumors that the plane changed its course and flew south to Spain or Portugal, officials said the plane had only enough fuel to fly to "some Spanish airport near the border but not to Madrid."

Heavyweight champion Joe Louis took his exhibition tour home to Detroit Friday night and even with bulky 14-ounce gloves, dumped curly - haired Vern Mitchell of Detroit on the canvas twice in a no-decision six-round exhibition.

Louis weighed 220, Mitchell 194½.

Joe toyed with Mitchell, didn't even bother to sit down in his corner between the two-minute rounds and even took time to smile at his friends around the ringside while he waited for the bell.

Only twice did the 34-year-old Louis open up with any sign of a vicious attack and both times he put Mitchell down.

The Argentine Soccer Football Association Friday cancelled the contracts of 538 striking players.

The players, who claim the Association hasn't lived up to the contracts, voted to continue their strike.

All Sunday games were discontinued for several weeks because of the strike. However, they were resumed last Sunday with teams filled mostly with amateur players.

The Association said the winter schedule would be completed with amateurs.

Melio Bettina, veteran Beacon, N. Y., southpaw who once held the light heavyweight title, took a unanimous 10-round decision over Enrique Felpi of Argentina Friday night at St. Nicholas Arena, New York. Bettina weighed 192½ to 209½ for the South American.

Many of the 2,247 fans who paid $6,306 booed the decision for the aggressive Argentine had caught their eye with his right hand punches. However, Bettina, a stocky left hander was much more experienced than Felpi whose long range blows often landed on Melio's arms and shoulders.

Solunar Tables:

Hunt Slowly if You Want More Game

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted sportsman, author and creater of Solunar Tables.)

For a great many years I hunted with a man who made his living as a taxidermist. It was incidental to his business that he be a close student of wildlife. Being naturally observant, he did not simply look at things; he saw them. There is a great difference. A day in the open with him was an education. He knew every track. He could tell by the way a plant shoot was clipped whether it had served as food for a rabbit, a woodchuck or a deer. Telltale scratches on a tree trunk told him that a squirrel had recently climbed it, and, more important, how recently.

One of the things on which he insisted when we hunted together was that we hunt slowly and quietly. It was his contention that most men walk by a great deal more game than they see or flush. If you will stop to think it over a bit, you will see that he is right.

Birds Get Alarmed

Consider, for instance, a game bird that is hiding in the grass within a few feet of your line of travel. All right—you come along at a rate of about three miles an hour. Tramp, tramp, tramp, at a steady pace. As you pass the hiding place of the bird, not too close, it has every reason to believe that it is well and securely hidden. Naturally it stays hidden and you go on your way none the wiser. Suppose, however, that you break stride or stop somewhere near the bird. Immediately its sense of security vanishes. It becames alarmed, feeling sure that you have discovered its hiding place. Out it goes and you have some shooting that you would not have had otherwise.

One day I killed a ruffed grouse in the Pennsylvania mountains. As I picked up the bird, my friend, the taxidermist, put in his appearance. Together we seated ourselves on a large flat rock to have a smoke and talk things over while we admired the bird in the grass before us. They are lovely things, ruffed grouse, and I never tire of looking at a freshly killed bird.

Our smoke finished, I stowed the bird in my jacket and we started up the hill. Neither of us had reloaded our guns. Almost from beneath our feet another ruffed grouse burst from the underbrush beside us and rocket away through the trees. The bird had been hiding not twenty feet from where we sat. So long as w talked and came no closer, he felt safe but when we began to walk again he decided upon flight.

Keeps Gun Ready

How many times have you had a bird flush from beneath you as you were climbing a fence? Did you ever wonder why they choose that particular time to flush? Consider the mechanics of it for a moment. You approach the fence at a steady pace and the hidden bird feels safe. When you reach the fence, however, you effect a change of pace. This change of pace makes the bird feel insecure and out he goes. Now when I come to a fence, I do so with my gun ready. Usually I stop for a moment and wait. If nothing happens, I kick about in the brush under the fence and then wait again. Not only do I get a bird now and then by these tactics but I can climb fences without having birds flush at exactly the wrong times.

And here's another thing to remember. During the Solunar Periods, when game is active and in the feeding cover, both birds and animals seem to prefer to seek safely by hiding rather than through flight. Then is when a change of pace really pays off. Of course, if you have a dog, change of pace is not too important but if you are kicking up your own game it is a very effective way to get up game.

So get the habit of hunting slowly, dog or no dog. Acquire change of pace. And, just as important, keep track of the daily Solunar Periods so that you will know where to look for your game.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By TREVOR ICETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 20 — (CP) — Glance through the newspaper you're reading and you'll probably find more "beefs" to a column on the sports pages than in any other section.

Many a sports writer, for instance, has contended that Joe Louis has stayed in the fight game too long and should get out to let the newcomers battle for the championship; others have rapped six-man-in-the-ring wrestling shows as pure publicity and detrimental to good wrestling. Some have argued that Conny Smythe has gone too far in his hockey trades and has weakened the Toronto Maple Leafs badly.

And the gripes go on and on.

Right now sports writers are in a dither about the way referees indiscriminately, so they say, hand out assists on goals. It's just a habit, says Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller. He goes on:

"The habit comes from the N.H.L. where assists are a dime a dozen."

Now the habit has worked its way into provincial and local leagues and Miller adds:

"Ninety per cent of the time the officials must ask members of the scoring team who provided the assist and in this case . . . well, naturally."

Rex (Guelph Mercury) MacLeod calls punching Pete Zaduk "Guelph's gift to the box-fight industry." And looking at Zaduk's record, MacLeod may be right.

Montreal's Harry Hurst was recently dumped on his abbreviated trousers by the hard-hitting Zaduk. And to Hurst, who looked on punching Pete as a stepping stone to a return bout with Johnny Greco, it must have been quite a dumping.

Zaduk has been coming along fast. Only a few weeks ago he gained a draw in his fight with Rockabye Ross, the new Canadian middleweight champion. Some fight fans think Pete should have got the referee's nod over Ross.

Sammy Keller, Zaduk's manager, insists Zaduk was announced as the winner of the bout from the ring, but awoke next morning to find the decision had been changed to a draw.

Marcel Cerdan Back in States, To Fight Anyone

New York, Nov. 20 (AP) — Marcel Cerdan, hottest drawing card in boxing outside of Joe Louis, is back in town, listening to offers.

The tipoff on the dollar value of the Frenchman is the fact that he was met at the plane by both Harry Markson of the 20th Century Sporting Club and Andy Niederreiter of the rival tournament of champions.

Cerdan is under contract to defend his middleweight title for the T. of C. next June against Tony Zale, the man he knocked out at Jersey City in September. But he's not under contract for over-the-weight appearances.

"I am sure he will fight for both promoters this winter," said Sammy Richman, who will represent him on his current exhibition tour. "We are not involved in any boxing war. The Garden gave us our first chance and the T. of C. gave us a shot at the title. There is no reason we can not fight for both."

Cerdan will remain a month, making six or eight appearances in four-round exhibitions. Two dates are definite. He will show at Lewiston, Me., Dec. 2 and at Cleveland Dec. 6 on Larry Atkins' big Christmas show. New Orleanso, Toronto, Montreal and Holyoke, Mass., are other possibilities.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 20 — (AP) — Tired young stars can take a lesson from Frank Morgan, he is celebrating his 35th year as a film actor by working in two pictures at once.

Reviewing his service before the cameras, the actor glowed:

"It has been a long and profitable engagement."

Now playing a gambling oldster in "The Great Sinner" and a not-so-old baseball trainer (sans moustache) in "The Stratton Story," Morgan disclosed that he has always toyed with his age.

"I started out as a character actor," he said, "because I didn't like to run. When I began acting in my 20's, the juvenile never walked on stage. He had to run in with a tennis racket in his hand and he went off the same way, running and waving.

"Well, I wanted to walk, so I greyed my hair and became a character actor."

When he came to Hollywood in 1932 (he had made eastern films in the early days), Morgan almost lost his resolve to remain a character actor.

"I came out to star in 'Topaz.' It's a long story, but I finally didn't do the part; John Barrymore did. It might have changed my whole career and brought me to the attention of the public as more of a leading man type. Then I would have had to face the problem of transition from lover to character man.

"That is a hard thing to do. It generally takes 10 years of idleness to make the jump. It's not that a leading man can't do character parts; the public just can't visualize him in them.

"Take Clark Gable. It will be hard for him to make the transition, because women think of him as a lover and wouldn't accept him in a beard."

DEAD DEER KICKS HUNTER IN EYE

Oshawa, Nov. 20 (CP)—Robert C. Forster said Friday he got a black eye when a dead deer kicked him in the eye. He said it happened on a hunting trip when one of his companions shot a deer. While he was helping to skin the animal he severed a tendon and the deer's leg straightened out, hitting him in the eye.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Knowledge of strict routine does not preclude the taking of a risk. An accurate pair will sometimes stretch. They may take a chance at garnering an extra trick with some unusual play.

Unfortunately, too many stretchers lack a sound routine basis. These extend their values without knowing the exact span between the fact and their exaggeration. They may take too long a gamble.

My partner was south in this tournament deal:

NORTH
♠K Q 3
♥K J 8 4 2
♦A 10
♣A 9 7

WEST
♠10 8 5 4
♥None
♦J 8 6 5 3 2
♣J 6 2

EAST
♠J 9 7
♥10 7 6
♦K Q 9
♣Q 5 4 3

SOUTH
♠A 6 2
♥A Q 9 5 3
♦7 4
♣K 10 8

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 H	3 H
3 NT	4 NT
6 D	6 H

The south opening showed five tricks. My immediate assist assured him we would end in hearts. His three no-trump did not show any more tricks. This was to keep me from getting false slambitions.

For all I knew, he did not have a sixth trick. With six in my own hand, only a count of 11 was so far seen in our pair. So, my slam probe was not in the book. Another case of don't do as I did; do as I say.

His six diamond reply to four no-trump was our convention signal for showing two aces and one king. It showed me that we had a total of all four aces and three kings.

It was then too late to back up. Six hearts was where I had to land. West led a diamond and my partner pulled a wise play that gave us a trick more than our count. The 12 tricks came in.

Before knowing the result, I feared the worst. So, spreading my dummy hand slowly, I looked up and said: "Knowing your ability with the pasteboards, partner." It saved me a dirty look.

urday morning I was going market on an errand, and Puds Simkins going the place, and I said, Heck, cant the market deliver its stuff so we would not have so many errands?

t's the same thing mine Puds said, and I said, I bet what all the ladies say. I got an idea. Let's deliver for the market on Sattur- I bet they'll be glad to get ep delivery sistem so they t a lot of more customers.

gon, I'll do most of the pulling, so that will make up equal pardners, I said.

Sounding like a swell idea, and when we got to the market we asked the butcher where we could find the manager, and the butcher said, If you meen the owner, that's Mr. Briskin, and he's over at the vegetable department unpacking crates.

Which he was, being a little man chewing a big cigar without smoking it, and we told him our idea, and he said, Listen, boys, while I tell you a funny story. I got here at 6 o'clock this morning to unload this fruit, and I'm just now getting down to unpacking it, because I spent the rest of the morning cutting up the meat for the day, and marking prices on canned goods, and relieving the cashier while she paid her dentist a social call. And that's what it means to be the owner of things to be done and you want to stay in bizzness, you do them yourself. So if you loan me your express waggon I'll try to find time to make the deliveries, but he said.

The result being we helped him about 5 minutes taking oranges out of a crate, and he gave us each a funny shape orange with a

AAU to Sponsor Dominion-Wide Drive for Funds

London, Ont., Nov. 20. (CP) A revitalized Amateur Athletic Union of Canada appeared to be on the cards today.

In one of the most business-like sessions of recent years, Union delegates buckled down to what some termed "house-cleaning measures" and in less than five hours decided on:

1. A Dominion-wide fund-raising campaign with a minimum objective of $5,000 .The A.A.U. dangled a lure to would-be subscribers: honorary life memberships in the Union to all who send in $50 or more.
2. An early start on British Empire games plans with notice of an "all-out" drive for funds to send a team to New Zealand in 1950 and appointment of Past President George C. Macum of Montreal as chairman of a general committee in charge of games preparations.
3. Creation of a central school for coaches in efforts to make coaching methods conform across the country in an effort to raise the standards of track and field athletes and an annual school for officials in each branch of the Union.
4. Appointment of an honorary president and 14 honorary vice-presidents composed of leading figures in Canada's business life who, it is expected, will lend active support to promotion of amateur sports in Canada. Announcement of personnel is expected today.

Delegates set up an amateur athletic hall of fame designed to perpetuate the names of great Canadian amateur athletes. It is expected it will take the form of a "golden book" with pictures and a resume of their athletic achievements.

Machum suggested that all Canadian Olympic first-place winners in sports allied with the A.A.U. —westling, boxing, track and field, gymnastics, fencing and swimming—be named to the Hall immediately. Delegates set the matter over for consideration by the newly-elected executive.

The Dominion track and field championships and B. E. games trials will be held in Toronto next Labor Day weekend and Montreal was awarded the Dominion indoor championships March 7 and the Dominion interscholastic meet June 4. Delegates agreed to dispense with zone trials for the B.E. games and A.A.U. branch eliminations will be held with satisfactory standards set up.

Other Dominion championships will be awarded by the new executive within sixty days.

Mustangs Have Six Players Injured And Will Not Play

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP)—Toronto battened down its storm hatches today and waited for things to start happening.

And just about anything could happen in the struggle between University of Toronto and University of Western Ontario for the intercollegiate grid championship.

The battle has been raging all week long between rival student bodies. That battle will keep on during the game and possibly attract almost as much attention as the two football clubs.

A heavy rain soaked Varsity stadium during the night.

The game has been a complete sell-out ever since it became certain last Saturday that there would be a playoff for the title Western has won annually since 1939 and Varsity hasn't won since 1936.

Johnny Metras' Mustangs got a loud and long sendoff when they left Friday to avenge Varsity's 23-8 upset victory of last week. A huge crowd saw the Mustangs off at the station and heard Mayor George Wenige of London urge the Mustangs to bring the title back with them.

Both student bodies have been holding monster rallies all week to build up spirit for the clash—Western with a "trample Toronto" campaign and Varsity relying with its tradition shout of "beat Western."

The Blues have been the only club in the rah-rah conference to mar the record of Metras' mighty Mustangs since 1939. Last year they tied them, this year they beat them, the first defeat for Western in 28 games.

The injury-dogged Mustangs will still have six stars sidelined. But the muddy field might prove a help to the powerful line that copped five positions on the Canadian Press Intercollegiate All-Star team.

Biggest loss will be halfback Bob McFarlane who led the league in scoring last year. Varsity will be without all-star middle Ian Clark, the kingpin of the Blue line.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

Bridgeport, Conn.: Sandy Saddler, 126, New York, knocked out Tomas Beato, 128, Can Domingo (2) (non-title).

Wildcats Favored To Down Hilltops On Muddy Field

Hamilton, Nov. 20 — (CP) — More than 4,000 fans are expected to ignore a forecast of light rain today to watch the first official junior Canadian football championship game since 1933.

Saskatoon Hilltops and Hamilton Wildcats will square off in muddy Civic Stadium, soaked by more than 24 hours of rain. The weatherman predicted no letup from the intermittent rain which began Friday.

Local football fans had been saying that Hilltops, with an impressive record of 12 wins and 1 loss behind them this year, were a team that liked the mud.

But Coach Bob Arn scotched the rumor Friday night when he put his charges through a brief workout.

The Western Canada junior champions arrived Friday morning, accompanied by a pullman-and-a-half of faithful fans. The Wildcats, champions of the Big Four junior circuit, knocked off the champions of the Ontario and Quebec Unions to make the final.

Following the game there'll be a civic dinner and Sunday the Hilltops will make a trip to Niagara Falls.

The game will revive the east-west junior classic that started in 1928 and ran through until 1932, the last time a western team came east for the Canadian Rugby Union junior title. Eastern teams won the title four years running after Regina picked off the first one.

In 1933, the last time a C. R. U. title game was played, it was an all-eastern final. But two western teams — Regina Dales and Vancouver Blue Bombers — won unofficial titles since 1933.

Rocky Graziano Fond of Travel

New York, Nov. 20 — (AP) — Rocky Graziano is back home today after two disappearances in two days on opposite coasts.

The former middleweight king has been in California training for a fight Dec. 1st at Oakland with Fred Apostoli. Thursday he took a walk and didn't come back. Friday he turned up at his Brooklyn home. Then he disappeared again.

Irving Cohen, his manager said he reached Rocky by phone Friday night. He made a date to meet him today to find out the reason for his fighter's travels. Cohen said Graziano didn't actually disappear Friday night, but had gone out with his family after returning home.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By SHAUN McQUILLAN

London, Nov. 19 (CP)—Britain isn't breeding enough young golfers and it's worrying governors of the sport. With costs rocketing, they see golf becoming what it was once condemned to be—a rich and old man's game.

They're going to launch a campaign to help bring the game within the pocket range of the average player. The would-be golfer today is faced with an outlay up to £30 ($320). Prewar, his clubs and kit, now boosted by a 68 per cent purchase tax, would have been less than £20.

A move to cut initial cost to make it easier for the beginner will be made by the English Golf Union which also intends to discuss other ways and means of encouraging youngsters.

The post-war period began with Britain's golf clubs, some of them known throughout the world, in a sorry plight. Little golf was played during the war, big stretches of terrain sacred to golfers had been plowed up in the national emergency, and club secretaries looked ruefully at dwindling membership lists.

The general rise in costs meant that many clubs had to increase the annual charge on members; some even imposed entrance fees for the first time.

One club, the Royal and Ancient, has set an example which others may follow. In the future the entrance fee will be wiped out completely for those ages 18 to 26. Instalment payment of fees has been inaugurated.

Another suggestion the Union will probably support is the restriction of the usual 14 clubs to seven, thus requiring a lighter bag, a reduced cost. It would eliminate the expense of a caddy.

Edward Martell, a London County councillor, has a plan he believes would help to make England fit to meet the Australians on more level terms on the cricket field in future.

The L.C.C. has agreed to discuss his plans to put forward a scheme for a knockout cricket competition in London's parks.

At 39, Martell still is a cricketer. He often plays for the National Liberal Club. He points out that the L.C.C. have championship in the park for bowls, swimming and tennis, but there is no such award for cricket.

A knock-out competition, which would be open to various grades of players, would have the result of spotlighting likely players who could be selected for the country clubs.

THE VENABLES

BY KATHLEEN NORRIS

"I thought I'd try at the Ladies' Exchange."

"They pay hardly anything there, and they expect you to wash dishes!" Harriet said on a light laugh.

"I don't know what I'd do without you," Willie commented.

Flo felt an odd thrill deep within her. Neither one had protested; neither one had said, "No, miss, you'll go straight back to school, so don't let's hear any nonsense about that!"

She might, actually be free to find a job. The thought exhilarated her.

"And Mrs. Monroe Venables," Arnold was saying, "has authorized me to say that she and Lily — for she won't do anything without including Lily — will see to it that a sum sufficient to carry your expenses — very modest, of course — is deposited in the bank every month to your account. That's to go through my office, so you can depend on it regularly."

"Give us an idea how much that would be, Arnold," Flo, to her own intense surprise, said practically. Her mother winced on an audible breath.

"One hundred dollars," Arnold said.

"And no rent, Flo," Lily added anxiously, made uneasy by Flo's apparent lack of appreciation.

"It can be done," Flo said, as if half to herself, but without enthusiasm, Arnold took out his watch on its heavy chased chain, snapped the lid open with the same long fingers in which he held it.

"Half past twelve, Lily. Mother will be expecting us."

"Ah, don't go," Willie said automatically.

"We must," He put his watch back into a vest pocket, began his formal good-byes. These included a handshake with everyone present and took some time.

Then he and Lily went driving away through the sunshine of the Mission and across the city to the fogs and wind of the Western Addition and were in time to wash their hands and brush their hair and stop for a word of greeting in the old woman's room. After that they descended to a dinner of oyster soup and roast chicken and cut peaches and chocolate layer cake. Arnold talked entertainingly through the luncheon. Afterward, as always on Sunday, he had to go down to the club for awhile.

"Someday, Arnold I wish you would leave me with Mama. Thomas could pick me up when he takes your mother for her drive in the afternoon."

"And have my dinner here all alone?" Arnold asked with a smile.

"Well, I'm alone here at dinner every Thursday night. Perhaps I could go Thursday?"

"You mean dine with your family on Thursday?"

"Well, I was just thinking—"

"What would be the object?"

"Oh, just to see them, talk with them. Flo and I always like to talk about things."

"I've noticed that. But you know we've discussed this before, Lily, and I've told you that it would be a great mistake to see too much of your family now, in the beginning. Later when they've gotten accustomed to having you a married woman, perhaps. But just now they want to put you right back in your old position—washing dishes, running upstairs for your grandmother's glasses. Why, that was all right when you had to do it. But now, dear," Arnold explained with infinite patience, "everything's different for us. You belong to me, you know. This is home for you."

"I know. But sometimes when I'm alone, Arnold, I'd love to jump on a Filmore Street car and go over there."

"Alone?"

"Well — sometimes Thomas could take me, couldn't he? He doesn't do anything most mornings."

"He does whatever my mother asks him to. He's her coachman, you know Lily; not ours. She lends him to us Sunday mornings. But you're just back from seeing the whole family and being loved by the whole family," Arnold reminded her, humorously. "Isn't that enough for one day?"

"Yes, but I was thinking I'd like to stay a whole day or part of a day, and —— oh, fool around the way I used to; When we're coming away there are so many things I remember that I forgot to ask!"

"You say you're lonely when I'm not here?"

"No, I don't think I said that exactly. I said I was alone."

"We're splitting hairs today, aren't we?" he said, amused.

"You see, this is a big house, Arnold," Lily said "and it's very quiet. Sometimes I talk awhile to Miss Janet, but sometimes when your mother takes a nap she lies down too, because she's up so much in the night."

"By degrees, Birdie, you'll form your own circle of friends. The Driscolls — they're lovely girls. Why not telephone them and pay them a call?"

"But I don't know them very well, Arnold, and they're older than I am."

"I see my little wife is bound to make a case for herself." Arnold said smiling. "Well, we'll see. At all events, you're driving with my mother this afternoon, and in any case I'd not want you alone on the street cars.

"If at any time you want to go over there, let me know at breakfast, and I'll see if it can be arranged. They'll move to Ellis Street very soon, and that isn't a neighborhood that you could go to alone."

"But then what about the neighborhood for Flo and Weeny?" Lily demanded alarmed.

"Leave it to a woman to change the subject when she feels she is getting the worst of it!" Arnold said, laughing, as he rose, coffee cup in hand. "Finished, dear? Then let's go up to mother's room. for I've got to be off."

Fifteen minutes later he was gone, and his mother settled down for her nap. It was now twenty minutes of two; at half past three the carriage would be at the porte-cochere, and Miss Janet, the nurse, and Thomas and the butler would escort the invalid downstairs.

Lily would then join them; someone would fold the rug over her knees; her mother - in - law would fuss with it feebly with her crippled, inefficient hands, would mutter concerned warnings in her broken voice.

She was a courageous old lady, and Lily liked her, although she had to see far too much of her for her taste.

One day she went boldly to the street car and rode out to the Mission. The occasion was one when an old friend had come to spend the day with elder Mrs. Belcher, and Arnold was not coming home to lunch. Lily, breathing hard, said in her affrighted heart, "If they don't like it they can lump it; if they don't like it they can lump it!"

Unfortunately she found only her mother, grandmother, Aunt Daisy and younger brother at home; Flo had taken the rest and several other children off for the day. Lily was almost sick with shock and disappointment as she realized that all her daring was not to win her an hour with Flo. Flo, she appreciated now for the first time, was the real reason for her coming; she was hungry for her company she was hungry to talk to her sister, her own sister, almost her own age, and always closest to her in understanding!

She helped her grandmother get a lunch of poached eggs and sliced tomatoes; she was affectionate with her mother; she lingered, amusing Spencer, hoping against hope that Flo for some reason would come home early today and that she would catch a glimpse of her at least.

But instead, at half past three the Belcher carriage called. Arnold had somehow learned that Lily was at her mother's house and asked that she be sent for. Frustrated, furious, frightened, Lily got into the carriage. At quarter to five she was at home again, pouring tea for the old ladies. Arnold, coming in brisk and cheerful, with his newspaper stuck in his pocket, found them in his mother's room.

"Well, you went to see your family, dear?" he said, after his greetings. "How's everyone? I asked Mother to send Thomas for you because I didn't like the idea of your being on the street cars after dark. Days getting short now! Find everyone well?"

But later, in their room, he took a rather different tone:

"By the way, Lily, don't go off to the Mission alone again. I happened to have to telephone Miss Janet this morning, and she told me you'd gone. It made me very nervous, and there's no need of it. Thomas always can take you, or Mother'll wait while you see them. But it makes me too anxious to have my little wife gadding about the city alone."

Flo had managerial capacities, was conscious of them, and loved the feeling of power they gave her. Flo Venables could do anything she tried to do. Crisis and responsibility were the only challenges to her; she rose to them enthusiastically. Her strength was inexhaustible, and with it went an optimism that carried the forlorn little family gallantly forward against all hazards.

But Flo's courage was sorely strained when the time came to move to the Ellis Street house. The change was made suddenly because the new tenant of the Shotwell Street place simply appeared with his movers and quietly discussed the placing of his piano, bookcases and tables while the Venables were still in possession.

They had no choice. Never having seen the Ellis Street place, and with but 24 hours in which to leave, they did what they could.

The building itself stood between two others exactly like it. It held three flats, some of whose unwashed windows were plastered with agents' signs. Upper floors were reached by peeling flights of steps and inside stairways.

There were nine flats in all; their dark rooms stretched between higher buildings on either side. Two of the areas were practically sealed by accumulations of straw, dust, old newspapers and street rubbish; in the third a sickly little tailoring business had been established.

The Venables were to have a center flat whose entrance door was paneled in strips of colored glass and whose parlor windows looked into the street.

Their bumped and shabby furniture had been dumped unceremoniously in the double parlors; they were left to settle in as best they could at six o'clock. The sun was down now, and in the street a dull twilight reigned.

Flo had bought bread and butter on the way; there was syrup in a can whose punched openings she had carefully plugged with paper earlier in the day; there was a bottle of milk and there was tea. Nothing else. The first thought must be supper; then they would do what they could do to make the place habitable.

She attacked the kitchen by the process of extracting from heaps and piles of unassorted articles those that they needed first. The girls must get some plates out of the mess; the teapot must be somewhere. They sat down grimy and weary to bread and butter and syrup and tea, and Flo was refreshed by it and could go on.

Tobermory Guide Risks His Life To Save Sixteen

Crew Cling to Battered Tug, Dredge for Two Days

South Bay Mouth, Nov. 22 — (CP)—Stuart Peacock, 35-year-old Tobermory guide, risked his life in the rescue of 16 persons, marooned for three nights and two days on the wreckage of a battered tug and dredge on the rocks of storm-swept Manitoulin Island.

"If it hadn't been for Stuart Peacock, none of us would be here now," said Angus Morrison, captain of the tug Patricia McQueen. "He saved our lives time and time again at the risk of his own."

Crew members of the dredge Ella M. and the Patricia McQueen, owned and operated by Capt. J. E. McQueen of Amherstburg, gave Peacock credit for their rescue after the vessels were driven ashore on reefs 20 miles waves and a biting cold wind kept all boats but the Gracie, a 30-foot cruiser from which Peacock operated, in the harbor.

Foundered Thursday Night

The Ella M. floundered and sank Thursday night off Rabbit Island, three miles off shore and midway up the east coast of Manitoulin Island at the north end of Lake Huron. The Patricia McQueen, its rudder smashed and engines useless, drifted 16 hours before piling into reefs off this tiny Manitoulin Island village.

Peacock said he and John Desjardins of Tobermory set out on the "worst trip I've ever experienced".

"We pounded our way through the high seas and bitter, cold to the tug. The rudder had broken off and it was drifting dangerously near some reefs. After a long struggle we managed to get a line on the tug and we pulled it from shore and got it into the troughs.

Bounced Around like Corks

.."We were bouncing like corks and couldn't pull the vessel any further. Through the gale which was mounting I yelled to the captain I would get another boat and then pulled away for South Bay mouth.

"It was getting dark when I got George Simpson and his boat to come with us in an attempt to rescue the tug. We couldn't get near the Patsy.

"We let the tug drift and stood by it. I yelled to the captain that we couldn't do anything until the wind dropped. I heard him yell: 'Don't worry about me—worry about the dredge—there are 11 people on board.'"

On Friday. Peacock got his cruiser close enough for the captain and a crew member to jump on the roof, but they spent all night on a shoal where "we were almost pounded senseless."

The men and a women aboard the Ella M. were taken to safety Saturday when Peacock transferred them to a former Royal Canadian Navy minesweeper, the tug Lachine, which bucked up the stormy lake from Sarnia.

WARN CANADIANS AGAINST DANGERS OF COMMUNISM

Leader of P. C. Party Opens By-election Campaign in Carleton

Carp, Ont., Nov. 22 — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative Leader, has opened his by-election campaign with a warning to Canadians against the dangers of Communism and Socialism.

Mr. Drew spoke Saturday after he was unanimously nominated as Progressive Conservative candidate in the Dec. 20 federal by-election for the Ontario constituency of Carleton. He said the C.C.F. party and the Communist parties both believe in the doctrines of Karl Marx and added that a vote for the Socialist candidate would be welcomed by agents of Moscow.

When his election to the national leadership necessitated his election to the Commons, Carleton county was chosen as the most suitable riding because it would allow him to keep in touch with the constituency while carrying out his other duties.

Prime Minister St. Laurent had "extended every courtesy" when Mr. Drew indicated his desire to contest a by-election in Carleton. The Liberal and Social Credit parties decided not to oppose the new opposition leader.

"The Nationalist Socialist party with Communist support, has seen fit to oppose me at this time, as is their right," said Mr. Drew. "Their action, however, defines the present issue in Carleton county in the clearest possible terms . . .

Leading Official

"The question is whether the chosen leader of one of the great traditional parties is to enter the House of Commons to fulfill his duties, or whether on the other hand Carleton is to be represented in the House of Commons by a National Socialist who believes in the supreme authority of the state and the complete socialization of all our activities in every field."

WARN CANADIANS — Page 4

C.I.O. to Start Drive for Wage Raises in 1949

Portland, Ore., Nov. 22 (AP) —A C.I.O. drive for a fourth round of post-war wage raises in 1949 started rumbling here Friday.

Walter Reuther, president of the United Automobile workers, told a group of Portland business men the U.A.W. is "talking already about a fourth-round increase".

"If you haven't heard it," he said, "you'll hear about it next week."

He was talking about the C.I.O. convention which starts Monday. His words seemed to indicate the whole C.I.O., not just the U.A.W., may go on record for higher wages.

Reuther said prices have risen so much in the United States that it would take a raise of 15 cents an hour to give workers the same purchasing power they had in June, 1946, and a raise of 43 cents an hour to put them back where they were in 1944.

He gave clear notice that he still believes—as he did during the big General Motors strike of 1945-46—that wages can be raised without raising prices.

"We are going to keep on making that fight," he said.

SAYS TREND IS RADICAL

Montreal, Nov. 22 (CP)— The St. Jean Baptiste Society in a four-page resolution at its annual convention here Saturday protested a trend to Anglicize Ottawa University by giving all lectures to new incoming classes only in the English language.

The Society claims this new language orientation is a radical change of policy that will convert the university from a "bastion of French into a citadel of Anglicization."

Communists Can't Believe in God Congressional Committee Declares

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)— A United States Congressional Committee, in a report released today, says: "You cannot be a Communist and believe in God."

That, the reports adds, is "the long and the short of it."

The House of Representatives UN-American Activities Committee prepared the report. In a summation entitled "100 things you should know about Communism and religion," it said:

"The aim and object of Communism is always the same—complete control over the human mind and body, asleep and awake, in sickness and in health, from birth to death. That is why Communism marks religion enemy No. 1....

"Communism cannot dominate family life, for example, until it has first fought its way past the influence of religion upon the family.

"Communism cannot dominate unless it has the power to remake the life of the people. It cannot ignore religion and do that."

The committee's report was in the form of 100 questions it asked and then answered.

Here are a few of the new questions and answers supplied by the committee:

Q. If Communism should come to the United States, could I belong to a church?

A. You would have to choose at once between church and communism. If you should the church, then prepare for persecution.

Q. Would the communists destroy the bible?

A. Every copy they could find. And they would jail anybody trying to print new copies.

Q. Could my child be baptized or christened in the church?

A. At the risk of prison for parent and pastor.

Q. Would my child go to Sunday School?

A. Not only would Sunday School be illegal, but also your child would be taught to report you to the police for trying to send him.

Q. How would my child learn his religion, then?

A. Only through what you might tell him at home, to offset the positive atheism he would learn all week at the government school.

THREE-DAY STORM TAKES EIGHT LIVES ON GREAT PLAINS

Drifts 15 Feet Deep In Kansas and Nebraska

Kansas City, Kas., Nov. 22 — (AP) — The great plains region today counted its dead from a three-day snowstorm at eight.

The storm, which whipped across a strip of the great plains from Eastern Colorado to Minnesota, blew itself out Saturday but clearing of snow-clogged roads and towns still were continuing in some areas.

Five of the deaths occurred in Nebraska and three in Kansas.

Hundreds of motorists were marooned and trains and buses were stalled. Electric power and communications were disrupted. Some schools closed.

Sunday snowplows uncovered the body of Mrs. Hal Laughlin, 30, of Jetmore, Kas., about a mile from where her automobile had stalled. She had been sought since Thursday. Her car stalled near Dodge City in Western Kansas.

The body of Lester M. Carson, 38, McCook, Neb., also was found Sunday in his snow-covered car eight miles west of Oberlin in Northwest Kansas. Another death reported Sunday night was that of John H. Haun, 48, a truck operator who died of exhaustion from shovelling snow in O'Neill, Neb.

The heavy snow stalled a number of passenger trains. Snowplows, bucking through drifts as high as 15 feet, had cleared all the mainline tracks by today. Some of the trains were tied up for three days, with passengers being cared for in nearby towns.

Winds up to 75 miles an nour accompanied the snow, accounting for the huge drifts. The sheep loss is Western Kansas and Eastern Colorado was high.

Shortage Said Not Peculiar To Ontario

Kirkland Lake, Nov. 20 (CP) —The shortage of Hydro Electric power is not a condition peculiar to the Province of Ontario, restrictions here are much lighter than in other parts of Canada, and in certain areas of the United States, Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission told a joint meeting of the Hydro Club and the Junior Board of Trade here Friday night.

The Hydro chairman revealed that Rouyn and Noranda in the Province of Quebec have been cut 10 per cent; Sherbrooke, 20 per cent; New York State, 15 per cent on load and five on voltage; and Duluth, 20 per cent.

Speaking of plans for the future, Mr. Saunders said, "It is the hope of the Hydro Commission to link Southern Ontario to the northern section with a network which may serve the north with power over the weekends, since northern industries operate on a seven-day week. Piping Southern Ontario power over the weekends into the north would be a simple matter since most of the industry in the south lies idle between Saturday and Monday."

Governor-General Opens New Legion Clubhouse at Picton

Picton, Nov. 22 (Special)— Beneath overcast skies and a brief fall of rain drops, the headquarters of Post 78 Canadian Legion were officially opened Saturday afternoon by His Excellency, Field Marshal, the Right Honorable, the Viscount Alexander of Tunis, K. G., Governor-General of Canada. A red letter day in the history of town and county, the ceremony was marked by impressive simplicity, and at the reception with an informality that saw guests freely chatting with the distinguished guest who said: "I am just an old soldier despite my office."

Expression of the assembly was voiced in the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and cheers after the gift of an engraved silver cigarette box had been presented by Mayor L. Nethery.

Flying from Toronto to Trenton Air Station, the Governor-General was accompanied by his aide-de-camp, Flight Lieut. H. Keane, and by Air Vice-Marshal Middleton, A.O.C., Central Command, R. C. A. F., Trenton, at whose station the Governor-General had held an investiture the previous day

At War Memorial

Arriving at the war memorial at 1.50 p.m., His Excellency met the President of Post 78, D. P. Pyke, who introduced him to the Legion's executive, Rev. E. V. C. Lewis, Chaplain; Vice-President Mayor L. Nethery; Secretary, Howard Seeley; Col. Gerald Allison, M.D., Past-President; Barton Reid, Sergeant-at-Arms; F. J: MacArthur, Treasurer, also E. S. Evans, President of the Ontario Command and Vice-President of the Dominion Command of the Legion and Frank Threadgold, District Commander.

Drawn up on the south side was the guard of honor, wearing blue berets, blue arm bands with Legion crest, and service ribbons on dark tunics. They were under command of Major James Inrig. As the Governor-General inspected them he stopped frequently to ask as to service and campaigns.

As the Governor General laid a poppy wreath on the memorial, A. A. Benvie played "Abide With Me" on the United Church carillon.

19-Gun Salute

As the Governor-General stepped from his car and during the inspection of the guard, from the hill came the boom of guns as a 19-gun salute was fired by the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (A.A.) under command of Col. R. J. Fisher.

Entering cars, the party, preceded by the band and guard of honor passed down the Main St., which was gaily decorated with flags and lined with several thousand people.

At the Legion grounds, as the Governor-General stood between the stone entrance posts the band struck up "God Save the King", the drums in rising crescendo to the end.

His Excellency then proceeded to inspect the Picton Division of St. John Ambulance Brigade, wearing black scarlet-lined capes, under L. D. S. Mrs. Nesbitt McKibbon. Head of the Order of St. John in Canada, His Excellency asked as to the strength of the local Division and its work. He then proceeded to inspect the Brownies, Girl Guides, Boy Scouts in uniform and then the war veterans. Here again he evidenced keen interest and especially queried those who wore decoration ribbons.

Standing on either side of the steps to the hall, Cpl. R. W. Christie and Constable R. V. Scott of the R.C.M.P., added a note of color to the dull November setting. Legion flags were on either side with a Union Jack overhead. Seated on the right were guests; on the left, the officers to be decorated, and their relatives.

From the steps opening ceremonies were held. Legion Padre, Rev. E. V. C. Lewis led the prayer of Remembrance - - -"Let us for a few moments think reverently and lovingly of our comrades who laid down their lives for King and country." The solemn notes of the 'Last Post' was followed by a hushed silence, broken only by the sound of 'Reveille.'

Investiture Held

Citations preceding the investiture of two RCAF officers were read by the aid-de-camp, with His Excellency pinning on the decorations "in the name of His Majesty the King" and adding a personal word of congratulations.

The citations read as follows:

"Flight Lieut. John William Cantelon. Award, Member of the Order of the British Empire — (OBE). For distinguished service and outstanding devotion to duty while serving with the RCAF overseas."

"Flt. Lieut. Donald Wallace Goodwin. Award, Distinguished Flying Cross and Bar. Since the invasion of Northern France, this

Plane Bearing Bobby Breen Being Sought

Hayward, Wis., Nov. 22 (AP) —Five aircraft took off amid snow flurries at Waukesha today to conduct an aerial search for the plane which disappeared Sunday while carrying Toronto-born Singer Bobby Breen to a remote hunting area.

Buck Webster, whose flying service owns the missing single-engined Stinson, led the flight off. He said the planes would refuel at Stevens Point, Wis., then fan out and search through the northewest angle which includes Sawyer County and Hayward, the town which was Breen's destination.

The searching mission is manned by volunteer pilots.

Just before leaving Waukesha, Webster said he believed the plane must have landed in Sunday afternoon's early darkness and that the two occupants remained with the ship. He added that a red aircraft reported by a deer hunter near Hayward at 3.30 p.m., Sunday could not have been the Breen ship because of the time element involved in the 300-mile flight.

William Sands, Sawyer County Sheriff, said today a posse sent out at midnight to investigate the report had returned without finding any trace of the plane.

Breen began his professional career in Toronto at the age of four when he appeared at a the[illegible] and night clubs. When he li[illegible] Toronto he was known as [illegible] Borsuk. His name later was changed to Jackie Borene and then to Bobby Breen.

After Breen became a screen actor in Hollywood the family moved there.

Lebanon Leader Attacks Pearson's View on Palestine

By ALAN HARVEY

Paris, Nov. 22 — (CP)—Riad Es-Solh, Prime Minister of Lebanon, today told reporters tartly that the latest Canadian statement on Palestine was "just about what we expected."

Es-Solh was commenting on the address by L. B. Pearson in the United Nations political committee in which the Dominion's external affairs minister said that the United Nations should recognize that a Jewish state exists.

Es-Solh, generally considered the man who cracks the whip among the Arab delegations, said Pearson's statement "with its assumption of a Jewish state, is in keeping with the efforts by Lester Pearson last year to bring that state into being."

He added that the Arab delegation was "directly opposed" to the Canadian statement.

"We don't expect to gain any victories here against the views of Canada, the United States, Britain and Russia," he added. "The gains must be made by us in the Middle East before we can expect to gain anything here."

From other Arab sources it was learned that they oppose the suggestions of conciliation permeating the Canadian statement— particularly when, as the Arabs allege, Jewish armies are acquiring new territory in Palestine by force of arms.

One source said the Arabs oppose conciliation proposals in the same spirit as the western powers refuse to negotiate the Berlin issue now under a duress blockade.

Israeli spokesmen did not comment immediately on the Pearson speech.

FOREIGN POLICY REVIEW WILL BE GIVEN TRUMAN

Marshall Arrives Home, Greeted by President

Washington, Nov. 22 — (AP) — State Secretary Marshall arrived today from Paris for a foreign policy review with President Truman. Truman greeted him at the airport.

Formal conferences between the president and Marshall were set to begin at 12:30 p.m.

Truman also had conferences scheduled with Treasury Secretary Forrestal, and W. Averell Harriman, roving ambassador for the European Co-operative administration.

When Marshall stepped from his plane, reporters besieged him with questions.

In comment on the United Nations meeting at Paris, Marshall told them, "I think a great deal of understanding has resulted from what has already happened."

Asked whether he was going back to the United Nations meeting, he said that he didn't know."

Before Truman is a request from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek for the United States, in effect, to take over the running of Chiang's war against the communists.

Lost Boy Drags Bicycle Miles Through Bush

North Bay, Nov. 22 —(CP)— "It was so cold that my teeth were chattering all the time—but at least they kept me company," quipped Edgar LaLande when he arrived home in North Bay this morning after a night spent lost in the bush.

Tired and rain-soaked, but otherwise unharmed, the 15-year-old schoolboy rode into North Bay this morning shortly before 10 o'clock on the bicycle he had dragged with him several miles through the bush which skirts Trout Lake.

Boy Scout Edgar set off along the Trans-Canada Highway on his bicycle early Sunday afternoon, after a scheduled Scout hike had been cancelled. He turned off the highway by Bayview Lodge intent upon finding a short cut round the head of Trout Lake to the Temiskaming Road. He became lost, spent the night in the bush, but made his way out this morning.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Nov. 22 (CP)— Synopsis: Dull skies with occasional light rain in southern sections and an occasional light snowflurry in northern sections summarizes the forecasts for today in Ontario. This weathen is the result of a weak but slowly moving disturbance in Michigan, that is really the remnants of the intense storm of last Friday and Saturday. However tomorrow should see the last of this disturbance, and while skies are expected to remain overcast, no precipitation is expected. An outbreak of Polar air is forming up over northewestern Canada and should begin its southward push today.

Bikini Scientist Gives Grim Glimpse Of What World Faces in A-Bomb War

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Some of the secrets of Bikini—deadly radioactivity on the ship's decks, in their rigging, in the water, in the rocks, on the sand, in the air and even tramped about by men's boots — are told by Dr. David Bradley, one of the scientists.

Dr. Bradley was a Manhattan district atomic bomb worker, and at the Bikini test explosions in 1946 he was one of the radioactive safety men. His job was to fly or walk into dangerous places with a geiger counter to see how many rays were filling the air.

"No place to hide," the title of his book published today, is his idea of what the whole world may face if it fights atomic bomb wars.

One of the secrets is that the United States Navy found a way to decontaminate ships' decks of the deadly radioactivity that during the first five days after the underwater bomb fatally injured every animal that had been left on board.

Sand-blasting removed the rays —provided the blast got all the paint. The blasting was done by heavily-clothes men wearing oxygen masks to protect them from breathing the dust.

Where wooden decks were radioactive the navy learned that an ordinary carpenter's plane, cutting off a little less than a quarter of an inch of wood, also removed all the rays.

The navy learned, too, that all kinds of washing serves only to drive the deadly atoms deeper into wood.

Dr. Bradley predicted that plastic paint, that can be stripped off the ship and thrown overboard in sheets, might be a protection.

Since he made this prediction, such paint has been used in laboratories of the United States Atomic Energy Commission, and is stripped off when it gets contaminated from radioactive experiments.

He says the queerest stuff turns up radioactive: A ship's brass bell, chemicals from a first-aid locker, a bar of soap.

A radioactive cloud was followed 200 miles from Bikini. Rocks at the Atoll were radioactive from atoms sticking to their surface, although waves rolled over them at high tide.

2 Killed Instantly Near Bancroft In Car, Truck Crash

Accident Happens Two Miles South of Northern Village

Bancroft — Calvin Brethour, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brethour, Bancroft, and Lawrence Ray, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ray also of Bancroft, were instantly killed about nine o'clock on Saturday night, two miles south of the village, when their car, driven by Brethour, was in collision with a truck driven by Jack Murphy and accompanied by his brother, Michael Murphy of Murphy's Corners. Occupants of the Brethour car, Miss Aileen O'Coyne and Russell Eaton of Tweed and 'Bud' Sears of Baptiste were all more or less seriously injured, Miss O'Coyne being taken to Toronto General Hospital early Sunday morning, where she will be treated for critical head injuries.

"Bud" Sears sustained a jaw fracture, broken ankles and a severely cut nose and is confined to Bancroft Red Cross Hospital, while Russell Eaton, who suffered from concussion in the collision was treated at the hospital and was discharged to proceed to his home on Sunday. The driver of the truck, Jack Murphy, was shaken up but only required minor treatment at the hospital, while his brother was uninjured in the accident. The car containing the five people was proceeding to Bancroft from Belleville where Miss O'Coyne and Mr. Eaton were to have spent the weekend at the Brethour home, whhile Ray and Sears were proceeding to their own homes to spend the weekend with their families.

Accident Investigated

The accident was investigated by Provincial Constables G. Harding and Douglas Ketcheson with County Constable Ray Robinson, all of Bancroft but Corporal Sam Ervine of the Belleville headquarters was sent north late Saturday night as chief investigating officer. An inquest was ordered by Dr. O. W. Anderson and after preliminary evidence was taken, the bodies were released for burial and the hearing adjourned until December 1st. No charges have been laid according to the police.

Three Riding in Front Seat

Brethour, Sears and Ray were riding in the front seat of the car with Sears in the middle seat and Miss O'Coyne and Eaton were occupants of the back seat. The truck containing the two Murphy boys was proceeding south on its way to Murphy's Corners. It is understood that the crash was almost head-on just after the truck had nosed over a slight knoll and it was upset in the ditch with the front wheels and springs torn off. The side of the car was completely sheared off and the driver thrown about 20 feet clear of the vehicle. Ray, sitting on the outside seat died before being removed from the vehicle.

It was stated by those who examined the car after the accident, that it looked as if a train had hit it. The vehicle was a complete wreck and had only been purchased by Brethour about two weeks previously. The injured were treated at the scene by Dr. S. S. Lumb of Bancroft and also at the hospital where they were taken after the crash. It was one of the worst accidents that has occurred on this northern highway in some years.

ISRAEL CANNOT HAVE AREA GIVEN AND PART TAKEN

Pearson Tells U. N. That Would Give Jews Most of Palestine

Paris, Nov. 22 (CP)— Lester B. Pearson of Canada told the United Nations today that Israel cannot have both the area in Palestine given to her by partition and that gained by force of arms.

Pearson, External Affairs Minister, said before the U.N. General Assembly's No. 1 political committee that Israel's "armies seem to be in a position where they could, if they chose, establish themselves in most of Palestine."

"If they did do so," he added "they would be openly defying the wishes of the international community." He referred to Jewish claims to the Negev Desert and to Western Galilee, which the Jews took from the Arabs by force.

The senior Canadian delegate spoke as the committee resumed its discussion of the recommendations drafted by Count Folke Bernadotte, the U.N. Palestine mediator before he was assassinated last September.

The Bernadotte plan would give the Arabs the Negev Desert in southern Palestine, which the U.N. partition plan assigned to the Jews. It also recommended that Western Galilee be given to the Jews.

Supported Report

In a preliminary statement on the Bernadotte plan last Saturday, the United States supported the slain Count's report as a basis for discussion, but said no territory should be taken from Israel without Jewish consent.

Soviet delegate Semen K. Tsarapkin said the Bernadotte plan would cause "increasing animosity between Jews and Arabs" and also would cause contention "even among the Arab States themselves," because it proposed that the Arab part of Palestine be given to Trans-Jordan.

"Interference of the United States and Britain in Palestine led to this impasse." He added that the Russian delegation wants the U.N. partition plan of Last Nov. 29 put into effect now.

Philip C. Jessup, United States delegate said he may speak in a day or two—apparently going into details on the American position after State Secretary Marshall completes his talks with President Truman.

When Conversing With Alexander One Must Have Working Knowledge Of Canadian Game of Football

If you ever get the opportunity to chat informally with Canada's Governor-General, Viscount Alexander of Tunis, it's just as well to have a working knowledge of Canadian football.

So discovered Miss Elizabeth A. Stone, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Stone, 161 George Street, a student at the University of Toronto.

Miss Stone accompanied Bob McCormick of this city to Picton on Saturday where he covered the opening of the new Canadian Legion Hall for a Toronto newspaper. The Governor-General officiated at the ceremonies.

During the post-ceremony reception, Miss Stone who turned reporter for the day busily jotted down notes. Mr. McCormick's photographic bulbs flashed at intermittent periods. Occasionally, the Governor-General glanced at the couple.

Deciding to leave, McCormick and Miss Stone pushed their way through the reception crowd and had reached the door when an arm halted Miss Stone.

It was one of the governor's aides-de-camp who politely informed Miss Stone, "His Excellency would like to see you."

A Bit Frightened

A bit frightened perhaps, with a fear that pictures, etc., might be confiscated, McCormick and Miss Stone crossed the crowded room to the Governor-General.

And there Miss Stone got the thrill of a lifetime. His Excellency asked a number of personal questions and learning that Miss Stone was a Varsity student immediately "went football." He had, he said, "seen McGill lose to Varsity by a score of 'forty-one to love' and he dwelt some time on the fine passing of the Varsity backfield."

He was surprised, he smiled, at Miss Stone, not being at the important Western-Varsity game being played that afternoon, and laughed heartily when informed that no tickets were available.

If you ask Miss Stone's opinion, you will discover that you can see a football game anytime, but the thrill of conversing informally with the Governor-General of Canada comes but rarely in the lifetime of a college undergraduate.

Education Board to Hold Special Meeting to Consider Plans for West Hill School

Members of the Belleville Board of Education will call a special meeting for Wednesday evening to select one of three alternate plans for the proposed new five room school building planned for the West Hill district.

Preliminary plans for the new school building were displayed at Friday evening's meeting of the board by C. Drever, representing Messrs. Drever and Smith, Kingston architects.

Total expenditures for the operation of the city playgrounds in the East and West ends of the city during the past summer were $1,792.55, board members were informed. An additional amount of $182.25 for expenses incurred for supplies was directed to be forwarded to the Y.M.C.A.

Captain Graves and members of the teaching staff concerned with cadet instruction at the Collegiate will be invited to attend the next regular meeting of the Board of Education with respect to extension of the cadet course to include automotive and signal training. Permission was granted for the cadet officer to address the students on patriotism and loyalty.

Request Not Approved

The request of the King George Home and School Association for a heavy duty electric range, cutlery, dishes and tables was not approved, the board expressing regret that it has no authority to purchase equipment for community usage.

Congratulation was extended to Principal W. G. Anderson, Principal A. C. Wilkin and Messrs. M. Fowler and F. Garrett, on new cloak racks made by the boys of the handicraft class in the school shop. The board also congratulated Principal Currie and staff and students of the Collegiate for their recent presentation of the play The Admirable Crichton.

Congratulation was also extended to Principal A. C. Wilkin and Mrs. J. A. Layton, president of the new Home and School Association formed for the Queen Victoria School district on the splendid meeting held last Thursday.

Dental Officer Attends

Dr. F. A. Kohli of the Dental Division of the Ontario Department of Health, along with several of the local dentists, attended the committee meeting of the public school management committee with Dr. M. J. Clarke, school dentist, briefly explaining the program now in operation in the Belleville public schools.

Later Dr. Kohli described several programs in operation in other Ontario schools.

Attention of the board members to the condition of the terrace in front of the Collegiate was brought by Principal Currie who noted that this was practically the only lawn on the entire school grounds. This terrace had taken a terrific beating from the general public after school hours as well as from the students.

The request of the principal for a suitable fence to be erected was referred to the property committee with power to act. The school principal also suggested that plans be considered for the extension of the Collegiate cafeteria as this was now greatly overcrowded. The board took no action on this request.

High Attendance

Total enrolment at the public schools for the month of September was given as 1,865 with 34 of the 50 classes reporting attendance efficiency of over 95 per cent. All schools but Queen Mary reported over 95 per cent attendance.

The school nurse's report submitted by Mrs. J. C. Watt, public health nurse, noted that Dr. G. S. Cronk, M.O.H., had visited the four public schools during October with 447 children being given a combined serum to immunize against diphtheria and whooping cough.

The list of children at King George School to have dental work done at school was prepared for Dr. Clarke, the school dentist. An improvement in the number of Kindergarten pupils having dental defects was reported by the school nurse. This year 87 such pupils had no defects, as compared with 37 last year. The improvement was stated to be partly due to a pre-school conference with mothers. A pre-school dental check-up was urged.

Leonard Dandeno Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

Leonard Gregory Dandeno, Regional Manager of the Central Ontario Region for the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, and resident at 258 Bridge Street, East, died suddenly from a heart attack in his office shortly before eleven o'clock on Saturday morning. He was about the city in his usual good health earlier in the morning and had only entered his office a short time, when he was fatally stricken.

In the death of Len Dandeno, Belleville has lost a citizen, whom it had taken as its own since he arrived here to take over the duties of the late G. B. Smith, as superintendent of Hydro some three-and-one-half years ago. Mr. Dandeno entered into the community life of this city with a zest and took an active interest in the Chamber of Commerce, the Community Concert Association and the Kiwanis Club. No latter than last Thursday night he attended a meeting at Kiwanis Centre for the purpose of discussing the project of a municipal recreational director for this city.

LEONARD G. DANDENO

Regional manager of the Central Ontario District of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario who died suddenly in his office on Saturday morning.

Not only was he interested in community work, but also he was keenly interested in sport, which stemmed from his association with athletics from his university days. In his younger days he was a track and hockey star of note and also played field lacrosse. Not only did he play the game as an amateur but he also played as a professional and was a member of some of the best lacrosse teams in Canada in the early 20's.

Born in Kitchener

The late Mr. Dandeno was born in Kitchener, 59 years ago, being the son of the late John Dandeno and Wilhelmina Waldman. His early education was obtained in Galt primary school and his secondary education in Galt Collegiate, where he graduated with high honors. He entered University of Toronto and graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree in 1916 and went directly to the Hydro Electric Power Commission. He served with the operating department until 1923 and in that year he was appointed as superintendent of the Thunder Bay system and in which capacity he served for 22 years.

On the death of G. B. Smith, superintendent of Hydro in this district in 1944, Mr. Dandeno was appointed to the post in March of 1945 and has been a continued resident of Belleville since that time. In 1947 under the re-organization of the H.E.P.C. the late Mr. Dandeno was named Regional Manager of the Central Ontario Division. During his residence in this city he was associated with St. Michael's parish being a faithful and devout member of that congregation. He was also a member of the Knights of Columbus and served his parish as a member of the Separate School Board. He became a member of the Kiwanis Club shortly after his arrival in the city and served on the board of directors and gave freely of his time and talent in the furtherance of welfare work associated with the club. He was also a director of the Community Concert Association and was vitally interested in good music for the masses.

He was also a member of the Quarter Century Club of H. E. P. C. and the Registered Professional Engineers.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Victorine Rowney, one son, Paul Leonard of the H.E.P.C. in Toronto, three daughters, Margaret Mary at home, Mildred Helene at the University of Toronto and Elizabeth, a student at Loretto Abbey, Toronto, also one brother, Austin of Niagara Falls, New York and four sisters, Mrs. Thomas (Ina) Doyle and Mrs. James (Annatt) Butler, Hespeler, Ont., Mrs. Reginald (Norma) Piggott of Hamilton and Sister Euphrosque of St. Joseph's in Guelph.

Resting at the Corrigan and O'Brien Funeral Home, West Moira Street, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

GOVERNOR

officer has been responsible for the destruction of a considerable number of mechanical vehicles, 35 of which he put out of action in one day. In air fighting he shot down two enemy aircraft. His fine leadership and keenness have set an inspiring example to other members of his squadron."

Welcome by President

Post 78 President D. P. Pyke then delivered an address of welcome. He said in part: "The Picton branch of the Legion has, since 1920 until recently carried on its work in premises totally inadequate and the fact that it carried on so well is due to the loyal service rendered by the older members, many of whom are on parade today, and we will never forget the splendid assistance given by the Ladies Auxiliary.

"In March, we acquired this beautiful premises through the generosity of the taxpayers of Prince Edward County, and in no small part to our own efforts. Today we are happy and proud that our hope that the Governor-General might open this hall is about to be realized. By your Excellency's presence here, you have paid a very high honor to all of us and I wish to extend to you a very warm welcome from the members of the Picton Branch and from the good people of Prince Edward. Your Excellency's gracious action in coming here today will long be remembered. We in the Legion and in Prince Edward hold you in high esteem both as a soldier and a man. We are proud that the local unit of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment fought with valor and distinction under your command in the Italian campaign."

Meeting Old Comrades

"Since I have been Governor-General of Canada, just over two and one half years, one of my special privileges (I count them as such) has been to open Legion halls and to unveil war memorials, and do what I can in my way of being of service to the Canadian Legion," said His Excellency Viscount Alexander. "These services which I perform are indeed small reward for the great services such as their members performed for King and Country, many of whom served under my command. You can then well imagine what a great pleasure it is for me, as I go around Canada, to meet old comrades, so many of whom fought with me as a team. They played a large role in victory. To them we owe everything.

"I am very glad to open this fine old building, erected nearly one hundred years ago, with its historical associations and background of traditions, first as the Ross and later as the McMullen homestead. It seems suitable that such a home with man-made history should perpetauate even more valorous history. We can rest assured that this impressive building will return to life in the social activities in Picton. I extend every sncere wish for many happy hours of relaxation and comradeship in this hall."

Three cheers and a tiger, led by Frank Starr, brought a "thank you very much" reply from the Governor-General.

His Excellency officially declared the hall open as he cut the ribbons suspended across the door. The vice-regal party and committee then proceeded on a tour of inspection of the hall. Guests entered the Ladies' Auxiliary room to await presentation.

Reception Held

Guests lined up in the spacious hallway to await presentation. Cards were handed to Sheriff H. J. Colliver at the entrance to the lounge and names were announced by the Aide de Camp. Each guest shook hands with His Excellency. Formality came to an end as tea was served from a long table centred with yellow and white 'mums. Similar flowers were about the lounge and in the hallway where the guest book was signed. Members of the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary served. His Excellency chatted informally with many present and especially with Fl. Lieuts. Canteion and Goodwin of whose exploits he was interested to hear. He graciously consented to sign autographs and many secured this treasured souvenir.

On behalf of the Legion, Mayor L. Nethery presented his Excellency with a beautifully engraved silver sigarette case, a picture of the hall being engraved on the top. "I shall ever treasure this gift because it comes from Picton," he said and again referring to visits made across Canada, and meeting old comrades, commented that the Picton hall was the finest he had visited. He also accepted Picton Post Legion Crest.

Then the guests joined in singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and cheers, which informality seemed to greatly affect His Excellency who had won all by his naturalness and friendliness.

At four o'clock the reception came to an end and His Excellency departed by car for Trenton for return to Toronto.

Arrangements carried out by the local committee earned high praise, everything running smoothly and to the minute.

RE: CITIZENS' DAIRY

Belleville, Nov. 22, 1948

TO MY CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS:

After many difficult months I have been obliged to make an assignment. The mounting costs of doing business, the constant change of help, of which many were not dependable, and my own poor health, have made the business financially unprofitable to the extent I can no longer finance it.

The Roblin Dairy have offered to service my customers and I trust their product and service will be acceptable to you.

I wish to thank all Customers for their business that I have been favored with during the past thirty years.

Sincerely,
HOWARD J. CLARKE

Weekend Traffic Accidents Take Dozen Lives

(By The Canadian Press)

Philip John Nash, 24, of Fredricton, has been charged with murder in the gunshot death of Gerald Gaudet, 22, whose body was found on a roadway near the New Brunswick capital.

Gaudet's was one of 18 violent deaths reported in Eastern Canada during the weekend.

A Canadian Press compilation showed 11 deaths in highway accidents, including a double fatality near Bancroft, two shootings two persons killed at work, one fatally injured in a fall, one drowned, and one burned to death

The other shooting was at Granby, Que., with a 14-year-old boy as the victim. Police said they were satisfied the boy, whose name they withheld, shot himself. They said they found a note in the boy's handwriting saying he was tired of going to school.

William Pickering of Caledonia N.S., died Sunday night after severing an artery in his arm in a fall against a door. Pickering bled to death.

A tractor which toppled off a ramp at Little Long Lac, in the Port Arthur district, crushed Douglas C. Robinson, 25 to death. Robinson formerly lived in Preston.

Jack Sebbens, 22, of Cedar Springs was killed at Wallaceburg by railway timbers which toppled from a flat car. Three companions leaped to safety.

Victims of other Ontario traffic accidents were: Mrs. Pearl Warner, 57, and Andrew Gogal, 25, killed in separate Toronto mishaps; Murray Repp, 18-year-old taxi driver whose cab was struck by a train near his Oakville home Gerald Robinson, seven, knocked down by a car in Essex; John Mirynech, 65, struck down in a St. Catharines street mishap.

A car crash on a curve near Sussex N.B., fatally injured Mrs. G. Budd Hallett, 63 of Presque Isle, Maine. Also in New Brunswick, Eugene Leblanc, 38, met death when his car collided with a truck near Moncton.

In still another New Brunswick accident, Ferdinand Leblanc 74, lost his way in darkness, stumbled into the Cocagne River near Cocagne, N.B., and was drowned.

Hector Durocher, 68, died in Montreal Sunday of injuries suffered Friday when struck by a car.

At L'Abord a Plouffe, near Montreal, Jean Claude Valiquette, 23, was fatally injured in an automobile accident.

Packages being moved aboard the steamship Macoris fatally crushed William Hosie, 22, a Maltese merchant seaman.

William MacKay, 82-year-old former justice of the peace was burned to death Sunday night when the fire swept through the two-storey brick dwelling in which he lived at Renfrew.

Rumblings of New Fighting Comes Out Of Suchow Front

Nanking, Nov. 22 (AP)—Rumblings of new fighting came out of the Suchow front today.

Evidence of a renewed Communist drive gave weight to the theory that government forces had blunted but by no means broken the offensive power of the Chinese Communist armies in the battle for the approaches to Nanking.

The Communists attacked in the area where the government military spokesman just four days ago proclaimed a major victory for Chian Kai-Shek's troops.

Concern in the highest circles over the military situation showed itself in a broadcast speech by Madame Chian Kai-Shek from Nanking. Calling for "immediate and definite" United States aid, the Generalissimo's wife declared "If China falls, all of Asia goes."

The Communist radio warned the United States in so many words to keep out of China's Civil War. It said the Communists consider foreign aid to the Chiang Kai-Shek regime "an act of hostility". The broadcast was heard in San Francisco by The Associated Press.

There was no definite word that a big new battle for Suchow was under way already.

But reliable source received word the Communists had retaken Nienchuang, 33 miles east of Suchow, which in turn is only 180 miles northwest of Nanking. Confirmation was lacking. However, the defence ministry acknowledged the Communists had been attacking Nienchaung since Friday night.

Of more immediate danger to Nanking is the area around Pengpu, midway between Suchow and the capital city. Pro-government dispatches said the Communists were regrouping there for a new full-scale attack.

ASK WAGE INCREASE IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Nov. 22 (AP)— 300 doctors, nurses and officials of ester Chinese Hospital today demanded a 35-per cent wage increase. They threatened to give free injections and medicine if they didn't get it soon.

Diagnose Dread Social Disease In 2 or 3 Hours

Budapest, Nov. 22 (Reuters)—Dr. Ferenc Mandula, a Hungarian doctor of the Public Health Institute, claims to have discovered a new method by which syphilis can be diagnosed accurately within two or three hours.

Dr. Mandula says only two to three drops of blood need be taken from the fingertip of a patient for an examination.

This blood is separated on a special plate.

A drop of lymph is then mixed on transparent plate with a drop of 10-per-cent-strength natrium glycerine prosphorium and a drop of specially rpeared antigen solution.

This mixture is laced, in a metal frame, into a centrifugal machine which whirls it rapidly for four minutes.

After this period, the results can be observed with a magniflying glass.

The positive cases, Dr. Mandula says, a precipate is created if negative, the fluid remains without precipitate.

FOREIGN POLICY

A proposal that the United States either give China "all out" air or none was made Saturday night by special Senate consultant D. Worth who just returned from China.

All Efforts Fail

Aside from the China question, subjects which seemed likely to come up for discussion in the course of Marshall's foreign policy report to the president included:

1. Berlin—The hottest point in the cold war in Europe appears certain to remain that way for a long time since, Marshall must report, all efforts at mediation of the crisis to get the Russian blockade of Berlin lifted now have failed.

2. France vs. Germany—While it has not yet aroused public alarm, State Department officials have become deeply concerned over increasing French resistance to the Anglo-American plan to boost western German production under the European recovery program.

3. Military alliance — Marshall brings to Washington the latest information on exactly what the western Europeans want in the way of a military alliance with the United States. Weekend reports from London said they want a 52-year pact but will be content with indirect promises of United States support in place of an absolute pledge to go to war in event of attack.

4. Lend-lease—Work on this project for the military strengthening of western European countries is not so well advanced as on the more general alliance undertaking.

5. Global strategy against Communism—In Marshall's view, one of the most difficult and constant problems in foreign policy is to maintain a balance between demands abroad and resources at home.

SEARCH FOR WRECKAGE OF U. S. NAVY FIGHTER PLANE

Detroit, Nov. 22 — (CP) — Coast Guard divers searched Lake Erie near Pelee Island today for the wreckage of a navy fighter plane in which Lt. Robert J. Sonderman of River Rouge, Mich., is believed to have died Saturday.

Sonderman lost control of his plane during a tactical flight and plunged into the lake. Navy fliers stayed over the area until a boat from the Marblehead, O., coast guard station reached the scene, but an all-night search proved futile.

CREEPING FUNGUS COSTS MAN'S LEG

Toronto, Nov. 22 (CP) A creeping fungus disease has cost William Ayres, Oshawa war veteran, his left leg and a year's work. Now recovered, he has gone into partnership in a saw-filing business.

Downtown Area Of Toronto to Get Power Cutoffs

Toronto, Nov. 22 (CP) — The three-a-day power interruptions which all but the downtown area of Toronto has experienced since Ontario's hydro shortage became acute will spread to the entire city by midweek.

Mechanical arrangements for interrupting the flow of power to the business and commercial heart of Canada's second largest city are nearly complete. Special adjustments in city circuits were necessary.

Hydro officials promised Sunday night that no hospitals will be darkened by the new cutoffs. All large general hospitals have been guaranteed full power while smaller ones which do not handle emergency cases will receive a limited amount.

Mayor Hiram E. McCallum has expressed hope that the downtown power breaks may save enough power to enable some or all of the week-day evening cutoffs from 7 to 7.45 o'clock to be eliminated.

Meanwhile, Toronto Hydro Commissioners scheduled a meeting today with Robert Saunders, Ontario Hydro Chairman, to discuss a plan to obtain diesal or steam-powered generating equipment for Toronto. The equipment would cost several million dollars and it was learned that the city would ask the province to buy the machinery on condition that the city operated and maintained it.

Sarnia consumers had good news during the weekend. That Southwestern Ontario industrial city's daily quota was boosted to 96,000 kilowatt hours from 82,209.

As the shortage brought on by lack of water at generating plants and by increasing industrial demands continued, it was learned that the province breaks even concerning power exports to the United States. For the energy exported, the Provincial Power Commission receives in return additional water at Niagara Falls.

Fredericton Man Facing Charge Of Murder

Fredericton, Nov 22 (CP—John Phillip Nash, 24, of Fredericton, was charged Saturday with murdering Gerald Gaudet, 18, also of Fredericton.

Nash was remanded to Nov. 29 and an inquest will be held on Tuesday night.

Gaudet died of a gunshot wound in the back. His body was found Friday night on a highway in the Killarney Road District outside the Fredericton city limits.

A quarrel in the yard of the Gaudet residence was reported by police to have preceded the shooting. Gaudet's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Azade Gaudet occupy part of the house where Nash's father lives.

After the alleged altercation, shots were reported fired at the house, and the Gaudets were said to have left with the intention of notifying police. Young Gaudet was wounded while on the road. Police arrived, held Nash at the R.C.M.P. barracks overnight and placed him in the Fredericton police station early Saturday.

He had a two-inch cut on his right hand when arraigned and charged before Magistrate Walter Limerick, police said.

WILL CHOOSE CANDIDATE

Brockville, Nov. 22 (CP) —Hon. Colin Gibson, Secretary of State, is to speak at a Liberal convention at Athens Wednesday night when a candidate will be chosen to contest the federal riding of Leeds. The name of George T. Fulford, Brockville, a former M.L.A. and M.P. for Leeds, is mentioned in connection with the nomination.

W. Fred Reynolds, Mayor of Brockville for the past two years, announced today that he would be a candidate for re-election to that office Dec. 6.

Newspapers Ask Removal of Tax On Newsprint

Ottawa, Nov. 22 (CP)—Canadian daily newspapers today asked Finance Minister Abbott to remove the eight-per-cent sales tax on newsprint and thus put them on an even footing with magazines and comic books which do not pay the tax.

The Canadian Daily Newspapers Association brought a delegation of 40 representatives of publishers from coast to coast to put their case before the minister.

After a discussion lasting 1 1-2 hours, in the minister's office, the group's spokesman said the minister "received us in a very friendly fashion."

H. L. Garner, publisher of the Peterborough Examiner and President of the C.D.N.A., was chairman of the delegation.

The newsprint tax, the minister was told in a prepared brief, is a discrimination against daily newspapers in that it does not apply to: Canadian magazines, American magazines sold in Canada, comic books or pulp fiction magazines.

The newsprint tax does apply on every daily and weekly newspaper.

Domestic and imported magazines and pulp paper publications exempt from the tax compete with the newspapers for advertising revenue, the brief argued.

The sales tax was first imposed in 1921 but newspapers paid only half the full tax until 1931. At that time the government was facing deficits and the newspapers did not make any strong protests.

Now, with the government showing surpluses the same reasons do not exist, the brief said, and this is the third effort the publishers have made to get relief.

The tax costs the publishers about $2,000,000 a year. It is not levied in any other Commonwealth country nor in the United States.

The brief, signed by Ian H MacDonald, General Manager of the C.D.N.A., showed the extraordinary growth of American magazine circulation in Canada from 1931 to the present, and samples of Canadian advertisements for which they compete with the taxpaying daily newspapers.

Guardian Calls Eisenhower Book 'Honest, Sincere'

London, Nov. 22 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower's memoirs, attacked by one British newspaper as a blow to British-American friendship, today are defended by the Manchester Guardian as "honest, sincere."

Other British newspapers ignored the criticism of Lord Kensley's Sunday Times, which said Eisenhower's new book, "Crusade in Europe," is "surprising and painful reading for his admirers and for all those who wish well to British-American relations."

The Manchester Guardian says: "There will no doubt be controversy about many things in the book, as there must be about anything that looks at the war from another side and does not take British statesmen and soldiers at their own valuation.

"But even the greatest partisans of Churchill and Montgomery must grant Eisenhower's fair-mindedness and equable temper."

Striking Crew Members Agree To Return to Work

Southampton, England, Nov. 22 (AP)—Striking crew members of the Queen Elizabeth today agreed to go back to work after the Cunard White Star Line promised not to sail the liner to the United States until the longshoremen's strike there is settled.

The men promised to return to work at noon. The Line promised also not to sail to Halifax, the port to which some British ships were diverted last week.

The walkoff, which already has cost Cunard White Star about £40,000 ($120,000) in extra docking fees, wages, food and fuel was called in sympathy with the longshoremen's strike on the east coast in the United State. The Line also is paying the expenses of 1,500 passengers who are living aboard the ship.

Sailing of the Elizabeth's twin liner, Queen Mary, previously had been postponed by the Line.

The Queen Mary is in Southampton drydock and cannot be brought to the pier until her sister ship has been moved.

Departure of the Elizabeth for New York is nearly a week behind time already. Even if the New York strike were settled, she could not get away before tomorrow afternoon because of the tides.

Expects Canadian Oil to Displace Imports from U.S.

Montreal, Nov. 22 — (CP) — H. H. Hewetson, president of Imperial Oil Limited, told the Montreal Canadian Club today that his company forsees movement of oil from new fields in Alberta to the Pacific coast and perhaps into Manitoba and northwestern Ontario, displacing oil imported from the United States.

On the Pacific coast, Alberta oil would displace some crude oil imported from California. In Manitoba and northwestern Ontario it would displace some United States mid-continent crude oil and products.

Mr. Hewetson said the Leduc field already has substantially reduced the need for United States dollars to pay for petroleum. He said other displacement of American imports of oil will bring substantial advantages to our national economy.

"Full advantage of Alberta's oil discoveries" could not, however, be taken "until the steel situation permits the construction of more pipe lines," he added.

He said Imperial Oil was hopeful that "by the end of 1950 a pipe line would be in operation to Regina."

Youth Shot in Leg By Detective

Montreal, Nov. 22 (CP)— An 18-year-old youth was shot in the right leg by a detective Saturday night and his two companions arrested, police reported.

Police said John James Schmidt fled from detectives while the trio was being questioned regarding a safe cracking venture at the Charbonneau Biscuit Company, where $500 was stolen last week.

The two companions are Adelard and Roger Therrien, age 28 and 27 respectively.

Towards Height of Season

This considerate weather rather belies the weather fact that four weeks from this coming Saturday the Christian world will be enjoying the Christmas festivities. Mild conditions appear to make it impossible to realize that the year is so far advanced that Christmas is just in the offing.

Between now and then an immense amount of work of preparation will be performed for Christmas is celebrated with the maximum of joy year after year, as it is a festival about which there is no half-hearted feeling.

In the home and of course in the shop a much busier season nears. About Christmas there is always the greatest volume of enthusiasm for any season for it marks the high point of the year in happiness and rejoicing and it has a deep meaning for the people.

These coming weeks will be busy ones for they always have been and this year will not be any exception in the planning for the year's greatest festival.

Santa Claus is getting his name in the newspapers these days and that is a happy sign for childhood, that instinctively welcomes the great saint, who stands for hospitality and every form of happiness. His name will be on millions of children's lips, and his representatives will be seen in all communities.

The coming season will be observed with the traditional merriment and festivities which have marked it for many centuries. For the past two days there have been forecasts of flurries of snow in some parts but none about here. In some areas of the northern States there have been elusive traces of winter and wisps of snow. But soon as a contemporary says snowfall will bring the people together with a common thought in their minds, snow and what it is. It is the prelude to the Yuletide festival.

After the Cutoff

Everyone knows the sense of relief when suddenly the dark spot or the dimly lighted room becomes aglow with light as the power surges back through the line after a cut off during the shortage. Even those who knew the use of the oil lamp cannot understand how they were able to move about freely under the rays of a lamp lighted by coal oil, or how they were able as children to study in the old days. So great a transformation has been the result of the development of Hydro in the past generation.

But there are many who do not yet enjoy the lights of the Hydro with or without cutoffs because the development has not yet reached them. But it has been expanding rapidly and in due course it may practically supplant the lesser light of the oil lamp. For those who do not know what the cheapness of Hydro power means illumination in their settlements and that pleasure is coming of course as the Commission strives to serve all.

The user of Hydro understands what shortage means for his experience is a change from the white light which fills a room and leaves scarcely a shadow to the dim and shadowy rooms he now inhabits all because Hydro is not there during the dark periods.

When it comes on again all enjoy it more than ever.

But the oil lamp and the candle are serving well when enforced darkness comes on. Users can have the satisfaction of knowing that the dark spell will not always be our portion.

For Children's Happiness

Repairing old toys for the youngsters of today is the self-imposed task of a Windsor man, Alfred Jackson, who according to the Windsor Star loves his hobby for the pleasure it gives others. His task is to swell the joys of the children in the Christmas season.

His record has been a long one of service to the pleasure of children for an entire generation or thirty years. He knows the pleasure his labor gives and the apppreciation it stirs in the hearts and minds of those of whom he is thinking when he works at the job of mending.

Some Canadians maintain a regular schedule of shipments for their British relatives and friends.

How much the British people apppreciate this interest is not difficult to understand in expressions of kindness and consideration. These same people and others are this year sending Christmas parcels to the British Isles.

ABOUT REDUCING

"When it comes to taking off weight, men do better than women," says a nutritionist.

At keeping the fat from the body's interior
An expert declares that the man is superior.
Though the figures she reads on the scale may have shocked her,
Woman asks for advice, but won't follow her doctor.

When man finds his belt is beginning to tighten,
And the doctor suggests that his intake be lighten,
Though he likes apple pie
with ice cream to adorn
it,
With will power that's greater than woman's, he'll scorn
it.
When middle age flesh is beginning to fret us,
A woman will rabbit-like
nibble at lettuce,
But she is more apt, if a dishful
be handy,
To yield to temptation and fill up on candy.

On a diet the anguish of hunger to suffer,
It seems of the sexes the male is the tougher;
The braver, perhaps, as a moderate eater,
But woman, God bless her! is surely the sweeter.

STRENGTH for The Day

Dr. Earl L. Douglass

NOT THE BOMB BUT THE MOOD

The first representative assembly held in America was called to order in Jamestown, Virginia, on July 30, 1619. A portion of the minutes of that meeting (now inscribed on the walls of the parish church, Williamsburg), reads as follows:

"While Sir George Yardly, the Governor, being sette down in his accustomed place in the quire, those of the counsel of estate sate nexte him on both handes; but forasmuch as men's affairs doe little prosper where God's service is neglected, all the Burgesses tooke their places in the quire till a prayer was saide by Mr. Bucke, the minister, that it would please God to guide and sanctifie all our proceedings to His own glory and the good of this plantation."

The age in which we live is in many ways a glorious one. Scientific resourcefulness has assumed genius proportions. Yet there is a complacent secularism in our public affairs today which makes no provision for God as Ruler of the Nations. We have good reason to fear the atomic bomb since this is our mood, and in fact it is the mood not the bomb which is dangerous. The mood will never tear us to pieces, but it will rot us to pieces unless we mend our ways. For individuals and nations, it is the same — no God, no life.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

ONE INCREASING PURPOSE

Plan and purpose go hand in hand. We cannot get very far in life without them both. We must first have the plan; then comes the purpose — ever increasing until the particular goal is reached.

There are secret longings in us all. We don't have to tell people about them. Sooner or later people will see the light that they spread. Influence is a good definition of this word "light." When our light spreads it is the same as influence, which you can't see, but feel as existing.

This one increasing purpose can father a dozen or more objectives. But to attain its full spiritual gain none of those objectives can long be tied to any material or political end. The touch of Fortune is too fickle. That which you build within your own consciousness, however, is something that no turn of fortune can disturb.

I came across this sentence by Abraham Lincoln in my recent reading. He said: "It is difficult to make a man miserable while he feels worthy of himself and claims kindred to the great God who made him." One increasing purpose in the breast and mind of such a one could do nothing else than to produce both a happy and useful man.

One of the greatest and most inspiring of all studies is that of biography. The more we read of what other men and women have done with their lives, the more we are inspired to be of some definite use in the world. And in this reading it is so evident that the subject daily knitted into his or her entire career one increasing purpose.

The great lawyer pleading an important case never loses track of the facts in the case. He hangs to them. Like a string of beads, they are evidenced as he pleads. One purpose alone is uppermost —conviction or freedom, gain or loss.

No happening or person, or many happenings and persons, can defeat the purpose of one who has determined to carry it through. And that purpose does not have to be a material one. There is such a thing as a spiritual triumph, and there always will be.

Mackenzie's Column: Eire Bill Causes No Surprise To Those Who Know

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The bill now before the parliament of Eire, to sever the last remaining tie between that country and the Commonwealth, will cause no surprise to those who know the depth of the bitterness which the Southern Irish feel for England.

That is strong language. But if you had been a witness of the "bloody Easter week rebellion" of 1916 and had seen other phases of the strife in that tumultuous period then you would understand.

I ran into a striking illustration of this the last time I was in Dublin. I was out to take pictures of some of the old buildings of the capital, and wanted to include the house of parliament. That was difficult because a huge statue of Queen Victoria stood right in front of the structure and all but cut off the front view. I had finally taken a couple of pictures when a uniformed officer came up and said:

"We can't have a picture of the parliament building taken with the Queen in front of it."

"Well," I remarked, as I took another look at the famous Queen who had been dead half a century, "I knew the feeling here against England was bitter, but I didn't suppose it was this bad."

Last Link

The officer ducked his head, by way of humorous acknowledgment that my comment had registered, but he carried away the film which I had handed him.

Within a few minutes a government official telephoned me at my hotel and apologized for the incident. My film was returned.

The only tie remaining between England and Eire is an act which allows the King to accredit Eire's representatives in foreign countries and to sign international agreements. That isn't much of a bond, but Prime Minister John Costello's bill will cut even that, if passed by parliament.

The gain will be absolute sovereignty without any semblance of attachment to the British Crown.

Close Association

However, British Commonwealth leaders in Paris predict that when the Costello bill has become law Britain and Eire will start negotiating a treaty for a close military and economic alliance, though this possibility is denied in Dublin. However, representatives of Britain, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand have stated informally that they want to continue close economic and political associations with Eire.

WARN CANADIANS

The C.C.F. candidate in the by-election is Eugene Forsey, "one of the leading officials of the National Socialist party in Canada," said Mr. Drew and added that Mr. Forsey had stated on one occasion:

"'This generation seeketh after a sign, and there shall be no sign given, but the sign of the prophet Marx. Until Christians learn to understand and apply the lessons of Marxism, they cannot enter into the Kingdom of Heaven — nor, probably, can anyone else."

Mr. Drew said he is sure the electors of Carleton do not want as their representative a man who believes in the teachings of Karl Marx and has the openly-declared support of the Canadian Communist party.

Believe in Marx Doctrines

He wished to reiterate that he was not suggesting that Canadian Socialists wished to identify themselves with Communists, but they have that support.

"I am sure that the National Socialist Party of Canada, as a party has no more sympathy with the aggressive tactics of Russian imperialism than have those who support the Conservative, Liberal or Social Credit party.

"Communists and Socialists no believe, however, in the political doctrines of Karl Marx."

He said Mark Frank, secretary of the "Communist party" in Eastern Ontario, had stated that his party supports the Socialists not because it kiled them but because it "feared and hated George Drew."

Teresio Attacks Displaced Persons

Edmonton, Nov. 20 (CP) — William Teresio, President of the 11,000-member Association of Ukrainian Canadians and centre of an egg-throwing episode at Spedden, Alta., a week ago, said in an interview here Friday that most displaced persons admitted to Canada since the end of the Second World War "are still Nazis and Fascists."

Teresio denied being a Communist or injecting Communist opinions in the speeches he has made throughout Canada since his return from Europe eight months ago.

The Spedden audience, composed of displaced persons, started throwing eggs when they objected to parts of a speech made by Teresio and a companion. No one was injured.

SIXTEEN CLING

He transferred them to a former Royal Canadian navy minesweeper, the tug Lachine, which bucked up the stormy lake from Sarnia, covering 190 miles in 10 hours to answer the urgent call for help.

"It's just a miracle we're alive," said Mrs. H. D. Brimacomb of Penetanguishene, one of two cooks on the Ella M.

Huddled in Cabins

She said she expected the dredge to break up at any minute during the 60-hour ordeal. They huddled in two cabins on the upper deck after the dredge sank in 12 feet of water and heavy waves broke up the interior of the dredge.

The two vessels had left here Thursday for winter anchorage at Little Current on the north shore of the island. They took shelter in Rabbit Island during the storm and the Ella M went aground in the dark when Captain Angus Morrison decided to take the McQueen and her tow eight miles south to Fitzwilliam Island.

On the way south a four-inch tow-line snapped, fouling the McQueen's propellor and seizing the engines. The other tow-line pulled the McQueen to the rocks, smashing her rudder.

The cable was cut and when its anchor failed to hold the McQueen drifted before the storm until it piled into a reef outside the harbor here.

The 25 families of South Bay Mouth watched all Friday night from the shore, powerless to help the McQueen as heavy seas battered it against the rocks.

None Injured

None of the Ella M. was injured. But all were cold, wet, tired and hungry when they came ashore.

The galley of the Ella M. was smashed. Mrs. Brimacomb scrambled eggs for the crew in a fire lit in the dredge's bathtub.

Captain Morrison said it was the worst storm he had seen in nine years on the Great Lakes.

No estimate was available of the damage to the two vessels.

Aboard the Ella M. were Captain William Harper, Rochester, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. E. Bond of Little Current; Sam Castrilli, Toronto; E. A. Caddel, Providence Bay; Elmer Rowe, Little Current; John Morrison, Mansfield, and Jack and Donald Everets, Fisherville.

On the Patricia McQueen were Captain Morrison; chief engineer J. R. Ferguson, 62, Kingsville; second engineer Alex Beehan, 30; wheelsman Harold Mayville, 21, Amherstburg. Reginald Gelston, 17, South Bay Mouth, the McQueen's cook, was making his first trip as a member of the crew.

MORE JUNK THAN FOOD.

A mother who asks how she can build up her daughter's resistance against frequent attacks of bronchial congestion (she does not mention the daughter's age) says the doctors she has consulted do not tell her how to lessen the attacks. She has an idea that the trouble is constitutional and that if her daughter could take the proper vitamins to build up her constitution .. For one thing, she has not regular elimination, and like most children today she eats more junk than food. (Mrs. R. D. H.)

From the casual data the mother gives I am unable to surmise what the child's trouble may be. Is it, perhaps smouldering tuberculosis? The mother might well take the child to the place designed by the local health department or health officer for X-ray film of lungs — everybody's doing it now, just to be on the safe side.

Proceeding on the assumption that daughter is ten, twenty or thirty years old and that her health is not as good as it should be, it is likely that the "junk" she eats instead of food accounts for much or all of her trouble.

What Mrs. H. calls "junk" I call cheap food. That is anything made principally of (1) white flour and or (2) refined white sugar or syrup. For example, white bread, crackers, cake, candy, ice cream soda, chocolate malted, sundaes, sweetened carbonated beverages. These are all pretty nourishing stuff, full of calories (the calories coming mainly from the white flour starch and sugar in them,) but they tend to make you flabby, dull and dumpy. Refined carbo-hydrate (pure starch or sugar) supplies virtually nothing but calories but in order to make good use of carhohydrate in the body something else is essential —namely the vitamin B that grows with the starch or sugar.

If the young person is in the habit of eating "junk" instead of real food at lunch time it would be excellent plan for him or her to try living for one month without "junk." For lunch take at least a glassful (half pint), better a pint, of milk, and whole wheat bread, roll, biscuit or crackers — real whole wheat, not ordinary bread with a dab of whole wheat added.

Get a pound or two of plain wheat from farmer, mill, feed store, seed store, farmers' market or health food market. Carry some in pocket or purse and chew a cheekful when you want to chew. It works into a gum which is good chewing. Fine for the teeth and gums, an excellent source of much needed vitamins and minerals.

If there is a valid reason why a young person cannot take his or her quart of milk a day, then the young person will have to compromise on a lower level of health and vite — flunk out of Class A and fall back into Class B or Class C, where, heaven knows, most of the weaklings and morons spend their short lives anyway.

Any one who can't or will not consume at least a quart of milk a day should be sure to include at least cheese in the daily menu, any and every kind of cheese he or she likes.

Instead of sweet "dessert" the young person should supplement his or her milk or salad or both with some fresh fruit, whatever fruit is in season, available or palatable.

A genuine salad — made of green leaves, raw vegetables and/or fruits with or without bits of ham, chicken, fish, shellfish or cheese added to the dressing — makes an ideal complement for fresh milk in a formal luncheon.

Instead of taking sugar solution in the form of a carbonated beverage or nibbling on candy when you feel the need of a lift, keep on hand a supply of peanuts or other nuts and chew some slowly and thoroughly. That will give you not only calories but protein and fat and some of the vitamins and minerals you need but do not get from "junk."

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Quinine for Stage Fright.

To be presented in December for piano recital. Understand you recommend quinine as a stabilizer to prevent stage fright.—(T. L. R.)

Answer—Begin two weeks before the ordeal, whether it is stage fright or examination jitters, taking one grain of quinine sulfate three times a day, before or after meals, and continue this right up to the brink of the disaster. Or if only two-grain tablets, capsules or pills are available, take two grains with breakfast and two grains at bedtime daily.

Acid, Neutral and Alkaline Foods

Which foods are acid and which are alkaline?—(Mrs. R. M.)

Answer—It is of little importance, but lists are given in the red book What to Eat and Why.

Shannonville

Women's Guild Holds Successful Tea and Bazaar

Shannonville — Though it was a dull, windy day on Wednesday the weather did not hinder a large crowd from attending the bazaar and tea under the auspices of Women's Guild of the Holy Trinity Anglican Church, Shannonville. This annual event took place in the local Orange Hall. The regular afternoon "black-out" made the room appear all the more cosy with its tall candles and gasoline lanterns.

The tea table, situated at the front of the hall was most attractive with its centrepiece of yellow mums in a silver bowl, tall white tapers and silver tea services. Mrs. William Coles and Mrs. Jerome poured tea during the afternoon.

The Tea Room.

In charge of the small tea-tables were Mrs. Bruce Porritt, Mrs. William Conley, Mrs. Cecil McCarthy and Mrs. H. Topping. These ladies very capably supplied the needs of the many visitors who partook of the bountiful refreshments.

Those who were making tea and replenishing the plates with dainty sandwiches and delicious cake and tarts, not forgetting the various jellies, were: Mrs. Herb Hoiston, Mrs. Pickles, Mrs. Peter Marion, Mrs. Clarence Hill and Mrs. Alvin Mackenzie.

Each of the sales tables had centrepieces of flowers and tall candles, which added to the setting of the various articles for sale.

In charge of the home cooking tables were: Mrs. Wes. Stewart, Mrs. Lily Craig and Mrs. H. Topping. Practically every kind of cake, pie and tarts anyone could wish for were in evidence on this sales tables and the early shopper definitely was in luck as the marvellous display soon disappeared. Home-made bread and buns, jelly rolls, date loaf and even to jars of home-made jam, chili sauce and pickles were present on these tables. The sum of $38 was realized from these sales.

Mrs. Floyd Goodfellow looked after the candy sales tables very efficiently and had no trouble whatever in disposing of a very tempting assortment of candy and popcorn.

Ideal for Yule Shoppers.

The fancy work and handicraft tables were ideal spots for the Christmas shoppers. Presiding very capably over these two tables were Mrs. Willis Wilson, Mrs. E Caldwell, Mrs. A. Mark and Mrs. Harriett Topping. Some of the numerous articles for sale were all sizes and species of stuffed animals. Very attractive were the large Teddy Bears with their gingham aprons. A novel feature was the wall plaques comprised of china with cellophane edging. On display were tie racks, pin cushions, pot holders, bibs, lovely hand-knit socks, tea towels, pillow cases very handsomely embroidered and a lovely display of aprons of all shapes and colors. A novel table decoration was a bowl containing alcohol with moth balls floating around inside which definitely had observers guessing as to the composition.

Mrs. Milt Pringle was in charge of the rummage table and there was a varied choice of clothing very reasonably priced.

Miss Mary McFarlane and Miss Grace Cox were the conveners of the vegetable sales table and numerous sizes and varieties of vegetables were on display at this table. This was a wonderful opportunity for the visitors without gardens of their own to make their purchases for the winter months ahead.

Fish Pond Popular.

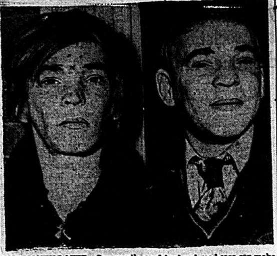
Miss Rosella Pringle had an exceedingly busy time looking after the fish-pond and seeing every fisherman got a big fish on his hook. Needless to say the fish were all caught before the afternoon was half over, and the fishermen were all quite pleased with "their catch" of the day.

Mrs. Sid Fitzgerald was in charge of selling tickets on a very attractive quilt in a red, white and blue design. Mrs. Russell Westcott was the lucky winner of this draw.

The wardens of the church, Mr. Joseph Hough and Mr. Arthur Long acted as the treasurers for the afternoon sales. Around $200 was realized as the proceeds for the day's activities.

In the evening a large crowd attended the dance held in the Orange Hall under the auspices of the Women's Guild. Music for the dancing was supplied by the Rhythm Ranch Riders of Belleville. Refreshments were served to bring to a close a very full day's activities. The women of the local Guild indeed did a marvellous amount of work in preparing food for both the afternoon and evening activities. Proceeds of the dance amounted to $87.

A number of out-of-town visitors were noted in the gathering, besides the number present from Shannonville vicinity.



ONE MONTH LATER—One month, good food and good care can make a great deal of difference in a person, these two photos taken one month apart show. On the right is Gordon Kelley, 23, of Toronto who was found half naked, starving and unkempt a month ago. He claimed he had been held prisoner and beaten. The photo on left is Kelley as he appeared in Toronto police court Friday. The young man was remanded another week for additional treatment at Toronto Psychiatric Hospital while authorities ponder further legal action in the case. (CP Photo)

26 WAYS TO FIGHT A COLD...

There are a number of ways in which colds may be combatted. Of prime importance is to build up your resistance to cold germs. There are a number of worthwhile vitamin preparations and tonics which serve as dietary supplements to help build your resistance. Your Doctor is best qualified to determine your deficiency and prescribe the preparations which can help you most.

When a cold does strike, you can combat it. If it is not possible to stay in bed, at least keep regular hours and retire early. Eat plenty of nourishing food. The system should be cleared of waste matter regularly, with laxatives when necessary. Acetyl-Salicylic acid tablets help to diminish fever and reduce pain. Fruit juices or antacid compounds help to prevent an acid reaction which, it is believed, prolongs the cold.

Drink plenty of water. Dress warmly and avoid exposure to dampness and drafts. In addition, there are a number of reliable remedies available which can bring you comfort. Nose drops will help clear nasal passages and the "stuffed-up" feeling of a head cold. There are beneficial cough remedies that alleviate the discomfort of a deep-seated cough. Many of these proven remedies are featured on this page, and are available at your local Rexall Drug Store.

This is Donna Reed who looks in this photograph precisely what she is... a local Los Angeles college girl who made good in a big way when she left the campus for moving picture studios at MGM.

The frock is glamor stuff for a pupil or a graduate into the movies, and made of cotton of excellent quality and styling.

The suspender skirt is a pingham plaid of wines and bottle green shades; the shirt with its bracelet length sleeves is of the wine shade in chambrak weave.

Stresses Need for Higher Standard Of Conduct Among Young People

The W.C.T.U. met in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday afternoon, with a good attendance, considering the heavy rainfall, Mrs. Shortt presided.

Mrs. Gorsline conducted the worship service taking as her theme "Jesus relationships with His Family".

Business followed and several items of interest to the Union were discussed.

A duet by Mrs. Doolittle and Miss Forman was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Farnsworth introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. McKay, ,the travelling secretary, who gave an inspiring message. She spoke of the warm welcome she received from the schools she had visited in 1947, and the eagerness of the children to see her pictures and hear her stories. She expressed her gratitude to all the teachers for their hearty co-operation in the furtherance of temperance instruction. Mrs. McKay visited all the public schools and the Separate School in the city, also the two-room school in Shannonville. This was her first visit there and she found both teachers and pupils deeply interested in her presentation of the temperance cause.

Mrs. McKay said Christian schools and universities are not as helpful as they might be in developing a higher standard of Christian conduct. Young people trained in a Christian home are often confused by the presentation of religion in some of the universities.

She cited one incident of a young girl who on returning to her home was so confused and heartbroken she exclaimed to her mother, "What am I going to do. You have taught me certain truths and at school the teaching seems contradictory. What am I to believe?"

"We need a deeper faith and more genuine Christianity", said the speaker. The scientific approach during the week and the Christian approach on Sunday should lead to a true interpretation of faith.

Mrs. McKay said Owen Sound is most outstanding in temperance work and education. They had five hundred people to their temperance meeting and temperance film on Sunday evening.

Too Casual Acceptance

Mrs. McKay told of a conversation she heard among a group of young people in the city bus station. Their casual acceptance of serving intoxicants at parties and the debauchery of some who had to be assisted to their homes after the party, led the speaker to stress the need of a new pattern of life with higher ideals and higher standards of conduct. Many young people fall in line because they fear being called "a sissy". In reality the boy or girl who can decide to follow the right path is the strong and the brave while the ones who simply follow the crowd are the weaklings .

Mrs. McKay spoke briefly on the cigaret habit which has secured such a hold on the youth. She told of a boy twelve years of age who stole money to buy cigarets and hid them in the school.

The splendid address was brought to a close with the poem "It was Sheep Who Went Astray", and prayer closed the meeting .

A social time followed.

121st Anniversary Of St. Andrew's Church Observed

Capacity audiences gathered at St. Andrew's Church in this city for the observance of the 121st anniversary of the congregation on Sunday and they were addressed at both services by Rev. Ian Burnett, M.A., pastor at St. Andrew's Church in Ottawa. The anniversary services will be continued on Monday evening when a church supper and congregational meeting will be held and at which time Mr. Burnett will give a talk on the Church.

Befitting the anniversary was the splendid musical program arranged by C. Templer, organist and choirmaster for both services In the morning the full choir sang the anthem "O Lord Our Governor" by Gadsby, while Mrs. Templer contributed the solo "Grant Me Deep Peace". At the evening service the choir sang "Beautiful Saviour" (an old Sicilian melody) and also the anthem "O For Closer Walk With God" by Foster with Mrs. H. Brown as soloist. A ladies' ensemble sang the number "Only the Childlike Find the Way." During the assembling of the congregation and during the taking of offering Mr. Templer rendered numbers of a sacred character on the console.

Welcome Extended

Rev. J. G. Hornsby, pastor of the church, extended a welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Burnett, hoping that their stay in the city would be one of inspiration and blessing. Before commencing his morning discourse, Rev. Ian Burnett accepted gratefully the thoughts of welcome and stated that he rejoiced in the fact that St. Andrew's Church in Belleville had sent to St. Andrew's in Ottawa, Justice, Charles A. Cameron, his wife and children. "What has been your great loss in this congregation has been our great gain in Ottawa," said the speaker. He extended to the congregation the thanks of the whole church for the 121 years of progress made in Belleville and wished for them years of continued success in bringing souls to Christ and advancement of the Christian Church.

Subject of Text

Taking his text from the 3rd chapter of the Book of Ephesians, verses 20-21 "Now unto Him that is able to do exceedingly abundantly above all that we ask or think according to the power that worketh in us, Unto Him by glory in the church by Jesus Christ throughout all the ages, world without end, Amen." Mr. Burnett asked the assembly if they believed that God was able to do abundantly and if that was the case what were they giving to make the church the glorification of God. He stated that the St. Andrew's Church of Belleville stands in a great and grand tradition because behind it is 20 centuries of worship God. "This Church," he said "Is all a part of the wholly universal Church which gives glory to God. Not only the past but the brethren of all ages surround us."

"Our Church today is worldwide" continued the speaker "and our praise today blends with a thousand tongues in giving praise to the Lord. We must not fail to play our part because the Church is not an institution, made by man but is was made by Christ. We must also see that the Church is a part of the world family and that no color or tongue should be barred from entering its portals to give praise to Jesus Christ. I can say without fear of contradiction that the hope of the world today lies in the church and it has the power to make the world one for Christ. Your faithfulness of worship in this sacred place may be one of the deciding factors in saving humanity. This is your church and you should make the best of it every waking hour. Those living for eternity are the only ones that can enjoy time."

In conclusion the speaker prayed for the Divine Guidance to lead the congregation onwards and upwards and hoped that the church would be a place where all could partake of the bountiful blessings of Jesus and where they could go out and lead others to the Way of Life. Rev. Ian Burnett addressed a very large congregation at the evening service.

Home and School Association Formed at Q.V.S.

A large group of parents and teachers attended a meeting at Queen Victoria School auditorium on Thursday, November 18th., under the chairmanship of Mr. A. C. Wilkin, principal, to discuss the formation of a Home and School Association.

Mrs. MacIntosh, organizer of the Federation of Home and School Associations for the Kingston district, was introduced by Mrs. Ralph Morden and very capably outlined the organization, functions and rules of a Home and School Association. It was unanimously decided that such an association should be formed at Queen Victoria School, the meetings to be held on the second Monday of each month in the school auditorium.

Mrs. MacIntosh then proceeded with the details necessary to form the association and the following slate of officers was approved:

President — Mrs. J. Layton
Vice Presidents — Mrs. K. L. Reid, Mr. M. Linscott, Mrs. W. L. Langlois
Recording Secretary — Mrs. A. Hogg
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. B. Weese
Treasurer — Mr. W. Oliver
Elected Members — Mr. A. C. Wilkin, Mr. R. H. Tanner, Mr. S. Riley, Mrs. W. Follwell, Mrs. W. Judge, Mrs. R. M. Anderson.

The teaching staff will be represented on the executive by Mr. Wilkin and another teacher to be chosen by the teachers at an early date.

Following the election of officers Mrs. MacIntosh conducted the installing ceremony, turning over the gavel to the president, Mrs. J. Layton, who expressed her desire to fulfill the duties to the best of her ability.

The very large attendance of both parents and teachers evidenced the eagerness for such an association at Queen Victoria School. There were 79 charter members accepted into the association at the organization meeting.

Mr. H. Seldon represented the Board of Education at the meeting and expressed his pleasure at the step being taken in organizing a Home and School Association at Queen Victoria School.

Family Honored Before Leaving The Community

An enjoyable social evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Wanamaker recently, prior to their departure to their new home at Frankford. After a short program a few words of farewell were extended by Mr. Roscoe Robson on behalf of the community, and Mr. Wm. Hynd, of Hamilton, a lifelong friend of the Wanamakers. An address, signed by Messrs. Bill Scott, Floyd Thrasher, Harold Elliott and Earl Sayers, was read by Mrs. Bill Scott, after which Mr. and Mrs. Wanamaker were presented with a lovely marble-base floor lamp and Howard with a genuine Morocco leather wallet. Mr. and Mrs. Wanamaker and Howard thanked their neighbors for their thoughtfulness and extended an invitation to all to visit them in their new home. Refreshments were then served by the ladies. After the singing of "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" and "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," Mr. Hynd brought the evening to a close with prayer.

Apathy, Laxity Greatest Sins Says Dr. Nicholson

"One of the greatest sins of the world today is the apathy and laxity on the part of men in working for the Church. Some have the idea that sexual lust and drink are the major of the seven great sins but the sins of the flesh are not the greatest," the Rev. C. N. Nicholson, B.A., D.D., principal of Pine Hill Divinity Hall, Halifax, told the Sunday morning congregation at Bridge Street United Church.

Dr. Nicholson was the guest speaker at the anniversary services of the church and spoke to both morning and evening congregations. Ministers, officials and the congregations of Tabernacle and Holloway Street United Churches and the staff and students of Albert College attended the evening service.

A program of sacred music featured both services with Mrs. Dorothy Goldie as guest soloist. Mrs. Goldie's fine voice was heard in the solo "Omnipotence" and in duet with Mrs. Doris Burgoyne in "O Divine Redeemer" at the morning service. In the evening she offered 'The Shepherd Psalm' and "How Shall I Sing That Majesty" while Miss Helen Cook sang "O Worship the Lord". The choir offered the melodic anthem "The Woods and Every Sweet-Smelling Tree" with James Bankier in the solo role. Miss Leona Riggs directed the choir with Mr. Alec Gordon at the organ.

Text from Peter

Dr. Nicholson selected his text from Peter 5: "Be sober, vigilant. Be resistful" for his morning address. He pointed out to the capacity congregation that although a lot of people are amused when the Devil is mentioned, everyone in the world should be involved in a great warfare against the kingdom of darkness. There is a direct challenge to all to stand against the danger of sin.

"Men for ages have been striving and working for peace, yet there seems to be a malignant form of evil working against the high ideals of mankind. We are living in an age of crises. When great systems are in conflict everyone in the church should be ready to stand against this challenge."

"Because a man has everything and lives a good clean life, it does not mean that everyone likes him," Dr. Nicholson told the congregation. "Someone is sure to be looking for a chink in his armor. Man's Christian life does not have validity unless someone dislikes him. When all men speak well of you—beware."

The world has truth and reason at heart, and people are assured that everything will come out all right. Therefore there seems no reason for bettering it. But look at man's history. Virtue will remain triumphant because there are those who will fight for it.

Must Be Soldiers

"The best men in the world went out to pull down the Hitler regime—with men's blood. We as Christians must be soldiers and fight for the glory of the Lord. We are his warriors. Be sober, be vigilant. Resist. We must not give all our time to trivial matters. The time has come when we should have some concern over things eternal to find out what is going on."

These are grave times, the speaker said when man's future is challenged. It is time he stood for all that is decent and be at his best. We possess a great freedom bought by blood.

No matter how prosperous the church is, people must realize that the sin greater than lust and drink is apathy and failure to do their share of work for the church. Realization of warfare against this particular sin must come. "This time we are all in it. We must have some common responsibility to stand for the things of God, and be His soldiers."

Must Take Personal Interest

"We must have a sense of personal involvement in the greater good things. There are tearful Christians who wring their hands and bemoan everything. This is not the spirit that built Bridge Street Church. This is not the spirit that built our Commonwealth of Nations. It is the spirit that makes every man and woman in the church witnesses for His Name's Sake," Dr. Nicholson concluded.

The Rev. Donald C. Amos, B.A. minister of the church conducted the service and introduced Dr. Nicholson to the congregation.

'Dream' Witness In 'Truth Serum' Trial in Murder

Martinez, Calif., Nov. 20 (AP) —A "dream" witness Friday entered the strange "truth serum" trial of a former United States air force sergeant charged with murdering his wife last June.

The witness was William Peck, 24, a Richmond, Calif, factory worker. Peck came here to take the stand in the trial of Kenneth Long, 26, accused of the fatal stabbing of his wife, Barbara Jean.

Long, while under the influence of sodium pentothal—so-called "truth" drug—dramatically named Peck as the killer. Previously, he had said he was unable to remember any events surrounding the killing.

As a result of his "dream testimony"—entered in evidence by the defence through a recording of Long's statement while under the influence of the drug—the court ordered Peck be brought into court.

Obviously confused when he took the stand, Peck acknowledged he and Mrs. Long had been intimate several months before Long's return from Anchorage, Alaska, where he had been stationed.

Under defence cross examination, Peck said he had "moved my clothes into Mrs. Long's apartment two weeks after we met."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cox, neighbors of the Longs in the Richmond housing project, testified earlier that upon hearing Mrs. Long was dead, Peck had stormed: "If Long stabbed her, I'll kill him."

At this point, defence counsel George T. Davis contended it was not known at the time that Mrs. Long had been stabbed.

Toronto, Nov. 22 (CP) — The Ontario Agriculture Department Friday estimated the province's 1948 grain production at 180,630,000 bushels, compared with 106,000,000 last year. The crop was "exceptionally good", the department said in its monthly report. Average grain production for Ontario during the last ten years has been 156,000 bushels.

Three policemen grabbed MacGregor and removed him from the court. Five minutes later MacGregor was brought into court in handcuffs and charged with assaulting an officer. He was remanded one week for hearing.

John Moore, 21, also was sentenced to two years for attempted shopbreaking.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa:

Increase Will Affect 37,000 Men Who Served in Forces

(By the Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Nov. 21 — (CP) — If and when Canada's roughly 112,000 civil servants get all or part of the cost-of-living bonus they want, the increase is also expected to affect the 37,000 - odd men who serve in the three armed forces.

If the total flat bonus sought were granted, it would add about $61,0000,000 a year to federal expenditures for the civil servants. A similar addition of the services would mean roughly another $20,000,000. CBC employees have already been granted a 15-per-cent bonus.

There have been varying reports on the outcome of the bonus campaign as the cabinet continues to study the request for some $46 a month for each civil servant on the basis of the cost-of-living index.

At Oct. 1 — the latest date for which a report is available — the official index was 159.6, compared with 142.2 at this time last year. The rise since the outbreak of war has been 58.3 per cent.

Accountants

The Canadian Tax Foundation, an organization composed of chartered accountants and others interested in Canada's tax laws, will hold its second annual conference here this week.

At the Foundation's first conference last year, delegates reviewed the government's proposed revision of the Income Tax Act and produced a report, used by business and professional organizations to prepare recommendations invited by the government regarding the new Act.

The Act will be discussed again this year and some suggestions for alteration may be made.

Finance Minister Abbott will address the Foundation's closing dinner Tuesday.

Communists Warn U. S. to Keep Out Of Chinese War

San Francisco, Nov. 22 (AP) — Chinese Communists Sunday broadcast what was tantamount to a "warning" to the United States to keep out of China's civil war.

The Communists' North Shensi radio declared the Reds consider American or other foreign military aid to the Chiang Kai-shek government "an act of hostility." The broadcast was heard in San Francisco by the Associated Press.

Referring to an alleged plan for American protection to Shanghai, the broadcast said "the Communist party of China firmly opposes any such traitorous actions."

It said the party "holds that any military or economic aid to the Kuomintang government by the governments of the United States or other countries constitutes an act of hostility against the Chinese nation and the people of China, and should cease immediately."

The broadcast expressed a willingness of the Communist government "to establish equal, friendly relations with all foreign countries, including the United States of America, and to protect the rightful American Nationals. But the integrity of China's territory and sovereignty must be preserved without encroachment."

Vicar is Rebuked By His Bishop

Exeter, Devonshire, England, Nov. 20 — (CP) — A vicar who suggested clergymen should have the legal right to refuse baptism when they know a child's home surroundings were "undesirable and reconciliation was unlikely" was rebuked by the Bishop of Exeter, Dr. Charles Curzon.

The Bishop told him it would be intolerable for a priest to have the right to say who shall have the privilege of baptism.

The suggestion was made at the Exeter Diocesan Conference by Rev. Sir A. P. Ferguson - Davie, Vicar of St. John's Church, Torquay. He also urged a further law barring parents from taking their child to another priest after baptism had already been refused by one clergyman.

St. Laurent Makes Reference To Power Shortage

Kentville, N.S., Nov. 22 (CP) — A Nova Scotia downpour started Prime Minister St. Laurent on a train of thought here Saturday that ended in a bit of long-range needling regarding the Ontario power shortage.

Speaking at a complimentary dinner to Rt. Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Mr. St. Laurent said "I would like to say something about your beautiful Nova Scotia scenery, but due to the elements, we've seen very little of it."

"Mind you," he added, "in our part of the country, we also have troubles. The elements—and other contributing factors—have resulted in a power shortage."

In a thinly-veiled reference to the power controversy between George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservatives, and Trade Minister Howe, Mr. St. Laurent recalled a "challenge for open debate made by one certain gentleman to another certain gentleman."

"This challenge was accepted by the second certain gentleman. The place to be the House of Commons on any afternoon or evening when the place was not in darkness.

"It would not be fitting to hold such a debate by candlelight."

Old Bush Pilot Trick Paid Off For World Flier

Fairbanks, Alaska, Nov. 22 (AP)—An old bush pilot trick paid off Sunday for Mrs. Morrow-Tait, round-the-world flier, and her navigator, Michael Town-send, who made a crash-landing 200 miles southeast of here. Neither was injured in the accident.

The trick is to follow a highway just in case there might be the need of an emergency landing.

She followed the Glenn highway which heads northeast to a junction with the Alaska highway.

Her plane crashed near the road 30 miles southwest of Tok junction in 30-below zero weather.

The Alaska highway patrol picked up the fliers and took them to Tanacross.

He was assisting with work on the roof of the new Presbyterian church. The scaffold broke and he fell to the ground. The left forearm bone was snapped completely in two and will require plates to secure the two parts.

The Picton Division of St. John Ambulance Brigade held a tag day in Picton Saturday to conclude their appeal for funds. At present the Division is sponsoring a first aid class and due to many applications another class will be held after Christmas.

Fire Destroys Farm Home Near Tweed

Tweed, (Special) — Fire, believed to have originated in a defective chimney, completely destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Gabourie, farmers residing one quarter mile south of Chapman's Corners on Sunday morning.

The blaze occurred shortly after ten o'clock when the Gabouries, with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gabourie, parents of Mr. Gabourie were attending church at Stoco. No one was in the house at the time.

The greater part of the contents of the home was destroyed by the flames. Neighbors who arrived at the scene sometime after the blaze started, succeeded in removing some articles of furniture.

The fire swept quickly through the frame structure and by the time volunteer firefighters arrived, the house was a blazing mass.

The only water supply available was a well, and this handicapped the efforts to reduce the blaze.

Alarm was felt for some time about the fire spreading to nearby barns and other buildings, but the wind veered in the proper direction and the danger was averted.

Dutch farmers in the neighborhood, wearing water-soaked cloths on their faces, entered the house time and time again and succeeded in bringing out articles of furniture. Neighbors paid tribute to the fine efforts of these newcomers to the district.

No alarm was sent to Tweed or neighboring communities as the flames had made such headway that saving of the home was impossible.

Varsity Ends Western's Reign Of Intercollegiate Football

Toronto, Nov. 22 — (CP)—College football has a new champion to toast today in the University of Toronto Blues, coach Bob Masterson's husky and superbly drilled machine that finally halted University of Western Ontario's long reign in the east's Intercollegiate Union.

The big Blue team ground to its first title since 1936 by beating Western 18-7 before a throng of more than 20,000 at Varsity Stadium Saturday, ending the string of three official and one unofficial titles racked up by Johnny Metras' Mustangs in holding the crown since 1939.

It was a stirring triumph for a team that started its season with two successive losses, then had to win four straight just to get into this sudden - death post - season playoff. The Blues did it the hard way, beating the Mustangs 23-8 the previous Saturday in the final game of the regular schedule.

It was equally a gallant defeat for the Mustangs, crippled by the loss of six regulars and up against a Varsity team geared to a pitch that would let it do no wrong. Though the Blues put on a dazzling display of aerial and running attacks, they never once lost the ball on a fumble.

So much did the Blues function as a team that even their screaming supporters who snake-danced to city hall after the game could hardly pick a favorite. So they cheered each player equally long and hard when the Blues were introduced individually from the city hall steps.

Cummings a Standout

Perhaps the game's standout was Bruce Cummings, the 21-year old triple threat fullback from Ottawa who threw forwards for two touchdowns and kicked two converts and a single. Or it may have been either Nick Volpe or John Chorestecki, who each caught one of those touchdown tosses.

Another candidate for the hero's mantle was Tommy Waldon, the stocky quarterback who, as Cummings said later, "called all the plays and called them 100 per cent perfect." But how could you pick anyone over Jack Gray, who featured a great offensive and defence show at outside wing by snaring a pass from Waldon for Varsity's other touchdown?

On one play alone, Alex Lawson earned top rating. The hard-hitting outside from St. Catharines tore in to spill Jack Parry on an attempted forward and force a fumble that led to Varsity's first touchdown. That play was the break of the game, breaking a 1-1 deadlock and starting a rally that gave Varsity a 13-1 lead by half-time.

The crowd of 5,000 who came from London, Ont., to help their team "trample Toronto" had little to cheer about after Varsity wiped out Western's one - point first - quarter lead with a 13-point second quarter. Their biggest moment came in the final quarter when Parry featured a belated drive by scoring and converting a touchdown.

Dozen Players Out

This was the final opportunity for more than a dozen Varsity players, the team veterans who had eaten Mustangs' dust for three successive seasons. Masterson loses that many by graduation — team captain Ian Clark, Jack Williams, Dave Copp, Ernie Jeans, Bill Stockman, Eric McMillan, Ted Toogood, Nick Volpe, Tommy Waldon and Cliff Beatty.

Statistically, the Mustangs were not badly beaten. They gained 17 first downs to Varsity's 18, outrushed the Blues by 253 yards to 209 but made only 91 yards passing to Varsity's 127. Cummings gave the Blues an edge in forwards, completing nine of 18 against Western's six of 19, and also gained five yards a punt with his average kick of 45 yards.

But the Blues had the finish when it counted. The Blues' second touchdown was a honey, Waldon taking the ball on the Western five as if to plunge and throwing a perfect forward to Gray across the goalline. They made the same brilliant use of others in Masterson's repertoire of plays, as mystifying a collection of razzle-dazzle as even shown here.

Maybe that's why University President Sidney Smith kissed Masterson on the city hall steps at the victory rally.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

Teams of the Belleville District Hockey League underwent strenuous workouts over the weekend with no less than five turning out for practice...The Belleville Midgets team some forty strong turned out for their initial practice under the watchful eyes of Manager Bob Strachan and Coach Cy Barriage...The kids team will have plenty of material to choose from, so the city will be well represented in the half-pint division...Rockets juniors went through a stiff session in preparation for the Tuesday night tussle against the Trenton RCAF Flyers...The birdmen who suffered a defeat at the hands of Trenton in their first game are still rankling under the collar and tomorrow night's game with juniors will see the boys in blue go all out for their first victory...On the other hand Coach Ken McNaught has his Rockets primed and loaded for the fray so the first tilt tomorrow should be productive of some neat pastiming...

The second joust sees the Napanee Legion stack up against against Jim McDonald's strong Trenton team and this should make a fine dessert to the Rockets-Flyers entree...Trenton boast a strong club and loom up as dangerous contenders for the loop leadership...Legion have a fast light squad that will give the best of 'em a run for their money before playoff time rolls around...Doug Day slated for a hockey job in the Minnesotas has received no further word nor train tickets although a pal has already left for the scene of the wars...In the meantime Day will keep in condition with the CNR Diesels...Trenton Hockey Club is looking for a name...Someone suggested "Bearcats" another "Penquins" and yet another "Tigers"...Prexy Eddie Schreider thinks "Barons" would be an ideal moniker for the McDonald crew..."Penquins" would suit the team colors, but itshould be remembered that they're the birds which "fight not neither do they fly"...And that's hardly appropriate for the Schmidt-Watson crew...

Ottawa Rough Riders emerged as Eastern Canada football champions by blanking the Hamilton Tigers 19-0 at Lansdowne Park in Bytown on Saturday...Huge Tony Golab who has been one of the main cogs in the Rough Rider machine all season, sparked his mates to the title scoring two of Ottawa's three touchdowns...Riders meet the Calgary Stanmpeders for the Dominion title at Toronto Varsity oval nert Saturday ...Meanwhile the University of Toronto Beavers tacked their second straight defeat on the champion Mustangs of Western by an 18-7 score...The defeat ended the long rein of Mustangs as intercollegiate champions...Over twenty thousand howling grads, undergrads and other spectators saw the powerful Blues "trample" Western with razzle-dazzle plunges, extension plays and reverses...It was the first time Western relinquished the crown since winning it in 1939...Western's all-star backfielder Jack Parry played sensationally for the losers with his plunging and passing...Bruce Cummings, Varsity's triple-threat star scored three points on kicks, tossed two touchdown passes and set up another with a long forward heave...

It cost the Ottawa Rough Riders management $103,000 to operate the club this year...Officials claim the team will be out of rugby within two years unless United States imports are curbed...Toe Blake, coach of the Buffalo Bisons put on a uniform last night to bolster the teams weakened defence .It is the first time that Toe played in a defence role ...Andy O'Brien writing in Montreal Standar says: "Gorgeous George, the All-American fruitcake, will scent up the Forum ring for the last time on Wednesday night. As was predicted (some scoop, eh kid?) here last week. Yvon Robert finally "weakened" and agreed to administer a tardy come-uppance to Ole Goldilocks. Although the epochal clash would undoubtedly draw on its own merits a third consecutive Forum sell-out crowd for Gorgeous, slick showman Edmund Quinn is bringing up Jack Dempsey as referee just by way of making sure justice reigns supreme. After getting mussed by Yvon on Wednesday, the human Lollipop will head west for a prolonged stay. It's unlikely Montreal will see him again so maybe a soldier's farewell would be in order."

Jack Dempsey will third-man the Gorgeous George-Yvon Robert bout come Wednesday...Some fans claim the bescented Beau Brummels of Pachydermia is Strangler Bob Wagner gone bloppish, but it ain't so, brother. The Gorgeous one's name is George Wagner who hails from the Longhorn state...He got the resplendency idea from a grappler who called himself Lord Lansdowne, old bean, and climbed into the ring wearing a monocle...He has 88 robes of various hues and wears a different one each night...A valet precedes him in the ring squirting anti-something or other in the air to knock off any germs with curiosity...

O.A.C. Rallies To Defeat Queen's

Guelph, Nov. 22 — (CP)—Ontario Agricultural College came from behind Saturday to beat a surprising Queen's University crew 18-9 and win their second straight intercollegiate football championship.

Queen's uncorked a pass attack that dazed the Aggies but could not match them in strength along the ground.

Goomer Rathby crashed through twice for O. A. C. touchdowns in the second quarter after a placement by Jack Cuddie and Jack Robert's converted touchdown had sent Queen's into the lead.

Kev Kennedy romped for a last-quarter touchdown for Aggies.

He converted his own major in the final quarter the hard way. Quarterback Bill Anderson fumbled the snap. As the ball lay on the ground, Kennedy lashed out at it with his left foot and the ball soared over the cross-bar.

There was no argument when Referee Charley Prince allowed the point. Prince said after the game: "I'd never seen it happen before and I've never heard of it happening."

Calgary Stamps To Work Out At Oakville

Oakville, Nov. 22. (CP)—Calgary Stampeders replaced their 10-gallon Stetsons with football helmets today as they started a week of workouts before their Grey Cup clash with Ottawa Rough Riders next Saturday.

Coach Les Lear had his unbeaten charges on the field for a workout almost as soon as they arrived.

And he predicted Stampeders would win Saturday if they "play ball".

Stampeders arrived Sunday night, tired after their three-day trip from the foothills city, but full of enthusiasm for Calgary's first bid for Dominion Football honors since 1911.

They will remain at Appleby College here until Friday.

Sunday night they went through a brief passing session, a game of touch rugby and a jog around the gridiron.

One of the 200 spectators was asked, politely, to leave—he was wearing Ottawa colors and carried a note book.

Lear, a Winnipeg resident since he was six but classed as one of the five American imports, saw Ottawa beat Hamilton Tigers for the eastern title.

He said the Riders were a "good club but they have weaknesses." He wouldn't elaborate on the weaknesses.

Chief attraction for the spectators was the passing combination of Keith Spaith and Woody Strode, both former American professionals. The other Americans are Chuck Anderson, centre with the New York Yankees of the All-American Conference last year and Johnny Aquire, who played in the 1946 Rose Bowl game with Southern California.

A.A.U. Urged To Seek Olympic Games in 1960

(By The Canadian Press)

Paul McLaughlin, Toronto yachtsman, and captain of Canada's yachting team at the 1948 Olympics, Saturday urged amateur Athletic Union of Canada delegates, in session at the 55th annual meeting in London, Ont., to apply to Olympic authorities to have the 1960 games held in Canada.

Mr. McLaughlin said he believed it was time this country applied for the games. It is too late to do anything about either the 1952 or 1956 games, he said, but urged delegates to seek the 1960 Olympics.

Prof. Nelson C. Hart, newly-elected A.A.U. of C. president, told Mr. McLaughlin the Canadian Olympic Association had applied for winter-games on at least one previous occasion. He said the idea was abandoned when it was found the necessary building of bob-sled runs, ski jumps and courses and a larger hockey rink arena would cost about $250,000.

Billy Stout, Ontario trotting champion from Frank Plaunt's Brantford stable, won the $1,500 free-for-all trot at the Toronto Dufferin Park Harness racing meet Saturday.

Billy Stout won the second elimination heat then came home in 2.23 in the final 1 1-16 mile heat.

Projectile, from the Richelieu Park stables of Montreal, won the first heat but finished third in the final right behind Buster, owned by Thede Kalk, N.Y., stable of McTavish and Seymour who placed second to Billy Stout in the elimination.

Dick Birch, 1948 Canadian Badminton Singles Champion, Sunday night was named playing captain of the Canadian team to play India in the first round of Thomas Cup play.

Other members of the team to play in Toronto Dec. 3 and 4 named by the Canadian Badminton Association after a four-day round-robin tournament, are:

Johnny Samis, Vancouver; Ted Pollock, of Toronto and Roy Smith of Woodstock, 1948 Canadian Doubles champions; Gord Simpson of Montreal and Daryl Simpson of Vancouver.

Chicago White Sox were reported Sunday night at Chicago to be considering a $100,000-player deal involving third baseman Bob Dillinger of St. Louis Browns.

In preliminary talks, the Browns are said to have asked $100,000 and three Sox players for Dillinger, who batted .321 last season and topped the American League in base stealing.

The only White Sox player the Browns are reported to have labelled acceptable thus far is outfielder Dave Philley.

Cobourg Galloping Ghosts won the intermediate Ontario Rugby Football Union title at Cobourg Saturday by defeating London 17-5.

Cooper and Quigley starred in Cobourg's brilliant passing game.

At Los Angeles, fight manager Tommy Farmer today accused the National Boxing Association of "persecuting" his world bantamweight champion, Manuel Ortiz.

Considerably wrought up, Farmer charged that N.B.A. boss Abe Greene was trying to "intimidate" his fighter by threatening to declare the bantam crown vacant unless Ortiz defends it soon.

"Greene is trying to be a czar of boxing, but at the same time he lets the New York Boxing Commission dominate his actions," Farmer said.

"Joe Louis says he isn't going to defend his heavyweight title until next June. Why doesn't Greene declare that title vacant?"

P.C.I. WINS TITLE

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By DAVE CROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Nov. 22 (CP) — Soccer, which has long been a game for immigrants from European and Asiatic countries, is gradually developing more and more Canadian-born players.

Soccer comes closer to being a universal sport than any other game known. It's played in all corners of the earth, yet strangely enough, it's only taken up by the odd few in Quebec.

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson brought the subject to the fore by saying that perhaps the triumphs of the Montreal Carsteel team this season marks the beginning of a new era in the game here, an era in which athletes of Canadian birth will take on soccer in increasing numbers.

"The team has won four championships and the McKellar trophy, but the point of most interest, we think," comments Fergie, "is the fact that Doug McMahon, captain of the team, is the greatest Canadian-born player of all time.

"He scored 71 goals the past season, a Canadian record. And the secondary point of interest is that the entire Carsteel team has been doing missionary work on behalf of their game in schools and other institutions of Montreal.

Hundreds of school children caught the soccer whim as Carsteel put on exhibitions and explained what they did after each play and why they did it.

"So in addition to being a great soccer club and a fine sports organization the Carsteel eam is doing a job in planting the soccer idea in the minds of Montreal youth, which is the only way to establish the game as a successful sports venture in these Dominions," concludes Fergie.

Wildcats Give Bruising Display To Beat Hilltops

Hamilton, Nov. 22 — (CP) — The Hamilton Wildcats displayed a bruising brand of orthodox Canadian football Saturday in bringing the city its first Dominion junior gridiron title.

The heavier Cats, who entered the game as favorites, swept to a 23-10 victory over Saskatoon Hilltops in the first official East-West junior game since 1932.

Led by Ed Yablonski, Brian Timmins, Jr., and Garnet Steeves, the Hamilton team banged away at centre for most of its gains while tossing in the odd end run when the chance arose. One touchdown, the first, was scored off a pass.

A quick touchdown, by Steeves, after five minutes of play, gave the new champions a lead they held until the second quarter when Mike Marushak crashed through with a major for the visitors. Ernie Allard and Yablonski came back with touchdowns for the Cats in the same session with Timmins converting Yablonski's try.

The Cats continued to roll in the third quarter with Steeves collecting his second touchdown before a brilliant drive by the Hilltops producing a major by Less Parker. Hamilton counted two more points in the last quarter on kicks by Joe McFarlane and Timmins.

A wet field was largely responsible for extensive ground play although the Cats did click on three of four pass attemppts. By the time the game ended the gridiron was a Quagmire.

The Hilltops suffered a serious blow in the opening minutes when regular quarterback Frank Szambothy was forced to leave the field with an injured shoulder.

In the 1932 East-West game, University of Toronto juniors downed Moose Jaw, 8-6. The Canadian Rugby Union also declared a Canadian junior chamption in 1933 when Toronto Argonauts took the title by winning in the East. There was no playoff with the West.

Most Successful British Racing Season Ends

London, Nov. 22 (CP)—In the Manchester mists and amid the autumn colds and reds of the woods surrounding "lovely Lingfield" one of the most successful British flat racing season in years ended Saturday.

The Aga Khan's horses in his famed chocolate-and-green silks won more than £46,000 ($814,000) nearly £4,000 more than his nearest rival the Maharaja of Baroda. The horses he bred won more than £30,000. It is the 11th time he has been leading owner and fifth as leading breeder.

Noel Murless, in his first year as head trainer at Beckampton saddled 63 winners whose purses totalled more than £66,500. Beckhampton's earnings were the best since 1931. The the prominent Dewar, Loder and MacDonald-Buchanan strings are trained.

The peerless Richards, who is the leading jockey for Beckhampton and the Aga Khan's rider ran off with the jockey championship by booting home 224 winners. It was the 21st time the little iron man had led the riders.

Baroda's My Babu, a 2 to 1 favorite, scored in the two thousand guineas and Richards kicked Queen Pot home at 6 to 1 in the one thousand guineas. The Aga Khan took the Oakes with Masaka at 7 to 1 and owned a half share in the French bred My Love which came home in the Derby at 100 to 9.

William Woodwards, chairman of the New York jockey club won the year's final classic when Black Tarquin with Britt riding one of his greatest races of his career, won the St. Leger at 15 to 2.

Arbar broke down in the Goodwood cup and was beaten by the Italian horse Tenerani which had previously gained a short-headed verdict over Black Tarquin at Ascot. Tenerani was bought by the British National stud in an attempt to strengthen British staying bloodlines.

The Aga Khan's four-year-old Migoli set a past-war precedent by travelling to France to win the Prix de L'Arce de Triomphe.

The last big event of the season the Manchester November handicap was won by Sports Master Saturday.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Durnan, Montreal net-minder who scored his fourth shutout of the season as Canadiens setback the Red Wings 3-0 in Detroit.

Tony Leswick, diminutive hanger legt-winger who whipped in two goals as New York downed the Bruins 4-1 at Boston.

Joe Klukay, Toronto forward, who after he had been sent to the dressing room with a cut head returned to the ice to score the tying goal as the Leafs battled the Black Hawks to a 3-3 deadlock.

Detroit and Boston Tied For Top Spot in Red-Hot Race in National Hockey Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

The race for the National Hockey League leadership tightened over the weekend as Boston pulled into a tie for first place with Detroit and Montreal edged up one point behind the leaders.

Canadiens beat the league-leading Detroit Red Wings 3-0 in Detroit Sunday night while New York Rangers downed Boston Bruins 4-1 at Boston. Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston tied 2-2 at Toronto Saturday and then invaded the Windy City Sunday to gain another standoff with the Black Hawks, 3-3.

In one of the fastest games of the weekend, Frankie Boucher's Broadway Blueshirts showed they are not to be shrugged off as a second division club as they outscored the Bruins, 4-1.

Little Tony Leswick sparked the victors with two goals, one on a solo attempt to give the Rangers a tie for the fourth position in the league with Toronto. It was the Bruins first setback on their home ice in six starts.

Bill Durnan, stellar Montreal netminder, recorded his fourth shutout of the season when Montreal blanked the Red Wings 3-0. Durnan proved himself a rugged type when after getting two teeth knocked out in the first frame on a shot by Detroit's Jerry Couture, he kept his cage free from enemy pucks for the remainder of the game.

Leafs Get Two Ties

Rip Riopelle and Elmer Lach gave Canadiens the jump with a pair of first-period markers, and after a scoreless second session, Billy Reay clinched matters when he beat Harry Lumley after taking passes from Joe Carveth and Bobby Filion.

Watching the game from the sidelines were Emil (Butch) Bouchard, Canadien defenceman and Ted Lindsay, Detroit forward. Bouchard was injured over a week ago and has been sidelined with torn tendons in his left knee. Lindsay who started off the season up in the high scoring brackets is recovered from a shattered ankle.

The once mighty Toronto Maple Leafs found the best they could do in their two games over the weekend was a couple of draws. Saturday night they tied Bruins 2-2 and Sunday night they played to a 3-3 deadlock with the Black Hawks.

Vic Lynn's first goal of the season paid dividends by giving Leafs a saw-off against the Bruins. Lynn also made the play for the first Toronto counter, while Johnny Pierson and Pete Babando hit the target for Boston.

Joe Klukay, Toronto forward, proved he also was the rugged sort. In the first period Klukay was knocked out before he even got in the game. Seated on the Leafs' bench, he was struck on the head by Gaye Stewart's stick. He was taken to the dressing room for repairs. Coming back with murder in his eye he banged in the tying goal for the Toronto squad with less than three minutes to play.

Wild Bill Ezinicki and Ted Kennedy fired the other goals, while Doug Bentley, Bill Gadsby and Jim Conacher connected for the Hawks.

WINS $34,000

George S. Powell, 64-year-old salesman of Hamilton, Ont., who holds a ticket in the Army and Navy sweepstakes on Sporthmaster, the horse which won the Manchester November handicap on Saturday. It is estimated his ticket will bring him $34,000 (Central Press Canadian)

St. Paul Checks Winning Streak

St. Paul has checked the fast-climbing Minneapolis Millers' undefeated string at 10 games in the United States Hockey League.

The Saints produced the first shutout of the season in blanking Minneapolis Sunday night 2-0. The Millers stepped into the Northern Division's second place Saturday with a 6-1 decision over the Saints, but slipped back to third place behind St. Paul Sunday night.

Kansas City and Omaha splie their weekend games. The PlaMMors bumped Omaha Sunday night 4-1 after the Knights took Saturday's match 3-2.

Dallas defeated Houston 4-1 Sunday night to clumb out of the Southern Division cellar and dump the Huskies into last place. Dallas tied Fort Worth, 3-3, Saturday.

Tulsa administered a 12-1 beating to Houston in the other Saturday game.

MAIL EARLY FOR CHRISTMAS

Are you forever intending to send your Christmas mail early . . . but always leaving it until the last possible minute? Remember that Post Offices are always busy places—but that Christmas mail is an especially taxing burden to over-worked staffs. Why not start a little earlier and make sure that your mail arrives in time for Christmas? Your help will speed up handling and lessen the extra load placed on the delivery system. Your consideration for others will prove your own "Good Citizenship."

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

WIN CHAMPIONSHIPS ON
C·C·M

It takes much more than the jumps and spins of spectacular free-skating to win a championship. In fact, 60 per cent of the points are for school figures which must be skated again and again with great precision over the same ice marks. Only on the most accurately made skates can this be done. Such skates are C.C.M. Figure-Skating Matched Sets.

Each set consists of a pair of C.C.M. Figure Skates accurately matched as to weight, balance, ice-lay and radius. The blades are identical and the heel plates the same height. These carefully matched skates are then securely attached with equal care and in exactly the ideal position to a pair of C.C.M. Figure-Skating Shoes. The result of all this precision, care and experience is a C.C.M. Figure-Skating Matched Set as worn by 90 per cent of the Canadian Champions.

Whether you strive for one of the figure-skating titles, wish to excel at free and carnival skating, or desire to enjoy club dancing, you will find that C.C.M. Figure-Skating Matched Sets will enable you to reach the very pinnacle of your skating skill.

C.C.M. "Professional," "Winter Club," "Pastime," "Junior" Figure Skating Matched Sets. Models and prices for all ages.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The Pitt coup was named after the famous British statesman of an earlier century. Not that he was the first to pull this play in a whist game. But his name stuck to it historically.

This play is often called a backward finesse. Actually it is a forward finesse followed by a backward finesse. Such a play is duck soup for a versatile bridge player.

In many cases, this coup is directly executed in a simple manner. Declarer merely leads toward the opposite hand and finesses. He then leads back from the opposite hand for a finesse in the other direction.

Occasionally it is planned after a strip and endplay. Then the idea is to force an opponent to lead the suit. These are cases where is will be successful only when opponents lead the suit.

In a recent match my partner at south in this deal:

NORTH
♠K Q 3
♥K J 8 4 2
♦A 10
♣A 9 7

WEST
♠10 8 5 4
♥None
♦J 8 6 5 3 2
♣J 6 2

EAST
♠J 9 7
♥10 7 6
♦K Q 9
♣Q 5 4 3

SOUTH
♠A 6 2
♥A Q 9 5 3
♦7 4
♣K 10 8

My shove into six hearts gave him a tight contract. Take a look at the combined hands he must play. It seems that he must lose one diamond and one heart. But it did not turn out that way.

Trick one went to the dummy diamond ace. Three rounds of trumps stripped opponents of their hearts. Three rounds of spades were cashed. This stripped declarer and dummy of the diggers.

At this point in the proceedings, the second diamond was led. Now let either opponent win this. It makes no difference which takes it. Without a trump he must lead a spade or diamond or club.

A spade or diamond return will permit a ruff in one hand and a sluff of heart in the other. A club return runs into a forward and backward finesse combination. It so happened that east won the second diamond and came back with a club.

Forward, the west jack lost to dummy ace. Backward, the east queen was caught under south king and ten. Ouch!

Hollywood, Nov. 22 (AP) — Guess who's getting into the 1948 All-America football team schedule? None other than Betty Grable.

Naturally, the curvy cutie doesn't spend her nights pouring over grid statistics. She undoubtedly received some prodding from the 20th.-Fox publicity department in selecting her squad. But she accepts full responsibility for the choices.

Quarterbacking the Grable All-America is Oregon's Norm Van Brocklin.

For halfbacks Betty chose Southern Methodist University's Doak Walker, who has "the best-looking legs," and Minnesota's Billy Bye, who appeals to her "maternal instinct." Completing the backfield is Yale's handsome Fred Madherny at fullback.

Pat O'Sullivan of Alabama, captains the squad at centre. Mississippi's Barney Poole and Ucla's Bill Clements flank the line at ends. Guards Bill Fischer of Notre Dame and Rod Franz of California, were chossen for their rugged good looks.

The tackle spot presented a problem. Betty said she could find only one handsome enough to make the team — Phil O'Reilly of Purdue. Any other nominations?

Short Takes.

Charles Laughton writes Elsa Lanchester that he is homesick and will return here as soon as he finishes "The Man on the Eiffel Tower." He had been reported planning to do "Galileo" in London. June Allyson is crowing about whipping Dick Powell at Tennis. The score 9-7.

AT THE BELLE — Victor Mature and Richard Conte in "Cry of the City," action-packed 20th. Century-Fox hit, now at the Belle with Leon Errol and a cast of funmakers, in 'Spook Speaks," his latest and funniest comedy.

Bobby Clark Puts Plenty of Zip In New Comedy "As the Girls Go"

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 20 — (CP) — "Bravo!" had all the necessary talent for a hit play.

Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman, a notable stage team, were the authors. Kaufman directed and Oscar Homolka was the star.

"Bravo!," now at the Lyceum Theatre, is a sympathetic and warm exposition of the difficulties refugees face. But unfortunately the authors have wrapped it in a plot that falters and fumbles all the way.

Homolka plays a brilliant but bewildered Hungarian playwright with dash and color and conviction. Lily Darvas does nicely by the part of a Hungarian actress. But they are tripped most of the time by the story. The complication, a question of illegal entry into the United States, is resolved by the introduction of elder Statesman Baruch (as a voice over the telephone) to save the day.

Irrepressible Bobby

It's quite a sight to see Bobby Clark romping roughshod through a plot. The impish comedian with the leer and the painted-on spectacles is at it again in a lavish Michael Todd production, "As the Girls Go."

The story of this musical has to do with the first woman President of the United States. Irene Rich plays the part in which she has little to do but stand around and look beautiful. Clark is her husband. But the plot does little to hamper his exuberance and he romps around the stage with his customary zest, puffing at a cigar and ogling the stunningly handsome chorus girls.

Hanging Judge

Raymond Massey, Toronto-born actor who also has had some experience as a producer, has commissioned Romney Brent to dramatize "Hanging Judge," a Bruce Hamilton murder novel. He plans to produce it next spring in association with Victor Samrock and William Fields.

Stars in Their Courses

Adrianne Allen this week takes over the role played by Peggy Ashcroft in "Edward, My Son." Previously Meg Munday had been lined up for the part but she decided against entering the play . . . . A play written for Zazu Pitts is about ready for George Abbott who plans to launch it in Boston Dec. 27. It is called "Mother Was a Lady" and was written by Anita Loos and Frances Marion. Miss Pitts, who will star in the production, was last seen on Broadway four years ago in "Ramshackle Inn."

AT THE CAPITOL — Counterfeit love. George Raft is the victim of a misguided romance with Marilyn Maxwell in RKO Radio's thrill-bound "Race Street," opening today at the Capitol. Raft and Miss Maxwell co-star with William Bendix in the dramatic story of a man's loyalty to a slain colleague in turf circles. The added hit, "Perilous Waters," stars Don Castle and Audrey Long. Daily matinee starts at 2.00.

Marmora

Talk on Radar Given Members At Chamber Dinner

Marmosa — Capt. Philip Sargent, A. and T. officer with 50th Heavy Ack-Ack Regiment at Peterborough was guest speaker at the monthly dinner meeting of the Marmora District Chamber of Commerce, held in the Royal Hotel on Thursday evening, and treated his hearers to an interesting talk on radar.

Introduced by H. W. Sabine, he expressed his pleasure at being able to accept the invitation, and followed with a brief history of radar from the time an Englishman, Watson Watt, took up the idea after it had been discarded by the Italians as useless. He described the use of radar in the last war and touched upon the beam radar which is being used today, illustrating his remarks with some radar equipment which he had brought with him.

Having covered the physical characteristics of radar he touched upon various civilian uses to which it is now put in the industrial and medical world and gave some of his impressions upon the future possibilities of its use. C. R. Whitmore, on behalf of the Chamber, extended the speaker a hearty vote of thanks.

Fish Sanctuary

Alex Fraser, president, then conducted the business session. A letter received from J. C. Weir, district forester, with respect to a suggested fish sanctuary in Beaver Creek was read and discussion followed. John Bonter thought that low dams without stop logs might be constructed on the old sites to cope with the situation. Reeve V. M. Lynch asked who would patrol the sanctuary. The general opinion of those present was that, while the sanctuary would have to be under the supervision of the game warden he could not be expected to be entirely responsible. There should be fishermen of Marmora district, who honoring the idea, would cooperate.

C. H. Buskard as chairman of the Tourist Development Committee was then asked to submit his report. He said his committee realized the benefits that would come to the district from a fish sanctuary on Beaver Lake and endorsed the idea. He also referred to the proposal for the establishment of a local water authority which also met with the approval of his committee. The committee were in receipt of a suggestion that concurrent jurisdiction be given game wardens in Crowe Lake because of the fact that the boundary between Hastings and Peterborough counties crosses the lake.

Want Tourist Sign

Another request made to the committee had been for the application to the Department of Highways for a sign at Crawford Russell's corner on No. 7 Highway pointing to Crowe Lake.

The chairman then called for a show of hands in favor of the support of the fish sanctuary project which was unanimous.

Taking up the matter of the water authority, it was decided to appoint a committee to confer with the councils of Marmora Village and Marmora and Lake township to ask the minister to call a meeting to further proceed with the matter. Application will be made to the Department of Highways for the erection of the pointer at Crawford Russell's indicating Crowe Lake.

The question of the Santa Claus Parade was next considered after various members had declined appointment as chairman, Secretary R. E. Neal volunteered to act in that capacity. The date for the parade will be December 18th.

Road Repairs

In general business Ritchie Wells brought up the matter of applying to the government for financial assistance in repairing the road leading north through the township, such road being greatly used through fishing and hunting and lumbering interests and now being in great need of repair. A brief pointing out the desirability of this repair and the need of financial assistance will be prepared for submission to the government.

The meeting was closed with "O Canada."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was making little thin sanwitches for the bridge ladies this afternoon, and I said, Hay ma, I knew where you can buy a whole buntch of swell awtum leaves.

Well, that may be quite a good idea, ma said. Nuthing makes sutch a nice decoration as awtum leaves, and they last so mutch longer than flowers. It would be nice to have some in the living room when the ladies get here. Maybe I'll let you run and get me some, she said, and I said, G, ma, do you really mean you'l buy them?

Well, if they're not too expensive, ma said. Where did you see them, up on the Avenue? she said, and I said, No mam, up in my desk draw.

Well of all things for land sakes—do you mean you've been talking about leaves that you picked yourself? ma said, and I said, Yes mam.

Then you awt to be ashamed of yourself for asking me to buy them, ma said. That's very mercenerry and selfish, dont you realize that? she said, and I said, Yes mam. Jimminy, ma, you can have them for nuthing. There's nobody I'd rather give them to, ma, I said.

Well, that's better, ma said. Now go and get them and I'll see what they look like, she said, and I said, Maybe you getter get them, ma. You're more careful than I am, and they're kind of crumbly, I said.

Kink of what? ma said, and I said, Krumbly. I didn't pick them this awtum. I picked them about 2 awtums ago and forgot all about them till I just found them again under some other stuff in my bottom desk draw. I wont charge you a cent, ma, I said.

Now really, I mean really, sutch a boy, ma said.

Meening me and not being quite the end of the subject.

Hamilton Man Wins $34,000 In Race Sweep

By The Canadian Press

George S. Powell, 64-year-old salesman for General Steel Wares, Hamilton, today is $34,000 richer because the horse he held a sweepstake ticket on came in first in the November handicap at Manchester Saturday.

He held a ticket on Sports Master in the Quebec Army and Navy sweep. Fifty-three other Canadians also held tickets on the English race.

"It was the thrill of my life," Powell said, telling how he listened to a broadcast of the race.

Second prize of $20,000 went to John Daskas of Glendale, Long Island, N.Y., who held a ticket on Good Taste, second to come in in Saturday's race.

Third prize winner was a 46-year-old woman cook in a pulp and paper company staff house at Kenogami, Que. She is Mrs. Rose Goulet, mother of four daughters, and her prize was $3,000.

"Isn't that swell!" was all she could say when she heard the good news.

Mrs. Goulet said she couldn't sleep nights since she learned a few days ago that her name was one of those drawn and before she knew her horse, Yoyo, third-place finisher, would run.

Forty persons who drew starters will receive $550 each. 65 who drew non-starters will get $315 each and 100 will be given consolation prizes of $240 each.

New York — (CP) — President Truman's election victory is paying off in the literary line.

A local bookstore Friday placed the following sign on a pile of biographies of the President:

"Was 19 cents, now $3."

Pittsburgh — (AP) — Charles Wright had a plausible excuse for breaking the law — he said he wanted to get money to pay off old fines for breaking the same law.

"I just wanted to keep out of the hole," Wright told the court after pleading guilty to selling low-volatile coal. That's against the smoke control law in Pittsburgh.

Washington — (AP) — Why didn't the revenooers get their man? Well, ?it seems there was man? Well, it seems there was when he tasted it . . .

While alcohol tax units hid in waiting for the owner of a Tennessee still they had just found, the bear lumbered out of the forest and decided to sample the product. He rolled it around his tongue, according to the report filed at the Internal Revenue Bureau, took another startled taste—and smashed the still to pieces.

Their evidence destroyed, the revenue men went home.

Mexico City — (AP) — If you want to sell hair restorer in Mexico, be sure you can prove it works.

The Federal Health Department ruled Friday that six formerly bald persons must vouch for a hair restorer before it can be registered. Without registry, no sales are permitted.

Flying Dutchmen Move to Front In Senior Race

(By The Canadian Press)

A win for the Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen and Toronto Marlboro first defeat in 10 starts shot the Dutchmen three points ahead of the pack in the Ontario Hockey Association senior race.

The Kitchener-Waterloo club edged out Hamilton Tigers 3-2 in Waterloo Saturday while up in Owen Sound the Mercurys were beating Marlboros 4-3.

The weekend left Marlies and Tigers tied in second place.

In the Junior circuit, St. Michael's split 3-3 with Windsor Spitfires and Marlboros edged Guelph Biltmores 6-5 in afternoon games. At night Barrie bounced Oshawa Generals 6-0 and Galt Rockets hit Stratford Kroehlers 8-2.

Doug Verity was the man on the spot for Dutchmen, scoring the winning goal midway through the final period. Trent Anderson and Bill Curick had scored in the first period while Murray comfort and Frank Liscombe tied it up for Tigers.

Owen Sound moved four points ahead of the last-place Stratford Indians by beating Marlboros, as Bruce Small and Mike Shabaga scored in thes final frame to bring Mercurys from behind. Bun White and Jack Ingoldsby got the other Owen Sound goals while Flash Hollett, Billy Johnson and Ray Hannigan scored for Toronto.

The Junior games left the idle St. Catharines Teepees tied for first place with Windsor but the Spitfires have three games in hand. Oshawa and Barrie are tied five points behind.

Barrie caught Oshawa as a result of the 6-0 shutout. Gary Gordon paced the 1947 Memorial Cup finalists with Long, Chevrefils, McNabney and Keefe each adding a goal.

Second Period Brawl

Officials handed out 22 penalties, four of them majors for a second-period brawl.

Harold Hopper blasted in three goals as Galt picked up its fifth victory of the year and moved into a tie with St. Mike's, four points ahead of the last-place junior Marlboros. Tkachuk and Broughton each added two and Horvath and Yeamans scored one each. Bob Armstrong and Bibber O'Hearn replied for Stratford.

Marlies had a 5-2 lead with little more than eight minutes left against Guelph but three qiuck goals by Ron Ferguson, Butch Martin, and Gar Vasey tied it up and Howie Lee got the winner with less than three minutes left. Ron Reagan, George Armstrong, Neil Grenke, Bob Galand and Bobby Knowles got the other Toronto goals with Don Oberholtzer and fourth Guelph marksman.

Bruce Giesebrecht evened things for Windsor after St. Mike's went into a third period lead. Larry Wilson and Bob McKay got the other Windsor goals with Gord Hannigan, Don Rope and Red McCarthy tallying for St. Mike's.

ANIMAL'S COMFORT IS OBJECT OF HUMANE SOCIETY ACROSS CANADA

The Human Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is ever on the alert against discomfort for animals and with the approach of winter citizens throughout Canada are urged not to neglect their pets. The work of the society is of far-reaching worth. It carries on a constant, efficient program of conservation of animal and bird life which merits the support of the public. Daily the society restores and lengthens the lives of thousands of friendly, beloved, peaceful, unselfish creatures which help to brighten these days of darkness. The Italian greyhound at left shows no signs of neglect. In fact it is well-looked after with a comforter to keep him warm. Needless to say all animals respond to good grooming and care and the two poodles at right clearly illustrate the point. (Central Press Canadian)

LOT OF BULL—No matter how you look at it, its a lot of bull but he doesn't seem to mind being led around by the nose by Miss Dorothy Petrie. In fact, it looks as though he is winking at the photographer. This is Chip of Nettie and Aggie, champion Holstein bull at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto, owned by Franlo Farms, Hopkins, Minnesota. This little animal weighs 3200 pounds. (CP Photo)

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL AT HAMILTON on charges of jumping $10,000 bail and possessing narcotics is Elaine Pelteier, 19, recently deported to Hamilton from the United States. She is seen with her mother and boy friend, Jack Cooper, who came from Windror to be with her. (Lloyd Bloom)

CHINA'S PREMIER HAS INCREDIBLE WOES

HE CAN'T EVEN QUIT HIS JOB—Dr. Wong Kenkao, wry-faced premier of Nationalist China, whose headaches of that country are revealed in his sad face ABOVE. His troubles are so tough he can't even quit the job he finds too difficult to perform. Three times Dr. Wong has tried to resign the hot seat of being premier of a nation staggering under the twin blows of civil war and a strangling inflation. Three times his boss, Generalissimo President Chiang Kai-shek has persuaded Wong to reconsider. (Central press Canadian)

COMPLETES CYCLE—Merritt A. Brown, oldest practicing lawyer in Toronto who celebrated his 93rd birthday Friday, has seen a complete cycle in lighting the Ontario capital. Eighty years ago he helped his mother mould tallow candles. The candles gave way to kerosene lamps and the lamps to the electric bulb. Now with power blackouts, the candle has returned to its own and the ancient candle moulds, shown left, have been hauled out of storage as Mr. Brown makes his own candles. (CP Photo)

PLAY SUDDEN DEATH

Toronto, Nov. 22 — (CP) — Upper Canada College and Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School seniors will play a sudden-death final for the Ontario Rugby Football Union interscholastic championship at a date and place to be decided. However, it is expected the game will be played either in Toronto Friday or in Peterborough Saturday. Peterborough won the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association senior title Saturday for the third straight year by beating Burlington 20-0.

Governor-General To Occupy Box At Winter Fair

Toronto, Nov. 22 — (CP)—Tonight will be a Royal night at the Royal Winter Fair's Horse Show.

The King's Vice-Regal representative, Governor-General Viscount Alexander, will occupy the Royal box. On his arrival Britain's famous soldier will review an honor guard of the Royal Regiment of Canada, drawn up on the tanbark of the arena.

Later he will present the Governor-General's Cup to the owner of the most promising Canadian-owned and bred hunter — a three-year-old mare or gelding.

Ontario's young farmers, owners of prize Hereford, Aberdeen-Angus and Shorthorn steers in boys' and girls' calf clubs across the province, will come into their own at the horse show tonight.

The King's Guineas — 50 guineas awarded from a fund originally created nearly a century ago by King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales — will be presented by Viscount Alexander to the owner of the grand champion steer chosen from 110 entries of the young farmers.

To Sell Steers

There will be an auction, too, at the evening show. The 110 steers will go under the auctioneer's hammer, along with the fair's grand champion steer, wether, lamb and hog.

Tonight's horse show will match the color of Saturday night's performance, which saw Mexico's Capt. Ruben Uriza ride his mount, Hatuay, to their third victory at the fair, winning the coveted International Military Challenge Trophy.

France's monocled team captain Col. Pierre Cavaille, rode Marquis III to second place in the cup test, while Canada's captain, Sqdn.-Ldr. Douglas J. Cleland, took over third spot with a stirring performance on the spirited Chimarro.

Speak Easy, owned by the Rolling Rock Farms of Ligonier, Pa., with Betty Bosley up, won the $1,500 McKee Hunter stake from a field of 33 entries. Crystal Lady, from the A. B. C. farms of Brampton, was driven to victory in the Murdoch Poy Stake by Chap Carter, of Toronto.

All Tops in Breeds

Grand championship rosettes were pinned on seven horses, all tops in their breed, and two sheep in Saturday's judging.

The awards went to:

Palomino Stallion— John Bracken, Manotick, Ont., Bourbon Pot O'Gold; Palomino mare — Hamilton McLean, Richmond Hill, Circle M Jewel; Hackney stallion — J. W. McCracken, Listowel, Seven Up; Hackney mare—Argyll Stables, Mt. Carroll, Ill., Killearn Beauty; Saddle horse stallion — Dufferin Stock Farms, Toronto, Brave Captain; Saddle horse mare — Charles E. Stephens, Milton, my Lucky Charm; Belgian mare — Robert Thomas, Grandon, Sask. Paragon Kitty.

Oxford Down ram — T. H. Peacock, Crystal Beach, Miller 72, and Oxford Down ewe — Robert Coates, Creemore, Lilac Downs Lass 23B.

Rough Riders Ready to Meet Calgary Stamps

Ottawa, Nov. 22 (CP)—Two crowns down and a third to go, Ottawa Rough Riders today were preparing to meet Calgary Stampeders for the Grey Cup on foreign ground.

The Riders, who won the Big Four and Eastern Canadian Championships on home soil, will lock with the Western Canadian champions in Toronto's Varsity Stadium next Saturday.

They earned their way into the battle for the Canadian Football crown by walloping Hamilton Tigers 19-0 Saturday.

The Tigers, Ontario Rugby Football champions, met the Riders on a muddy, foggy field. They were badly outplayed from the start.

Led by Tony (Golden Boy) Golab, the powerful Riders started their victory march towards the Hamilton end early in the game. They broke the Tigers line for three touchdowns, all converted, and a single point.

Golden Boy Golab—a wounded veteran of the Second World War—provided two of the touchdowns, one in the first and another in the third quarter. Bert Haigh took Bob Paffrath's second quarter pass from 10 yards out to provide the third. Eric Chipper converted all three.

Playing a dazzling game for the Riders and doing most of the booting, Howie (Touchdown) Turner kicked a single in the second quarter.

The Tigers had an early setback when playing-coach Frank Filchock injured his arm. It struck Golab's helmet in the first quarter. But despite the injury Filchock continued to play but was hit hard by the Rider line.

The Rider line also did some heavy crushing as the Tigers continued to put up a spirited but ineffective offensive.

PRELUDE TO C.I.O. CONVENTION ON MONDAY

Phillip Murray, RIGHT, president of the C.I.O. chats with Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime union, in Portland, Oregon. Behind Murray is Mollie Lynch, his secretary. Big issues are Taft-Hartley, Reds, and wages. (Central Press Canadian)

Two Shot In Underworld Feud Over Stolen Car

Toronto, Nov. 22 — (CP)—Police Sunday night laid charges against one of two men shot in what officers said was an underworld feud over a stolen car.

They charged Frank Battaglia, 35, with auto theft, receiving and fraud. Battaglia and John Sutherland, 24, both were in hospital with bullet wounds in their legs.

Officers said both men were hit by the same .32-calibre bullet fired at close range. It pierced Sutherland's leg, came out and struck Battaglia.

Police said Battaglia stole a car in Hamilton and sold it to a Toronto dealer after it had been registered falsely.

The two men told police they had been shot while attempting to disarm a drunk. Later they denied the story and refused to give details of the shooting.

THE VENABLES

BY KATHLEEN NORRIS

Only two of the nine flats were occupied; the windows of the others, rain-streaked and broken, thick with dust, were plastered with real estate signs. Neither of the other tenants paid rent, Flo discovered, a fact that made her feel a little easier about accepting this favor from Arnold.

When he and Lily first came to see them, Lily was frankly shocked. Flo felt so badly for her pale, concerned sister that she made light of inconveniences and laughed at the obvious flaws in the new home. She had seen a rusty gas range at the second-hand store in McAllister Street that she was going to buy at a dollar a week just as soon as she got her first salary.

For Flo had quite simply found a job. She had chanced to mention to kindly old Dr. Rotheim, the family dentist, that she was looking for work and at the same time was untrained in any special branch, and he had asked her if she would like to be the girl in his office — wear a white apron and cap, admit patients, keep appointments straight, answer the telephone. He could pay her thirty dollars a month.

On Christmas night they had a dinner party; Lily and Arnold came, Aunt Ida with Calvin and Louise, Aunt Daisy and Aunt Hattie, their grandmother and their own six brought the group to fourteen. There was a small table for Spencer, Weeny and Virgie-Lou; the others were all at the big table, which Flo had decorated with fir sprays and red toyon berries.

She worked all day at the meal, and was tired to exhaustion when half past six o'clock came, but the occasion was a happy and harmonious one and Flo enjoyed the party as much as anyone.

Shortly afterward Arnold and Lily appeared, Lily wearing a new gray ostrich feather boa that made her look very womanly, and Arnold with two bottles of sherry as a gift from his mother.

In the kitchen, tying aprons over their fineries and chattering as fast as their tongues could go, Lily and Flo enjoyed such a talk as they had not had since Lily's marriage eight months earlier. Arnold had given his wife many presents — perfume and lovely lisle stockings and a gold pen.

"He really does love me," Lily said earnestly, her delicate face pink.

"Oh, sure he does," Flo agreed uncomfortably.

"I think," the older sister continued, "that I was too young, I really do. But after a while you — you sort of get used to being married. I mean to thinking about a man before you think about yourself. I mean you have to, Flo. You've got always to think what he'll think, and then what you'd like."

She stretched her slender body to put hot glasses on a pantry shelf, her back toward Flo.

"I can't think how anyone likes to be married," she said in a low tone. "You like a person. But not —not to be married to him."

Suddenly Lily said: "Flo, I think I am going to have a baby. But Arnold told me not to tell you, because it won't be until the last part of July."

Flo, now idle, and sitting opposite her sister, stared at her with awed eyes.

"Oh, Lily Venables, you're not!"

"I think so," Lily said nervously. "Don't say I told you, and if Arnold opens the door and comes out here, be talking about something else. But I think I am. I feel so queer and tired every morning, and then in the afternoon, I just want to do everything."

"But aren't you glad?"

"Yes, I am glad. Only I feel terribly frightened, Flo."

"You won't die. And think of the fun, Lil! A little tiny one, all your own!"

"But Arnold says he'll be bitterly disappointed if it isn't a boy."

"Oh, well, they all say that!"

"Flo, I don't like being married."

Flo winced. She had not wanted to hear it.

• •

Lily's voice thickened. "Quick, you talk about something else, Flo!" she begged, with a half-glance at the door.

"I'll tell you about Allan Wellington," Flo said readily, with a little laugh.

"Who's he?" Lily, who had been about to break, was suddenly diverted.

"He's — oh, he crazy!" Flo said.

"Who is he?"

"Oh, he's a boy who goes to business school in the same building our office is in. He's — about 23, I guess. He's tall and sort of funny-acting," Flo said, confused and laughing again.

"Do you know him?"

"Well, yes. I do now. Two or three times I met him and he'd just look at me or cough or something. And then last week he walked into Dr. Rotheim's office and asked to make an appointment. He said he wanted his teeth examined. Doctor said there was nothing the matter with his teeth, but he'd clean them. So that day he asked me to lunch with him at the Vienna Bakery."

"He didn't"!

"Yes, he did. But I said I couldn't. I'd promised Mama to bring home some pepper. So then he said he'd walk home with me, and I thought it was just as well. It thought it was as well," Flo repeated as if she were thinking aloud, "to let him see just how — things are with us. I told him that Papa was dead, you know, and that my sister's mother-in-law owned these houses and said we could live in one until something turned up. I didn't care what he thought! I mean, I didn't want to go on knowing him and not have him know that we were poor."

"It is generous of Mrs. Belcher," Lily said, not so much hurt as puzzled at this view of the gift.

"Well, it is and it isn't," Flo answered, unimpressed by the hint of hauteur that was quite new in Lily's manner. "Six of these flats are empty, you know, and that tailor that lives in the basement next door doesn't pay any rent. His wife says the Belchers have owed them money for I don't know how long."

"That's not true!" Lily said, her face suddenly hot.

"He may not have said exactly that," Flo said, trying to remember it. "It had something to do with some other piece of property that Sobolski had a lease on, or something, and so Mrs. Belcher let him come in here for nothing. He tells a regular yarn about it."

"Well, I don't believe it!" Lily said with feeling. She might not be happy with them, but she never would quite lose her awe of the high position of the Belchers.

Her back was toward the door. But she did not glance toward it or change her position by a single muscle as Flo said smoothly:

"I'll tell you another thing, Lil: 'Member Dolly always cheating us about getting first bath, and the wet sheet? What a life she must have led, keeping the whole crowd of us going, changing cribs and washing bottles! 'Member how they used to shake shot around in the baby's bottle to wash it?"

"Shot? Who used shot?" Arnold said, joining them. "Lily, I've been waiting for you, dear. I thought when the dishes were finished you were coming in."

"Flo and I got talking," Lily said, smiling as she jumped to her feet.

"I thought we'd find Flo at the bottom of it," Arnold said, pleasantly, as they all went back to the parlor.

The Belcher carriage was waiting, very much admired by the Christmas crowds in the street. Going home, Arnold asked his wife if she had told Flo about the possibility of a baby's arrival.

"Oh, no," Lily said.

"Tell your mother?"

"No, I thought not yet."

"We decided not to say anything yet, you know. Well, what were you and Flo talking about so long?"

"We weren't talking long, really. The girls were there, and Georgie for a while."

"Not Georgie. He was in working with his camera."

"Oh, yes, he went back to the parlor."

"I would be curious to know what was so interesting that my Lily forgot to come in and see her mother and grandmother."

"Oh, lots of things. We were remembering Papa, and the Christmas my little sister Ida was born. That was just before Papa died."

"You must have been an hour at it. Certainly you had a good deal to remember," Arnold commented.

"Oh, yes," Lily said with a little laugh, after a desperate hunt for safer territory. "And Flo has a beau!"

"Has she indeed? Not the old doctor?"

"Not Dr. Rotheim, no. He has grandchildren. He's awfully old No. It's a boy who goes to business school in the same building where Flo works. She told me his name, wait a minute. Alan something, I think; Alan Wellington, that's it."

"Where'd she ever meet Alan Wellington?" Arnold asked in quite changed tone.

"Why, do you know him Arnold?"

"I asked you a question, Lily."

"I beg your pardon. She met him — he's a patient of Dr. Rotheim's, and he came in," Lily said, rapidly adjusting the circumstances to fit propriety. "So he wanted to take her to lunch, and he walked home with her and came in and met Mama."

"What makes you think he did?" Arnold often met her communications in this tone, and she was used to it.

"Well, Flo said so."

"Said he liked her?"

"Well, I don't know that she said that."

CATARRH and SINUS trouble ... Splendid Results from treatment

Sufferers from the distressing symptoms and wretched discomforts of Catarrh, Sinus and Antrum troubles may now win real relief as thousands of others have done— thanks to Lantigen "B". Letter after letter received in the offices of Lantigen Laboratories Limited tell of the splendid results obtained from the Lantigen "B" treatment. Lantigen "B" is the modern oral way of obtaining relief from Catarrh and Sinus (including Antrum) infections, also common types of Bronchial Asthma and Bronchitis. As many sufferers know, catarrh and sinusitis are due to a bacterial infection of the air passages of the head. This may extend down the trachea ("windpipe") to the bronchial tubes and may cause Bronchial Asthma and Bronchitis. To raise the defenses of the body against this bacterial infection a special dissolved vaccine for oral administration — Lantigen "B" — was prepared. Lantigen "B" is taken by mouth. Full directions, including reduced dosages for children, are given with every bottle and when taken as directed Lantigen "B" will help to bring welcome relief from the discomforts of Catarrh, Sinusitis and common types of Bronchial Asthma and Bronchitis. Sufferers from these complaints should also take care to secure adequate rest; maintain proper eating habits, avoid constipation, wet feet and chills. Start on the road to relief immediately—with the widely acclaimed Lantigen "B" treatment. Get a bottle of Lantigen "B" from your druggist today. For further information write to Lantigen Laboratories Limited, 12 Richmond Street East, Toronto.

ARTERIAL AILMENT AFFECTS THE KING'S HEALTH

Freighter With 29 Men Believed Lost

British Vessel Reported Weather Damage on Nov. 13

Weather Conditions Delay Search by R.C.A.F. Planes

Halifax, Nov. 23 — (CP) — A storm-damaged British freighter, en route from England to Philadelphia with possibly 29 men aboard, is overdue and presumably lost in an area some 400 miles southeast of Halifax.

The 5,267-ton freighter Hopestar sailed from Newcastle Nov. 2 and reported "heavy weather damage" on Nov. 13. That was the last word heard from her.

R.C.A.F. search and rescue officials here said the United States Coast Guard had dispatched a Canso aircraft from Argentia, Nfld., to the area. R. C. A. F. planes would join the search when weather conditions cleared.

Further details were not available here.

WITNESSES SAY MRS. POHL AFRAID OF WM. STUART

Jury Inquiring Into Woman's Death Wades Through Mass of Evidence

Woodstock, Nov. 23 (CP)— A five man coroner's jury continued today to wade through a tangled mass of evidence surrounding the life of Mrs. Emma Pohl, who disappeared Sept. 13 from her Kitchener home and was found strangled Oct. 25.

Ten of the 20 witnesses scheduled for the inquest were called Monday night.

Two of them testified that Mrs. Pohl was "afraid" of William Stuart, her former boy friend, who is held on a charge of public mischief.

Her disappearance at the same time as Stuart's mother apparently vanished set Western Ontario Police combing the countryside until her half-clad body was discovered —a cloth noose twisted around her neck —in a deserted thicket near Ayr.

Mrs. Stewart turned up in London, England, where she said she was vivsiting friends.

Threatened to Kill

Beverley Patient, Mrs. Pohl's 13-year-old daughter by a previous marriage, said her mother was afraid of Stewart. She said Mrs. Pohl told her that Stuart threatened to kill her unless she forgot about $600 she loaned him to buy a car.

Statements Stuart made to police about the $600 he said he repaid Mrs. Pohl the day she vanished led to his arrest on a public mischief charge. Police said they did not believe some of the statements. Stuart released on $4,000 bail after six weeks in custody.

Mrs. Nora Crye, who lived next door to Mrs. Pohl in a Kitchener suburb, testified that Mrs. Pohl was afraid of Stuart and "just didn't like to be with him."

Beverley Patient testified for more than two hours.

After she told of the alleged threat of her mother's life, Crown Attorney Craig McKay told the jury her statements were simply "hearsay" and the girl did not see or hear the statement being made.

Says Signature Forgery

A former R.C.M.P. handwriting expert, Stephen Lett, said the signature of Mrs. Pohl on a receipt she gave Stuart was genuine.

(Police had previously suggested the signature on the receipt was a forgery.)

Inspector Ewan Cameron of the Kitchener police said he questioned Stuart Oct. 1 about the $600 and was told it had been won gambling.

Mrs. Pohl's daughter said that Stuart had asked her to marry him when she went to question him about her mother's disappearance.

Her mother had told her she was going to see Stuart to get the $600 "and that is the last time I saw her alive," the 13-year-old girl said.

When her mother did not return Beverley said she went to Stuart's house and was told he had given Mrs. Pohl the money.

Then "he wanted to know if I'd marry him. I said I couldn't marry him until I was 18 or 21. I said how do I know you aren't married and have 10 kids," the girl testified. "He said he hadn't and would wait for me."

Driver Admits Starting Fire That Killed Child

Cleveland, Nov. 23 — (AP) — Police said today a truck driver admitted he started a fire that killed an 11-year-old girl because he "only meant to scare" the child's mother for spurning his attentions.

Harry Rich, police said, signed a statement Monday night after eight hours of questioning, admitting he put a match to a wad of tissue paper and a dresser cover in an East-Side rooming house early Monday.

Police quoted the statement as saying Rich had been drinking heavily and was jealous because he had seen Mrs. Lucille Balough, 38, in the company of another man.

It was the widowed Mrs. Balough's daughter, Marilyn, who was choked to death by smoke from the fire. Another daughter, Joanne, 15, found unconscious beside her sister, was in critical condition at hospital, but appeared to be recovering from the effects of the smoke.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Nov. 23 (CP)—Synopsis: A weak disturbance, the remnant of the intense storm of last Friday and Saturday, has finally moved out of Ontario. In its wake considerable cloudiness persists but no precipitation is occurring. An outbreak of polar air pushing southward across the prairies is losing some of its drive and is not expected to extend farther than the White River region Wednesday. Snowflurries in advance of it will reach the Kirkland Lake region late Wednesday.

Cancellation of Royal Tour Stuns Business Circles in Australia

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 23 — (CP) — Australian business circles today were stunned by Prime Minister Chifley's announcement that the projected royal tour of Australia has been cancelled.

Chifley made the announcement Monday in a special broadcast saying he agreed with the King's physicians in advising a cancellation of the tour due to an acute circulatory condition.

For months all the cities and towns on the route of the proposed tour had prepared for presentation of the most lavish pageantry in Australia's history.

The cancellation means the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars to firms connected with tour preparations. Hotels throughout the country, where Their Majesties were scheduled to visit, were booked out months ago. Milliners and dressmakers have orders worth thousands of pounds that will have to be cancelled.

Insurance companies will be among the heaviest losers despite the fact they charged heavy premiums on all business. Insurance was restricted to firms who were forced to lay out money on the preparations.

As soon as Chifley finished broadcasting, messages of regret at the cancellation and relief that the King's illness was not serious, began to pour in. The principal concern was for the King's health.

10,000-MAN NAVY WITH FAST ESCORT AIM OF DOMINION

New Escort is Answer To Sub Developments

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 23 (CP)—Canada is building towards a navy of 10,000 men and is going to arm them with a fast new escort vessel, better than either the frigate or corvette, for the anti-submarine role that still is considered their primary function in any new war, it was learned today.

Naval circles said their current strength of less than 7,500 men is considerably below the minimum needed for effective training, but are fairly satisfied that they are slowly moving towards the desired manpower target. The figure of 10,000 represents the minimum.

Although major repairs and rearmament are usually under way, the navy now has no ships under construction but hopes to have keels laid in Canadian shipyards within the next year or so for the anti-sub escort craft that now is in the blueprint stage, as well as for some new minesweepers.

The new vessel is considered an answer to the latest developments in submarines, which Germany had carried to a new degree of deadliness by the end of the war.

Naval Equivalent Of Jet Interceptor

It also is somewhat of a naval equivalent of the new jet interceptor fighter plane the R.C.A.F. is building to suit air needs pecular to Canada.

A lot of its equipment will be standardized with that used in United States craft, a new reflection of the trend towards standardization among the Allied nations.

The navy has its own air arm now but feels that new developments indicate that surface craft, in co-operation with air, will be just as important in handling submarines as in the late stages of the recent war. The frigate will continue to be useful although not fully effective. The corvette is out.

$1,181,508 Paid Out For Hospital Building

Toronto, Nov. 23 (CP—The Ontario government has paid out $1,181,508 for hospital construction and promised $3,308,245 more in capital grants during the last two years, Ontario Health Minister Kelley said Monday night in a broadcast address. Mr. Kelley said this was the first time capital grants had been paid on a uniform plan to hospitals by a provincial government. The plan was started less than two years ago.

No 1949-50 Winter Cut-Offs Hope of Ontario Hydro Com., Buy Diesel, Steam Equipment

Toronto, Nov. 23 (CP) — The Ontario Hydro Commission will acquire sufficient auxiliary diesel and steam-generating equipment so that "we are very hopeful" power cut-offs in Southern Ontario will not be necessary in the winter of 1949-50, Commission Chairman Robert Saunders said today.

Mr. Saunders said none of the Commission's water power plants now under construction could be expected to alleviate the power shortage before 1950. Auxiliary equipment was the only answer if recurrence of cut-offs was to be avoided.

Complete estimates of how much auxiliary equipment is to be installed by next fall would be in his hands within a day or two, Mr. Saunders said.

At the same time, Mayor Hiram McCallum of Toronto said he will "demand" that the Toronto Commission halt evening blackouts here for at least a trial period.

Mayor McCallum said he would meet with the Toronto Commission and Mr. Saunders later today.

Ottawa Valley Production

He added that he could not see why increased power production from the Ottawa valley should not be used to alleviate the Toronto shortage.

Mr. Saunders said it was unlikely additional purchases would be made in Quebec as companies there were having difficulty meeting power demands.

He said auxiliary equipment would be "considerably in excess" of the Diesel units already contracted for to produce 720,000 kilowatt hours a day. These were three 10,000 kilowatt sets, scheduled for delivery in September October and November.

Included in new power sources is an additional steam unit at Steel Company of Canada at Hamilton. The commission now is getting 84,000 kilowatt hours daily from Stelco and the company has boilers which can produce a further 240,000 kilowatt hours a day.

Generators have been ordered and will be installed in time to start power deliveries by spring.

Mr. Saunders was to discuss with the Toronto Hydro Com-

ONE DEAD, 2 HURT IN CAR CRASH NEAR BANCROFT

Three Men from Toronto Paper Riding in Car Which Collides With Truck

Bancroft, Nov. 23—One man was killed and two injured Monday afternoon when a car in which they were riding collided with a Department of Highways truck on Highway 62, 10 miles north of here. All three men were employees of the Toronto Evening Telegram.

Robert Smith, 23, of 612 Mortimer Ave., driver of the car was killed when the dump part of the truck struck the car's windshield. Injured were James Rutter, of 503 Ontario St., and James Sykes, of 81 Burlington Rd.

Smith was going to Maynooth when the truck, driven by Allen Stringer came down Selba Hill. As he began to make a turn on the hill, the back part of the truck hit the windshield of Smith's car.

Smith was taken to the Red Cross Hospital in Bancroft at 5:15 p.m., and died about an hour later. Sykes has arm and leg injuries and spent the night at the hospital while Rutter, suffering a slight leg injury, is remaining in a Bancroft hotel. The driver of the truck was not injured.

All three men work for the circulation department of the Toronto daily and were believed to be making a tour of the district on business.

An inquest into Smith's death will be held today, with Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson, of Bancroft, presiding. Dr. J. B. McKay, Belleville pathologist, will be present.

Cpl. S. W. Palmateer and Constables Doug. Ketcheson and G. Harding, all of the provincial police investigated.

HILLSBURG YOUTH WINS GUINEAS FOR SECOND TIME

Ken McKinnon Sells Steer for $3 Pound

Toronto, Nov. 23 — (CP)—Last of 10,000 rosettes and ribbons pinned to winning farm exhibits at the eight-day Royal Winter Fair will be awarded today as the fair's corps of judges winds up its task one day before the big show ends.

In the judging ring today will be the last of the beef cattle and the last of the Clydesdale draught horses — and the first of the large-scale auctioning of livestock exhibits will begin.

Swine and sheep will go under the auctioneer's hammer. Also up for sale will be many of the beef and pork carcasses which have hung in the fair's huge glassed-in refrigerators.

Largest horse-show audience of the fair to date filled the Coliseum to the walls Monday night to greet the Governor-General and Lady Alexander on their first visit to the fair.

Presented by Gov.-General

Nineteen-year-old Kenneth McKinnon of Hillsburg stepped up to receive for the second successive time his 50 guineas, the historic prize inaugurated by King Edward VII, from the hands of Viscount Alexander.

Ken was the owner of Danny Boy — more formally, Triumph of Sunny Slope — the Aberdeen-Angus steer which he raised on his father's 250-acre Wellington county farm to win the grand championship of all steers entered by 96 members of Ontario's Boys' and Girls' Calf Clubs.

He also walked off with the Kennedy Trophy, given him by Ontario's Premier T. L. Kennedy for his winning steer.

Later in the evening an auction sale, held in the crowded arena, added $2,760 to his King's guineas when Danny Boy sold for $3 a pound. It was considerably less than the $10,030 which he took home last year from the showing and sale of another prize Angus, Torchy.

Three other grand champions of the show went on the auctioneer's block Monday night before the silk-hatted, evening-gowned audience in the box-seats.

$6 per Pound

Cannonball, grand champion steer of the show, sold for $6 a pound, bringing his owner, Lloyd Mock of Rockwood, a total of $5,280.

The cutest lamb in the show—and its grand champion — was sold for $400 by its owner, W. J. Brodie of Stouffville. Earl B. Zavitz of Alvinston, saw his grand championship hog go under the hammer at $1.50 a pound.

Secrecy on 700-Ton Arsenal Relaxed Briefly to Show Dump is 'Safest Place'

By RAE CORELLI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Halifax, Nov. 23 —(CP)— A shroud of military secrecy surrounding a 700-ton arsenal of high explosives was whisked aside here Monday for a few hours and a party of jittery outsiders got a look at "the safest place in the world to work."

Huddled in sheltered Bedford Basin, the ammunition dump — Bedford magazine — could blow this city to smithereens, and one terror-haunted night in 1945 many thought that was going to happen when explosives let go with an earth shaking blast that rocked he old port to its foundations. Scars of that holocaust can still be seen.

It was the Navy's idea to relax for a day security measures and a band of newspaper men and civic officials were led through rooms piled high with destruction They saw tiers of aerial bombs—1,000 pounders sacked in rows, shells and mortar rockets.

With grim memories of the '45 blow-up—it killed one man and levelled one-third of the built-up area —the navy is storing all explosives behind walls.

Each storage and laboratory building is surrounded by towering concrete traverses, or abutments, built recently. Theory offered by G. M. Luther, superintendent of the naval armament depot, is that should a blast occur, intentionally weakened roofs strengthened walls and the abutments would direct the main force of the explosion upwards.

There are 120 workers— all civilians—and they wear special clothing and soft-soled shoes to circumvent possibility of sparks setting off munitions.

In a second unexpected move, the navy also relaxed for a day security measures on the closely guarded sprawling naval armament depot on the Harbor's eastern shore. The $100,000,000, 120-acre munitions base is closed to "unrestricted travel."

No Engagements Of Public Nature For Six Months

Announcement Says Blood Clot Not Cause of Illness

London, Nov. 23 — (CP) — The King is suffering from an arterial ailment, Buckingham Palace official correspondents reported today. All his public engagements have been cancelled.

The announcement, apparently authorized by the King himself, said the ailment did not involve a blood clot.

The King's physicians said in a medical bulletin early today the King suffered from "an obstruction in the circulation of the legs which has only recently become acute" and that a defective blood supply to the right foot caused anxiety.

Newspapers and court circles generally interpreted the bulletin to mean that a blood clot had formed in the King's right leg. This belief was heightened by the physicians' instruction that the King's projected tour of Australia and New Zealand next year should be cancelled because the strain "might well involve serious risk to a limb."

Whether the palace correspondents' dispatch meant the King is suffering from phlebitis was not clear. Phlebitis is an inflammation of the inner membrance of the veins. The dispatch was sent out after Sir John Weir, the Royal family physician, paid a morning call on the King. This was several hours after issuance of the first bulletin.

The news was released at 1:30 a.m. today (8:30 p.m. EST Monday) by Buckingham Palace so it could be announced simultaneously in the parliaments of Australia and New Zealand that the royal tour of those countries set for 1949 had been abandoned.

The King's five physicians announced they had decided "that it would be hazardous for His Majesty to embark upon a long journey which might delay his recovery and which might well involve serious risk to a limb."

The King will continue to discharge duties which can be handled from his office in the palace. All outside appearances will either be abandoned or delegated to the Queen, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret, and Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh.

News of the 52-year-old King's illness — his first serious ailment since 1917 when he underwent an operation for duodenal ulcer — eclipsed the Empire's rejoicing at the birth of a son to Princess Elizabeth a week ago.

The announcement, which came as a complete surprise and shock to the entire Commonwealth, said his doctors had ordered complete rest for the King. Palace sources said he would fill no public engagements for at least six months.

No Reason for Concern

The King's doctors, who attended him before and after the birth of Princess Elizabeth's son in the Palace Nov. 14, stressed that the Monarch's general health, including his heart, "gives no reason for concern."

The doctors gave no specific medical name to the King's ailment. The possibility that the King is suffering from phlebitis was suggested in some quarters, but responsible sources declined to go beyond the official statement.

In their bulletin, the doctors said that "no doubt the strain of 12 years has appreciably affected his resistance to physical strain."

"It would be hazardous," they added, "to embark upon a long journey which might delay recovery and involve serious risk to limb."

Think Illness Due To Hardening Of the Arteries

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—Medical authorities here said today London reports of the King's illness "add up" to something due to hardening of the arteries.

This source of trouble is indicated, they said, by three facts:

1. The "acute onset," that is, the obstruction to circulation to the King's right foot has been fairly rapid.

2. The fact that the trouble is reported to be limited to one leg.

3. The King's age. He is at the time of life when there is nearly always some hardening in arteries.

Against this view, they added, is the fact that an official Palace announcement says the trouble is not due to a blood clot. One of the common sources of trouble when hardening of arteries is one of the causes of poor leg circulation is a femoral thrombosis, meaning a clot in the main artery that supplies blood to the leg.

Formerly surgical operation was often used to get rid of such clots. Recently two new drugs have been in quite general use to dissolve clots and so avoid cutting.

Battle Against TB, Worldwide Says D. L. Storey

"Because tuberculosis is a disease which you have to attack wherever you find it, and we, therefore, attack it here in Hastings County, we must not forget that it is a world-wide campaign," Mr. D. L. Storey, chairman of the Christmas Seal Committee said today urging that everyone use Christmas Seals on all parcels and letters, and particularly those going a long way.

"When I see a letter from India, or Australia, or Norway, with one of their Christmas Seals on it, it reminds me that across the ocean there are also men and women fighting TB, and I'm encouraged, and I think any worker would feel much the same," said Mr. Storey. He said he liked to think that somewhere in Norway, Sweden, China or any other country someone looked at one of Canada's seals and spotting the double-barred cross of the anti-tuberculosis workers was encouraged to renewed effort.

"I should think that nearly every country in the world would get some kind of letter or parcel from someone in this community this Christmas. I hope that along with the good wishes the person getting the parcel will get the message, conveyed by the Christmas seals, that Canada is fighting tuberculosis."

Crash May Halt Fliers World Flight 7,000 Miles Short

Fairbanks, Alaska, Nov. 23. (AP)—Mrs. Richard Morrow-Tait, British flier, said today the crash landing of her single-engined plane in Alaska may halt her world flight 7,000 miles short of its goal.

She said her funds for the trip are exhausted; but she spent her 25th birthday Monday pondering how to go about getting the wrecked craft, "Thursday's Child", off an Alaska highway.

She blamed engine trouble for the forced landing. She and her navigator, Michael Townsend, brought the plane down Sunday on a road 200 miles southeast of here while on a planned hop from Anchorage to Northway near the Canada-Alaska line.

Second Mulliken Iron Lung Presented City by Kinsmen

Members of the local Kinsmen Club presented their second Mulliken Iron Lung to the city of Belleville when at their dinner meeting Monday evening President Frank Lang presented the "lung" to Mayor D. L. Storey. The lung will be kept at the Belleville General Hospital for use in emergency.

The first Mulliken Iron Lung was presented by the club to the city some months ago and since that time has been instrumental in saving several lives. The last instance of the lung being put to use in life saving was at Rossmore where a young boy was revived after being nearly drowned. The lung has also been used for reviving patients at the local hospital.

Appreciating the fact that at least two lives had been saved at the Belleville hospital through use of the lung, the executive of the local service club decided to purchase the second lung to be kept at the hospital for emergencies. The first lung donated by the club is kept at the fire station.

In presenting the lung to Mayor Storey, President Lang referred to the interest of two club members, Art Cruji and Ernie Colborne, principally through whose efforts the second lung was made possible.

"I trust that there will never be an occasion to put this lung to use, but if there is just such an emergency then this iron lung will come in handy," stated the mayor as he accepted the lung from the service club.

POLICE COURT

Arraigned on two charges of fraudulently obtaining room and board at the Hotel Quinte, Leslie Abraham, Peterboorough, was remanded for one week when he appeared in city magistrate's court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills today.

Abraham was arrested in Peterborough at the request of local police and was returned here to stand trial on the two charges. The accused was represented in court by Alan Sprague, local solicitor.

Court proceedings were of a brief nature with the majority of cases listed being for traffic offences which were settled out of court. A local resident was fined $13 and costs for illegal possession of spirits, while an out-of-town woman was given ten days in jail on a vagrancy charge.

Urgent Appeal Made to Rotary To Support Fund

An urgent appeal to Rotarians to support the Rotary International Foundation Fund was made to the Belleville Club on Monday when District Governor Ed. Simmons, Trenton, paid his annual visit to the clubmen at their weekly luncheon at the Hotel Quinte.

In his address Governor Simmons pointed out that he had found there was too much lack of understanding regarding the Fund which had been started to foster international goodwill by the exchange and sponsorship of foreign students, and which after the death of Paul Harrison founder of Rotary had been named a fund to his memory.

"Sixteen districts and 1,600 clubs on the North American continent had contributed 100 per cent to the fund, but others were well behind," he said. Belleville is "about halfway." Clubs on the fringe of civilization had paid 100 per cent and some of them more.

"First quota at two million dollars the Fund now has reached the $2,600,000 mark," Governor Simmons said. Its purpose was to foster international goodwill. "We do not know what is going on behind that Iron Curtain, and the nations directly in front of it are too easily influenced."

Will Spread Benefits

At the present time thirty-eight men and women between the ages of 22-28 are reaping the benefits of the earnings of the fund. They are studying in America and will spread the benefits of democracy among their own people when they are finished.

"Rotary International," Governor Simmons said, "is seriously considering the formation of a clearing house of democratic information for those who do not know what democracy is."

"Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain said that when you remove suspicion from the minds of men, we shall have everlasting peace" the governor went on. "The purpose of the Foundation Fund and the clearing houses is to remove suspicion.

Doing Wonderful Things

Rotary has been doing some wonderful things, the governor pointed out. "You have never been asked for very much. There has been no increase in dues. Looking backward twenty-six years and noting Rotary's growth and then looking ahead it is plain that "we have not yet got our forefeet on the ground."

Governor Simmons dwelt for some time on the matter of attendance. He deplored the fact "that this club to which so many district clubs look for leadership, and which is given" had fallen into the low brackets of attendance records on the continent. "You are letter-perfect in classification, but the attendance is badly in need of revival," he said.

Governor Simmons was introduced by President Mack Macklem with club appreciation expressed by Rotarian Dr. Bert Howard. The governor holds the record of perfect attendance since he joined Rotary 26 years ago last February.

Film Council Work and Service Described

The set-up of the Belleville and District Film Council and the service which it provides for the community, was explained to members of the local Kinsmen Club at their dinner meeting Monday evening when they were addressed by Bill Davies, official of the council.

Concluding the address by Mr. Davies, two films from the Film Council Library were shown on the screen giving club members an idea of the wide range of films available for showing through the local organization.

Mr. Davies gave a brief history of the local Council and told of its organization is 1945. Service clubs and other organizations in the city had been canvassed for donations to provide funds for the Council, while both the county council and city council had made substantial contributions. At the present time over $1,300 had been spent by the council in equipment and films.

Wide Range of Films

The speaker noted that a wide range of educational and other films were available and could be rented for showing at meetings. Film rental for black and white films was 50 cents and $1 for color. Projector and operators were supplied by the Council at no cost. Bookings for films should be made with the Council Secretary, Miss Olive Delaney at the Corby Library.

"The Belleville and District Film Council is providing a really worthwhhile service to the community and is deserving of public support," stated Mr. Davies in conclusion.

Eye Clinic Equipment

Lawrence Kells, public school inspector for Belleville, was present at the meeting and demonstrated two pieces of equipment recently purchased by the Club to assist in their eye clinic work. These two machines are the Massachusetts Vision Test and the American Optical Project-O-Chart.

In explaining the use of the two machines Mr. Kells pointed out that they were not designed for professional use but were for lay use only. The one machine will be used by the school nurse to test for visual acuity and for eye strain and to indicate cases where there is lack of binocular coordination.

The second machine, the project-o-chart, was stated to provide a mechanical means of segregating the characters on the test chart and thus make it impossible for children to memorize the test characters on the chart, thus preventing an accurate measurement of vision.

The advantage of the two machines was that they could be used individually, and thus enable a greater number of children to be tested in a given time.

President Frank Lang presided over the meeting while the guest speaker was introduced by Kin Art Cruji. Club pins to two new members, Don Coghill, court reporter, and Gilbert Wamboldt, radio engineer, were presented by Kin Harry Rollins.

Accidental Death In Mrs. D. Heath Case

A verdict of accidental death was returned by the coroner's jury at the adjourned inquest held Monday evening looking into the death of Mrs. David Heath, R.R. 2, Stirling, who was instantly killed November 13th, when struck by a car as she was walking on the Ridge Road, east of Stirling.

In its verdict the jury recommended that the car which struck the woman be put into first class mechanical condition before it was again driven on the highway.

The inquest was held at the county court room before Coroner Dr. E. A. Carleton with Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson acting for the Crown. Five witnesses were called to testify.

Mrs. Heath suffered fatal injuries when as she was walking on the Ridge Road she was struck by a car driven by Melbourne Moorcroft of R.R. 3, Stirling.

Crop Report

Water Conditions Nearing Normal

Toronto, Nov. 23 —(CP)—Moisture conditions are generally improved throughout Ontario and fall plowing was well advanced, it was shown in the weekly crop report of the Ontario Agriculture Department, released today.

Fall work was largely completed in Western Ontario. In some sections, open weather permitted farmers to leave young stock on pasture.

Water supplies were getting back to normal in Southern Ontario. Generally favorable weather was experienced.

Eastern Ontario reported improved water conditions, but more rainfall still was needed in certain sections. Good weather permitted plowing of a greater acreage than usual. The winter feed situation also was more favorable than for several years.

Northern Ontario experienced snow in several districts. Fall work was well advanced on most farms.

Ask 1st Grade Cheese Only be Exported

Toronto, Nov. 23 — (CP) — Directors of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association said Monday lower grades of Canadian cheese are being shipped to England because of "haphazard methods" of inspection. They passed a resolution recommending that only first-grade cheese be exported.

'Hack' Wilson, Dies, Held Home-Run Record for Nationals

Baltimore, Nov. 23 — (AP) — Lewis R. (Hack) Wilson, who held the National League home - run record, died in city hospital today.

He was taken to the hospital late Monday when he became ill and doctors said he died of internal haemorrhages complicated by a condition similar to pneumonia.

Wilson, 48, was hurt in a fall at his home last month and was in hospital about a week.

He came to Baltimore in 1941 and got a job in a war plant, but in recent years he had been an employee of the Municipal Parks Department. He started as a laborer and last summer was made manager of a park swimming pool.

Hack broke into the majors with New York Giants in 1924 and joined Chicago Cubs two years later. He reached his peak with the Cubs in 1930, when he smashed out 56 home runs and drove in 190 runs.

Stresses Great Need For Ministry Candidates

Windsor, Nov. 23 (CP)—There is a great need today for candidates for the ministry, the Essex Laymen's Association was told Monday night by Very Rev. T. W. Jones, M.A., of Montreal, past moderator of the United Church of Canada.

Dr. Jones headed the United Church delegation to the first meeting of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam, Holland, last Summer.

"A new emphasis must be placed on the task of religious education of boys and girls and young people of the church. This education is necessary in order to induce a sufficient number of youths to become candidates for the ministry," he said.

NO CUT-OFFS

mission a proposal for the Ontario Hydro to purchase Diesel sets for $2,800,000 to generate sufficient power to meet 40 per cent of Toronto's shortage.

The Toronto Labor Council Monday night laid the blame for the power shortage on the political blundering of George Drew" and "the fakers in the Toronto Hydro Commission."

The Labor body called for a meeting of city council, Hydro authorities, industry, labor and consumer groups to discuss methods of ending the black outs.

"If we are not invited to such a meeting we will secure expert advice and present our own program on Hydro conservation to the people," Labor Council President Murray Cotterill said.

1,000,000 K.W.H More for Ontario

Recent heavy rainfall in the Ottawa Valley has enabled Quebec companies to provide Ontario with another 1,000,000 kilowatt hours a week. The amount brought in from Quebec last week approximated 20,587,000 kilowatt hours, as against the 44,535,000 kilowatt hours called for in the original contract.

As in the case of Ontario itself, Quebec found its generating plants falling behind in production after a long summer's drought shrank streamflow. Much of the power which Ontario had hoped to import from Quebec to overcome its hydro difficulties was unavailable.

A meeting to review power quotas for all Ontario municipalities was scheduled for today.

Word that the additional power would be available came as Toronto prepared to extend its three-a-day hydro breaks to the downtown area tomorrow. So far, due to the necessity of special arrangements for switch-pulling in the main business district, the heart of the city has escaped the cutoffs which the rest of Toronto has undergone every week-day.

Mayor Hiram E. McCallum said he hoped the downtown cutoff would save enough power to enable elimination of Toronto's 45-minute evening blackout.

Shift of Industry

Industry was reported considering a further shift of industry to Sunday work. Already 185 Toronto industries are working week-end shifts, with 40 on Sunday operations.

Danger of fire from gasoline-operated generators, coal-oil lamps, stoves and other equipment now in use during blackout periods was said to be causing concern to city and provincial fire chiefs. Plans for adequate inspection of gasoline-operated equipment were considered.

The Niagara Falls City Council decided Monday night to inquire what disposition the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission will make of commission properties when the proposed $150,000,000 new tunnel and addition to the Queenston powerhouse is completed.

HILLSBURG YOUTH

Picked as Canada's most promising half-bred three-year-old hunter, Camside Export won the Governor-General's Cup for her owner, J. E. Jeffery of Hyde Park. Presentation was made by Viscount Alexander.

For the sixth successive night a Mexican rider — this time team captain Col. Humberto Mariles—dashed the hopes of French and Canadian riders of winning a military jumping event at the horse show.

His mount, Resorte, made its first appearance at the show and put on a faultless performance. Canada's best jumper, Lieut. W. R. Ballard on Skip Across, was forced into a tie for fourth place with France's best, Maj. Pierre de Mapeou.

Animal Sickness

First instance of serious sickness among livestock exhibits occurred during the weekend, and by Monday two of the show cattle had died.

Owners said that large numbers of animals in the barns were being treated by veterinarians for shipping fever or pneumonia complex.

Three British farm experts, visiting the fair Monday, told a press conference they were convinced Canada and Britain could "lick the world" with livestock bred from the best of stock in both countries.

They were Lord Digby of Cerne Abbey, Dorchester; Maj. Edward Griffith of Denbighshire, Wales, and Alex Hobson, Secretary of the Royal Agricultural Society of England.

Mentioned especially by the visitors were certain British breeds of beef cattle which, they said, were ideally suited for Canada's far-north farms.

The Awards

Two Canadian cattle experts, W. S. Brooks of Paris, and V. B. Leonard of Clarence, N.S., were awarded Master Breeders' Diplomas by the Canadian Guernsey Breeders' Association, meeting at the fair.

A Prince Edward Island farmer, Harold Laird of Kensington, was elected president of the Guernsey Association, succeeding W. T. Richardson of Sardis, B.C.

One Maritime and one prairie farmer were among four winners of grand championships in beef cattle judging.

They were Hereford bulls—, Warren Smith, Olds, Alta., Real Domino, Supreme; Dual-Purpose Shorthorn Bulls—Cossar Farm, Gagetown, N.B., Cossar Cornerstone; Shorthorn Bulls —S. G. Bennett, Georgetown, Scotsdale Bombardier, and Aberdeen-Angus Bulls—Don Head Farms, Richmond Hill, Bandolier of Don Head 19th.

In Clydesdale Stallion judging, a grand championship was won by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, with Graigie Diplomat.

Eight championship ribbons in sheep judging went to:

Suffolk Rams—Elmcroft Farms, Oshawa, Abbots Noctule; Suffolk Ewes—William Clarkson and Son, Weston, East Comno R51; Cotswold Rams—F. G. Glaspell, Hampton, Glaspell IA; Cotswold Ewes—Charles Shore, Glanworth, Shore 5B; Leicester Rams—W. A. Douglas and Son, Caledonia, Douglas W. A. IB; Leicester Ewes—Douglas A. Cumming, Russell, Russel Lady 2B; Cheviot Rams—C. U. Walton, Kettleby, Walton 2C; and Cheviot Ewes —D. E. McDowell, Mercer, Pa., McDowell 1296.

W. European Parliament Beyond Attainment Now Said to be Britain's View will advise her Brussels-pact allies tomorrow that a Western European parliament is beyond present-day achievement, authoritative British sources said today.

A committee of representatives of the Alliance Powers — Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg — will meet here tomorrow to begin a study of how to promote greater European unity.

Last month when the five powers announced they were asking the United States and Canada to join with them in a North Atlantic defence pact, France and Belgium proposed establishment of a western European consultative parliament.

The British informants said their labor government felt it was not feasible now to convoke such a parliament because it believes:

1. Members of the proposed parliament would not represent, in the democratic sense, any group of people because it would not be possible now to hold elections on a representative basis.

2. Continental unity, with a solid base established chiefly through economic co-operation, should precede such a parliament.

3. Formation of such a parliament would just be going through the motions of federating Europe, would accomplish nothing and might damage what practical political unity now exists in western Europe.

The results of the committee talks will be reported to the five-power foreign ministers, who will meet here in January.

The committee is expected to study Winston Churchhill's project for a United States of Europe. Advocates of this plan from many countries recently attended a promotional meeting at The Hague.

Churchill often has clashed with Prime Minister Attlee on what steps are necessary to achieve European unity. The wartime prime minister and his fellow Conservative party members claim the government's socialism binds it to link up only with socialistic - minded states.

Appeal to the New Citizens

Immigrants are coming in at 112 per cent greater rate than in the same period of 1947, namely in the six-month period ending September 30. The total of newcomers is 68,131 in 1948 compared with 32,128 in the same months in 1947. There were 23,285 immigrants who came to Canada from the United Kingdom as compared with 18,266 last year. Movement from the United States was not so fast, fewer entering than in 1947. The greatest increase came from races other than the United Kingdom, the United States and the northern European nations, the Balkans and some Far Eastern races accounting for 29,180 compared with 4,578 in the period last year.

Over 30,000 of the newcomers are males, the adult females numbering 23,206 and the children under 18 namely 14,624.

Ontario led the way with newcomers no less than 34,127 coming to this Province.

21,516 of the newcomers belong to the farming class.

The entry of immigrents to this country has been accelerated at a great pace since the last season.

The arrival of so many creates for many of them a real problem no doubt as anyone can believe by trying to take the newcomer's place and see what he will do and how he will be received. The Federal and Provincial Governments have been endeavoring to get the most efficient and adaptable people to fit into the plan or program of this country so that they will at once be an asset to this nation.

To the newcomers conditions in the New World are still very appealing as they have heard the story of the United States and Canada told on the other side of the Atlantic. With what joy they come to start their lives anew in the wide acres of the Western World this country knows.

The ancestors of Canadians were themselves mostly immigrants and this experience should build for a most homogenous people.

It is well known that this country has a good name across the seas . And that fair name which Canada bears is one of the best advertisements this country can have for the story of the Dominion is an entrancing one to those who have set their minds and hearts on emigration from so many of the lands of the Old World.

It is 456 years since Christopher Columbus touched the New World and in those four centuries and a half what coming of immigrants there has been to the New World, North, Central and South America! It is over four centuries since Cartier came to Quebec and since his time what developments have come in Canada!

To the Old World the Americas will no doubt always be the New World. But as for the peoples of the West, the Americas are growing in age and wisdom and in power to influence the counsels of the world.

Still the latest arrival here is the true immigrant in spirit with the gleam looking to the future, with energy and hope to set up homes and help to build this nation of the Western World.

Far Ahead of Russia

Recently the boast was made in Moscow that the Soviet Union in a program of soil conservation and reclamation had organized a "Stalinist strategic offensive against drought," whereby under this fifteen-year plan Russia would develop 3,000 miles of forest shelter belts to decelerate dry Asian winds and impart moisture to them besides building 45,000 water reservoirs.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer has a remark to make in reference to all this. It points out what the United States has done in soil conservation. In less than fifteen years 25,249 miles of windbreak embracing 213,000 acres of trees has actually been cultivated in less than fifteen years between Canada and Mexico.

So it is a source of satisfaction to the American people to find and realize what their country has done in conservation of soil. The Plain Dealer says:

"Where Russia, in 15 years to come, plans to construct 45,000 reservoirs, 108,000 reservoirs and farm ponds have been completed in this country in the last 15 years as the fruit, not of government usake, but of co-operation between American agriculture and the conservation agencies of our government. In that same 15 years 5,230,000 acres of land have been terraced, 16,200,000 acres have been contoured to halt top soil erosion, and 3,000,000 acres of wet land installed with drainage systems."

PLEA OF THE CARVER

I plead (before it is too late)
With those who run my home affairs—
The turkey steaming on the plate,
The children sitting in their chairs—
For what I've wanted all my life:
A good, well-sharpened carving knife.

My father had the same desire.
"All women folk," he'd often say,
"Use carving knives for cutting wire,
Which wears the finest edge away.
Carving's an art that needs a
As sharp as metal can be made."
When came the duty down to me,
I found it, as a general rule,
The carving knife appeared to be
The women's handy household tool.
They'd use it, as my father said,
For cutting carpets, tin and lead.

Would not spoil Thanksgiving Day
With angry speech or scowling black.
I want to carve the proper way;
To slice with skill and not to hack.
To serve the turkey this I ask:

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

NOV. 23RD., 1928.

The Wellington Public Library was officially opened yesterday and many were present at the ceremonies. Reeve William Monoghan presented a silver key to Dr. Parry Saylor the donor of the building, with which he unlocked the main entrance door and thus declared the building open to the public.

Mr. P. A. Melchoir, Evans Street, has returned home from Toronto where he spent several days.

The annual meeting of the Central Baseball League was held at Deloro on Saturday. The following officers were elected: President, R. A. Elliott; Vice President, F. G. Chesher; Secretary - treasurer , Newton Thompson, who has efficiently filled the office for the past four years. The league is in a flourishing condition and the next season promises to be highly successful.

Mr. Jack Doran has returned to Toronto after visiting relatives here.

Mr. Harold Sanders has returned home after spending several days in Toronto on business.

30 YEARS AGO

NOV. 23RD., 1918.

The chemical works at Trenton are closed and many of the department heads have left to reside elsewhere.

The spacious mantle room in the Ritchie Company Store was a riot of color and merriment when the members of the staff and their friends were entertained by Mr. C. M. Reid to celebrate the ending of the war. Short addresses were made by Mr. Reid, the Rev. Dr. Scott and Mr. W. B. Deacon. A vote of thanks was moved to Mr. Reid by Mr. Frank Thompson and seconded by Mr. Harry Bryant, for the very pleasant evening he had afforded the staff and their friends.

40 YEARS AGO

NOV. 23RD., 1908.

Mr. W. S. Miller of Glen Miller had the misfortune to lose a valuable horse through an accident which befell the animal while in Belleville.

In going up Moira Street the horse stepped to one side of the road and fell off a culvert and broke a leg. The injury was so severe that it was necessary to destroy the horse for which Mr. Miller was recently offered $300.00.

There are rumors of great activity among certain citizens who desire to become members of the Board of Education. This is a good sign; let us have plenty of opposition. The best men in the city are none too good to have supervision over the education of our children.

Mr. William Johnson will be a candidate in Ketcheson Ward for re-election to the school board at the coming elections.

50 YEARS AGO

NOV. 23RD., 1898.

Yesterday was red letter day in the history of Belleville and one which, it is hoped, will be the beginning of a bright future for the City of the Bay. Two important by-laws were submitted to the ratepayers for their endorsation or rejection and the unanimity with which they recorded their votes in favor of them, shows that they have faith, not only in the promoters, but in the projects themselves. The qualified electors were asked to vote upon the proposed establishment of rolling mills and a carpet factory in the city on a by-law granting a bonus. In favor of the carpet factory 1021 votes were cast and against it were 48 votes, giving a majority of 973. For the rolling mills by-law the vote was 1001 for and 71 against, giving a majority of 930. The rolling mills by-law was to authorize the issue of debentures to the amount of $55,000.00 "for the purpose of aiding the erection in the city of rolling mills and iron works." The carpet by-law was to authorize the city to grant if approved by the people and legalized by the Ontario Legislature, $35,000.00 in aid of said industry upon complying with certain conditions."

SOLVE YOUR OWN PROBLEMS FIRST

"Cast out first . . . "

This is part of the statement Jesus made about casting the beam out of our own eyes before we get so excited about the mote that is in our brother's eye.

A mote is a small particle — a a tiny splinter; a beam is a building beam. Jesus loved to use extreme and sometimes impossible figures to set forth truth. The picture is that of a man with a building beam sticking in his eye —which is of course utterly fantastic — worrying about the tiny splinter in his neighbor's eye and saying "Let me cast out the mote out of thine eye." Jesus said, "Cast out first the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye."

The figure is fantastic but the idea is not. The important word in our Lord's statement is "first." Get your own moral life straightened out, he said, and then you will be in condition properly to appraise the moral condition of others and to help them. This does not mean that one has to be perfect before he can render moral assistance to a brother. But it does mean that he must attack his own moral problems earnestly and achieve some measure of success in handling them before he can help others.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

AN INSPIRING CALLER

J. M. Barrie once said this about Sir. W. Robertson Nicoll, famous editor of the British Weekly: "He was so fond of books that I am sure he never saw a lonely one without wanting to pat it, and give it a sixpence."

Well, that is the way I feel about all books, though all of them do not deserve either a pat or a sixpence! But each one that is contacted earns respect and consideration. I buy scores of them and many are sent to me by publishers and friends. I greet them all as I greet those who enter my business office or home. And there is many a book that leaves behind a glow, a warmth, an echo of hope and beauty after it is read.

Such a book came to my desk recently, sent to me by a stranger. He is a noted lawyer in his town of Charlotte, N.C., I learn, but he takes time out to write unusual and inspiring little books. He sent his latest one to me, which he calls "It Does Add Up." Brief essays that are alive and hopeful in content, devotioonal sincerity written from the heart, and each as fresh in thought as morning dew.

The author of this inspiring book caller is Elmer A. Hilker, and he must be a fine lawyer to write such helpful essays, spiced with so many apt and unforgettable illustrations and quotations, that make each contribution so re-readable. In his article "Plant an Orchard" he tells of the dying request of Governor Hogg of Texas, who requested no elaborate stone to mark his grave, but "at my head a pecan tree, and at my feet an old-fashioned walnut, and when these trees shall bear, let the pecans and walnuts be given out among plain people of Texas, so that they may plant them and make Texas a land of trees."

It's illustrations like this Governor Hogg one that sparkle all through this little book of Mr. Hilker's. Someone sent me another inspiring book some time ago, written by a doctor, that has also inspired me no end. These are the kind of books that ought to have a large sale — books from active and useful men who write such books for the fun and glory of the thing, primarily to turn on another light in the world!

Mackenzie's Column:
Dean Must Know Canada Opposed To Communism

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

We have in our midst Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of England's ancient Canterbury Cathedral, who is known as the "red dean" because of his extreme leftish views and his great friendship for Soviet Russia.

The good dean is speech - making and is devoting much of his energy to reproving us for our aversion to communism. He says "Peoples all over the earth view with misgivings the encirclement of the Soviet Union by 434 American air bases," and the "expenditure by the United States of vast sums for war purposes

He was denied a visa by the United States State Department last August when he sought to come here under sponsorship of the National Council of American-Soviet friendship. That organization is on Attorney - General Tom C. Clark's "subversive" list. However the State Department withdrew its objections after a group of educational leaders offered to sponsor him.

Lacks Success

One would think the dean would have enough business of his own to mind back home, the vast majority of Britons being hostile to communism. However, his propaganda there doesn't seem to have achieved the success which he craves.

Dr. Johnson came here via Canada, and while there he surely must have learned of the bitterness of the Dominion towards a communism which used Ottawa as the base of a far-flung spy ring which included the United States. As a clergyman he might be interested in the document published in Washington Monday by the un-American activities committee of the House of Representatives: that declares:

"You cannot be a communist and believe in God . . . in all their plans and actions, the communists mark down religion as enemy No. 1."

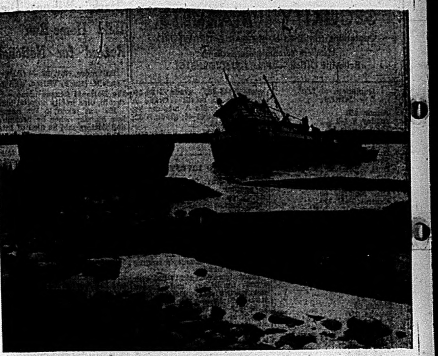
More Notice

Perhaps the dean might take more notice of this: Monday in Cincinnati the American Federation of Labor in convention adopted a foreign policy calling for a military alliance against Soviet Russia and breaking off of trade relations with the U. S. S. R. until the Berlin blockade is lifted. And the C. I. O. opened its annual convention in Portland, Ore., with the anti-communist right wing in full control and determined to deliver further heavy blows to the dwindling left wing.

That's the sort of stonewall against which the dean is butting his head in the United States. Every boost he gives the communists here is a knock.

CHICKEN OR OSTRICH?

Shaunavon, Sask. — (CP) — Dredged from a rooster being prepared for Sunday dinner were two grease gun fittings, two half-inch rivets, two pieces of metal leg band, a half-inch washer and a piece of lead.



SNATCHED FROM DEATH—Sixteen persons were saved from drowning in Lake Huron after clinging three nights and two days to the wreckage of a battered tug and dredge on the rocks of storm-swept Manitoulin Island. They were crew members of the dredge Ella-M and the tug Patricia McQueen. A snowstorm lashed the lake into 15-foot waves which drove the vessels on to reefs 20 miles apart. This photo shows the tug hard aground. At the left is the lifeboat in which five crew members of the tug made their way ashore late Saturday. (CP Photo)

More Norse Relics Will be Found Says Curran

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 22 (CP)—James W. Curran, publisher of the Sault Ste. Marie Star, today welcomed "another link in the stout chain of evidence" in support of his theory that the Great Lakes country was the Vinland of Norsemen who came to North America about 1000 A.D.

He was commenting on a statement of Professor Johannes Broensted, director of the National Museum at Copenhagen, Denmark, and a leading authority on Voking and medieval archaeology, that relics found near Port Arthur were an indication of a Norse settlement in North America at least 200 years before Columbus.

James Edward Dodd, a prospector, found the relics near Beardmore beside Lake Nipigon in 1930. Some years late Mr. Curran spent considerable time investigating the find and established its authenticity to the satisfaction of the Royal Ontario Museum at Toronto where they now are on display.

He set forth his Vinland theory based on the Beardmore find and other evidence, in a series of articles in his newspaper. They were assembled into a book, 'Here Was Vinland", published in 1939.

"I think that we are only beginning to get at the real story of great historical importance. Two or three books now could be written on what facts have been collected since 'Here Was Vinland' was written."

He predicted that many more relics would be found in the Great Lakes area and "one day we will be able to show that the Goulais Bay area on Lake Superior 35 miles from the Sault was the scene of a Norse encampment."

He did not amplify the Goulais Bay reference but it is known that relics believed to be of Norse origin have been found at Gros Cap and Batchawana Bay, also in the Sault District on Lake Superior.

MAYBE YOUR CHILDREN NEED BRAIN FOOD

Recently, I hope, I cited here the significant observation made by Dr. R. F. Harrell. She divided a class of school children into two groups. One group continued on their ordinary diet, while each child in the other group received a daily ration of vitamin B1 (thiamine) to supplement his or her ordinary diet.

At the end of the six weeks of this test the performances of the children in both groups showed unmistakably that the vitamin B had increased alertness, ability to concentrate, will to study and capacity to memorize.

The vitamin B1 (thiamine) is not medicine, you will please understand, but just a nutritional substance which is essential for functional health, growth and well being. If the child's regular diet were adequate the food would provide all the B1 (thiamine) the child or youth requires. But since the modern American diet consists mainly of refined carbohydrate things made of white flour, refined white sugar and syrup) it is difficult if not practically impossible to insure the growing child an adequate daily intake of vitamin B1 from food alone.

Unlike medicine, vitamins and/or minerals which may be taken to supplement or balance a deficient diet can scarcely do any harm, whether they do any apparent good or not. Unlike medicine, vitamins and/or minerals when used to supplement or balance an inadequate diet, will hardly produce any imrovement tomorrow or next week, but must be continued day by day for at least two or three months before its effect can be judged. Too many half-informed persons "try" some such vitamin and/or mineral supplement for a few days or weeks and then discontinue it because they can't see that it has done any good.

The idea of "brain food" is as absurd as "eye food," and "nerve food" or "heart food." The notion that fish is 'brain food' may have arisen from the observation that goitre, hypothyroidism and myxedema or cretinism was rare or unknown among people whose diet included considerable fish—sea fish, shell fish. Sea food or any kind is rich in iodine, and iodine prevents goitre, hypothyroidis, myxedema, cretinism, Mopishness is the characteristic manifestations of iodine deficiency. From this literally millions of school children and young adults suffer in the United States and Canada, with the exception of a few limited regions where the soil, water and locally grown food happens to contain enough iodine to supply the minimum requirement of the body. Where the growing child or youth in good nutritional condition is normally alert, the individual with iodine deficiency is disinclined to play, work or take any active exercise, pensive, moody and generally dull minded or at least not mentally alert as a healthy young person should be.

When lying on the label, in testimonials and in magazine ads was winked at by Uncle Samm a nifty nostrum which purported to be a "nerve food' had a tremendous vogue among lawyers, clergymen, professors and other Wiseacres, until Samuel Hopkins Adams correctly characterized the stuff as "glorified cottage cheese" whereupon the gullible customers sheepishly switched to Coueism or something. The "glorified cottage cheese", however, did supply one nutritional element which is physiologically concerned with the regulation of neuro-muscular irritability or, as a dumb layman might say, "steadying the nerves." The element is calcium, and milk or cheese of any kind is the best food source of calcium.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Incredible

From being a "complaining female always ailing" I have become healthy, happy and easy to live with, and I enjoy being alive as never before. All due to following your teachings... My physician tells me to send him a bill for whatever I owe you (if you can figure that out). He says your health column is far and away—(Mrs. K. E. C.)

Answer—Well, there it is, but I find it almost incredible, first, that a reader would write like that without asking for anything; second, that a physician would speak like that to a patient.

Bronchial Asthma

Daughter, 7, refuses to take medicine prescribed for her bronchial asthma. When forced to take it her asthma becomes worse. This has led to serious family quarrels. (W. M. E.)

Answer—Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet on Bronchial Asthma.

Communist Elected In South Africa

Cape Town, Nov. 23 (Reuters) — A communist candidate was returned to the South African parliament for the first time Monday as a result of the election of a native representative for the Cape western constituency of the House of Assembly.

Sam Khan, Cape Town city councillor, and member of the communist party, was returned with 3,780 votes. His opponents were D. H. Buchanan (Independent) former native representative for Transkei, who received 754 votes, and A. P. Van Der Merwe (Nationalist) 194 votes.

The Packsack of Gregory Clark

A letter from a young man of my family aged twenty contained so many mistakes in spelling that it was not funny. This young man is no scholar; but at least he got his matriculation at one of the best schools in the country .

According to a school teacher to whom I showed the letter, accusingly, spelling has become a special talent among children, like music or art. "You can't teach a child to spell," he said, "if he doesn't read."

Reading, only a few years ago, was one of the chief entertainments available to everybody. Theatres were few and expensive. The piano in every parlor was occasionally opened up, when guests came in. The world was full of a lovely silence. In that silence, people young and old escaped away in books into a world of thought and beauty and fancy.

How can a young person read today? There is a cheap theatre less than three or four blocks from anywhere. The radio — even though you steal away to a far room — still thumps and tumps challengingly. Or the family motor car toots in the side drive: come on!

Despite all this, books were never more plentiful or more available than they are today. And they are read. But how? And by whom? Probably not the young people.

Modern books are accused of being sensational and provocative if not shocking. They have to be. They must hold the reader's attention against the competition of radio, theatre, motor car and all the action of a frenzied world. When Robert Louis Stevenson wrote "Treasure Island," the rumble of a handsome cab was about all that might disturb the reader; or a thunderstorm.

Words came soft and sweetly off the page into the gentle reader's eye. But Hemingway's or Faulkner's words came off the page like semaphore signals, stiff and bald. And if you watch closely, you will see the reader doing a lot of skipping, looking for the bad words . . .

Statement Called Misleading By Hospital Board

Southampton, Ont., Nov. 22 — (CP) — Statement by a Wiarton medical doctor that his Indian woman patient was refused admittance to Saugeen Hospital because of her race was called "misleading, unfounded and injurious" by the hospital board Monday night.

One of two resolutions passed urged the Department of National Health and Welfare to pay prevailing hospital rates of $4.50 daily for Indians requiring hospitalization. At present $3.00 is the departmental rate.

It was the department's rate, the board ruled, that caused Mrs. Morgan Johnson, Cape Crocker Reserve, to be refused atmittance. A hospital policy since it was founded rules that prevailing rates must be paid or the patient it not admitted.

Dr. F. M. Williamson had taken his patient to Owen Sound hospital for X-rays of a serious back injury. After X-rays were taken he learned the hospital was crowded, so he called Saugeen Hospital to find out if it would accept Mrs. Johnson.

When his patient was refused admittance; Dr. Williamson made statements to the press that Mrs. Johnson was refused because of her race, the board claimed.

It was not explained by Dr. Williamson, the board stated that his patient was an emergency case, therefore she was placed in a category under the regular hospital policy.

Admits Pouring Lye into Another Man's Beer

Van Buren, Me., Nov. 22 (AP) —A 39-year-old laborer who police said admitted jealousy prompted him to pour lye into another man's beer was held today for murder in the death of his fiancee who drank it "by mistake."

Carl Peterson of Fort Fairfield was charged with murder in the death of Mrs. Yvonne Poitras, 21, widow. She was the mother of an 11-month-old girl.

Police said Peterson told them Mrs. Poitras drank beer containing lye he had intended for a man who had paid attention to the 21-year-old widowed mother.

"I didn't mean to do it. I didn't want to hurt her," police quoted Peterson as saying in an oral statement.

Police did not identify the man for whom the drink allegedly was intended, except to say he was one of two St. Leonard, N.B., men at the party in the home of Mrs. Poitras' parents.

T.N.T. PLANT BLOWS UP

Stockholm, Nov. 23 (AP) — A heavy explosion demolished the T. N. T. factory of the Bofors munition works yesterday. A few workers suffered slight injuries from splinters.

The factory management said the workers saved themselves by racing behind prepared embankments when an alarm sounded for the fire which preceded the blast.

Windows were blown out for a distance of more than three miles. Many nearby buildings collapsed.

Two Juveniles Held for Murder At Dawson Creek

Dawson Creek, B.C., Nov. 23 — (CP)— Two boys, aged 11 and 13, accused of slaying a 62-year-old farmer while imitating comic book-inspired desperadoes, today were in British Columbia police barracks here, charged with murder.

At at inquest in this Peace River district village in northern B. C. Monday, a coroner's jury ruled James Watson of Kilkerran, B.C., died from a "gun-shot wound inflicted from a rifle in the possession of the two juveniles."

The jury recommended "steps be taken . . . to censor the more lurid type of comic which is apt to encourage crime."

Police told the jury the shooting Nov. 12 — from which Watson died four days later — was the tragic climax to the boys' role of highwaymen by night.

On the evening of the slaying, police said, the boys stole a 30-30 calibre rifle and ammunition, donned handkerchief masks and then hid in a ditch of the Alaska Highway, just west of here, waiting for a victim.

When the automobile — in which Watson was riding home with friends from a Dawson Creek theatre — approached, the boys attempted to halt it by shooting in the air.

Police testified that when the automobile did not halt the boys shot again and it was this shot that pierced the car and passed through Watson's body.

Someone screamed. The car was turned around on the highway and driven back to Dawson Creek.

The boys then hid their rifle along the creek, moved it the following night to another place where it was found by police.

Christmas Seal Objective Set At $6,000

The Hastings' County Tuberculosis Association's 1949 tuberculosis control program which opens today, if it is to be successful, will require at least $6,000.00, which it is hoped this year's Christmas Seal sale will provide, Mr. D. L. Storey, chairman of the committee said this morning.

"Many years ago Sir William Osler said that fighting "TB" was a community effort, and the farther we go, the more apparent it becomes that he was right," said Mr. Storey. "Funds raised through the Christmas Seal Sale are needed for a variety of services. Most communities are using theirs for mass surveys, but health education, nursing services and in some cases rehabilitation need to be included in the preventive program."

Among the projects listed by Mr. Storey for Hastings County were more mass X-ray surveys, and the completion of the X-ray unit in the Belleville General Hospital.

"We have tried to see that every household receives Christmas Seals, and if everyone does their share, we shall have enough for our program—and I think that they want to be rid of tuberculosis and so will give us their support," Mr. Storey said.

World Situation Prevents Tax Cut

Ottawa, Nov. 23 — (CP) — Norris Darrell, noted New York income tax authority, said the tense international situation has prevented a reduction of United States income taxes to a normal peace-time level.

Addressing an opening session of a two-day meeting of the Canadian Tax Foundation, Mr. Darrell held out little hope for an early reduction of U. S .taxes, he said more funds may be needed by Washington to finance foreign aid and for increased social services.

ROKOSSOVSKY IN RED ZONE

Berlin, Nov. 23 — (AP)—American intelligence sources Monday confirmed a German press report that Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, Chief of the Soviet western armies, had established headquarters in the Russian zone of Germany.

The report in the anti - communist newspaper Montag's Echo said the headquarters was at Fuerstenberg in Mecklenburg.

SAYS ORCHESTRA WILL EARN $100,000 FOR BRITAIN

London, Nov. 23 (Reuters) — Sir Thomas Beecham Monday told a press conference that he hopes that before long the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra which he conducts will earn $100,000 a year for Britain. MYSTERY SOLVED—When this big wooden ball, covered to resemble a globe, drifted ashore last week at the St. Lawrence River town of Beauport near Quebec City, residents were at a loss to explain its origin. The mystery was solved Monday when a pulp and paper company said they had built the globe for a Labor Day parade. Recently it was discarded and they believe youngsters may pushed it into the river near Beauport. (CP Photo)

Calgary Fans To Stage Parade In Toronto

Calgary, Nov. 23 — (CP) — More than 200 gaily garbed Calgary grid fans tonight will start a 2,500-mile trek to give vocal support to their beloved Stampeders in the Dominion football final at Toronto Saturday.

In a spectacular display of spontaneous civic pride, the fans will stage a "wild and wooly" western parade in the staid Ontario capital that may rival the Grey Cup classic itself for color and thrills.

Dressed in colorful cowboy costumes complete with 10-gallon Stetsons, the fans are travelling in a special train scheduled to reach Toronto Saturday. With the westerners will travel their horses and a chuckwagon.

Saturday the entire party will parade from Toronto's Royal York Hotel to Varsity Stadium. The padade will be headed by the chuckwagon drawn by a four-horse team and about 20 cowboys and Indians mounted on palimino and pinto horses.

The Calgary contingent will carry with them more than 10,000 pamphlets extolling the virtues of this foothills city for free distribution along the parade route and at the game.

The confident Stampeder boosters have included their club's victory song in the pamphlet .

Officials in charge of the group said close to 500 Calgary fans may take part in the parade.

More than a dozen fans accompanied Stampeders East when they left last week to set up a training camp at Oakville.

Another contingent of fans have chartered a 21-passenger plane to leave for the East Thursday or Friday. Two or three privately-owned planes also will fly to Toronto.

C.C.F. Candidate Says He Never Was Marxist

Osgoode, Ont., Nov. 23 (CP)— Eugene Forsey, C. C. F. candidate in the federal by-election of Carleton, said Monday night he was never a "marxist," and had "no sympathy with communists or communism."

In an address before a C. C. F. house meeting here, he referred to a speech made Saturday by George Drew, National Progressive Conservative leader.

Mr. Drew stated that on one occasion Mr. Forsey had declared: . . . "Until Christians learn to understand and apply the lessons of marxism, they cannot enter into the Kingdom of Heaven . . ."

Mr. Forsey said the quotation attributed to him was written 12 years ago. Since then he had changed his mind.

"Mr. Drew is badly out of date. If he had pursued his researches a little farther he would have dug up evidence that my change of mind took place a considerable time ago."

Mr. Forsey said he had no use for communists or "for their shameless lying and unprincipled opportunism, nor for the Soviet dictatorship whose mouthpieces they are.

"I fought for two years to prevent them from wrecking the fellowship for a Christian social order, which had published the book Mr. Drew quotes from.

"Actually, I never was a marxist."

Agriculture Dept. Reports 1948 Crop Excellent

Toronto, Nov. 23 (CP)—The Ontario Agriculture Department Monday reported an "exceptionally good" 1948 crop for the province. Potato production was the highest since 1924, tobacco output was the second biggest in history, while grain production was nearly 30,000,000 bushels above the average for the last 10 years.

A bumper production of fodder crops would ensure ample winter supplies in all but one or two counties, the department said in a crop report.

Frequent rains, warm weather and absence of frosts contributed to the bumper yields.

Potato production was estimated at 20,409,000 bushels and the tobacco crop was placed at 110,000,000 pounds. Grain production totalled 180,630,000 bushels and sugar beet production is expected to be 180,000 tons.

Total output of fodder for ensilage was 11,570,000 tons, higner than in any recent year.

Sydney, N. S., Church Breaks Away From Presbyterian

Sydney, N.S., Nov. 23 (CP) — The Westminster Church here severed connections with the Presbyterian Church of Canada Monday night over alleged doctrinal differences but a statement added that it "intends to remain Presbyterian."

A statement issued following a largely-attended congregational meeting said:

". . .it was unanimously resolved that the congregation sever its connection with the Presbyterian Church in Canada solely on the grounds that it permits teachings in its colleges that are at variance with the word of God and the Westminster confession of faith, and because it refuses to take diciplinary action against certain ministers who deny virgin birth of our Lord and His subsequent death on the cross as an atonement for sin.

"And further because it is a member of the World Council of Churches, a council headed and controlled by modernists, who disavow the historic Christian faith.

"And further because budget money, given expressedly for the support of our historic faith and its work, is being diverted to help support projects that are permeated with modernism.

Will Co-operate

"Westminster church intends to remain Presbyterian and will cooperate with all Christian bodies who hold the verbal plenary inspiration of the scriptures, the virgin birth of our Lord his full and proper deity his bloodshed on the cross as the only atonement for sin his physical resurrection from the dead, and his personal return to this earth."

New name of the church, first organized in 1937 by Dr. Alexander Murray, its present pastor, will be Westminster Bible Presbyterian Church (Independent).

This was the second such break in the Presbyterian church in Nova Scotia in the last two years.

Rev. Perry F. Rockwood former minister at St. James Presbyterian Church at Truro, made similar charges in a series of sermons and was disciplined by an ecclastical court.

Rev. Frank Lawson, then Moderator of the Halifax-Lunenburg Presbytery, charged that Mr. Rockwood had "made a definite attempt to split the Presbyterian Church."

Mr. Rockwood was convicted by the Ecclastical court of following a "divisive course" and later resigned from the Presbyterian Church to start the People's Church in Truro.

Rev. Gordon S. Vincent, minister of Halifax's West End Baptist Church preached in defence M.r Rockwood when the Tru Minister was reported to have ac cused Mr. Lawson of denying th virgin birth.

Letter Reveals Communism Is Non-Religious

Marmora—The non religious element of Communism is revealed in a letter which Thomas Paranuik recently received from his brother Costan, in Romania. Mr. Paranuik has been a resident of Canada for the past thirty-eight years, and his brother was a resident here from 1909 to 1919.

The letter, among other things, mentioned that since the Communists have taken over Romania, the use of the Lord's Prayer in the schools has been banned. Also only four years of schooling is being granted to young Romanians, an indication that it is desired to well keep the country under the iron heel. Furthermore, of the produce of farms and manufacturers, the Soviet regime takes forty per cent in taxation, for which those levied receive not the slightest benefit.

The latter fact is also borne out in news of Czechoslovakia received by Pete Glecko of Deloro, who is now deferring a planned return for the end of the year, until a change is seen in the affairs of his native country.

May Try to Halt Butter Shipments To Canada

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N.Z., Nov. 23 (CP)— New Zealand longshoremen have hinted they may try to block further shipments to Canada of the 1,000 tons of butter New Zealand agreed to sell Canada this year.

H. Barnes, President of the Waterside Workers Union, joined critics of government policy which exports butter from New Zealand while the ration of six ounces a week is retained here.

Government spokesmen have replied that the sale of butter to Canada earns urgently-needed dollars and keeps New Zealand in a market that may become more valuable when Britain's need for butter becomes less urgent.

Mr. Barnes alleged New Zealand also was sending butter to Latin America and far eastern cities it was suspected of reaching the black market.

Only part of the 1,000 tons has been shipped so far.

Critics have suggested that rationing is being retained here to save the government from paying subsidies on butter consumed in New Zealand as part of its price-stabilization policy.

Will Decide Price Farmers to Receive For Shipping Milk

Toronto, Nov. 23 (CP)— Judge James B. Moon of Parry Sound Monday was apointed chairman of an arbitration board which will decide how much farmers will receive for shipping milk to the Toronto market.

He was appointed after representatives of the Toronto Milk Distributors Associaion and the Whole Milk Producers League could not agree on a neutral chairman.

The board was set up by the Ontario Milk Control Board after producers and distributors were unable to negotiate a new price for milk.

Under a contract which expired Oct. 31, producers received $4.05 a hundredweight for whole milk and $2.90 a hundreweight for secondary milk used for processing.

5,000,000 Lepers Have New Hope From New Drug

London, Nov. 23 (CP)— British scientists have discovered a new drug they say is likely bring relief to the world's 5,000 000 lepers.

After 10 years' work, sulphetrone— made up into a small white tablet no bigger than a dime—has been perfected. World-wide tests, carried out in Leper centres, proved it the most successful drug yet discovered for treating the disease. At least 75 per cent of all patients on whom the drug was tried have responded.

Given time, doctors believe it will halt leprosy and enable patients to return home in 90 per cent of the cases treated.

The loss was later estimated at $5,000, mostly in cheques.

Police said the safe was opened apparently by experts who gained entry through a washroom window at the rear.

Hon. L. Pearson, Gen. McNaughton To Fly to Berlin

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Nov. 23 (CP)— L. B. Pearson, Canadian External Affairs Minister, and Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton, the Dominion's Representative on the United Nations Security Council, plan to fly to Berlin this weekend if their U.N. duies permit, it was learned today.

Canadian headquarters at the U.N. said the trip's purpose would be to visit Canadian Military Headquarters in the German capital. They stressed that the plans are contingent on the pressure of the work at the U.N. Assembly and are in no way connected with any special urgency in the Berlin blockade issue.

3,500 A.F.L. Teamsters Go on Strike

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)— Some 3,500 A.F.L. teamsters went on strike Monday, crippling movement of freight from the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroad yards.

The dispute is based on Local 282's refusal to accept a 17½-cent hourly wage increase and an employer-financed welfare plan—the pattern for settlement of the wide-spread truck strike last September.

The Local, which originally had agreed to settle for 15 cents, now demands a straight increase of 22½-cents an hour. Present basic rates range from $53.90 to $71.40 for a 40-hour week.

Discipline Based Not on Fear But Interest, Incentive

Kitchener, Nov. 23 — (CP) — Discipline in the Galt training school for boys is a selling point for a desirable form of habit, William Little, director of the Galt school, told a meeting of the Kitchener - Waterloo Rotary Club Monday.

"We at the Galt training school take pride in our discipline. We expect a lot and we get it and the discipline is of a very high grade," he said.

"But it must be remembered and this is very important, our discipline is not based on bear. Rather it is based on interest, incentive and good teaching.

"Our teachers in a sense are a combination of teachers and salesmen. They are constantly selling ideas which in turn create the need in the youngsters for more desirable forms of habit."

All boys at the Galt school are under 14 years of age.

Berlin Crisis Should be Solved Says Delegation

Paris, Nov. 23 — (AP) — The United States delegation to the United Nations reaffirmed today its position that the Security Council should find a solution of the Berlin crisis.

The delegation took the unusual step of authorizing a statement by a spokesman in answer to reports from Berlin that an authoritative American official there saw no basis for agreement on Berlin in the U. N.

The spokesman's statement to reporters reiterated that the western powers have pledged their full co-operation in assisting council president Juan A. Bramuglia in his efforts to solve the crisis.

Calgary Coach Wants Answers To Questions

Oakville, Ont., Nov. 23 (CP)—Coach Les Lear of Calgary Stampeders wants answers to a couple of questions before his club hits the field against Ottawa Rough Riders in the Rose Bowl of Canadian football — the East-West final in Toronto Saturday.

First, Les doesn't like the idea of two or three Riders "loafing around the sidelines during the game and also what he termed Ottawa's "delayed substitutions."

Second, if it's a rain-soaked field he wants "two or three balls available just as we do out West."

Lear saw the Eastern final at Ottawa Saturday and was a bit disturbed, not at Ottawa's power but at the manner in which the game was played. He voiced his objections in an interview today.

"Ottawa makes substitutions so often it isn't funny.

"But what gets me is a player standing around the sidelines and also the straggler who lopes to the sidelines, pauses to pass the time of day with guys on the outside, and then steps out just as the play starts.

"This kind of stuff draws an opposing back out of position and I'm not falling for it. It's like trying to pull that old gag. The sneaker play, and it really gives them 13 men on the field and they should be penalized.

"Players belong on the bench not on the sidelines."

And about the use of more than one ball if the field is wet: "There isn't a rule in the book which says more than one ball mustn't be used."

Lear expects to get answers Friday night when he meets Riders officials in Toronto.

The Stampeders will leave for Toronto, 20 miles west Saturday morning and they'll be escorted to Varsity Stadium by hundreds of Calgary supporters in autos and chuck wagons.

The parade plan calls for a stop at City Hall to treat Mayor Hiram McCallum to some flapjacks.

"Just good old Western hospitality," was one player's comment.

Ted Kennedy In Second Spot Of Scoring Race

Montreal, Nov. 23 — (CP) — This has been a lean season so far for Toronto Maple Leafs, but not so for their smooth- working centre, Ted Kennedy.

While the defending Stanley Cup champions are currently wallowing next door to the National Hockey League basement, official N. H. L. statistics released today show Kennedy in second spot in the scoring race with, 14 points, two less than the pace-setter, Grant (Nobby) Warwick of Boston.

Kennedy was the big gainer during the week, picking up one goal and three assists to edge closer to Warwick. the Bruins' mighty mite who has topped the Marksmen for the last three weeks.

Tied for third place are veteran Joe Carveth, Montreal Canadiens' surprise package, Eddie Sandford of Boston and Chicago's Doug Bentley. Each has 13 points. Bill Reay, Montreal's fancy - Dan pivotman, is all alone in the nextx slot with 12 points.

Warwick's eight goals make him top man in that department, while Reay heads the assists column with nine.

Toronto's Wild Bill Ezinicki jumped into the lead for loop badman honors. Ezinicki now has spent 42 minutes in the cooler, two more than Kenny Reardon of Canadiens.

Bill Durnan, Montreal's four - time Vezina winner, is back in a familiar spot, at the top of goalkeepers' records. Big Bill has a goals - against average of 1.69 to lead all netminders, and also show the way in shutouts with four.

Riders Swamped With Request For Tickets

Ottawa, Nov. 23 — (CP) — More blocks are expected to be thrown out today and tomorrow by harassed club officials than the Ottawa Rough Riders, training for the Grey Cup classic.

Officials say they have been swamped with some 5,000 requests for tickets to the Dominion football final in Toronto's Varsity Stadium next Saturday. The Canadian Rugby Union is alloting Ottawa only 3,000.

Requests have been coming in from "friends of friends" of Ottawa Football Club officials from western and northern Ontario and from centres in Quebec province.

Manager J. P. McCaffrey of the Riders and D. Wes Brown, Big Four secretary, says it will be impossible to satisfy demands.

Meanwhile, the Riders, with thoughts of meeting the fiery Calgary Stampeders always before them, are taking things easy.

Head West Thursday

The Big Four and Eastern Canada champions are expected to head west Thursday night after they have been given a big turkey dinner by Samuel Berger, club director and prominent Ottawa barrister.

Come what may, the Riders will get two free dinners: the one Thursday and another Saturday evening when they, along with the Calgary Stampeders, will be entertained at a buffet supper at the Toronto Men's Press Club. The players will be interviewed on a coast-to-coast broadcast originating from the club.

As for the Stampeders, only one Ottawa player, lineman Brian Lynch, has so far shown he is impressed:

"I played for Stampeders' coach Les Lear, back in 1942. If he's as tough as he was then, then we're in for a pretty rough time."

Wrestlers Plan Big Comeback In New York

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—The bulging biceps are coming to town again— the big town, that is—and a muscle flexing network of professional wrestlers is planning a new scissors hold on American wallets in the next few months.

The wrestlers are planning a big-time comeback.

Bill Johnston, brother of the late illustrious Jimmy (Hard Hat) Johnston, Monday gave reporters the blueprint for what he hopes will be the rasslin' renaissance.

"Remember the gold old golden days of wrestling, back in the late '20s and early '30s, when Londos and Stecher and Lewis and Browning and Sonnenberg drew packed houses at Madison Square Garden?" he asked.

"Well, we're going to bring those days back again."

So he announced the formation of the wrestling promoters association of America and Allied countries, with Ed (Strangler) Lewis of Los Angeles as chairman. The idea is to reorganize a circuit for the top notch "name" wrestlers of all "Allied" countries.

Johnston will promote in New York. Other towns in the eastern circuit, he said, would be Chicago St. Louis, Boston and Montreal. South and west cities such as Atlanta, Phoenix and Los Angeles would be included.

A star attraction would be Primo Carnera, who, declared Johnston, "wants to become the first man ever to have both the world heavyweight boxing and wrestling championships."

How about the hero-and-villain scripts? Doomed, he says.

Plays Football With One Leg

Toronto, Nov. 23 (CP)—Gordon Shorting, 18-year-old Toronto all-star high school football player doesn't think it strange that he should play football with only one leg.

How does he get around the field? "I just run," says Gordon, who plays for Parkdale Collegiate.

Gordon, whose left leg was amputated 6 1-2 inches below the knee when it was crushed by a truck five years ago, says he has learned to shift his weight to give himself a maximum of momentum.

He compared notes last week with Lloyd Vivian of Tansley, Ont., playing captain of the Burlington high school team whose right leg was amputated below the knee when he was two years old. Lloyd caught his leg in a hay-mower on his father's farm.

Lloyd caused his teammates some worry when he broke his artificial leg before last Saturday's Central Ontario Secondary School Association final against Peterborough. He got a new leg in time for the game but Burlington lost 20-0 just the same.

Both Gordon and Lloyd play hockey, basketball and baseball. But football is their favorite

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Rockets juniors should have their hands full with the Trenton RCAF Flyers in the opening game of tonight's Belleville District Hockey League double-header. The kidlets have one win tucked away under their collective belts—and are anxious to make it two straight at the cost of any team. The joust between these squads recalls the bang-up game of last season when the beardless ones defeated the Flyers 1-0 after bowing to them 10-1 in league games. Flyers, however, were defeated in their inaugural this season going down before their arch-rivals, the Trenton Hockey Club, and tonight will see them at their best in an effort to pull out with a win.

Trenton also swings into action against the Napanee Legion and will be after their second straight win. Legion lost their opener against Northern Electric last Thursday and the Gerow crew will also be gunning for a place in the win column.

enz's et al raced out on the ice at Memorial Arena the other enz's et all raced out on the ice at Memorial Arena the other morning, when the hockey bugles sounded the "Fall In" for the midget "B's" who will play under the aegis of the 9th Anti Tank Officers' Mess. The youthful "Gunners" came in all sizes from the half-pint to the five-gallon types, but there was lots of enthusiasm even if some of the moppet brigade was short on ability.

• • •

Manager Bob Strachan and Coach Cy Barriage had their hands full as the diminutive players surged up and down the ice full of vim and vigor and anxious to "catch the team." However, there's much weeding to be done, a lot of the little Joes will be disappointed after the process has been completed.

• • •

The midgets seem to be fairly strong from a defensive point of view. Barclay, last year's goalie ace who shared the chore with Gary Schreider is back again while a clever youngster named Bobby Green who played with Regiopolis "Mites" last year has turned out for practice. Young Green comes by his hockey ability naturally for he is the son of Bill Green, former hockey luminary of this city in days of Gunner Arnott, Daw Whalen, Pat Boland, etc. The youngster played for the Kingston college last season and helped his team win the "Mite" championship.

Behind the blue line, the midgets have Peter Green and Milligan back from last year's squad and a promising youngster named Elliott who stands well over six feet. Up front Barrett and Carey are back from last year's squad and these "veterans" will form the nucleus of the attacking divisions.

Manager Strachan will attend the annual meeting of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association being held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto next Saturday, where a number of problems will be ironed out. 'Tis reported that Brantford will introduce an amendment to the rules calling for all city league midget squads not participating in a city league to be given a higher rating. If this amendment carries, Belleville will be elevated to the Midget "A" series. Local interests however are going to battle the issue. The move behind the Brantford amendment is perfectly clear. It is to prevent any city from sending an all-star or a packed team into the provincial playdowns. The idea in itself is sound, but there should be some dispensation for centres where there is no midget loop operating and where the community is sponsoring but one team.

The boxing show arranged by Promoter Murray Schwartz under the sponsorship of the Canadian Legion here, and scheduled for this Friday has been laid over for a week. It was announced over the weekend. Some misunderstanding in the dates of use of the Armouries brought about the postponement. The card will be announced toward the latter part of this week.

And speaking of boxing Norm Thompson, young lightweight from the Brockville Boys Boxing Club, had the roar of a Malone, N.Y., crowd in his ears the other night as he scored a fifth-round T.K.O. over Ottawa's Ronnie Lascelles in a scheduled five-round bout. The Brockville lad, who now has only to conquer Toronto's Alan MacFator to become Eastern Canada's foremost amateur fighter, threw leather from the opening bell and was at no time in trouble. He had Lascelles holding on, hanging on the ropes and down three times before the referee was forced to stop the bout in the fifth. The local lad won a clean-cut decision over Armond Iacobaccio, Quebec Golden Gloves lightweight champion a week ago in the Brockville Armories and with this win over Lascelles becomes Eastern Ontario as well as Quebec champion.

An observer at the Joe Louis-Vern Mitchell "fight" in Detroit the other night stated that the only amazing thing about the show was the fact that over 12,000 fans paid over $30,000 to see the "pillow" chase. He goes on to say that the only manner in which one can explain such a turnout is that a lot of the hometown friends of the Sepia Slugger wanted to see how far he had slipped.

• • •

"Now they know" he says. "Joe is fat around the middle. He is heavy in the thighs. He is slow on his feet. He blinks his eyes when a glove is waved in front of them showing that his reflexes are not what they used to be. He is even getting bald on top."

"About the only thing Joe has left is his punch... Even with 14-ounce gloves Louis landed hard enough to have his opponent on the verge of a knockout on two occasions." According to this observer these pillow-fights aren't doing Joe any good except perhaps putting some much-needed shekels on the Louis exchequer. However, we don't think Massa Barrow has too much to worry about. There's nothing too dangerous on the heavyweight horizon to cause him any loss of sleep.

Story heard over the weekend which gave some of the boys a chuckle is that of the graduation exercises held at a well-known American university. Seems as though one of the honorary degrees was to be given to a well-known race-horse authority. In order to go all out with the gesture, the faculty decided to award a degree to one of the recipient's horses. This was done in due course, and in his post-graduation address the dean of the faculty remarked: "This is the first time in the history of this institution that a whole horse has been graduated."

New York, Nov. 23 (AP) — Columbia Lou Little, who does right well as a "barometer" of football rules changes—although he isn't filled with alcohol—now comes out in unqualified support of the unlimited substitution rule and the "two platoon" system... Says Lou. "I am convinced if we want the best possible football, we should have the best eleven men on the field at all times. There is no doubt in my mind that mans there should be unlimited substitution."

Flying Dutchmen Pulling Away From Rest of Pack

(By The Canadian Press)

The league-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen pulled away from the rest of the Senior Ontario Hockey Association pack Monday night by walloping the cellar-dwelling Stratford Indians 7-2.

The win gave Kitchener 20 points, five more than Hamilton Tigers and Toronto Marlboros.

In O.H.A. junior game, Stratford Kroehlers Juniors overpowered Guelph Biltmores 5-2 to jump into a third-place tie with Biltmores.

Doug Verity led Kitchener scorers with two goals while Harvey Hurst, Bob Weiller and Art Herchenratter each scored once. Mickey Roth and Bill Flick counted for Stratford.

Stratford opened the scoring late in the first period when Flick beat Marcel Pelletier on a close-in shot. Kitchener drove back in the second frame and counted three times by the six-minute mark—Hurst, Weiller and Verity scoring.

Roth put Indians back in the game early in the third session on a pass from Flick, but Kitchener sank two more goals to clinch the game—Herchenratter and Verity firing the tallies.

Dinny Flanagan, with three goals, topped the Stratford scorers. Pierre Cadieux, Bob Houston, Joe Beda and Bibber O'Hearn counted one apiece. Lorne Ferguson and Butch Martin tallied for Guelph.

Stratford counted three times in the first period —Flanagan getting two and Cadieux notching one, and once in the second before Guelph answered early in the third.

Goalie Boat Hurley had a shutout until the 14 minute mark of the third session when Martin blasted a blue-line shot that caught the corner of the nets. O'Hearn, Flanagan, Ferguson and Beda counted third-period goals.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Nov. 23 (CP)— The controversy among Halifax, Kingston and McGill University over where the first game of hockey was played still crops up every so often even now that the Hall of Fame has been firmly established at Kingston after the hockey fathers gave the Ontario city the nod as the birthplace of Canada's national sport.

Dunc (Montreal Gazette) MacDonald again introduces the claim of McGill University, although he gives the Nova Scotia capital a bit of an edge.

Dunc writes "we can back the statement that McGill has a claim to the honor of being the home of hockey in this country, simply because, as far back as 1879, two McGill students, Richard F. Smith and W. F. Robertson, were the first to write down a simple code of rules for hockey.

First Rules

"A sort of game of shinny had been played many years previous to this date but there was no plan or cohesion to the game. An unlimited number of players would take part numbering sometimes up to 15 or 20, depending on the size of the ice surface, and the game ended when the first goal was scored. To say [illegible] play followed improvised [illegible] would be a gross understatem

"But it is on record that in 1879, Smith and Robertson, taking the line of rugby football rules, drew up the first code..."

Imported Idea

Dunc recalls Henry Joseph, attending the Winter Fair in To- who played football and hockey for McGill in the early 1870s, telling him that before he attended college he was a member of the Crystals hockey team.

"The important point he made" says Dunc, "was that when the Crystals took up the game of hockey, they imported their sticks from Halifax which, as he said, indicated that the game was played in the Nova Scotia city long before it was introduced to Montreal.

"Halifax and Kingston were both garrison towns and it is highly possible that Scottish [illegible]giments, stationed in both [illegible] introduced the game to Canada because there is every evidence that hockey, or shinny or what have you, was played in Scotland and indeed in the Fen district of England long before it was here."

Only two games are slated in the O.H.A. tonight —and both in the junior loop. Toronto St. Michael's College plays host to Galt Rockets and Toronto Marlboros meet Oshawa Generals in a doubleheader in Toronto.

California Has Men's Wear In All Styles and Pastel Shades

(By Robert J. Sullivan, in the Wall Street Journal, writing from Los Angeles)

The west coast segment of the men's wear business has its own special answer to consumer resistance.

Like the rest of the industry, which is in considerable difficulty, men's agrment makers are paring margins to the minimum and hiring more salesmen. But beyond that they are grasping—with some success—at a life-raft which has often saved the women's wear industry when sales were lagging. That raft is fashion.

Manufacturers here are striving mightily to make Los Angeles the "Paris" of the men's clothing industry, if such a thing can be done. Their specialty is casual wear — loose, comfortable clothes in which it's easy to swing a niblick or loll in a hammock.

"Men are becoming style conscious, thankfully, but it's an uphill battle," according to Richard Malony, executive director of the Men's Wear Manufacturers' Association of Los Angeles. "Too many men, from our point of view, still buy a suit and wear it till the darn thing wears out."

With what might seem to be wild abandon, California manufacturers are tampering with Spring styles in an effort to capture the customers' imaginations and hoist sales.

The Los Angeles market, first each year to show Spring togs for the male citizen, has about 1,500 buyers for department and men's wear stores here now from all parts of the country. They're seeing how far manufacturers have gone in changing next year's styles for men.

Tradition has been kicked out the window. "If it ain't unconventional, it ain't Californian," says one manufacturer. Everything comes in eight to ten colors. Tones of gold are prominent. They range from "palest pastel to deep antique shades," explains a straight-faced apparel man. "In shirts you'll find deep-toned stripes on pastel grounds and in the short-sleeved category, prints are rampant."

Sport coats are being accentuated to give men what is regarded as a he-man appearance. Shoulders are extra heavily padded. Material is full cut through the chest and shoulders and tapered to fit the hips of a boxer. "Bellows" pockets — like grenade pockets in a GI fatigue suit — are an innovation.

Some coats have no collars, others no buttons. Some have four pockets instead of the usual three. Backs are "shirred" (an effect like loose pleating) and have half belts. Some outfits come in junior and senior sizes for father and son ensembles.

Tornberg shirtmakers claims to be presenting the most luxurious shirt available. It's made of cashmere, a high-grade soft wool spun from the hair of Himalayan goats. "No one has ever dared to employ this fabric in a shirt before," the manufacturer claims. The creation is priced to retail for about $55.

Rombro of California is coming out with a shirt that buttons at the waist like a flying jacket. Hollywood Sportswear Co. is making a wrap-around jacket with velvet suede finish. It comes in such colors as Winter white, Havana brown and wine.

Ideas like these may make many an American cling all the more tightly to blue serge, but so far buyers sampling this potpourri have liked what they've seen, say California manufacturers. Bookings are running up to 25 percent ahead of last year with no notable softening in prices, they report.

Clothes made here are as different from men's wear generally made elsewhere in the country as reindeer steak from hamburger. Besides the flair for color and comfort, choice of fabric is important. Gabardine, flannel and tweed, easily associated with leisurely living and the outdoors, are favored.

"Clothes made here are loose but not baggy, and colorful but not gaudy." Thus one buyer explains the mystic lure.

Most California men's wear is at least a third more expensive than similar apparel made in other areas. The makers rely on style, quality and novelty to sell their clothes. Some customers, for instance, are willing to pay extra for a coat or shirt like the one Allan Ladd or Humphrey Bogart wore in his last movie, say the buyers.

Nine Quarantined In Trailerlike Home

Akron, O., Nov. 23 — (AP) — Nov. 29 will be a red letter day here for nine persons quarantined in a 15- by 20-foot trailer-type home.

That's the day the quarantine is scheduled to be lifted. It began Nov. 8.

The situation resulted when Mrs. Alan Conrad left for a hospital to have a baby and asked a friend, Mrs. Alberta Muncy, to come in and care for her four children, David, seven, Tommy, five, Patty, four and Diane, sixteen months.

Mrs. Muncy brought along her own two children, David, five, and John 20 months. Then Pte. and Mrs. William Riley of San Antonio, Tex., turned up for an unexpected visit.

The final complication came when David Muncy became ill with scarlet fever and the entire household was quarantined.

Louis Packing Them in On Boxing Tour

New York, Nov. 23 — (AP) — Joe Louis' boxing road series is about as big a hit as the ones staged by Bing Crosby and Bob Hope for the Movies and the heavyweight champion is coining almost as much dough.

So say booker Harry Mendel and manager Marshall Miles, who have the Brown Bomber hitting the road to Detroit, Cleveland and points north, south, east and west.

Everywhere the champ shows, he's been packing them in. Louis will have earned more than $100,000 by the time he winds up the tour Dec. 16. The champ works on a percentage and so far everyone is happy, Mendel says.

"If he wants to keep on going he can make it 300 grand by April 1," Mendel adds.

In Canada, he said, Halifax, Winnipeg, Saint John, N. B., and Glace Bay, N. S., wanted Louis for exhibitions.

Cobourg Ghosts Offer to Play Quebec Champs

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Fry, secretary of the Ontario Rugby Football Union's Intermediate committee, said at Toronto, Monday night that the O.R.F.U. Intermediate champion Cobourg Galloping Ghosts, had offered the Quebec Champion Montreal Rocklands a guarantee for a Quebec-Ontario playoff in Cobourg.

Fry said the final would not be recognized by the Canadian Rugby Union but a successful Quebec-Ontario final would help inaugurate an East-West final for a Dominion Intermediate title. The C.R.U. intermediate final was discontinued in 1934 and western teams have never participated in the series.

At Montreal, Norman Gillespie, secretary of the Quebec Rugby Football Union, said officials of the Rockland Club expect to have a definite answer in a day or two.

Lightweight Champion Ike Williams suffered a slight fracture of his right hand in a bout with Billy Nixon of Philadelphia on Thursday, Manager Frank Palermo disclosed Monday night. Williams, who stopped Nixon in the fourth round, was not aware of the injury until he tried to play golf Saturday. Palermo said Williams would not be able to go through with a scheduled Dec. 6 bout at Cleveland against Freddie Dawson.

Murdo McKay of the surging Buffalo Bisons for the second straight week leads the American Hockey League in scoring honors with 37 points, it was announced at New York. McKay, who hails from Fort William, has 14 goals and 23 assists to maintain his lead over Carl Liscombe of Providence Reds. Liscombe, who won the A.H.L. scoring title last season, had 31 points.

George Pargeter of the Bisons moved into third place with 28 points. Paul Gladu of league-leading St. Louis Flyers was tied with Liscombe for most goals with 16. McKay's 23 assists left him as the League's top playmaker.

Lee Savold, Paterson, N.J., boxer, arrived in London Monday to start training for his bout with Bruce Woodcock, British heavyweight champion. "I have been loosening up on the boat and I feel grand," said Savold who arrived at Southampton from Halifax on the Mauretania and came to London by train. "I have a good opinion of Woodcock but I think I have a good chance to beat him." The 10-round fight is scheduled for Dec. 6.

Trainer Hirsch Jacobs said in Bowie, M., Monday night that Stymie will be bred to 13 mares next Spring and then go back to racing to shoot for $1,000,000 in total earnings. The Rags-to-Riches horse is leading money-winner of all time now with $911,335. Calumet farm's three-year-old champ, Citation, will have a chance to overcome Stymie while the seven-year-old horse is in stud. Stymie cracked a bone in a leg last Summer and at first it was feared he was through with competition.

Cleveland Indians Monday announced the sale of Bob Muncrief, 32-year-old hurler, to Pittsburgh Pirates for a sum in excess of the waiver price of $10,000. A right-hander acquired from St. Louis Brown last year, he is the first member to leave the world champion's fold.
